Such medications have been tried but my consultants in the field of kidney care tell me they are not being used now—they proved too irritating to tissues in the urinary tract.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a hysterectomy a year ago and had my ovaries removed, after which the doctor gave me hormone tablets. They made me sick, although I've tried several strengths. Now I am having an injection every three weeks. This helps some, I have friends who have had hormone pellets put in their arm, and they do get by beautifully. I would like your opinion.—Mrs. D.M.

Such pellets have been tried in the past but to the best of my knowledge are not in use now. The pellets would have to be put under the skin and then replaced periodically. My advice is to stick to the tablets.

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Television is introduced here in 1976, South African Broadcasting Corp. will allow blacks to appear in TV dramas if required by the script. The network announcement surprised local theatrical groups who are required by law in segregated South Africa to have their characters played by whites in makeup.

IN MEMORIAM

BAILEY — In loving memory of our dear father, James R. who passed away July 18, 1973.
Sweet is the dear memory
Of the hardest things to say,
Of the heartache we lived with
In a very special way.
Of the silent days and lifetime walk,
One desire that would come true
We'd pray to God with all our hearts
For you.
Peacefully resting
Sadly missed and always remembered by his daughter Dorie, brother-in-law Arthur and family Gordon, Lorraine, Phyllis and Jean and Jeremy.

WHALEN — In loving memory of our dear husband and father Gerald Whalen who passed away July 18, 1971.
Sad and sudden was the call
He quickly bowed by one and all;
Suddenly in an event today
As in the home he passed away,
Gone but not forgotten by his loved and family.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Gerald Whalen would like to express their sincere appreciation for the kindness and thoughtfulness shown by friends and neighbours, for the beautiful floral tributes, for the donations made to the Cancer Society, for the visits to the funeral home and the letters and cards of sympathy. We would like to thank all those who helped in any way during the illness and after the passing away of our husband and father. Special thanks to Father Hayes for their assistive care and help, to Myles Kennedy, pallbearers, members of City Council, the staff of the Belleville General Hospital, the members of the Loyal Orange Lodge, Moira Lodge, No. 1, A.F. & A.M., Belleville, Chapter No. 1, R.A.M., Belleville, Preceptory of Victoria Commandery and convoy a heartfelt thanks. British Security Tightened After Bomb Blast in Tower

LONDON (AP) — British police put stronger security measures in force today following a bomb explosion in the Tower of London that killed one woman and injured 27 persons.

The bomb blast was the fourth in England in four days, and police believed all were set by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Guards were strengthened at places of entertainment and government buildings. The Fobia was warned to watch for letter bombs or abandoned parcels in railway and subway stations and car parks.

Scotland Yard appealed to tourists who were taking pictures at the Tower around the time of the explosion to contact them. They were already studying gran, 29, from Minnesota, who said she saw a man running from the Tower within seconds of the explosion.

The bomb went off at 2 p.m. Wednesday in a stone dungeon in the basement of the White Tower where a crowd of tourists—many of them foreigners—were looking at cannon and suits of armor. Many others had just left the building to watch the changing of the guard.

The White Tower is the oldest of the 13 within the 18 acres of the fortress known as the Tower of London. It dates to shortly after 1066.

Police said Dorothy Housshold, 47, of South London, was fatally injured.

Among the injured was Danielle Piger, a teen-ager from Toronto who was sightseeing with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Thompson of London. She was discharged from hospital after treatment of a foot injury.

Of the remaining injured, including four Americans and five New Zealanders, 18 remained in critical condition today.

A number of the injured were children. Detectives found a child's foot in the wreckage.

There was little structural damage to the Tower, but some of the historic collection of arms and armor was damaged. The government said the Tower, visited by 19,000 sightseers daily in the summer, would be open today, but the bombed area was closed as definitely.

The bomb was estimated to contain 10 pounds of explosives and was set off by a clock and battery. There was no warning, although a man with an Irish accent telephoned the Daily Mirror two minutes before the blast and said, "We are planting bombs."

The man said he was a member of the Provisional wing of the IRA, which is waging a guerrilla war in Northern Ireland against British rule. But he did not say where the bombs were being placed.

It was the first such explosion at the 900-year-old Tower in nearly 50 years, since Irish extremists set off a dynamite charge in 1936 and injured 16 persons. A month ago another terrorist bomb damaged Westminster Hall in the Houses of Parliament, a British landmark even more hallowed than the Tower. A total of 16 persons have been killed and nearly 400 wounded in such bombings in London in the last two years.

White House Lawyer to Give Nixon Impeachment Defence

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House lawyer James St. Clair will present today President Nixon's impeachment defence to a House of Representatives judiciary committee that already is drafting proposed articles of impeachment.

St. Clair's summation, aimed at establishing that Nixon was not involved in the Watergate cover-up or any other illegal matters under investigation, brings the committee to the final stage of its impeachment inquiry.

Starting Friday it will receive from special counsel John Doar a number of alternative articles of impeachment, together with supporting facts, that will serve as the basis for the committee's deliberations next week.

Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem. N.J.) rejected the charge made by some Republicans that Doar was abandoning the objective, nonpartisan stance he has maintained throughout the impeachment proceedings in drawing up proposed articles.

"He is not advocating a position," Rodino said in an interview. "He is saying to the committee, 'Here are theories that apply to the case and here are the facts that support them.'"

Doar also decided that he was discuss with Nixon any of his activities under investigation, including the raising of alleged hush money for Watergate defendants.

Kalmbach is serving a six-to-15-month jail sentence for violating campaign fund-raising laws and offering ambassadorships to Nixon campaign contributors.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman (Dem. N.Y.) said Kalmbach's testimony about the dairy industry contributions provided the basis for a possible charge of bribery, but other members disagreed.

debate in mid-August and complete it in about two weeks.

The committee heard its last witness Wednesday, Nixon's former personal lawyer Herbert Kalmbach who described his role in a $2-million dairy campaign pledge and its arranged

Some members said later that Kalmbach testified he did not

Off to Cyprus?

Turkish Landing Boats Set Sail

MERSIN, Turkey (Reuter) — About 30 Turkish assault landing craft pulled out of Mersin Harbor today and headed in the general direction of Cyprus but there was no positive indication an attack was imminent.

Turkey has been massing thousands of troops along its Mediterranean coast in preparation for a possible invasion of Cyprus following the overthrow of Archbishop Makarios by the Greek-led National Guard.

Naval units and leading barges have also been assembled off the port of Mersin, only 40 miles from Cyprus, and paratroop units were reported based only 30 minutes flying time from the island.

The departure of the landing craft from Mersin came as the U.S. state undersecretary Joseph Sisco was preparing to fly to Ankara later today in efforts to find a formula to prevent Turkish intervention.

He now is in Athens holding similar talks with Greek leaders after consultations in London.

Reuter correspondent Patrick Massey said he could see armored vehicles on some of the vessels that departed from the harbor.

But Turkish authorities refused to say anything about the mission. In the past few days officials have imposed a blackout on news of military movements.

There is a possibility the landing craft may be moving further west along the coast of southern Turkey to take up anchorage in a position nearer the Cyprus shore.

Several light escort vessels sailed along with the landing craft.

There were no other obvious signs of military activity in the vicinity of Mersin. Troops remained camped in woods along the coast, guarded by light anti-aircraft guns near the shore.

An official spokesman told reporters that no reporting or filming of military movements were allowed. A British television cameraman who tried filming the landing craft from the balcony of a hotel was escorted away by police.

In Ankara, government spokesman Orhan Birgit said the fleet has sailed but did not reveal the destination or purpose of the movement.

"These diplomatic contacts continue, we are taking the necessary precautions," Birgit said.

Canadian Civilians Urged To Get Out of Cyprus Fast

OTTAWA, (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Thursday night that Canadian civilians are being urged to leave Cyprus as soon as possible because of the present coup, which he said his government deplores. Emergency evacuation plans have been made.

He said in a prepared statement that the advice was given because "if the situation should deteriorate, the government's ability to assist them could well be limited."

He said that to date there has been no reason to believe the lives of Canadians were in any danger, but there is continuing unrest after the overthrow of Archbishop Makarios as Cypriot president early this week.

"It is our hope that normal commercial means of travel will shortly be restored, but in the event this should not happen or that the situation should worsen, we have made contingency plans through the department of national defence for the evacuation of Canadians by means of Canadian Armed Forces aircraft."

Mr. Sharp said Canada appreciates the "moderation and restraint" exercised by the Turkish-Cypriot community and by the Turkish government, which, he said, is understandably concerned.

Canada, which had watched the situation closely all week, deplored the coup d'etat by a group supported by several hundred Greek army officers.

"It is our desire that a constitutionally valid government be returned to power on the island and we will seek to contribute in any appropriate way we can to that objective."

Canada has had troops in Cyprus as part of a multi-national United Nations peacekeeping force since 1964. The force keeps the peace between Greek-and Turkish-Cypriots and has not interfered since the coup, which is an inter-Greek affair.

Mr. Sharp said Thursday night there seems to be no reasonable doubt that Greek army officers serving with the Cypriot National Guard played an active part in overthrowing President Makarios.

"For its part, the Greek government has publicly stated that the independence, territorial integrity and sovereignty of Cyprus should be maintained. We consider it important that this statement be reflected by concrete action, particularly the recall by the Greek government of its officers attached to the Cypriot National Guard."

Impeachment Body Starts Final Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The case for impeachment will be presented to the House of Representatives judiciary committee by its staff at two closed-door briefings leading up to the committee's final deliberations next week.

At the first session today, special counsel John Doar is expected to propose and seek approval for a new, sixth article of impeachment charging President Nixon with obstruction of justice, abuse of his constitutional powers and contempt of Congress.

A Republican member of the committee predicted Thursday that both the committee and the House will approve a fifth new article, leading to a Senate trial to determine whether Nixon should be removed from office.

Representative Robert McClory (Rep., Ill.) told reporters that three or four committee Republicans are likely to vote for impeachment and that it may be much higher. He said only five of 17 Republican members can be counted as definitely opposed to impeachment at this time.

At a meeting called by the House Republican leadership to determine where the committee Republicans stand, McClory was one of five members who either said they are undecided or declined to give their views. Some others indicated their position will be determined by the articles of impeachment that are proposed.

In related developments Thursday, the committee released evidence collected during its impeachment inquiry. Among the disclosures were:

—Former presidential aide John Ehrlichman says President Nixon "instructed his attorneys, against" the breakin at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Nixon has maintained publicly that he abhorred the incident.

—Memos by aide FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover on three occasions cited Henry Kissinger as the only authorizing wiretaps on government officials and reporters. Kissinger has denied making such requests and has told Senate foreign relations committee to clear him of any such involvement.

—To-day news leaks in 1971. Nixon seriously considered ordering lie-detector tests for 1,000 or more government workers with access to top-secret documents. The president didn't pursue the idea when he was told that a single suspect had already been identified.

—Vice President Gerald Ford said he has listened to some of the White House tapes and that he now understands why there is disagreement over what they say. The audio quality of the tapes was poor, he said.

Torture Said Used

President Nicolas Sampson displays a chain which he claimed was used for torturing prisoners under the Makarios regime in Cyprus. The new military-backed leader accused the Archbishop of "torture and corruption" and told newsmen there was no need for international intervention in Cyprus.

78 Hurt By Blast At Decatur

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — An explosion and fire engulfed a two-square-block area of a railway yard today. Hospital officials said 78 persons were injured and a dozen were taken to hospital.

A dispatcher for the Norfolk and Western Railroad said the explosion tore through a building used for overnight sleeping by rail crews.

Three hours after the initial explosion, the fire was still burning.

Fire fighters were evacuating homes in a two-block radius of the yards, east of Decatur, and said more explosions were possible.

The cause of the explosion was not known.

Most of the injuries occurred as residential windows shattered with the blast, officials said.

Greece Recalls Officers

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain asked Greece today to send representatives to London immediately to discuss how the Cyprus National Guard should be officered, Parliament was told.

Foreign Office Minister Roy Hattersley said in a statement that orders from Athens to replace the 650 Greek officers in the guard have been signed.

This means that the officers who led the military coup Monday will be withdrawn from the island, Hattersley said. Withdrawal will start in the next few days, he said.

"This is significant progress but only the first step towards a solution of the problem," he said.

Greece told its NATO allies in Brussels Thursday that it will replace the 650 Greek officers of the 10,000-member Cyprus National Guard in stages starting in the next few days, but categorically denied any Greek responsibility for the coup.

Space Craft Back

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet cosmonauts Pavel Popovich and Yuri Artyukhin returned to earth today after a 15-day mission aboard the space station Salyut 3, the news agency Tass reported.

The agency said the spacecraft landed in the "preset area," without saying where.

Popovich and Artyukhin had been expected to make a soft landing on the Kazakh steppe in central Asia near the Baikonur launch pad.

A report Thursday said the cosmonauts transferred documents, film cassettes and other materials from Salyut 3 to the Soyuz 14 capsule for the journey home.

The two men were blasted into space July 3 and linked up with the unmanned Salyut station two days later.

Franco Transfers His Power

MADRID (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, Spain's 81-year-old ailing chief of state, has temporarily transferred power to his designated successor, Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, it was announced today.

Juan Carlos, 36, will hold powers until Franco's full recovery, was at Franco's hospital bedside.

Premier Carlos Arias Navarro also went to the hospital, as well as members of Franco's immediate family, reports said.

A medical bulletin said earlier that Franco's condition had improved, despite phlebitis complications. But it added that thrombophlebitis sometimes was maintained within normal levels."

Franco was taken to hospital July 9 with a phlebitis attack, an inflammation of the veins.

Since he arrived at the hospital, all previous medical bulletins on Franco had indicated he was improving.

Private hospital sources said Franco suffered a thrombosis early today.

The announcement of the transfer of power came from the office of national affairs. It said Franco decided to transfer power to the prince taking provision of the law of succession which provides the chief-of-state's successor will take over from him while ill or absent from Spain.

Juan Carlos was named successor to Franco on July 22, 1969.

Lebanese Village Is Raided

SIDON, Lebanon (Reuter) — More than 50 Israeli troops broke up three houses and kidnapped two men in the southern Lebanese village of Al-Sidiqa early today, sources said.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli military authorities said Israeli commandos destroyed three houses which were refuges for Arab guerrillas.

The village raided is about two miles from the Israeli border, in the Tyre area, South reports from Lebanon and from Israel said there were no casualties.

The Lebanese sources said the Israelis pulled back across the border—taking with them a farmer and a shepherd.

A committee of Lebanese army officers and United Nations observers inspected the site of the attack.

The Toronto Board of Health plans to screen 2,700 children who live near smelters.

Holidayers Get Out of Cyprus

Canadian Service Families Happy to Be Safe in Lahr

LAHR, West Germany (CP) Canadian Hercules plane evacuations brought the vacationers taken to Nicosia for the flight to — A total of 87 Canadians— mostly brought the vacationers safety.

servicemen, women and children born in Cyprus during the last three years — arrived here from strife-torn Cyprus Thursday. Most of them were vacationers in the island which were transformed manned by young Greek-Cypriot conscripts.

Harrowing experiences by priest and nun, and by military personnel who — disabled Archbishop Makarios from his presidency.

They told of the shock of hearing about the curfew imposed after the coup by the Greek-led National Guard on Monday.

They had to be off the streets by 6 p.m. or risk being shot, they reported.

Canadian children accompanying their parents were simultaneously fascinated and frightened at the sight of young Greek-Cypriot soldiers moving through the streets of resort communities such as Famagusta and Kyrenia.

The sense of shooting added reality to the broadcast news of political upheaval.

Margie Tyrrell of Ovoso, Ont., was married during a holiday that had taken her to the north Cyprus resort of Kyrenia.

She came ashore and, on hearing news of the coup, was taken in by a Greek-Cypriot family.

The Greek Cypriots translated for her the bulletins flashed in Greek over the local radio.

What frightened Miss Tyrrell most were the — shellbursts across the highways on which she travelled to Nicosia, the capital, and site of the international airport from which a Canadian Hercules plane evacuated the vacationers to safety.

The road trip from Kyrenia to Nicosia usually takes about 30 minutes but on this occasion it took three hours.

But the soldiers didn't disturb the Canadian vacationers, who had been spared the full horror of the Greek-led coup in Cyprus directly from Canada.

Cpl. Harvey Russell and his wife Marlene of Edmonton returned to Cyprus on holiday from Bermuda. What they encountered panicked by their three children, aged 18, 8 and 5.

They arrived in Cyprus July 15 and were strolling through the old east coast resort town of Famagusta on Monday, the first day of the coup, when they noticed heavy shooting.

Residents warned them to flee and they climbed aboard a transporting a group of German tourists in the area.

"We just wanted to get out of there," said Mrs. Russell.

The bus passengers were escorted to their tourist hotels nearby by a UN jeep.

They heard little all the rest of Monday and all of Tuesday, listening to the radio broadcasts about the dramatic political developments.

The couple said they saw across soldiering into the air.

What worried the Russells most was the — particularly was that their hotel quarters had three windows which made the safety of their children a matter of anxiety.

They finally received 30 minutes notice that they were to be

Their flight to Nicosia was the first flight.

"I knew the UN and Canadian forces would look after us," Mrs. Russell said.

Two large escorted their charges to the airport.

Hospital Nurses OK New Pact

Belleville General Hospital nurses have ratified the pay settlement reached in Toronto earlier this week between the Ontario Nurses Association and representatives of most hospitals in the province.

Approval was formally sealed Thursday afternoon at the last of three meetings called to discuss the settlement.

"They liked it very much and are quite happy with it," said Dena Plumton, president of the 700-member BGH nurses' association after the last vote was taken.

The discussions were staggered into three sessions Wednesday and Thursday to facilitate attendance of the nurses between duty shifts.

Miss Plumton said she had not exactly calculated the votes in relation to membership, but the nurses were "pretty well unanimous" at all three meetings.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, said today an executive committee of the hospital's board of governors will meet next Friday to discuss ratification of the agreement.

Hair-raising

Downtown merchants are bracing their nerves and nolo the open for this weekend. The occasion is the sidewalk sale which ends tomorrow. Music, clowns, food and sales all combine to make a trip downtown worth your while. Here, a salesclerk offers wigs for sale in front of DeKontent Wig Boutique.

Walker's Always Keeps City Firefighters Busy

Perhaps the city's firefighters should set up another station at Walker's Department Store. In the past week, firefighters were called three times to the downtown store, with two of the calls occurring in the past 24 hours.

Last Friday, firefighters were called to Walker's but fortunately the store's sprinkler system was set off by some unknown cause and damage was confined to smoke and water.

Around the noon hour, yesterday, firefighters were called to the store to answer an alarm. This time it was a malfunction in the alarm system believed caused when a workman drove a nail into the wall setting off the alarm.

At that time, the only problem firefighters had was getting to the site as crowds downtown were enjoying the downtown sidewalk sale and a portion of Front Street was closed. The reason? The store was extensively damaged by smoke and damage from a Dominion Day fire to the adjacent Shana Fashion Boutique and renovations were being done to the Walker's Store.

PUC Chairman Concerned

Hire More Town Students Public Agencies Told

TRENTON — An Exodus of young people from this town could be stopped if public bodies increased hiring of local high school graduates, Trenton Public Utilities Commission chairman Charles Dilton claimed Thursday.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Dilton said, "Management of elected groups did not practice hiring graduates from Trenton High School, the town's only secondary school.

Job preference should be given town residents, he said, in urging the PUC to adopt such a policy.

Any girl that has graduated from Trenton High School should be given first chance at a work opportunity, he said.

"I can't see any point in sending a girl to school for four or five years and then not getting them employment in our office."

He raised no objections to married women being hired as civil servants but strongly suggested recently graduated girls be given jobs to keep them at home.

Mr. Hilton said his stand was taken in response to some public criticism.

The jury found a second defendant, James Leggett, 28, not guilty of the charges.

Bell Workers Take U.S. Strike Vote

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 760,000 Bell Telephone System workers have started to vote on whether to strike. Meanwhile, talks continue in the National Airlines strike, copper walkout negotiations were suspended temporarily and 30,000 workers remain off the job as several General Motors plants in the United States.

Leaders of the Communications Workers Union, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and a group of independent unions asked their members Thursday to authorize a strike if they want to go on strike. The balloting is expected to be completed by mail in about two weeks.

Talks have been recessed temporarily in the copper strike in which 30,000 workers have left their jobs. The negotiations are between the unions and the companies, American Smelting and Refining Co., Kennecott Copper Corp. and Phelps Dodge Corp.

Approximately 39,000 General Motors workers were on strike or were laid off because of the walkout at plants in Lordstown, Ohio, and St. Louis, Detroit and Dallas. Workers' union members are also threatening to go on strike at Ford's Edgewater, Ind., and Danville, Ill., plants if local contract settlements are not reached.

A strike by 1,000 mechanics at National Airlines has made idle 1,600 of the company's workers and grounded its aircraft. Talks are under way in Washington.

The telephone unions rejected the system's regular three 5.5 per cent or 10 per cent which were offered by the company. Also turned down were cost-of-living pay increases and other benefits.

Telephone salaries now range from $108 to $186 a week for operators and $146 to $268 for skilled craftsmen.

The telephone workers' contract expired at midnight Wednesday night but officials agreed to continue talks and extend the old pact on a day-to-day basis.

Elsewhere, officials said the final wording of a contract is being worked out between the leaders of 3,300 striking Steelworkers Union members and Dow Chemical Corp. of Midland, Mich.

Club's Conservation Project

Bird-raising A Demanding Chore

By AL EABAS
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — Pheasants flailed the mesh with their wings in an effort to escape outstretched nets and big hands.

An eight-week-old bird, drew blood from one man.

Catching pheasants, even when they're young, is difficult as raising the birds, members of the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Club discovered Thursday.

Two months ago, 1,800 two-day-old pheasants were delivered to the club's 100 acres northeast of here by the Ministry of Natural Resources. The assignment was to raise the birds previously hatched at Codrington Bird Farm.

Thursday, the time had come to band 200 and release them into the wild. Another 200 were caught, stuffed in boxes and taken to Wolfe Island near Kingston and Camden Lake northeast of Napanee also for release on Crown land.

During the past eight weeks, the death toll among the birds was high. About 300 died. Members blamed the deaths on changeable weather conditions.

Jim Howard said the heat has to be regulated carefully while the chicks are in sheds during the first weeks following birth.

"If it gets too hot, they smother. If it gets too cold they bunch together and smother," said Elmer Rogers. "We weren't on the button."

He explained the coop must be kept at a constant temperature, initially at 90 degrees taking into account outside weather conditions.

If it becomes cold, the temperature must be increased. Otherwise, the young pheasants bunch in a corner pyramid fashion, crushing those on the bottom.

Shoo club members must also work. It was difficult to watch the birds as closely as necessary.

But it is difficult to count on. Last week, another bird-raising project fared worse.

Club president Vince Brennan said a raccoon got into four cents of six Canada Goose Club is starting.

"He ruined the nests and the geese won't go near them," he said. Only nest had eight eggs."

Overall, the death toll among the pheasants, is considered normal by ministry officials. Delicate birds fare similarly at the Codrington-Bird Farm, said a conservation officer.

27,000-people Community Approved

TORONTO (CP) — The borough of Scarborough approved a $27,000-unit housing development on its northern boundaries Thursday at a special council meeting. Mayor Paul Cosgrove said Thursday that:

The 800-acre development would be a new community of about 27,000 people, to be made up of single family dwellings, semi-detached houses and apartment suites, he said.

Approval of the development, which will come under the control of the Ontario housing ministry's Housing Action Program, was a "response to provincial government calls to get a move on," Mr. Cosgrove said.

PUC Takes Action

Trenton Reservoir Used As Local Swimming Hole

TRENTON — The Telephone Road parents will be asked to stop their children swimming in Trenton Lake Reservoir, the Town Public Utilities Commission decided Thursday.

The reservoir, major source of Trenton's water, is being used as a swimming hole by area children, commission manager Douglas Manlow said.

Mr. Manlow said reported warnings by provincial police officers for not stopped children from using the reservoir.

"The OPP can only warn people," he said. The next step is to give them the authority to press charges."

Chairman Charles Hilton in agreeing with the resolution to send the letter, said what he finds objectionable is "the garbage that's being thrown reservoir."

He explained that "14,000 people drink this water."

Commissioner Jim MacDonald agreed. He said the reservoir "should be kept clean and pure."

This will be emphasized in a letter to parents.

PUC Gets Township's Assurance on Seepage

TRENTON — Normal protection from seepage of road binder into the Trenton Lake Reservoir will be requested from Murray township by Trenton Public Utilities Commission, it was decided Thursday.

Commissioners have been concerned that binder laid on Telephone Road to keep down dust will seep into the reservoir and pollute the town's water supply.

A letter from Murray Council agreeing to use "discretion . . . in future applications of dust layer" prompted a favorable response from the PUC.

Chairman Charles Hilton said, "As far as I'm concerned, I feel we have a right to protection of our property. We are taxpayers in the township."

A letter to that effect will be sent to Murray council.

Commissioners seemed satisfied with the township's action, but rejected Murray's suggestion that part of the road be paved to avoid seepage into the reservoir. The PUC did not agree to a cost-sharing scheme to pave the roadway.

Plan for Hydro Cost-sharing Ready for Mall's Developers

TRENTON — Western Realty Ltd. will shortly decided whether to accept or reject a Public Utilities Commission proposal for servicing of a planned $2.75 million mall in east Trenton.

The proposal, revealed during Thursday's PUC meeting, calls for the commission participation in handling construction of a substation north of the mall.

The major share of the $35,000 cost of the substation will come from the developer. The commission will put up $6,400 and retain ownership of the substation.

Total PUC outlay for electrical servicing of the mall would be $2,500. An assembly extension of a 44 kilovolt power line from the Interaction of George and Herman Sts. to the substation will cost $1,100.

In revealing the proposal, yet to be seen by the developer, PUC manager Douglas Manlow said the commission would get a return on its investment in years after it is made.

Trenton engineering eventually will get a return on public investment, he said, if the proposal is accepted by Western Realty Ltd.

The said creation of the substation will also relief the existing load on the Dixon St. substation.

Who's Lost The Boat?

PICTON — A 16 - foot aluminum boat was recovered at North Beach Provincial Park by provincial police from here Thursday.

A police spokesman said no report of a missing boat has been filed with either provincial park authorities at Conneon or police.

The boat is described as "in fairly good condition, and the owner may claim it may have come adrift from a nearby campsite.

If not claimed, the boat will be turned over to the natural resources ministry in Trenod for auction.

Acts Of Cruelty

It is a far cry from the Kingston waterfront to the Magdalen Islands, but there is a similar reaction of horror to the spectacle of a week-old pup left in a garbage bag as the former site das there is to the killing of baby harp seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The puppy was rescued, placed with a litter by the Humane Society, and will be available for adoption in five weeks. A happy ending. Not so however in far too many instances where the seal hunt is concerned.

Well known for his unremitting efforts to bring an end to the hunt and its brutalities is Brian Davies of the International Fund for Animal Welfare with headquarters in Fredekicton.

Davies, in a brochure put out by the fund, notes that while commercial harp seal hunting has been banned in the Gulf of St. Lawrence a little-known hunt from small vessels, and so-called landsmen (individuals who walk out over the shore ice to the seals) still takes place. As a result, as many as 15,000 seals, mostly babies, may still be killed in any year.

While in the area in March of this year with the first party of tourists to go there, Davies observed the massacre of seals which drifted on ice floes to the Magdalen group where men and boys lined the shores waiting. Earlier the landsmen had plotted the tourists on their arrival by air.

The animal welfare official says what he witnessed was "sheer barbaric cruelty unequalled by anything I witnessed in the years I fought the Gulf commercial hunt. I saw men running from seal to seal in their eagerness for the slaughter . . ."

Their weapons: clubs, with steel hooks attached, knives, and boots.

This sort of thing speaks for itself. But it is all the more unfortunate that dedicated people such as Brian Davies, in their quest for humane treatment of animals, are often regarded as neurotic do-gooders.

Still, his efforts seem to be paying off to some extent. His aim in part is the creation of a Marine Mammal National Park in the Gulf and expansion of the tourist industry that would offset, at least in part, local revenues lost if hunting were prohibited entirely.

There is a lot of cruelty in the world and this manifestation of it, directed against a helpless and beautiful species, is all the more heinous. Hunting has its place in the order of things but wholesale slaughter, in the most brutal circumstances, as described here, is degrading and uncivilized. A poor contribution in fact to Canada's image as one of the more desirable parts of the world.

No To Jeans

Blue jeans have become so much the attire of the young that it has been almost forgotten there is such a thing as fashion, not to mention of course the clothes that go with it.

There must be many who are wondering if this jeans craze is going to run its course. The wisdom and the patience and the pale and faded and anaemic aspect of it all are becoming too much.

Here they are great for comfort; but is there nothing else? Happily, the answer is yes, as many a youngster of well-groomed appearance attests.

Maybe it is the peer group thing that keeps so many locked pound into the blue denim mould, not to mention the boys and their long hair and kids of both sexes to whom a happy outlook on the world is not to be considered.

A pox on this peer group nonsense if all it does is drag everyone down to the level of the mob, the group, the junkies, the so-called "cool" guys, the pot-smoking youngsters with the cigarettes, the mischief-makers and the sloppy-look crowd.

In Victoria Lennart Kordy of The Royal Hotel is adopting a "no jeans" ruling similar to other hotels in the area. This is bound to effect a quick change in the thinking of some. If they want to have a drink they will have to look presentable.

The tendency in the dress of the young who now frequent hotel bars is very much upward and out. If hotels say no to jeans it could bring about an overall improvement in the tone and drinking habits of Canadians at large. There is no reason why people should not look tidy and act in a civilized manner on these occasions.

Trudeau Now Confronted with Realities of Inflation

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The middle of the summer is a time when even politicians prefer to relax—especially after the strain of an election campaign.

But let's hope that the Trudeau cabinet and the new parliamentary majority won't wait much longer before they set to work on Canada's economic problems.

After all, the Trudeau-Turner laissez-faire attitude toward inflation cannot be sustained indefinitely into the future.

Whether or not the origins of today's inflation are international—as the government claims—the rise in the cost of living has to be considered a critical domestic issue when it exceeds one percent month after month.

Even the prime minister must know that his campaign promises to spend hundreds of millions of dollars, if implemented, will only add fuel to the fires of inflation.

(The election results are being interpreted by some people as a mandate for more and bigger inflation—but surely that is not the only possible interpretation).

Once the government has made the decision to cope with inflation as a domestic as well as international issue, it would do well to start by letting the business new or different views on the problem.

The economists in the public service must share, with the politicians, some of the responsibility for Canada's sorry record on monetary stability over the past few years, and for our economy's current drift toward uncontrolled run-away inflation.

But what you will about his motives, but U.S. President Richard Nixon was on the right economic track when he recently convened an assembly of leading American businessmen and economists in the hope that they would produce some ideas and some kind of consensus to guide the administration in fighting inflation.

Ottawa's budget-making, too blinded by doctrinaire antipathy toward private enterprise, to seek out possible alternatives to the old ways that have led to today's widespread economic malaise?

One thing is sure: The Canadian economy cannot continue on its present course indefinitely.

Annual inflation of about 12 per cent is not a recipe for perpetual prosperity, but for eventual collapse.

The results are in for the first quarter of this year, and they show a growth rate of 8.2 per cent—considerably below John Turner's forecast of six eight to nine per cent rise in the 1974 gross national product.

As the year progresses, the chances are that there will be a further slowdown.

Such a slowdown could be caused by any one of several factors—a credit squeeze in the to the uniquely interesting if intensely absorbing kind of life they all, at times of frustration and disappointment, have found when they were living it.

So many times they had talked of themselves over the broadcasting network, and wondered if it had been worthwhile opening so brazenly if in other people's troubles and sorrows.

And now, when they so reluctantly must leave it, they know how rewarding it could have been, the enjoyment there really was in it, and the way you're all going to miss it all.

The difficult, quite unexciting, hard work already is becoming, in warm memory, not so hard. The friendships will last and it had been worth the effort.

The failures fade and the achievements accrue.

And out of that camaraderie, the ambience of in-house camaraderie even when those following on the other side of the Commons aisle, that good feeling of belonging to Canada's most exclusive club — membership limited to 264 — was only yesterday, and without it tomorrow is going to be so suddenly strangely different.

So the stragglers of political fortune clean out their desks, empty their files, strip their bookcases and take down the old campaign photos and the treasured cartoons.

Outside the offices in the long corridors await those employed somewhere in the cardboard boxes — looking like the cases they actually are — for what is left after the death of a parliamentary career.

Into the long boxes go the mementoes — the memorials — of their life in the Commons, the flotsam with their speeches, the special files, the private ones.

Sometimes the packing is done before the office doors they closed and the lights they switched off so that old friends won't see them in these parting days of disappointment and often, to the more sensitive, embarrassment.

Others pack with their office doors open, laughing, talking down the last light of their heavy hearts as they sever the ties that bind them to the constant company of the Commons.

The packing is done in all these — and goodness knows how many — years over 80 days' sitting and the last lonely walk is taken by the parliamentary functionaries to cheer over how good it really was with other members of the club, the long summers and the leaves.

Finally, the long goodbyes and the desperately hoped for "see you next time" — they hope.

Worst of all is the leave-taking from the faithful office staff, the loyal secretaries, the long, long faces of the Hansard assistants who may have been defeated, even like MP, over the parsing, first arrived years and many Parliaments ago.

"We are just sick" croaks the young man who had been with Conservative House Leader Robert Stanfield since only a couple of years, as the relaxed MP of the Parliament of 1962 grimly grips his hand.

A secretary who has been with an MP those 31 years breaks down.

"OK FELLAS...IT STILL DOESN'T SOUND RIGHT...LET'S TAPE IT AGAIN FROM THE TOP."

The Packing and The Last Sad... Brave Farewells On The Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA—Outside on the fields green leaves of Parliament Hill, the bear-skinned, red-coated guards are marching in behind the Canadian Forces National Defence Headquarters band thumping out in slow British Army cadence that great and blasted air of the march, "Standard of St. George."

So many of the tourists in their casually colorful holiday gear stand hemmed six deep around the fence of the square, basking contentedly in the hot humid sunshine of high Summer.

A pleasing scene.

Inside the Centre and West Blocks flanking these lawns of holiday happiness, and in the Confederation Building at the foot of the parliamentary compound, there is a mourning of political wakes.

A sad sight.

The losers in the election, almost all of them conservatives and New Democrats, are turning to the Capital to stand among the ruins of their wrecked parliamentary careers.

And to pack all that is left of their House of Commons lives, the framed photographs of those speeches, the scrapbooks of newspaper clippings from their hometown papers, the photographs of their wives and wife, the surprisingly few letters of appreciation from constituents they tried to help. Or many write asking for help and seldom bothered to say thank-you.)

A sorrowful time, this. With nobody hurrying to say farewell

Makarios Ousted

Ex-Terrorist in Charge in Cyprus

By JOHN D. HARRIS
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

With Cyprus President Archbishop Makarios overthrown, the witness for disappearance from office of yet another government world leader.

Several have gone in the last 12 months, French President Georges Pompidou, Israeli Premier Golda Meir, Chile's Marxist President Salvador Allende by murder or suicide in a military coup, former British prime minister Edward Heath by electoral defeat, Argentina's strongman Juan Peron by death.

The unseating of the controversial but admittedly highly-respected Archbishop Makarios, was done in the all-too-familiar way of a military coup and takeover by a minority.

The ostensible for a military se in Cyprus, apparently a quasi-military revolution, to take over, always seems to and always does, if the circumstances for it are different in each place.

The new and so far self-proclaimed president of Cyprus is Nicos Sampson. He is a Greek nationality but with a vicious despatch record as a gunman and killer and determined to bring about "enosis" or Cyprus union with Greece.

Mr. Sampson was a leader by for the late Colonel Georgios Grivas, the tough-minded expatriot Greek colonel for Cyprus and Makarios' main opponent for staying in power and maintaining Cyprus as an independent Mediterranean area republic within the British Commonwealth.

The coup took place at the time of about 600 Greek officers within the country's National Guard, a force which Grivas like for Makarios who was the political leader.

He had spent much of his remaining years sweden to it in 1964, placating the Turkish Cypriots who were and are violently opposed of course to any kind of a Greek union.

The presence of these officers had concerned him even more after the displacement of Greek military president George Papadopoulos by a group of even more right-wing military colonels.

Many of these had served in Cyprus a decade earlier. They had returned to Greece as the Greek army staff, General Ioannides, former intelligence chief and head of the Greek junta premier behind his new Greek junta premier and head of the Greek-style C.I.A.

Ioannides between them, the 600 officers in the leading Cypriote cities which Makarios had asked Greece to take home, and with Mr. Sampson himself, can only be speculated at this late date.

Where Colonel Grivas, hard, deadpanned and a expert soldier failed to take over Cyprus not only against Makarios but against the British, then the UN peacekeeping battalions, Mr. Sampson a weak leader and latter, has done so.

Archbishop Makarios had himself once believed in enosis as a Cypriote native of Greek birth and a priest from his twenties.

During the struggles of the late 1950s and early 60s, when the British Army was out in number of those roles to combat terror which they have had to do in Malaysia, Palestine and now in Northern Ireland, Makarios was once viewed as an evil genius trying to link Cyprus to Greece in the same way Hitler had tried to link Austria to do it.

But maturity as president, sixpark statesmanship as head of a very small new nation in the world has given the confidence of the super-powers. He repudiated the long dream of the process in his midst.

And in the light of present events, he appears at the end as a statesman in his own right.

Bureaucracy: A Growing Industry

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

The chances are, that if you live on an ordinary block, in an average size in an average city in Ontario, that one of your neighbors works for you.

Words like that, in the sense that he works for government, are heard in public everywhere, is on the public payroll and therefore is being paid by you.

There has been considerable growth in the number of government service, or government employees, in Ontario in the recent years.

The growth particularly pronounced during the recent federal-provincial era that declaimed the Ottawa establishment had been growing at a faster rate.

And figures given really were impressive. Ottawa that the Trudeau government had increased the civil service by as much as 38 per cent.

But the growth becomes alarming when it is considered that the provincial civil service in Ottawa but to all levels of government.

Even the thinking people most disturbing of all is that there are no indications that the trend can be or will be curbed.

Just why can perhaps be explained by the experience in Ontario.

The province in recent years has been making an intentional effort to try to curb civil service growth.

And though it probably has spent more money than other jurisdictions it hasn't been able to hold the line.

The latest figures show that the Ontario Civil Service on March 31 of this year the total number of civil servants in employment was 57,000.

(These figures don't include the municipal governments or semi-government agencies such as the Liquor Control Board of Ontario Hydro. These would raise the total number to over 100,000 each).

And it is only only a casual glance at some of the growth figures to show why the trend is so difficult to curb, probably impossible.

In the year, for example, the ministry of the environment grew from 1,000 to 1,500 employees.

In the two year period community and social services grew from 1,250 to 1,600.

Health services, the biggest user of dollars of all, expanded from 1,800 to 2,000.

Correction Services (reformatories and jails) developed from 1,650 to 4,000.

These were the branches of government of greatest growth and it is notable that they all have one point in common: they are primarily dealing with human destinies or shortcomings of human beings.

We are becoming more and more an environmental society, we are demanding more dayto-day services from government, health services are constantly expanded. And as the more society is becoming more free-willed and more affluent the more it is in trouble.

These are developments which, in a free society we cannot slow down.

But it all throws it will make other demands.

And if economic protection is growing to be a substantial service, Ontario has a new ministry of consumer affairs, still small, will undoubtedly grow. There are potentially huge new public transportation projects underway.

These all will mean more and more people employed by government. Which also, of course, means that government is going to cost more and more.

This would seem to be inevitable.

LETTERS

The Dim Dead Days Beyond Recall

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I read Mrs. Donaldson's letter in The Intelligencer on July 5. If I read her letter correctly she had a happy childhood and she had in Belleville if people think they are living in a civilized way. She further wrote that eatlaws were primitive and there was no reason to let anyone drink himself or herself under the table in a public place. She wrote that she was brought up in a happy home. I, too, had a happy home and there never was any problem.

I have always admired organized and self - controlled people, because I do not know where many of us would be today without such. However, I am afraid many of us have not been that fortunate in having such a background.

For many of us there has, and is, an Uncle Henry, Uncle Charlie or Auntie Mary now and a generation or two back, who did and is doing the unmentionable."

I feel we cannot look through rose-coloured glasses. We are only a beautiful beer garden where people can relax and have a beer. It is more than this, and the danger is in generalizing. People can't always relax and pills and alcohol (a drug) are often used for this purpose. But we must not forget that people do have a lot of available remedies for this purpose as well.

In short the last three decades the fags of a Canadian summer and the temperance movement recognition. The right and the people and the smells are all changed.

Thirty years ago the pace was leisurely. The speed was one of peace. Today the pace is frantic. Then, . . . time to be pleasures were simple. After supper there would be watering the lawn, or doing a little weeding. Occasionally everyone would go to a ball game and drive around and everyone would have an ice cream cone.

What a difference today! What's happened to these rose-coloured days, afternoons, desire for stairs and women . . . It is the fault of the modern people become, the more they drink. No one is prepared to stay home anymore and look after his garden and put up preserves.

There are no more family picnics on Sunday and a collector of cold lemonade on a hot summer afternoon. It is a thing of the past.

Now, it's the new carriage, the bigger boat, the second car and the trips.

Let's get away from the overcrowded, noisy, smelly city, the beer parlour jungles by the lake, the dirty beaches, the gardens, the never-ceasing end of the finance company and the eternal pursuit of status in our society. And let's get back to the simple life, the basic things — the gardening, the weeding, the walks, the family picnics and the cold lemonade or ice cream on the back porch.

MRS. NORMA HAYNES

Fifty Amendments Submitted By Cloutier to Language Bill

QUEBEC (CP) — Education Minister Francois Cloutier has tabled amendments to his official language bill which meet many of the objections of those opposed to it.

Mr. Cloutier gave nearly 50 amendments Thursday to the national assembly's education committee which is considering the bill to make French the sole official language in Quebec and require children to pass language proficiency tests before entering French or English language schools.

Mr. Cloutier also tabled guidelines for regulations that will apply the law to four major areas—education, signs and labels, and francisation programs in industry.

The amendments say school boards will continue to provide education of English where the first draft said only that English education "may" be provided.

But the same amendment says no school board can limit education — or cause English-language institutions to increase or decrease the size of its English sector without permission of the education minister. This ensures that the English education system does not grow to the detriment of the French system.

Larger English speakers or new English facilities would be allowed only when the number of students with English as a mother tongue justified it.

The bill repeals 1969 legislation guaranteeing parents freedom of choice for the language of education and requires students to pass language proficiency tests—supplied by the education department—before students switch from one system to the other or register for the first time with a school board.

The guidelines tabled by Mr. Cloutier say the minister will set up a board each year to help him study the results of the language tests and how the school boards assigned the pupils.

On the advice of the board, the minister could order school boards to change the manner in which they assigned students.

The article allowing the government to grant subsidies to firms adopting francisation programs has been thrown out but the bill now says firms must possess certificates issued by la Regie de la Langue Francaise (French Language Board) to be eligible for government grants or loans or for government contracts. The English name for the board is abolished.

The board will have the power to set any firm not possessing a certificate of francisation to begin a francisation program and will make an annual report to the government on such requests and subsequent action taken by the firm.

But if the amendments seem to strengthen the bill, the guidelines tabled by Mr. Cloutier said that "no francisation program may impose on an entreprise language restraints such that the firm can no longer compete in its market."

And another amendment says the francisation program will take into account the structure of each enterprise, its head offices and its subsidies and branches."

Measures relating to French as the language of union negotiations, contracts and grievance procedures have been removed from the bill as Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer has introduced amendments to the Labor Code with the same purpose as the move demanded by labor unions.

Record Compensation Payments Anticipated

LONDON (CP) — Record compensation payments are anticipated for the victims of a terrorist bombing at the Tower of London Wednesday, a government official said today.

Since many of the victims were foreigners, the British Injuries Compensation Board is informing embassies how the compensation can be claimed.

Board chief Frank Caster said the special circumstances of the bombing prompted the board to bypass red tape.

"We don't want to be legalistic about it," he said.

Although no estimate of claims is possible, the board said it anticipates paying out more than the $75,000 it has paid to date to victims of the March, 1973, car bombing at the Old Bailey courthouse in London.

An English woman died from injuries in the Tower of London explosion, many of them children, said the board. Almost all of the injured are still in hospital, all but five in serious condition.

Test Case Is Likely Over Police Calls

HAMILTON (CP) — A Hamilton-Wentworth regional police spokesman said Thursday that a charge laid here under the new federal privacy act might lead to a test case in the courts.

Police Chief Gordon Torrence said he expected the case will determine whether the act, which went into effect July 1, would apply to radio capable of monitoring police calls.

Leslie Russell Leibbrandt, 24, of Hamilton, was charged Wednesday with intercepting a private communication and with possessing, without reasonable excuse, a radio capable of monitoring police calls.

"We feel that police broadcasts are public," Chief Torrence said.

Insp. Ron Farraway said Thursday he is advising people who have the RCMP for a licence for the equipment.

At present, radios capable of monitoring police calls are available in radio stores.

Greater Diversion Of Lake Water Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-eight members of the United States Congress from the Great Lakes area have urged the House of Representatives public works committee to act quickly on legislation that would permit increased diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago.

They wrote a letter Thursday to public works committee chairman John Blatnik (Dem.-Minn.), urging the legislation "would help alleviate some of the problems resulting from the currently high water levels throughout the Great Lakes.

The legislation, Democratic Senator James O'Hara, (Dem. Mich.) contains two important safeguards:

— Increased diversion would be possible if the levels of the lakes were below their long-term seasonal average.

— No increased diversion would be possible if it would contribute to flooding in the Illinois waterway of the Mississippi River.

In their letter to Blatnik, the congressmen said:

"Our problems in the Great Lakes basin remain acute. We have been recently close to the all-time record. Flooding remains a constant threat and shoreline erosion to ends at an alarming rate."

Federal Nurses Seek Matching Wage Increase

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Nurses at Westminster Hospital, federally-employed public servants, voted Thursday to ask the Treasury Board for wage parity with members of the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) if bet group's contract is ratified.

At a meeting attended by 65 of 78 nurses on staff, a resolution was passed seeking reopening of the nurses' contract which expires Dec. 31. The resolution also asks that wage parity with members of the ONA be reached by Aug. 15, "or withdrawal of services action will be recommended."

Doris Hawkins, a spokesman for the nurses, said attendance at the meeting was down by a per cent. of the nurses who would be available if that time of day, since the hospital operates on three shifts.

Mrs. Hawkins said members of the hospital administration went to Ottawa last week and told the Treasury Board of potential problems at the hospital if wage disparity continued.

"The ONA will be getting 13 per cent more per with their present offer than nurses at Westminster, making a vicious circle impossible to live with here," Mrs. Hawkins said. "The sentiment through the hospital is that we want the same increases as the provincial body."

Approves Plant

CALGARY (CP) — Nick Taylor, Alberta Liberal party leader, said Thursday he sees no reason wrong with having a $250-million petrochemical plant built in Sarnia, Ont., rather than in Alberta as long as his province shares in the profits.

National Parole Body Is Called 'Lawless'

TORONTO (CP) — A Queen's University law professor says the National Parole Board is "lawless," and riddled with political influence and that its current parole decision-making process.

Writing in the current issue of the Canadian Journal of Criminology and Corrections, Prof. Ronald Price says safeguards should be built into prison disciplinary hearings to ensure that prisoners are not dealt with arbitrarily.

Turning his sarcasm toward "everybody reformist," Prof. Price writes that both parole granting and revocation proceedings "lend themselves to the truth ideal of legal justice-definition—the formal hearing with appropriate representation."

However, he says, prisoners applying for parole, or those who have had their parole revoked, have little idea about the criteria used by parole commissioners in deciding their fate.

The parole board can release a convict on parole, revoke that parole—which means the prisoner loses all earned "good time" and must serve again the time successfully completed outside—and never be required by law to give the prisoner any form of hearing.

This "non-existing "system, with "weaknesses" in attempts to understand or control board actions,

"The hostility of many penitentiary staff to the board is scarcely disguised," he says. "The frustration of the inmates is open — and the results in terms of increased tension in penitentiary institutions should hardly occasion surprise."

Aids Jail Occupants

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The number of persons sentenced to provincial jails could be dramatically reduced if a project here succeeds and is to be adopted by other Ontario communities, correction experts said Thursday.

Harold Hughes, western regional director of the Ontario corrections ministry, told a news conference that Kitchener House Community Resource Centre will be the first of its kind in Ontario to have men serving time in provincial institutions.

He said at least 49 per cent of people in Ontario jails should never have had to serve time in an institutional atmosphere.

Jen Metis, director of the new house, said he felt the number could be as high as 80 per cent.

Haldeman, Connally Differ Over Dairy Industry Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly-published testimony by H. R. Haldeman conflicts with sworn statements by John Connally about donations by the dairy industry to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

The former White House chief of staff swears that, Connally once complained to him that no arrangements were being made to receive industry donations.

Connally has testified that he didn't solicit contributions from the milk producer co-operatives with anybody and that he had nothing to do with their political donations. The milk producers were seeking to double $2 million or more to Nixon's campaign.

Haldeman testified last Jan. 31 at a closed session of the Senate Watergate committee, which made the testimony public Thursday. Connally's testimony, given last November, was made public earlier in the week.

"I recall talking with or listening to Mr. Connally on the subject of dairy contributions," Haldeman said. The point Mr. Connally made to me was, as I recall it, simply that the dairy people want to make contributions and they had been tryied to work with the campaign people or whoever is handling it, and they weren't getting the mechanics set up for them to do this, and that is kind of stupid, why doesn't someone get it set up."

Haldeman said Connally didn't mention any particular organization, and that he couldn't recall the date of the 1972 and early 1971 top officials of Associated Milk Producers Inc. were attempting to get Nixon aides to set up conduit committees to receive campaign donations.

One of their lawyers, John Jacobsen, was an old friend of Connally who ranged and cultivated Connally's help in getting President Nixon to make milk price supports in 1971.

Toronto Demands Discount

TORONTO (CP) — An agreement signed 68 years ago was cited by Toronto Hydro Thursday at hearings into a proposal by Ontario Hydro to increase wholesale rates.

In the 1906 pact, Toronto and other Ontario municipalities contracted to buy minimum amounts of power from a proposed new Ontario Hydro transmission system and to share in the capital cost of the project.

It was signed by Sir Adam Beck, Hydro's first chairman, and then Toronto mayor Joseph Oliver. The other founding municipalities were Hamilton, London, Brantford, Guelph, Stratford, St. Thomas, Woodstock, Berlin (now Kitchener), Galt and Seaforth (now part of Cambridge), St. Marys, Preston, Waterloo and New Hamburg.

A photocopy of the agreement was entered Thursday as an exhibit in Ontario Energy Board hearings into the proposal by Ontario Hydro to increase its wholesale rates next year by about 15 per cent.

Contending that the original municipalities had undertaken obligations by signing that agreement, Toronto Hydro said the fact had been recalculated over the years, and it's entitled to a return on equity.

But now Ontario Hydro, with the consent of a majority of other municipal utilities, is phasing out the discount over 25 years, an act Toronto Hydro said is both unjust and illegal.

Tanzanian Troops At Uganda Border

LONDON (Reuter) — Radio Uganda confirmed today that Tanzanian troops moved near the Ugandan border early today and are now "on attack."

A Ugandan military spokesman said: "Tanzanian troops on the Ugandan armed forces will fight "to the last man and the last round" to defend the Tanzanian troops completely.

He claimed reports that the Tanzanian forces appeared around Mutukula at 4 a.m. and forced withdrew to positions three miles from the border. Most of the villages have left the area, he said.

Uganda has "clarified the enemy and are sure of the position where we shall crush them completely," the spokesman said.

"The Tanzanian armed forces are requested to take note of the consequences of the war if it breaks out," the spokesman said.

"Once we start fighting we shall stop the Uganda armed forces until the last man and the last round."

Hydro Installations For Cottages Stopped

HARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Hydro has stopped installation of new services to summer homes in some of Ontario's cottage areas.

Hydro officials said Thursday the suspension of such installations is due to an acute shortage of triplex wire. If a cottage owner can supply the wire, installation will be made and the owner reimbursed for the wire. Otherwise, he must wait, the officials said.

The area involved is bounded by Bradford, Lake Huron, Tenbrewery, Parry Sound, Minden and Lindsay. The restriction is expected to last at least three months.

YOU CAN PAY ECONOMY AND STILL GO FIRST CLASS.

A lot of people think buying a small car means giving up comfort, performance and comfort.

But we make some small cars that offer things you'll find are hard to get even on big cars.

Like 4-speed shifts, for example. There are three in the Toyota 5 speed models where the cutaway is modest, but the layout is lavish:

Our Corolla SR 5, in addition to its protective pick-on fender trims, has a racing type console, woodgrain instrument and wide radial tires. All standard equipment. It'll do even a fast commuter 0-60 mph at no extra charge. And the charge is a pleasant surprise. In fact, these isn't another 5-speed on the market that comes with $1,300 of it.

The completely new Corona SR comes with something you won't find on any big car anywhere. For an optional warning panel that lights up when certain parts of the car need attention. Radial tires are standard too, plus specially contoured reclining bucket seats and a hefty 2 litre overhead cam engine.

But even with all its expensive extras, the Corona still isn't what you'd call expensive.

However, Parliament is to go a little further and not as high as you're used to go for the economy cars there's a new Corolla.

A standard engine that's still is just particularly economical car appeal. Yes Corolla has a wood-grained dashboard and racing type instrumentation. (Cluster-mounted tach, oil pressure and ammeter gauges.) You also get an extra-thick carpet, 4 speed synchromesh transmission, power brakes, power front disc brakes, 50-position adjustable driver's seat, and the choice of economically priced Corolla 1200 coupe or sedan, separately priced Corona SR, or our economically priced Celica GT, one thing's for sure: It's not a lot of money for the car, but it's a lot of car for the money.

Nature Is Her Specialty

It sounds corny, Molly Bramley says, but she does what she does to express herself.

What she does, expertly, is take pictures.

No amateur shutterbug, Mrs. Bramley left behind a nearly 20-year-old commercial studio 15 years ago to devote herself to the kind of photography she loves.

"I take pictures when I get a feeling as I'm looking through the lens; when something speaks to me.

"And what I usually get a feeling about is a tall tree with the sun coming through it."

Landscapes and nature studies are her specialties and this summer as last, Mrs. Bramley will leave behind her Bleeker Street home and husband Stan and three children for the Marthines studio of Freeman Patterson, the country's foremost landscape photographer. There she'll study and learn with guidance, an advantage she didn't have 20 years ago when she began working in photography.

"In those days there weren't any schools of photography in Canada and in the States they were just filled up with veterans returning from the war," she says. "So I got a job in a photo supply store in Toronto. Luckily, they put me on the professional counter."

There she says she was in touch with the city's best photographers who were very kind and very critical" which helped.

After a year, she left to open a studio in her native Yale, Muskoka, Ontario.

Weddings, portrait work, police work, newspaper photography were all part of the business for the young photographer who even made postcards for resort area tourists.

"Sometimes I was in that darkroom until 4 a.m. trying to get a batch of postcards ready for the next day."

It was these postcards that brought Molly and her husband together.

Stan Bramley, a tourist in the area, went into the studio to buy a few postcards. A photographer himself, he and Molly began talking shop and the classic photographer's "incredible" family.

"When the first snowflake falls and I take off, they understand and the house just keeps right on going along."

The family's empathy may stem from the fact that every member is something of a photgrapher. In fact, in the recreation room, two slide projectors — one 2¼ and 35 mm — are permanently mounted for the evening's view of latest efforts.

up commercial photography work to work in the fields that interest her: landscape and nature work.

One of her transparencies, a photograph of a tree on the lawn of Glenmore House will be exhibited this year at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition in the National Association for Photography, Art display.

While for the most part she's devoting her time to "building up my files" Mrs. Bramley sells photographs for magazine covers like the Presbyterian Record or for calendars.

She says she always knows when she's got a "winner" as she calls them.

"You look through the viewfinder and you get a special feeling; it's almost like a religious experience when it happens."

To come up with winners, Mrs. Bramley admits she spends a lot of time looking through the viewfinder, an effort made possible by an "incredible" family.

"When the first snowflake falls and I take off, they understand and the house just keeps right on going along."

The Other Side of the Lens

Books By And About Women

Molly Bramley, veteran photographer, sits on the other side of the lens for a change. Once a commercial photography studio operator, she now devotes herself to landscape and nature photography.

THE OJIBWA WOMAN

By RUTH LANDES

This study of social behavior (Ojibwa women included) is a result of field-work by Ruth Landes, financed by Columbia University Contributions to Anthropology.

Although it is a precise, scholarly work, it is easy and enjoyable to read even by those who have no prior knowledge of sociology. For what the book deals with — the problems of Indian women in Western Ontario — is told by means of anecdotes from village life, and by a large collection of life stories told by Native women.

The study examines the difference in the training of boys and girls — males are expected to shoulder responsibilities, are taught initiative, fortitude and individuality; and are brought up to expect personal freedom, whereas females enjoy none of these benefits.

Instead, they're taught chiefly to be the recipients of male favors (economic, social and sexual) to work hard, be resourceful, and at all times subservient to men.

Although the culture in which these traditions existed is coming to an end, these ancient attitudes - toward women, marriage, children, and interpersonal relationships continue to influence the Ojibwa family.

The outstanding feature of this book is the vivid, dramatic picture of Ojibwa women given by Maggie, an old woman of Emo, Ontario who dictated many of the stories to the author in the 1930s. The tales about Indian women, often under stress, are unforgettable.

This book is available in the Corby Library.

AROUND TOWN with LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

Business news is most often called advertising . . . but not always. Beginning today, a new headlinegoer feature will offer a different slant on the local business world, talking readers behind the scenes . . . and sales . . . of city retailers.

"Around Town" will appear on our pages every Thursdays and Fridays and whenever a select group of firms, Lana Robinson, former Montreal Gazette women's editor and now Loyalist College's public relations instructor, will report on what's new in Belleville business.

SMALL BUT MIGHTY

Ainsworth Kar-Mart, 338 North Front St., isn't a mammoth car dealership. It's small by comparison to most. But owner Paul Ainsworth isn't about to apologize for it. He believes the size of his operation can give his customers personalized service, the concentrated skill of his three mechanics, efficient and effective results from his diagnostic centre, and good old-fashioned cleanliness. "I can walk around my garage in white shoes and stay clean," says Paul. And from my experience, that's not an idle boast. Why not take yourself and your car to Ainsworths and take advantages of all that sunshine?

CARPET CLINIC No. 1

For the next two weeks, we're going to discuss carpet care and cleaning, courtesy of the people at Hendry's. Is the nearest carpet clean? And if you want to know more about carpet, just go and talk to Gerry Smith and say Jerry Fox sent him for the carpet care booklet published by the Canadian Carpet Institute. Or carpet care problems solved first thing in the morning at the Hut, if you're Gibbing carpets. Places which receive heavy room traffic such as hallways, require a thick, tightly packed pile; traffic such as hallways, requires a thick, tightly packed pile; traffic such as hallways, requires good resilience and stain resistance. Living room carpets require good texture and stain resistance. Bedrooms need warmth, comfort and style; therefore, no room needs a thicker pile. Kitchens require toughness in their carpet, the bathroom should have carpet which is resistant to and mildew resistant. So before you say "Help!" to The people at Booths will help you with the answers.

AN ALL-DAY POOL PARTY

How about a sun and water day without the traffic to the beach? With an air-conditioned room at your disposal in between sun-baths and the facilities and service of the Four Seasons Hotel at your fingertips? You can experience the best of summer by joining the Poolside Gang any day of the week from mid-morning till 6 p.m. Day room charge is $19 based on four adults. Extra adults are $2.50 extra each and children under 14 are free. Reserve your invitation to a delightful day by calling 962-3411 or drive over to the Four Seasons, 11 Bay Bridge Rd. and check out the pool for yourself.

A DELIGHTFUL SHOP WITH OWNER TO MATCH

If you asked Jean Smith, the proprietor of the new Finishing Touch Country Accent Centre, the best way to describe her business, she'd say, "different." I never meant to be a store. It's really Carol's bedroom rooms." One offers an array of unusual craft items, Canadian and imported; another is a boutique of holiday clothing and the third, The Import Room, is the style Mecca for many Belleville women who find that unusual bygones are at Jean's fashion there. Plan an afternoon experience at the West West Mall, Highway 33 miles from Belleville, Rt. 3 Marys, 37 or 38 Highway 1. Happy summer and happy shopping at the West West.

CRAZY HORSE ALIVE AND WELL

You know that Crazy Horse you read about in Murray's Food Market's Saturday ads? Well, he's alive and well, today at the downtown Belleville sale, you can see the real thing. Mr. Murray is here in the flesh and it tested on Wednesday. If a woman came into the store and questioned whether she was a pasteurized milk, she'd get free instead of $1.49 a gallon and two quarts of milk for a quarter. If she cashed her pension cheque at Murray's she'd get a free loaf of bread — and she did. One later brought back her daughter, who got a $17 buying groceries at Murray's. Mr. Murray says he's not giving anything away but "I want happy customers and brings in some new ones too!"

Breakfast Eating Changes Temperament

WINDFEED (CP) — An experiment, at an Greenwich school here has provided proof that breakfast really is the most important meal of the day, especially for children.

Georgina Samuel, principal at John M. King school, has been running a program for five years, providing breakfast at the school for forgetful students. And teachers at the school verify the success.

"A Grade 3 teacher said the appearance of one of his students on the program has changed from ashen to a healthy pink glow."

The child was suffering badly from malnutrition. He's been getting that breakfast for two years now and he's gained weight and never misses school.

Other children who withdrew from playground activity, due to lack of energy, or were quarrelsome and irritable with schoolmates, have noticably changed behavior patterns.

About 25 to 30 six to 12-year-olds are participating in the program, most referred by teachers who felt they would benefit from the meal.

Many are children who don't like to eat breakfast when they first wake up but are hungry by mid-morning. Others are members of families where both parents go to work early.

The breakfast, consisting of orange juice, oatmeal porridge, wheat germ, brown sugar, whole milk and vitamin capsules, is served between 8:30 and 9:10 a.m. daily.

Miss Samuels began the program on her own initiative with private funds paying for the food. The program costs about $150 a school year, or less than 15 cents a breakfast.

"I think hot lunch and/or breakfast programs should be provided in every school," Miss Samuels said. "In areas of the city where charges might make cost of meals prohibitive for some, families, the program shall operate on a sliding scale cost, free to those who need it most.

"And in the face of the recent Nutrition Canada findings, who can argue that school lunch programs would be anything but an advantage in changing areas of malnutrition?"

Creams, Lotions Waste of Money May Be Dangerous, Doctor Warns

PARIS (Reuter) — Beauty creams and lotions are not only a waste of money but they are often a serious health hazard, says a French skin specialist.

In an attack on cosmetics, Dr. Robert Aron-Brunetiere says women are wrong if they think such products will preserve their beauty and keep them looking young.

Instead they could destroy their skins and risk dangerous health hazards with products that may do nothing but harmful drugs, he says in a new book called Beauty and Medicine.

In his one-man war against cosmetics manufacturers, Dr. Aron-Brunetiere says he writes: "Women should be natural and not be tricked by stupid advertising pleading hundreds of beauty products—inefficient and dangerous—which are supposed to make them look like film stars."

Beauty products on the market contain only oil emulsified in 50 to 70 per cent of water. They sometimes are sold as cleansing, sometimes as moisturizing, creams, writes Dr. Aron-Brunetiere.

"Scientific tests have proved that the more a woman tries to cleanse her face, the more it will become greasy.

Guinea-pigs have been rubbed with these so-called cleansing creams and their sebacious glands have grown three to five times bigger than their normal size. Needless to say a cleansing cream only makes a skin more oily then it is."

Dr. Aron-Brunetiere stressed that moisturizing creams have no effect on dry skins. In fact, they drain away what water is left under the first layer of skin, he says.

"If cosmetic manufacturers had to give proof of the effectiveness of their products they would have to withdraw most of them from the market."

Dr. Aron-Brunetiere says most of the creams and lotions used for the treatment of acne, a calamity for a majority of French women, contain sulphur.

"Well, it has been proved that sulphur is responsible for black heads," he says, imply ing that manufacturers are selling products which could encourage acne.

Most shampoos and bubble baths are made with detergents used by housewives to clean their bathrooms or lavatories, so, "how can people take a bath and clean their bodies like the floor of a kitchen?"

Cosmetics manufacturers have no scruples in changing the name of a product when sales drop, the doctor says.

A common practice was to withdraw a moisturizing cream that was selling badly and to reintroduce it on the market as a "nourishing cream"—as no one would be able to tell the difference.

The modern trend to use natural herbs in cosmetics is farcical, Dr. Aron-Brunetiere says.

"I have seen advertisements concerning a milk which contains natural albee to cleanse skins deeply. Althea, commonly called marshmallow, is used as a sweetener to pump out stomachs.

Cosmetics manufacturers do not disclose the contents of their products which are considered secret, he says. Only products exclusively sold in drug stores are required to detail their contents.

Successful Living

Eating to Live, Living to Eat!

By DORIS CLARK

The caveman lived in constant fear of starving to death. Today most of us live to eat and some of us are killing ourselves.

Times have changed; diffusion is now the fashion. The fight is to eat less to preserve your health and to improve your looks.

The causeway of the family dining table is the early training of our lifelong eating habits that lead to over weight. How many of you as children had to eat everything that was put on your plate in order to have dessert? Don't make this mistake with your own children.

As we grow older we need less food, but entire weight creeps on women in their early thirties. It is not necessary to starve to lose weight but an effort must be made to cut down on our food intake.

Never Leaf, Canadian Calorie Counters.

Dear Doris: I would like to know where to send for the handcrafts catalogue. There is a friend of mine who is all alone. No living relatives.

She just sits and talks about the past. As she is only 68 years old and in good health, I thought if I could interest her in something like this it might help her.

Friend of Lonesome One.

Dear Friend: You'll be a real friend indeed; can rouse her. Sixty-eight is far too soon to give up, but that there is anything wrong in talking about the past. Of is a part of us too), but as a full-time occupation it could jolly well be improved upon.

She is missing a lot of fun. The lethargy that may set in when a senior citizen loses her friends and family is hard to shake off; but she could have some lovely years ahead of her. Hunt out her nearest club for seniors and help her break the ice by going with her once.

Or if the idea of handcrafts does catch hold, there are many craft clubs not far from you. I'm sending you details about the catalogue.

Dear Ann Landers: Millions of housewives in this country would be shocked if someone called them alcoholics. But they are. Members of the Kansas City area National Council On Alcoholism have prepared a questionnaire (with help from the Michigan chapter) and we want to fit as much exposure as possible. We hope you'll print it.

Here are 20 questions. Any woman who answers "Yes" to more than half is probably alcoholic.

1. Do you try to get someone to buy liquor for you because you are ashamed to buy it yourself?
2. Do you buy liquor at different places so no one will know how much you purchase?
3. Do you hide the empties and dispose of them secretly?
4. Do you plan in advance to "reward" yourself with a little drinking bout after you've worked very hard in the house?
5. Are you often permissive with your children because you feel guilty about the way you behaved when you were drinking?
6. Do you have "blackouts" periods about which you remember nothing?
7. Do you ever phone the host-ess of a party the next day and want to fit as much exposure as possible. We hope you'll print it.
8. Do you find cigarette holes in your clothes or the furniture and can't remember when it happened?
9. Do you take an extra drink or two before leaving for a party when you know liquor will be served there?
10. Do you often wonder if anyone knows how much you drink?
11. Do you feel witlier or more charming when you are drinking?
12. Do you feel panicky when faced with non-drinking days, such as a visit to out-of-town relatives?
13. Do you invent social occasions for drinking, such as inviting friends for lunch, cocktails or dinner?
14. When others are present, do you avoid reading articles or seeing movies or TV shows about women alcoholics but read and watch when no one is around?
15. Do you ever carry liquor in your purse?
16. Do you become defensive when someone mentions your drinking?
17. Do you become irritated when unexpected guests reduce your liquor supply?
18. Do you drink when under pressure or after an argument?
19. Do you try to cover up when you can't remember promises and feel ashamed when you misplace or lose things?
20. Do you drive even though you've been drinking but feel certain you are in complete control of yourself?

Be honest. If your score says you're alcoholic, call the National Council On Alcoholism or Alcoholics Anonymous. They are listed in the phone book.—Doris S. and Jean J. (Alcoholics Counsellors)

CP News Roundup

Montreal Fugitive Is Slain

MONTREAL (CP) — Alain Welsh, 20, was shot and killed Thursday by police following a three-block chase of a stolen car.

A police spokesman said two officers were chasing the car when it bumped the sidewalk and rammed into a parked car.

The driver attempted to flee the scene of the accident but was apprehended by a policeman.

During a scuffle, the spokesman said, Welsh threatened the policemen with a nine-inch hunting knife. When the constable fell and injured his knee, Welsh started running away but another officer drew and fired a warning shot.

When Welsh failed to stop, the policeman fired a second time.

Welsh was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

One of the constables involved was admitted to the same hospital for treatment of nervous shock.

Food Basket Cost Up $1.62

TORONTO (CP) — The cost of the Dominion Food Council's market basket this month was $88.11, up from $86.49 last month.

The figures were released Thursday by the Ontario ministry of agriculture indicating the $1.62 or 1.9 per cent increase from last month.

The cost of the basket a year ago was $73.39.

The council's basket contains 147 food items. Prices are obtained from five major chains operating in Toronto, Hamilton and are averaged to provide the over-all total.

Actress Ill

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Susan Hayward's doctor said Thursday he has performed a 7-hour surgery on the 55-year-old Academy Award-winning actress but that results of the tests were not yet available.

Dr. George Tindall, a neurosurgeon, said Miss Hayward's condition was good.

"She is here for neurologic evaluation," Tindall said.

Easther, a friend of Miss Hayward's said she was in the hospital for re-evaluation of a condition she considers "to be highly exaggerated."

Mill Afire

PEMBROKE (CP) — A two-hour storm Thursday night was punctuated by lightning striking a planing mill and a house in the area.

Stafford township firemen rallied on the Pembroke department to help stop the fire that followed at the Durocel Cleaning Mill. I was quickly brought under control.

Almost at the same time—about 8:30 p.m.—Percy Brunen of Petawawa, township, reported that lightning had blown the chimney of his house "in all directions."

He said no one was hurt and no fire resulted.

Six Safe

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Sixteen Canadian students on an archeological dig in Cyprus are safe, a telegram from one of the students said Thursday.

Clive Card of Toronto one of six Brock University students on the six-week expedition, sent the telegram to Doug Geddes, information officer at the university.

The telegram said the 16 students are "safe at school"—an elementary school where they are "staying—and that United Nations troops are "nearby."

Mr. Geddes said all parents have been notified and were "obviously relieved" to learn the whereabouts of the group on Cyprus, currently in the aftermath of a coup which ousted President Makarios.

In Hospital

OTTAWA (CP) — Otto Diefenbaker, wife of former prime minister John Diefenbaker, was reported resting comfortably in an Ottawa hospital Thursday, after undergoing major abdominal surgery earlier in the day.

Mr. Diefenbaker said doctors were satisfied with his wife's progress following the operation, which he did not describe in detail.

He said his wife would probably remain in hospital for several weeks.

Capital Punishment Restoration Sought

LONDON (Reuter) — The British government has come under pressure to restore capital punishment for crimes of terrorism after Wednesday's bombing of the Tower of London.

An English woman died from her injuries and 42 tourists, many of them children, were injured when the bomb blew up in the tower's tourist-jammed dungeon, now an arms museum.

Several members of Parliament sought emergency legislation Thursday to bring back the death penalty, but Home Secretary Roy Jenkins refused, cautioning against such decisions "in the heat of the moment."

The home secretary, long an opponent of capital punishment, said: "I regard the horror of Wednesday's events as such that I believe restoration of capital punishment would prevent repetition. I would be to the hope of some clue to the identity of the bomber.

The Daily Mirror reported that it received a call from a man with a thick Irish accent only two minutes before the blast.

He said: "This is the Provisional IRA. (Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army). The evilsword is bastards. We are here pleading books."

Winds Frustrate Efforts To Prevent Fires Merging

RED LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Shifting winds frustrated the efforts of firefighters Thursday to prevent three out-of-control fires from merging in this area 85 miles northeast of Kenora.

More than 50 men were battling the fires, and others were awaiting air transportation when smoke conditions would permit travel. Three helicopters and one water-bomber were in action and other aircraft were expected.

Meanwhile, firefighters continued to gain headway with a giant blaze 30 miles southwest of Dryden, about 70 miles southeast of Kenora.

Officials feared the fire, covering more than 100 square miles and fuelled by windblown timber from a storm last year, might erupt sporadically at other points.

Fire crews also were making positions at Poplar Hill, about 40 miles north of here, and at Deer Lake, about 110 miles to the north.

In all, about 90,000 acres in northwestern Ontario were threatened by fire Thursday.

Two new fires were reported overnight and six were extinguished, bringing the area total to 44. In all of the province, about 60 forest fires were burning.

Forecasts for the next few days are not encouraging for the firefighters. Hot and dry weather with winds of 10 to 15 miles an hour are predicted.

Won't Rush District Health Bodies

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Cities and counties in Ontario will not be pushed into forming district health councils for at least another two or three years, Health Minister Frank Miller said Thursday.

Mr. Miller, here to answer questions about the proposed Lambton-Kent district council, said counties may be allowed to form separate health units, even though it would cost more.

Mr. Miller said the health councils will be set up despite opposition.

He said the province wants to establish 20 district health councils to take care of long-term health care planning, a function now handled by individual hospital and municipal boards.

The minister said he hoped there would be 15 such councils established by March, including one in Ottawa and one in Thunder Bay.

Bonuses and Levies Urged To Level Construction Pace

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada has proposed a novel system of levies and incentives and better government investment planning to level out the ups and downs of the construction business.

In a report issued Thursday after 18½ years of study, the council also recommends abolition of the 11-per-cent federal sales tax on building materials, continued efforts to protect low-cost housing construction from swings in the economy.

A new recommendation aimed at more stable construction growth, it suggests that the federal government grant a bonus for businesses investing in construction during sharp periods, and a corresponding levy on a construction in boom periods to deter building.

The levy and incentive would apply to contractors, not builders, and would apply only to non-residential construction.

The council says over the amount the special tax and bonus would take, but expects between five and 10 per cent of the value of a project, depending on inflation.

For residential construction, the council says it approves "of the increased emphasis on public housing and co-operative housing—both new and existing—as a means, both for social and stabilization reasons, that there should be virtually complete stability in the flow of such housing. . . ."

The council says housing programs should be financed to ensure steady growth uninspired by swings in other forms of construction.

The study, requested by Prime Minister Trudeau in January, 1972, found that the federal government itself is largely responsible for instability in construction.

The council says all levels of government and government agencies should co-ordinate their plans to avoid bringing a number of large projects—pipelines and the James Bay project, for example—to a head at the same time.

And it says the federal government should stop using its investment in construction as a valve on the economy, stepping up construction in slack periods and cooling it off when inflation threatens.

In line with previous government studies on housing and taxation, the council urges elimination of the sales tax on building materials.

It says the tax does not distinguish between various kinds of commercial construction, and puts an unfair burden on low-income house buyers.

Medical Technicians May Strike on Monday

TORONTO (CP) — While registered nurses' associations across Ontario meet to vote on a uniform contract settlement offered earlier in the week by their representatives, medical technicians at three Toronto hospitals and Cobalt say they will strike as early as next Monday if they don't get wage parity.

Laboratory and x-ray technicians at the Toronto General, New Mount Sinai and Wellesley hospitals, members of the Civil Service Federation of Ontario (CSAO), were scheduled to meet with hospital administration representatives Thursday afternoon to discuss their demands.

In Cobalt, Ont., technicians at the Royal Victoria Hospital say they will back the Toronto hospital technicians' stand and strike as well.

CSAO general manager Jake Normen said the potential strike could spread to 37 Ontario hospitals.

The nurses' agreement, negotiated by the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) and representatives of 39 hospital boards, gives registered nurses a starting salary of $900 a month, retroactive to Jan. 1 and $963 a month by April 1, 1975, for an 18-month contract.

ONA spokesman said that in the event of a strike by the Toronto technicians, an emergency staff would remain on duty.

Meanwhile, nurses associations eligible to enter new contracts appear likely to give provincewide approval to the settlement, which grants nurses starting salary increases of 6 cent and experienced nurses 56-per-cent increase.

Contract For Ferry Awarded

TORONTO (CP) — A new $3.5-million ferry linking Kingston and Wolfe Island should be in service by September 1975, John Rhodes, minister of transportation, said Thursday.

He said the government has awarded the contract to the Thunder Bay shipyard of Canadian Shipbuildings and Engineering Ltd. of Collingwood, Ont.

The ferry, 200 feet long and capable of carrying 238 passengers and 36 cars, will have a bigger capacity than the existing ferries, the Wolfe Islander and the Upper Canada.

It will operate between Kingston and Marysville in the summer and between Kingston and Dawson Point in the winter.

For the winter route, compressed air will be forced through nozzles in pipes along the bottom of the 3.3-mile channel to keep it free of heavy ice. An ice-breaker is currently used to maintain winter service.

On Board

TORONTO (CP) — Lorena Staples, 17, of Windsor is South Sea Sue, Marie, and Alfred Chapman, 47, assistant, Crown attorney in St. Catharines, were appointed to the Ontario Municipal Board Thursday.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JULY 19, 1974

Ed Buckley to Direct United Way Campaign

ED BUCKLEY

The chairman for this year's Belleville United Way campaign has been chosen by the Board of Directors of United Community Services.

He is Ed Buckley, director of retraining division at Loyalist College.

As campaign chairman, Mr. Buckley is now engaged in recruiting volunteers to provide leadership in the soliciting divisions of the campaigns.

The campign takes place in October and raises money to cover the operating costs of the 13 participating agencies from the Victorian Order of Nurses to the Belleville Minor Sports Association.

Mr. Buckley was born in Hastings County and has lived in Belleville all his life. He was awarded a Master of Arts degree from the University of Ottawa and obtained a teaching certificate from the Ontario College of Education.

Mr. Buckley has been a member of the Separate School Board of Belleville for 17 years and chairman of that board for 13 years.

He has been a member of the Belleville Board of Health and the Retarded Children Education Authority from its inception to its amalgamation with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Mr. Buckley's other interests are outdoors, paintings and collecting clocks.

High Fire Too Much

The city's firefighters were called to a different type of fire last night.

When the call came in about 7:30 p.m. fire trucks were sent to a Park Street South residence. When they arrived there wasn't too much they could do to extinguish a fire in a wooden structure in the rear of the home.

Now it seems that some little boys in the area are going to have to do without their treehouse that was destroyed by fire.

Belle Theatre Rebounds As Entertainment Centre

A 21-year-old enterprises has saved the Belle Theatre from the wreckers hammer for at least two years.

After nearly 50 years of cinematic history, movies have been cut off in the historic old building, making way for live concerts.

Still bedecked with ornamental mouldings — common its era — and illuminated by wall-mounted cinema lights, the Belle Theatre has a second opening night Friday, bringing to its remodelled stage Toronto's Grease Ball Boogie Band, and Winnipeg's Murphy Sisters.

Bob Joyce, architect of the concert hall scheme, has toured the world with top name rock musicians and says the work provided him with the experience to make Belle Theatre Belleville's own Massey Hall.

For the past month work crews have updated the stage area and electrical system but great care has been taken to "preserve the old time feeling of the theatre," Joyce says in a "great mood builder" by Mr. Joyce.

Mr. Joyce — sporting a mound of blonde hair, T-shirt and shorts — came to Belleville when work was difficult to find in Toronto.

"I went to see Daddy Kravitz (the movie saga of a young Canadian obsessed with 'making it') and the next day I found the Belle," said Mr. Joyce.

Rock music is slated for one night a week but that isn't where the schedule ends.

Mr. Joyce says he has to get the theatre booked for something virtually every night of the week and intends providing a smorgasbord of entertainment for Quinte cultural gourmets.

Country and western shows, live theatre and electronic bingo have all been investigated as possibilities for the opera house. Mr. Joyce is also considering approaching the local cable television company to work on a solution.

The theatre, which comes complete with air conditioning and central heat, will be rented for meetings and rallys.

Mr. Joyce hasn't skimped on his talent budget.

While browsing over his entertainment lineup, names like Ian Tyson, "Tiny Tim and Stampley Tom" Connors crop up, a indication Quinte music lovers will have high class talent at the 1,500-seat Belle Hall. Admission will vary according to the bands booked.

In the meantime Mr. Joyce says none of the plans could have gotten far with-out the help of landlords S and Mrs. Spiegel — particularly Sid Spiegel.

The theatre has been leased from Mr. Spiegel's firm for two years.

In the meantime, Mr. Joyce has an insurance policy working in Toronto.

His partner, Rene Lamperyer-berger is carrying on the downtown selling business, "and if things go wrong here, we have that to fall back on," said Mr. Joyce.

Several electricians worked all day Thursday hooking up a new power service to the stage with the muscle to handle rock bands — anything else we want to put up there," said Mr. Joyce.

Advance tickets for opening night have sold well and Mr. Joyce is anticipating a packed house.

Tickets will be available at the door selling for $2.75 (balcony seats) and $3.50 (main floor).

The door opens at 6 p.m. with the first show at 8 p.m. followed three hours later with the second show.

Security personnel will be, questioned around the hall to prevent damage to the building and a poster will be hung at the entrance, "Won't Licensed for Booze or Drugs."

Old Look Preserved

At one time, Belleville's Belle Theatre was the charmer of the movie house world, decorated with flair and luxury. After sitting idle for a few months, the theatre has been shampooed and dusted and revitalized into a music hall. Bob Joyce (on stage) is working to get the hall ready for tonight's opening, featuring the Grease Ball Boogie Band.

High in the Saddle

Anyone living or visiting Belleville must know by now that people rather than cars have been taking over a part of Front Street. But horses? It's all in the fun of the three-day Festival of Values being put on by the downtown merchants. This young man gets to sit on a horse "parked" in front of Murray's Foodmaster while mother isn't too far away.

Visitors Praise City's Friendliness

Belleville's "beautiful kids Corby Park" and the city's flowers or the city's people has come in for high commendation in letters to city council.

Mrs. Ada Hewett of Montreal wrote to congratulate the city on its Corby Park, stating that on a recent visit to Belleville she had spent some time in the park and was every day.

"I trust that the park will always remain to bring pleasure to many others as it did to me," she wrote.

Other thank-you letters were received from officials of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police expressing appreciation for their reception in the city while attending their recent annual convention.

Carl R. Johnston of Collingwood, immediate past president of the association, expressed his appreciation to Mayor Helen Jeffrey and to the city for the many courtesies shown and for being such congenial hosts.

"You can be proud of your Chief of Police Douglas Cross and Inspector Ralph Bladeford, along with members of their committee, including Alderman Jean Smith for the exceptional job they did in hosting our annual conference."

And Mrs. N. J. Danis, wife of the Kirkland Lake chief of police, wrote to say she had been impressed by "Belleville's friendliness."

She expressed appreciation for the courtesies extended to the police officers' wives.

Animal Lovers, All

These four youngsters on Thurlow township's Sunningdale Drive decided to hold a penny carnival - - - to raise their own funds for Ontario Humane Society. The objectives was inevitable since the girls are all pet lovers. Awaiting customers are Amy Barkema, 9, (rear), Lisa Willis (left), 9, Marilyn Barkema, 10, and Toronto visitor 8-year-old Teddianne Conboy.

Carnival Earns for the Animals

The Ontario Humane Society has received richer donations.

But there was an extra touch of brightness to the hundred of dollars presented to its Quinte branch Thursday.

The cash came in pennies and assorted small change, raised by four young girls in a day's doorstep trading.

The event: A flea-market carnival on Sunningdale Drive, north of Belleville in Thurlow township.

The organizers, Lisa Willis, neighbors Marilyn Barkema, 10, and her sister Amy, 9, and eight-year-old Toronto visitor to the neighborhood, Teddianne Conboy.

Penny carnivals these days have reached the popularity of almost a pastime with youngsters.

The difference with the Sunningdale Drive sale was its intent. The youngsters wanted to raise the money to assist in the well-being of pets.

The motive was simple, and inevitable.

All four girls take an active interest in pets, some not exactly common household animals.

For instance, the Barkema girls live on a farm where their father, Tony Barkema, raises a special breed of swine, certified virus free and supervised by the provincial government's farm veterinary service.

The sisters have selected pigs along with cats as pets. Lisa Willis has a dog, as she has a kitten — and also counts a pig as a pet. In Toronto, Teddianne has two gerbils, four fish, one cats and two dogs.

"So we all love animals," explained Marilyn.

To raise money for pets in less fortunate circumstances, they dug around their households to come up with a small bazaar of used items of clothing, toys, books, dolls, even shells. Then they hiked around the neighborhood advertising the sale.

They'd made $13 for the cause.

Youngsters from the area flocked to the stall — including a cool drink stand — outside the Willis home. After the day's trade, the girls counted their take and took it up to the OHS shelter.

They'd made $13 for the care of animals.

You Bet It's a Pet

Marilyn Barkema, is one of neighborhood youngsters on Sunningdale Drive who has a pet with a difference. It's a pig - - - among the species bread being raised on the family farm in Thurlow township.

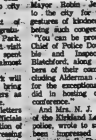
Canada on Tape Museum Showing

On Wednesday afternoons this summer, Belleville residents can see a selection of films on the theme of Canadian life and history.

The films are shown at Glanmore House at 2 p.m. every Wednesday afternoon from now until August 14. The films are provided through the courtesy of Videoaction, an Experience '74 Ontario Government program, sponsored by the Youth Secretariat for the Ontario Education Communications Authority.

On Wednesday, July 24, shown will be the film, End of the Steam Era and Age of Flight series. This program is just over an hour long.

On July 31 is an hour program, Passing to Canada will be explored, dealing with Victorian paintings and early Canadian Portraiture.



Program in August will deal with Canadian and Horses and Furnishings.

The project is being put in this area by the Quinte Arts Council, who are attempting to point out to the community the value of videotapes for education and entertainment. The eight-week project officially started on July 10.

They are based in two locations, Corby Public Library and the Senior Citizens' Centre on Pinnacle Street and anyone interested is welcome to drop in.

To assist the students in the survey, viewers will be asked to complete a short questionaire on the programs they view. Normal charges at the museum will prevail for these showings.

Shown so far at the museum have been a film on Quinte County's history and taking viewers on a Tour of Toronto and vicinity.

ROBERT R. COTTON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith C. Cotton of Tweed, received his Degree of Bachelor of Commerce with honors at Queen's University, convocation on May 28. He is a graduate of Tweed High School, and has accepted a position with Thorne Gunn Co. in Toronto.

Chamber to Print Students' List

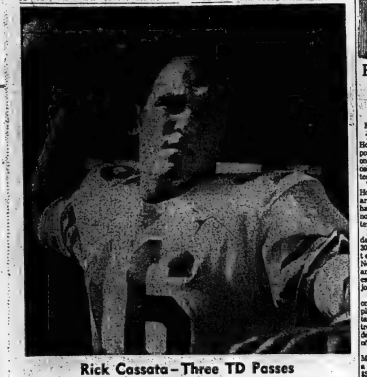
The greenlight has been given for publishing a catalogue of cultural resources available in the Quinte area.

This comes through an offer by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to publish a directry or catalogue compiled by the students working under an Experience '74 project called Students Participating in Community Education (SPICE).

The $3,000 for the six-week project which was officially started on June 17 was funded by the provincial Youth Secretariat, Ministry of Education by the Hastings County Board of Education.

The project was coordinated by Centennial graduate student, Lloyd Eyre, working with a team of four: Margo Carlisle, Rita Spencer, Joy Prouse and David Beach.

Together they compiled a list of about 35 art galleries and craft shops, eight museums, and a number of annual events as well as musical events that will take place in the Quinte area.



Once the Chamber publishes the students' collected material, it will be available at tourist booth within Hastings County among other places.

A more involved list concerning only the cultural resources in the Quinte area but the workshops and teaching aspects of these resources will be made available to students in Hastings County through the Board of Education.

The exact date of when the material will be published has not been decided yet but it is expected to be within the next few months.

Lloyd Eyre, co-ordinator of the project, say the effort was a worthwhile attempt in showing exactly what can be done with student summer projects and helps to clear up a bit of misconception in the public's

Sims and Green Back in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League got less than they wanted but more than they expected Thursday in a deal with Philadelphia Bell of the World Football League.

After weeks of negotiations, that included Ottawa threats of legal action, Rough Rider general-manager Frank Clair repeated Thursday that running back Art Green had signed a two-year contract, defensive tackle Rudy Sims was in camp and playing out his contractual option year and defensive tackle Tom Laputka was reporting to Philadelphia.

The three had announced earlier in the year that they were jumping their contracts with Ottawa, to join Philadelphia and its new WFL team.

Clair went to Philadelphia several weeks ago intent on undertaking legal action against the Bell for tampering with Ottawa players. The Bell ordered the three out of camp with the suggestion they report to Ottawa.

Green and Sims came but Laputka, maintaining he would play anywhere in Canada except Ottawa, refused to report. Ottawa tried to deal him on through the league, but no one wanted him only for his option year.

Thursday Clair announced he had dealt Laputka to Philadelphia on the understanding they would tear up the 1975 contract already signed by Green and in return for "other considerations", which he would not outline.

Farda to Join Nedomansky

Cheques Lure Czechs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association are reported to have recruited a second member of the Czechoslovakian national hockey team.

Toros' general manager Bud Poile said Thursday that Richard Farda, a 28-year-old centre, has agreed to terms but may not arrive in Toronto until September.

It was reported earlier Thursday that Vaclav Nedomansky, 30, had agreed to join the WHA team. Houle confirmed Nedomansky was in Detroit and that he was "very interested" in having the Czech star join the Toros.

In addition to Nedomansky, one of Europe's leading hockey players, the Toros recently signed Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens and Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

In Toronto, The Globe and Mail says Farda has agreed to a salary offer from the Toros of $50,000 a year for three years.

The paper says Nedomansky has been guaranteed a five-year contract for about $125,000 a year, plus a signing bonus between $50,000 and $75,000.

The immigration department in Ottawa said Nedomansky and his family—including his wife Vera and 29-year old son Vaclav, have sufficient credentials to live in Canada and would be given a visa in Berne, Switzerland. They were accorded landed-immigrant status on arrival in Montreal.

The Toronto Sun quoted Nedomansky, captain of the Czechoslovak national team, as saying:

"I couldn't get out of Czechoslovakia legally, so I had to do it this way."

Another Former Czech national, Jaroslav Jirik, was 21 in 1969 when he signed with St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League. He locked up in the Central League for a year before returning home.

The defection of the two Czech stars was apparently arranged by an underground route involving a Toronto agent, Edward Svoboda.

Harold Ballard, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL, said:

Two weeks ago Svoboda phoned me and said he had Nedomansky and Farda were available. He asked me if I were interested. I said yes. Svoboda said he would phone me when he got back from Switzerland. I was still waiting for him to call when I heard the Toros had Nedomansky locked up."

Ballard said Svoboda's interest in Nedomansky hinged on a large fee from the Toros. "I hear he got $70,000 as the recruiter."

Canada-Russia Series Threatened by Swedes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Arnie Strongbey said Thursday the Team Canada-Soviet Union hockey series may not be held this fall if the World Hockey Association does not pay the Swedish Ice Hockey Federation for players.

Strongbey, former Swedish national team coach, said in a telephone interview from Stockholm that the Russians will be loyal to Sweden if the WHA does not do the same as the National Hockey League.

He said the NHL has an agreement with the Swedish federation to pay $60,000 for each player it signs from Sweden. The WHA, he said, has not agreed to pay.

Six Swedish players—Ase Sterberg, Ulf Nilsso, Lars Sjoberg, Tommie Abrahamsson, Chris Abrahamsson and Kjell Milton—have signed WHA contracts, Strongbey said.

Strongbey, now coach of the First Division Karlstad team, said the WHA has until Aug. 1 to make a settlement with the federation.

Sweden and the Soviet Union are members of the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), governing body of amateur hockey in Europe. The federation is headed by Bunny Ahearne.

The eight-game Canada-Soviet Union series is scheduled to begin Sept. 17 in Quebec City. Other games are set for Sept. 19 in Toronto; Sept. 21 in Winnipeg and Sept. 23 in Vancouver.

The last four games will be held in Moscow Oct. 1, Oct. 2, Oct. 5, and Oct. 6.

In Belleville, Ont., Jack Devine, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said he believes everything will be worked out.

He said CAHA and WHA officials are to go to Helsinki early next month and likely will meet with Swedish officials. Helsinki is to be the headquarters for Team Canada before it leaves for Moscow and the second stage of the series.

EAGLES BUY POLANO

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse Eagles of the American Hockey League announced Thursday the purchase of veteran defenceman Nick Polano from New York Rangers. Polano will be starting his 13th year in pro hockey this fall. The purchase of the 6-foot, 190-pound Polano was part of an earlier arrangement made with the National Hockey League clubs.

Huarte Passes Memphis to Win

MEMPHIS (AP) — Memphis Southmen hadn't planned on much of a passing attack Thursday night, but veteran quarterback John Huarte gave them one anyway in a 16-8 World Football League victory over Portland Storm.

"The game plan didn't call for any more passes than last week, but the Portland defence just dictated pass," Huarte said.

So, Huarte, who had completed seven of 13 a week ago against Detroit, hit 15 of 34 for 197 yards and the two touchdowns against Portland.

The victory, witnessed a crowd of 21,966, gave Memphis a 2-0 record. Portland is winless in its two games.

Huarte, 31, a Heisman Trophy winner at Notre Dame, played only sparingly in 16 years with five National Football League teams before giving up football last season. He decided to give it another try with the Southmen.

His touchdown passes were for 42 yards to rookie wide receiver Jack Eisinger and for 14 yards to receiver Ed Marshall late in the third quarter. Marshall's touchdown, set up by defensive back Dave Thomas' interception and 38-yard return to the Portland 17, broke an 8-8 tie.

The Storm scored its touchdown with 6:07 left in the third period on quarterback Greg Barton's 29-yard strike to rookie Sam Dickerson.

Barton completed 11 of 23 passes for 162 yards, but suffered two interceptions by Thomas.

Walt McKee converted one of the touchdowns and gave the Bombers their first points when he kicked a 48-yard field goal in the third quarter.

A kick from the end zone on the final play of the game was returned by Garry Lefebvre to give the Eskimos their victory.

Reserves Named

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP) — Outfielders Ralph Garr of Atlanta Braves, the league's leading hitter, and Cesar Cedeno of Houston Astros, the top run-producer, were among 13 reserve players named to the National League all-star baseball team Thursday by manager Yogi Berra of New York Mets.

The other reserve outfielders chosen are Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals, the major league pace-setter in stolen bases with 56; Reggie Smith of St. Louis, who played for the NL all-stars in 1969 and 1971, and Johnny Grubb of San Diego Padres, an outstanding rookie last year.

Switch hitting Ted Simmons of St. Louis and Jerry Grote of New York are the reserve catchers.

Third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia and his Philly team-mate, second baseman Dave Cash, are among the five reserve infielders. The others are first baseman Tony Perez of Cincinnati and, shortstops Don Kessinger of Chicago Cubs and Chris Speier of San Francisco Giants.

In New York catcher Thurman Munson of New York Yankees, runner-up to Carlton Fisk of Boston in the balloting for the American League all-star team, officially was named to the starting lineup Thursday, replacing the injured Red Sox catcher.

Fisk, the leader in the fan balloting with 1,526,874 votes, was forced to withdraw because of torn ligaments in his left knee which have sidelined him since June 28. He was injured in a collision at the plate with Cleveland's Leron Lee.

Dodgers Pick Up Full Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers, leaders in the National League West, found out Thursday night they may have lost some of their best pitching arms going into a five game personal crash.

But they gave themselves a shot in the arm by beating Montreal Expos 7-5 to get, a bit more breathing room.

In other National League baseball games, Philadelphia Phillies beat San Diego Padres 4-3, Cincinnati Reds slipped games back of Los Angeles Dodgers by losing to Chicago Cubs 3-2, Pittsburgh Pirates slaughtered Atlanta Braves 14-3 and Houston Astros belted St. Louis Cardinals 8-3, New York Mets and San Francisco Giants were idle.

With a left arm gone, Los Angeles officials said they were calling up right-hander Rez Hudson from Albuquerque, Hudson has a 13-3 record.

Andy Messersmith kept the Dodgers rolling with a seven-hitter en route to his sixth straight triumph. Sal Bando's two-run single in the sixth was the margin of victory.

Ferguson Jenkins, who won 25 games in six consecutive seasons while pitching for the Chicago Cubs, has got his sights set on another 20-victory season.

"I think I can win 20 games this year," the Canadian, Ont., native said after pinning down No. 13 while giving up eight hits. "I've got 15 or 17 more starts. It's coming together."

Run-scoring singles by Jim Spencer in the third and Cesar Tovar in the sixth gave the Rangers right-hander all the help he needed.

Bill Freehan's two-run homer keyed a four-run third inning as Minnesota, giving the Tigers their second victory in the last 12 games.

Al Kaline walked to open the Detroit third before Freehan hit his homer.

Right fielder Hal McRae misplayed Bobby Murcer's single, allowing the go-ahead run to score in a three-run seventh inning that lifted New York to victory over Kansas City.

O'SHEA RETURNS

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey League announced the signing Thursday of Danny O'Shea, a five-year veteran of the National Hockey League who sat out last season.

O'Shea, 28, a centre, played three seasons with Minnesota North Stars and then with Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis Blues. He was released by the Blues prior to last season.

A's Give Gaylord Ache Riders Extend Streak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland has learned to hold its beer. But Gaylord Perry, the cunning star of the town, can't get rid of his Oakland hangover.

Almost every time Perry faces the world champion A's, he winds up with an ache in his new column.

The A's beat the right-hander Thursday for the 10th time in 13 lifetime decisions as the Indians lost 3-2 on 11-inning beer night.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees collected Kansas City Royals 10-5, Texas Rangers clipped Boston Red Sox 2-1, and Detroit Tigers beat Minnesota Twins 5-3.

The last time they held a beer night in Cleveland, June 4, some of the fans carried their party onto the field and the umpires forfeited the game to Texas Rangers.

The fans caused no problems Thursday night.

Jim Rinker, 14-8, tossed a six-hitter in 7 2/3 innings before Dick Bosman relieved with the bases loaded and retired Dick Tidrow on a fielder's choice to end the game.

Bosman, 5-3, was the winner.

Tidrow, 4-3, was the loser

Berth on Ontario Team Reward for Top Effort

When a motor vehicle accident puts you in a wheelchair, how do you respond?

An 18-year-old Belleville resident, Larry Van Nostrand has met the challenge.

He and many others like him, are making it. And they're making it big.

A student at Bayside Secondary School, Larry took part in the Ontario Wheelchair Sports Trials at the Ontario School for the Deaf, June 29-30.

Larry was great in the trials.

It was his first-ever competition and the young man came through with colors flying.

All he did was record five second place finishes and he came in with four thirds.

Those marks may be in for updating.

According to Bruce Bean, president of the Belleville Easy Riders Wheelchair Club, a participant from Hamilton who was disqualified in some events, was entered in the wrong category.

"It will certainly serve as incentive for others.

"I'm very proud of Larry's accomplishment.

Bruce had the work cut out for him when it came to notifying Larry of the Ontario Wheelchair Sports Council's decision to add the Belleville youth to the provincial team.

Larry, is soldiering at a cottage but we finally got in touch and gave him the good news," explained Bean.

This development is just one more laurel for people like Bean, Roger Lalebrere and Jeanne Mackie who put so much effort into coordinating events for the brish Week.

Dr. Bob Jackson, co-ordinator of the Ontario Wheelchair Olympics, gave local organizers of the trials a well deserved pat on the back when he stated the entire program at OSD as "the best organized of any in many years."

Van Norman will be participating in four events in Winnipeg. He's been tabbed to shoot for the 50, 100 and 400 metre racing events, the shotput and weight lobs.

Following his excellent showing at the trials, Van Norman said: "I figure four wheels are better than two legs, any day."

What can anyone add to that?

SLICES — It doesn't say when, but a release from the office of Gordon Walker, director of information for the Canadian Football League states that CFL '74 will be on sale to the public in book stores and at book stands.

The official record book of the Canadian Football League, this interesting and informative effort is worth having. New features include statistics and several stories, including Football Reminiscences by the Old Monarch himself, Ted Reeve.

Reeve's one-of-a-kind pattern is itself worth the price of this handy publication.

The book is the work of CFL Properties, Ltd. and Van Nostrand Reinhold, Ltd., Toronto publishers.

It was the first win for the Constructionmen after three straight losses while the Printers suffered their tenth loss of the year.

Ravel Opera a Musical Gem

TORONTO — "Some saw in him an independent innovator, an explorer in the vast fields of music," says Frank Onoso in his biography of French composer Maurice Ravel.

"Others regarded him as a faithful disciple, a docile follower of the mentor of the French musical renaissance, Claude-Achille Debussy. Colleagues spoke of Ravel as the maitre de l'impressionism'. Stravinsky as 'one of the most expert watchmakers among composers'."

The words "expert watchmaker" are singularly appropriate. On Sept. 6, Ravel's one-act opera L'Heure espagnole (That Spanish Hour), the story of a hot blooded young clockmaker's wife who escapes the vigilance of her libidinous husband by entertaining her watchmaker lover in his shop, enters the repertoire of the Canadian Opera for the first time. In a twin bill together with Bartok's Bluebeard's Castle, the production opens the Company's 25th season at O'Keefe Centre.

And along with the characters of the opera, the stage of L'Heure espagnole will be populated by the chimes, the ticking and the little pantomimes of the musical clocks in Torquemada's workshop. Indeed the skill with which the striking of the hours and the little melodious presentations of the numerous musical clocks are orchestrated in the overture is itself a piece of masterful clockmaking.

The language of Ravel's music is hidden in metaphysically as possible with the music of the language — all achievements that are unique in French comic-opera. More often than not the words and melodic phrase is simply a reproduction of the declamatory sound-pattern of speech.

"The score, which is full of orchestral jokes, is hoarsely boisterous with the text and only comes to life through stage action," says Constance Fisher, director of the Canadian Opera production. Miss Fisher, on staff in the Opera Department of the University of Toronto's Faculty of Music, first season directed the Company's highly-praised Barber of Seville. "The music follows the rhythm and intonation of words with astonishing accuracy."

L'Heure espagnole is a witty, satirical piece of buffoonery, entirely in the spirit of the French farces of curkoldry and the Italian "ex tempore" comedies of "dell'arte", but stylistically less primitive, much more delicate and refined. "Operatic caviar," says Miss Fisher.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A list of entertainers' tax audit results prepared by the United States Internal Revenue Service (IRS), for the White House in 1971 shows repeated four, five and even six-figure assessments were made for unpaid income taxes.

The list was released Tuesday as evidence in the House of Representatives Judiciary committee's impeachment investigation.

It was prepared by the IRS in order to convince aides of President Nixon that tax collectors were not harassing actor John Wayne, a political supporter of Nixon.

Menzos and testimony from former White House investigator John Caulfield indicate that Caulfield was prepared by Vernon Acree, then an IRS assistant commissioner, to give it to Caulfield, who passed it on Oct. 6, 1971, to John Dean, then White House counsel.

The listing showed Wayne had been assessed $227,351 in taxes for 1968, $7,398 for 1965, $6,300 for 1964, and was under audit for the years 1967-69 as well as a re-audit for 1965.

Caulfield said Acree compiled information on six other entertainers plus Governor Ronald Reagan of California, a former actor, who were deemed to be in a similar financial situation to Wayne.

Other actors and actresses under investigation by the IRS include Richard Boone, Sammy Davis Jr., Jerry Lewis, Peter Lawford, Fred MacMurray, Gary Morton, Lucille Ball, and Frank Sinatra.

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Soloist Lee Majors performed a whirlwind courtship with Miss Pinegar, 21, of Spanish Fork, Utah. The bride said Osmond came down to the floor to introduce himself after a basketball game last season.

Osmond, oldest performing member of the Osmonds, and his bride Merrill flew in from Las Vegas Tuesday morning for the wedding. They took the same private jet back to Las Vegas afterward in time for their Tuesday night shows.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carroll O'Connor, television's Archie Bunker, did not show up Tuesday for the taping of the first full show of All in the Family.

O'Connor filed suit last month against Tandem Productions, owners of the show. He sought a clarification of his contract and demanded $64,617 he maintained was owed him in back salary.

Tandem apparently does not plan to replace O'Connor in the popular CBS show. The company has three scripts in hand in which the action centers on characters played by Jean Stapleton, Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers.

Executive producer Norman Lear has indicated he will order O'Connor permanently written out of the show if he does not return within three weeks.

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your popularity will be picking up over the next few days. There are friends who want to share your company.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Should you be confronted by problems, you'll bounce back. You have a lot of inner strength to draw upon.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) A cheerful disposition and a bright outlook is all the equipment you'll need to win others over to your point of view.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Over the next few days your financial picture should be bright enough to please you and even permit a little surplus spending.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) This is no time to sit on your duff and wait for things to happen. Be assertive. The your splendid leadership qualities to gain your ends.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Proper timing is necessary today and tomorrow to accomplish your aims. Be patient. Don't make moves until you've got it all together.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your function very well at this time where groups are involved. Friends and even casual acquaintances will be surprisingly helpful.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll notice that whatever you do over the next few days will get more "oohs" and "ahs" from admirers than usual.

Sagittaries (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An arrangement you have can be subdued more to your benefit. Think through what you want to say. Make your proposal tomorrow.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 22) You will derive a great deal of satisfaction from your work if you've involved now in something creative and challenging to your imagination.

Suicides Can Be Prevented

TORONTO (CP) — Although the suicide rate in the Metropolitan Toronto area has increased an estimated 300 per cent in 10 years, psychologist Michael Jacobs says "most suicides can be prevented."

He is head of the crisis intervention unit of a Toronto hospital, a small team of psychologists and social workers chosen for their ability to relate to young people.

In the last 10 years the team has treated about 3,000 would-be suicides and Dr. Jacobs says: "To my knowledge only one of them is dead."

"Most frequent cause of suicides is family and inter-personal stresses," he said.

"The majority are young people who are temporarily defeated by life: They feel like losers. They see no solution to their personal dilemma except death."

About 70 per cent of would-be suicides are women.

"The community is full of depressed women," said Dr. Jacobs.

"Many are housewives, slaving away at home without a break. They grow discouraged because of their lack of independence. The doctors and therapists they seek for help don't seem to understand their plight."

Dr. Jacobs also said a significant number of suicide attempts are made by teen-age daughters of recent immigrants whose parents, bound by strict traditions, refuse to make concessions to the freer life-style.

Graduate Students Enjoy International House Life

NEW YORK (Reuter) — One autumn day in 1910 an American said "good morning" to a Chinese student walking up the steps of the Columbia University library here.

That brief encounter led to greater international understanding for thousands of students here and abroad by it's establishment of International Houses, residences for students far from home.

The American was Harry E. Edmonds, a Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA) secretary.

The Chinese student, his name unrecorded, grinned at the greeting. He told Edmonds that he had been in New York for three weeks, but not until then had anyone spoken to him.

He and Edmonds chatted for a few moments and then parted.

"I began to think about the incident," Edmonds, now 93, recalled. "How many students from other lands were like that Chinese boy? How many of them found New York a frigidly aloof and horribly lonesome place? What effect would this have on them? Didn't they carry pretty bitter impressions back home—they who should return with a friendly regard for the country whose wisdom they sought?"

Edmonds and his wife began inviting foreign students for Sunday tea. This led to the birth of the International Cosmopolitan Club.

The club attracted the notice of John D. Rockefeller Jr., and Edmonds convinced him to donate $2,500,000 to erect International House on a bluff overlooking the Hudson River near Columbia University in Manhattan.

Opened Sept. 15, 1924, it was the first residence to house graduate students from all countries and all races.

There now are a number of International Houses elsewhere in the United States and around the world, the nineteenth number in Britain, but none matching the facilities in New York.

In the last 50 years, some 50,000 graduate students from 150 countries, have lived at New York's International House, now celebrating its golden jubilee.

Carved above the front door of the 18-story structure are the words: "That brotherhood may prevail."

International House operates on a non-profit basis, partially subsidized through philanthropy. It has rooms for 500 students with separate rooms for men and women and facilities for married students.

It includes a library, music room, language laboratory, gymnasium, art studio, a job placement service and a beverage room.

Students wanting to live at International House write to the office of admissions. They must have been accepted by a school in the New York area in full-time graduate studies.

Each student pays $115 a month for his or her room at International House, a fairly nominal sum in New York. International House also absorbs part of the students' costs and offers some 25 scholarships for free residence.

At present, there are more than 1,000 graduate students using International House on either a resident or a non-resident basis. Some 87 countries are represented, including such places as Canada, Ethiopia, the U.S.S.R., Cuba, Nepal, Czechoslovakia, Israel and Bangladesh.

During the years, Canada leads as origin for house alumni with 1,336. China is second with 1,033. A spokesman explained that the Chinese students came during the 1920s and 1930s. Japan is third with 1,274, India fourth with 1,265. England has 529.

John D. Rockefeller built three more International Houses, in Chicago, Berkeley, Calif.; and Paris. There is a fifth International House in Philadelphia, built recently.

Others include Vienna, Vancouver, Taipei, Formosa; Berlin, Hamburg, Munich and Heidelberg in West Germany; Milan, Italy; India; Florence, Italy; Mexico City; Geneva and in Birmingham, London, Manchester, Bristol, Hull, Leeds, Liverpool, Newcastle and Nottingham.

Two Jailed

HAARLEM, Netherlands (AFP) — Two Canadians were sentenced Thursday to three months in prison for attempting to smuggle 23 pounds of hashish in false-bottomed suitcases.

The two, J. N. Baker, 27, a woman administrative worker, and C. C. Riddell, a 23-year-old journalist, were arrested at Schiphol airport June 8 and the court dedicated the time they spent in custody from their prison term.

Spend More

OTTAWA (CP) — Fewer Americans are coming to Canada this year but they are spending more money, a tourist official said Thursday.

A spokesman for the Canadian government-travel bureau said the number of American visitors for the first quarter of this year was down four per cent.

But he said spending by these Americans was up 13.7 per cent over the same period a year ago.

Schools, Stores Operated By Australian Railway

ABOARD THE INDIAN-PACIFIC, Australia (CP) — The Commonwealth Railways probably is the most self-contained in the world.

Houses, schools, medical supplies, food, fuel and water, are among the services provided for its staff.

Without this service the journey of the Indian-Pacific Express would not be possible. For its run across Australia goes through some of the most barren country in the world.

The operation of the railway depends on employees whose duty requires them to live with their families at isolated stations and depots.

The country in those areas is uninhabited and the railways have to supply every necessity.

Provision stores are operated at several centres, but a supply train, known locally as the Tea and Sugar Train, is the link for most railway workers.

It's a modern store on wheels, including its own refrigerated van, and provides fresh supplies of milk, meat, fruit and vegetables, as well as groceries, clothing and general household goods.

Water and even wood for fuel must be supplied to the railway workers living in tiny communities along the line.

In some cases water is carried more than 500 miles.

Many centres have railway schools and whenever possible staff with children are located there, but, a railways welfare officer arranges correspondence school courses for children at other locations.

Recreation halls have been built by the railway to provide dances, concerts and other entertainment aimed at easing the tedium of desert living.

There's even a welfare car put on trains for the use of infant health sisters who make at least four return trips each year between Kalgoorlie and Port Augusta on the Tea and Sugar train.

Electric generating plants have to be provided at the camps where line maintenance and train supply workers are based.

With television, movies and other trappings of civilization hundreds of miles over the horizon, the railway even provides a special mobile theatre which visits each camp at regular intervals.

At stops such as Cook in South Australia, where carriages of the Indian-Pacific are supplied with water, it's hard to imagine the loneliness of life in a community without a road leading out of town.

The only link is the railway line and existence is a complete circle. Without the line there's no survival for the railway communities of South Australia. And without the communities there can be no survival for this stretch of the trans-Australian line.

But even in West Augusta the Commonwealth Railways' independence is noticed. It operates its own wharf where cargoes of rails, fishplates, sleeper plates and other railway store are unloaded. In return outward cargoes include regular shipments of copper concentrates carried by rail from the famed town of Alice Springs.

But travelling through the night of the Australian desert is when one notices the absolute loneliness. Hours go by without an electric light breaking the darkness. The stars seem closer and brighter in the sky and falling stars can be seen burning their way to extinction.

Find Land Linking Continents

NEW YORK (AP) — British and American scientists, drilling into the floor of the South Atlantic, say they have found the last piece of a great continental jigsaw puzzle.

It is the final piece of evidence that South America and Africa were once part of the vast, supercontinent Gondwana land, along with Australia, New Zealand and Antarctica.

Scientists Ian Dalziel of Columbia University and Peter Barker of the University of Birmingham found a finger-shaped extension of the Falkland Plateau, under two miles of water and sediment, reaching 750 miles eastward from the Falkland Islands to a point 1,500 miles from the South American mainland.

"Some 150 million years ago, it was cozied snugly along what is now the southeastern coast of South Africa," the scientists said Thursday.

Rocks raised from the ancient continent are believed to be more than 600 million years old — the oldest ever brought up from the bottom of any ocean.

"It completes the puzzle," said Prof. Dalziel. "All the other points along the Atlantic contours of the two continents had been proven by various scientific means to have been joined long ago.

"Now, with deep sea drilling, we've identified a large area of foundered continental, and the last piece is in place."

Public Hearings Demanded

OTTAWA (CP) — The Manitoba government asked the Federal Court of Canada Thursday to order full public hearings on the proposed export of liquid quantities of ethylene by Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd.

The request came at a special sitting by the court in the wake of National Energy Board (NEB) decision to hold restricted hearings on an export application by Dow.

The board, when hearings opened last month, ruled that proceedings would be exparte—with only Dow witnesses giving evidence. The Manitoba government served notice subsequently that it would attempt to have the ruling reversed by the courts.

J. P. Sherwood, appearing for the Manitoba government, said Thursday that the board overstepped its legal restrictions by deciding that the hearings need not be open to the general public.

J. E. Smith, representing the British Columbia attorney-general's department, said public notice of the hearings should have been given and B.C. should have had a chance to participate.

Arguments on the case are expected to be concluded today.

Lang Says Broadcast Not Private

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang says that so far as he is concerned, anybody can listen in on anybody else's radio broadcast without violating the new Protection of Privacy Act.

He said in an interview Thursday that the anti-bugging legislation passed by Parliament last year and now the centre of some controversy, is designed to protect privacy on wires but not on wireless.

But the minister added that it is not up to the federal justice department to interpret an act of Parliament.

In the case of the wiretap legislation, which came into effect June 30, enforcement was up to provincial attorneys-general. They must lay charges under it and the courts then could interpret it.

The interview came a day after Leslie Lethbridge of Hamilton, Ont., was charged with intercepting private communications and with possession of a listening device prohibited under the legislation.

SEIZED RADIO

Hamilton police seized a radio they said could receive calls from a regional police dispatcher.

Lang said it was not the intent of the framers of the legislation to ban interception of radio broadcasts, whether amateur, police, telephone or otherwise. Such a ban would be an impossibility.

He said if people want a private conversation, they will not speak on the air where it is easy for others to overhear.

Turks Invade Cyprus

5 Canadians Hurt Amid Bloody War

NICOSIA (CP) — Bloody battles raged on Cyprus today on the first day of an air-and-sea invasion by Turkish military forces.

Five Canadians of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force on the island were reported by their commander to have been wounded when their position near Nicosia airport came under mortar fire.

No details of their identity and injuries were issued.

Turkish jets bombed and strafed much of the strategic Mediterranean island, including the capital, Nicosia, and the area between Nicosia and Kyrenia, a resort town on the north coast.

Airborne troops made at least four drops on the island, three in and around the capital, which is 17 miles inland from Kyrenia. Fires burned in Nicosia.

Greece declared a general mobilization and moved troops toward its border with Turkey, raising the possibility of a direct clash between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies.

United Nations peacekeeping forces that have been on Cyprus for 10 years were reported trying to arrange ceasefires in some areas. A British forces radio report said fighting had Fires burned in, at least 18 areas in and around Nicosia, the worst at the airport and near a Greek-Cypriot army camp.

In Washington, U.S. military officials and others said seven Soviet divisions have been placed on alert in western and southern Russia in an apparent show of support for the Turkish side in the Cyprus crisis, but there was no word of an alert for Soviet troops in Europe.

Canadian troops manning the "green line" separating Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot forces in Nicosia came under fire outside the Ledra Palace.

Journalists in the hotel said a UN jeep manned by two Canadian soldiers, drew up outside the hotel and came under fire from a Greek-Cypriot machine-gun post. The Canadians sprinted into the hotel and were not injured. A correspondent for Reuters news agency said a group of Canadian soldiers were sandwiched between Turkish and Greek-Cypriot fire behind the Ledra hotel.

A statement from the Swedish defence ministry said fighting had died down along the green line." The Swedish ministry received word from the commander of its UN force.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said Canada "will not take any unilateral action" on whether to pull out its 480 members of the UN force. A decision on the future of the force would have to come from the UN Security Council.

Doar Blames Watergate Directly on President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Articles of impeachment bidding President Nixon personally and directly responsible for the Watergate scandal are under consideration by the House of Representatives judiciary committee.

The articles are part of a package presented by special counsel John Doar. Along with the evidence in support of them they weigh hundreds of pages.

There's a mountain of that evidence continues today in another closed-door session dealing with charges of illegal intelligence gathering, abuses of government agencies, tax fraud and contempt of Congress.

Ehrlichman Appeals

Ehrlichman's request for a new trial asserted that Judge Gerhard Gesell, while Ehrlichman was testifying, "repeatedly made facial expressions and turned away from the witness in such a manner as to indicate to the jury that Mr. Ehrlichman could not be believed.

More discussions and a presentation of arguments against impeachment by the minority staff are scheduled for early next week and on Wednesday the committee will begin its fateful deliberations, with the possibility of a vote on whether to recommend impeachment by next Saturday. The committee members are expected to be televised.

Any recommendation by the committee will go to the full House, which would decide whether to impeach Nixon. If the majority votes impeachment, the charges would then go to trial in the Senate, with a two-thirds vote needed for conviction and removal from office.

In his opening presentation Friday, Doar detailed the role of the impartial investigator presenting facts without conclusions and said those who meet Democrats described as a strong case for impeachment on the basis of Watergate alone.

His performance provoked an angry response from Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, who said Doar was "out of order in the extreme" in marshalling facts on the alleged impeachment.

However, Vice-President Gerald Ford said: "I think they (the committee) have worked very hard to do a responsible job."

The vice-president also said he will not engage in an "arm-twisting, lobbying" effort for Nixon in the House.

Doar made no direct recommendations for impeachment to the committee, but talking to reporters later he was asked whether he thought the evidence warranted such a finding.

"In my judgment, yes," he said.

UN Outposts Withdrawn

OTTAWA (CP) — All but four United Nations peacekeeping outposts in Cyprus have been withdrawn because of heavy fighting following Turkish invasion of the Mediterranean island, a defence department spokesman said today.

The spokesman also said Canadian dependents, including Canadians working in Cyprus for the United Nations, would be moved. Number of Canadian family dependents of Canadian peacekeeping troops on the island is not known.

An external affairs department representative was trying to reach by way of Canadians such as tourists, who may be in Cyprus.

Security Council Summoned Today

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council was summoned to meet urgently at 5:30 a.m. EDT today at the request of Greece to take up the Turkish invasion of Cyprus.

The move came as the council was about to decide the fate of a plea by deposed Cyprus President Makarios.

The 15-nation council's focus was expected to shift from how to avoid a conflict to how to stop one.

UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said the leaders were "extremely serious for the maintenance of internal peace and security."

The UN has negotiated a peacekeeping force on Cyprus since 1964 with the mandate of preventing strife between the predominantly Greek population and about 75 Turkish residents. But it wasn't known if the Security Council would decide to use the small force in the present circumstances.

A resolution that had been slated for a morning vote would call Makarios back to office and asked in a speech to the council Friday — a request for force or withdrawal — of 650 regular Greek army officers, who replaced the Cypriot National Guard which overthrew Makarios.

The resolution also called on all countries "to respect the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity of Cyprus" and demanded that "immediate and to foreign military interference" end. It is expected that Makarios's second request: UN action to restore the constitutional order in Cyprus.

Canadians Flown Out On Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian Forces Hercules transport flew 100 Canadians — servicemen and their families — to West Germany from Cyprus on Friday, the defence department said Friday.

The spokesman said the men, stationed with NATO forces in Germany, were on leave in Cyprus when the Greek-led National Guard staged a coup.

The spokesman said, transportation back home by their units "is safe at Lake of the Three a v a i l a b l e Canadian transport aircraft."

The defence spokesman said there was no evacuation order for non-essential Canadians and there was no removal of Canadians involved in United Nations forces on Cyprus.

The remaining part of the regular flight meant that some men due to be rotated to or from UN forces in Egypt will have to wait until the weekly forces flight next Wednesday.

Cheaper Commodities May Mean Inflation's End

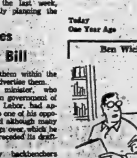
TORONTO (CP) — J. T. McCreight, new president of the Purchasing Management Association of Canada said Friday that a downward trend in prices, visible since last February, might be an early signal of a break in the current cycle of inflation.

Mr. McCreight said that the overall price trend in commodities continues to point toward an easing of inflation throughout the economy.

"The speculative elements in commodity prices have been moderating," he said. "All certain indicators are good and purchasers have become wary of long positions. Experience shows that when periods of rapid inflation end, the drop in prices is often most dramatic."

"Most of our members are showing caution on long-term buying commitments."

He said any important indicator that may foreshadow a slowdown in the rate of inflation is the general decline since February in Chicago wheat futures.



"Some economists see this as a serious turnaround sign, capable of influencing markets of all kinds, including basic foodstuffs," he said.

Tradeau Has Set August 12 Cabinet Shuffle Deadline

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has apparently set Aug. 12 as a deadline for completing a cabinet shuffle, along with a major shifting of senior public servants.

Sources in his office say Mr. Trudeau wants to begin a three-week holiday and have his ministers in their new portfolios before he goes. They say the prime minister also wants to move "six or seven" senior public servants, most of them at the deputy-minister level.

There would be another reassignment of public servants later in the year.

Among those likely to be shifted, the sources say, is Gordon Robertson, clerk of the Privy Council—the cabinet, in other words—who has said he is ready for a change of position. It is thought he will be appointed to an ambassadorial post.

The movement of deputy ministers is said depending to some extent on the cabinet changes. Some ministers although they will radically change their deputies with them.

After he became prime minister in 1968, Mr. Trudeau adopted a policy of moving deputy ministers, and he carried out a series of shuffles during the next few years.

He is reported to have told senior staff members before the election campaign began that, if he was returned in office, there would be more shifting of senior public servants and advisers.

Sources in his office say he consulted long and late with cabinet ministers and senior officials during the past week, while apparently planning the shuffle.

Eire's Premier Votes Against Government Bill

Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave faces a serious crisis of confidence among his Fine Gael party members over his unprecedented action in voting with the opposition on a contraceptive issue.

The votes of Cosgrave and six other party members in parliament last Tuesday helped defeat a bill—introduced by his own Justice Minister Patrick Cooney—to legalize the sale of contraceptives to married couples in the Republic.

Irish citizens or visitors to Ireland can privately import contraceptive devices but it is illegal to sell them within the country or to advertise them.

The prime minister, who leads a coalition government of Fine Gael and Labor, had apparently told no one of his opposition to the bill although many cabinet meetings were held and preceded its drafting.

Angry party backbenchers say they will be asking Cosgrave and Education Minister Richard Burke, who also voted against the bill, to call a explanation when the Fine Gael parliamentary group meets this week.

Fish Poachers Seen Likely to Provide Navy With Shot in Arm

HALIFAX (CP) —Concentrated foreign fishing off Canada's Atlantic Coast and the possibility of protecting a 200-mile territorial limit may give this country's naval forces a shot in the arm.

At least Rear-Admiral Douglas Boyle, Commander of Maritime Command, hopes so.

As he puts it: "We would like to get Canadians to fully realize our maritime," and during a news conference Friday he and fisheries department officials outlined the amount of co-operation between them in patrolling foreign fishing fleets for the International Convention for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries (ICNAF).

The general theme was that the defence and fisheries departments are learning the "tricks of the trade" in fisheries surveillance. "In anticipation of Canada getting a 200-mile limit."

The Law of the Sea Conference in Caracas is studying a proposal by Canada and some other maritime countries for a 200-mile territorial limit. Canada now has 12-mile jurisdiction.

The admiral and the fisheries personnel said they are working towards being able to control a 200-mile limit but until there responsibilities are defined, they can't say if additional ships and planes will be needed.

During the last 10 years, foreign fishing fleets have expanded off the coast, especially the large Russian one.

Last July, Boyle in need of help to do ICNAF patrol, the fisheries department turned to Maritime Command.

Admiral Boyle met the request which fitted within Canadian defence priorities and also offered "good training for our sailors and officers, especially as they could see ships results."

The end result—if the admiral can show that destroyers and military aircraft have no equals for this type of work—may be the purchase of more destroyers and new long-range patrol planes.

It also could help solve the reported problem of sagging morale by giving the armed forces an important role and good equipment.

Even in the first year of working with fisheries and increased sovereignty patrols, military officials say the tasks have been greeted with enthusiasm.

An older officers like to say: "Many of the young people were not brought up to fight wars. Protecting the fishery and getting into pollution work has more relevance to them."

The admiral, who took over Maritime Command last year, currently has 12 destroyers, four of them new Tribal 280 Class ships. He also has aging but durable Tracker and Argus patrol planes.

Permit for enlarging the school was issued in April. In May, permits totalled $290,000 and $285,000 in June, mostly for residential construction.

Hospital Group Will Meet Miller

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hospital Association will meet Ontario Health Minister Frank Miller Wednesday to discuss financial problems facing hospitals in the wake of recent wage settlements and the prospect of further demands.

"Hospitals across this province feel a sense of impending financial crisis, heightened by a lack of clear assurance from government that the funds necessary to meet equitable wage demands will be made available," a spokesman for the association said in a statement Friday.

The purpose of the meeting, the spokesman said, is to impress on the minister "the urgency of the situation and that the ministry cannot provide the necessary funds, to gain his support in an appeal to the cabinet for increased grants."

Claus Wirzig, executive director of the Hospital Council of Metropolitan Toronto, predicted recent salary agreements could cost Ontario hospitals about $460 million and $500 million more a year. Wages represented 75 to 80 per cent of a hospital's total operating cost.

"The only alternative is to cut back on the number of beds and services and employees and only the ministry of health can decide that," he said.

"Until the government people decide how they will handle the situation, the hospitals aren't in a position to do very much."

A spokesman for Mr. Miller said the ministry did not expect the increases to be as large as they were and predicted hospitals will be asked to cut their budgets in other ways to meet the situation.

So far, the government has provided extra funds to 11 Toronto hospitals whose non-medical workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, recently were awarded pay increases of 39 per cent in a twelve month period.

Nine other Toronto-area hospitals followed suit and reopened negotiations with the Service Employees International Union, resulting in similar increases.

Following the pattern, an arbitration board awarded over 20 area nurses a 38-per-cent pay increase over 18 months.

Prompted by this decision, representatives for the 10,000 registered nurses threatened a province-wide illegal strike if a uniform settlement carrying similar increases was not agreed to by 39 hospital administrators.

The nurses got their salary increases, in the first set of joint negotiations by the newly-certified Ontario Nurses Association (ONA), which replaced individual bargaining within separate hospitals.

But Mr. Wirzig said many hospitals were still trying to determine how to apply the CUPE settlement to their hospitals' workers when the nurses' settlement even bigger package—was dropped in their laps.

"The hospitals recognize they have to be fair . . . the only problem is, where's the money coming from, Monday?"

While the administrators worry, there are signs that the clamor for more money is hardly over.

The Ontario Nurses Association now is having no trouble getting some of its autonomous nurses' groups to join its ranks for further pay deals.

Hospital administrations are also boycotted this week's negotiations — nevertheless are being pressured to fall in line with the 6-per-cent salary increases approved for starting nurses and the 39-per-cent increases for experienced nurses over the next 18 months.

Nurses' associations still locked into current contracts are demanding negotiations be reopened to permit them to benefit from the ONA settlement.

Creating Awareness

The Mayor of the Week program for high school students here is one of the high spots of the school year in Belleville.

Sponsored by Rotary, it is a program which Mayor Robin Jeffrey believes in unreservedly and has recommended its adoption by other centres.

Meanwhile, a reading of an overseas magazine reveals that in Johannesburg they go one better. As well as a program for high school students there is a "Mini Council" composed of 13-year-olds.

The mini council was founded last year by a 24-year-old primary school teacher, Norman Knight, "to create an interest in civic affairs among the very young, to give participants an insight into the running of a proper city council, to develop confidence for public speaking, and to foster contact between English-speaking and Afrikaans-speaking pupils."

This is an admirable idea, one which closely parallels the high school program here. The question that arises of course is, why not a similar initiative for the younger pupils here?

Pictured in South African Parliament, the young people in blazers and short pants for the boys, minis or maxis for the girls, and mayoral robes for the Mayor and Mayoress (both girls) look a happy and competent group of budding municipal representatives. In all the Council is composed of 23 young people.

Mayor Dr. A. D. Beaumont of Johannesburg was on hand to present gowns and chains of office to the mini council's Mayor and Mayoress. Two boys serve as deputy mayors.

Teacher Norman Knight, who started it all, is also involved in the city's Junior City Council composed of high school students.

Increasingly nowadays there is a need for political awareness. How better to achieve it than with programs such as the among the rising generation.

Peace and Quiet

The plight of children living in guerrilla-torn Northern Ireland has attracted the concern of people in other parts of the world.

But sympathy is one thing, doing something about it another. Vacations abroad are one way in which people are rallying around to get the children away from the violence and to give them a new perspective.

Various parts of the British Isles have played host to youngsters from Northern Ireland. Ireland is another country where the youngsters from Ulster have caught a glimpse of a peaceful environment. The United States too is engaged in a similar project. Currently a party of 120 between the ages of 8 and 12 are spending six weeks with Midwest families in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Half are Protestant, half Catholic.

Sponsored by the Rotary Club of Hibbing, Minn., the program attracted applications from more than 5,000 children and 1,800 American families. For obvious reasons only a fraction of these could be included. Consequently the club limited the numbers to 120 children and 119 families at a cost of $87,000.

When we hear of Canadian and American money going toward the supply of arms for the opposing factions in Ulster, if brings reactions of disbelief. Far more to the spirit of common humanity is this type of program aimed specifically to bring some measure of tranquility into the lives of children who have been scarred beyond anything we know.

Dutch Government Cuts Back On Its NATO Commitment

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

With firm and abiding commitment to NATO and the long-time ex-foreign minister as NATO's secretary-general, the Netherlands was the ideal small-nation member of that organization.

But no more. The Dutch Socialist-dominated government has decreed peacetime and weapons cutbacks which will lower the Dutch effectiveness within NATO and possibly affect future decisions of other smaller NATO members, perhaps Portugal or Norway, to do the same thing when they see fit.

Specifically, the Dutch government will reduce its military establishment of about 110,000 men, (almost the same size as the Canadian), by 10,000 men before mid 1975. Netherlands Navy and Air Force which have about 22,000 each and by another 10,000 to reduce the Dutch army from its present strength of 70,000.

Weapons cutbacks will include abolishing several Dutch Hike and Hawk anti-aircraft missile installations.

Last year the Dutch defence budget at $2.1 billions was about the same as our own in dollar terms. The Dutch government is pulling her weight in NATO had been cited as an example of what the Canadians used to have within NATO as another small-nation member prior to our cutbacks of 1969.

That was done by the first Trudeau government as a result of its foreign policy re-allocations and new the reduction by half of our 10,000-man force in Western Europe, the phasing out of their tank strength and ultimate end of a nuclear strike role for our CF-104 jet fighters.

We were, and are still, considered as a small power in NATO military member terms because of the size of our commitment, not the geographical size of our country.

Yet the latter is the main reason we had to reduce our role.

Unlike Mr. Trudeau Dutch who had a clear-cut role in NATO (work closely with other European NATO allies in sea, land and air defence) and a clear reason for reducing that role, ours have always been diffuse and nebulous.

When we were berated by the NATO Supreme Command in West Germany, the U.S. and British that our phased role would indeed set an example to the likes of the Dutch, we were faced with new priorities for the military here at home.

The government had decreed a larger interest in sovereignty protection especially as it related to the new problems of ecological salvation of our coasts and seas.

And like other hemispheric nations with major fishing industries, we were concerned with merging limit problems with waters limits and with continental shelf jurisdiction, all of which might require switching sea and air forces used in NATO commitments.

Well the Dutch, with that traditional thrift and self-preservation have been more precise. Other than the preservacy of socialist governments anywhere to get out of military alliances, the Dutch have said their present defence establishments costs too much.

The cuts they have made will come to an estimated $200 millions. A sum which will be better used to support critical purchases of oil from the Middle East and to maintain the vast Rotterdam petroleum re-export trade mainly for West Germany which is one of Holland's largest sources of foreign earnings.

The Arab nations ended their total boycott of 'oil imports to the Dutch a few weeks ago and business as usual for the pragmatic Netherlands means more funds for oil, less for NATO.

The reason for those Dutch NATO defence cuts look as simple as that.

A Changing Climate For Tobacco

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

One branch of Canadian agriculture — tobacco — is going through a period of uneasy adjustment to a changing environment.

Over the past five years, unit sales of cigarettes and cigarette have been nearly static throughout the country. Dollar value of sales, on the other hand, has continued to rise.

Whether tobacco processors can continue to increase the price of their end products, with the fact of almost level demand, is one of the key marketing problems facing the industry.

But there are other problems — notably the one that the industry always refers to as "the smoking and health controversy."

Because of that controversy, the industry was required to abandon a variety of sales-to-centre programs four years ago.

In 1971, it was required to remove health warnings from packages and in print advertising ("the department of national health and welfare advises that danger is likely to increase with the amount smoked") and to give up all radio and TV advertising — which it had used lavishly.

But advertising men are never daunted by imaginative ways to promote a product, and the latest industry fad to come up with some spectacular promotions.

A current example is the Belvedere King Size Jazz Festival, described by Imperial Tobacco Canada) Ltd. as the world's first jazz festival on wheels, with appearances in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

The tobacco manufacturer is sponsoring performances by the Dukes of Dixieland, Norman Lewis Salloon, Count Basie and Buddy DeFranco quartets and the Carmen McRae trio.

Such promotional extravaganzas help to keep cigarette brand names before a vast and relatively youthful market. With no little difference among the various brands of cigarettes, manufacturers have to work hard to establish a "brand identity."

That was chiefly enough before incentives were banned and advertising removed four years ago. Since then, only one brand has been successfully introduced in the Canadian market.

Governments have a big financial stake in the tobacco market.

Last year smokers spent $1,630 million in retail purchases of all tobacco products. Of that $754 million went directly to the federal government in the form of excise and sales taxes, while provincial taxes took another $268 million.

Income taxes on the tobacco companies' manufacturing profits amounted to $30 million, bringing the year's total tax take on tobacco to more than $1 billion for the first time.

That record is sure to be beaten this year. Finance Minister John Turner's May 6 budget introduced an increase of about 15 per cent in federal excise.

The manufacturers themselves increased their prices by five to three cents per package, a month before the budget announcement. They also raised the guaranteed minimum average price to be paid for the 1974-5 tobacco crop.

Consumer resistance to higher taxes and higher prices could be met by still more imaginative promotional efforts, by diversification into other industries, which has been the decision of Canada's two biggest tobacco processors.

Turkey Reneges On Its Poppy Ban

The Globe and Mail

Two years ago the United States and Turkey made an agreement. The latter is the source of the largest part of the illicit heroin supply reaching North America. Turkey, by outlawing opium for American grant of $35-million, would ban cultivation of the opium poppy for four years with the exception of some closely regulated production for controlled medical use. Of the American funds, $15-million was to go for relief of farmers affected by their opium income, and $20-million for the development of other crops.

Last spring Turkish political leaders began dropping hints that the $35-million was not enough. The United States, they argued, could afford to pay more. The farmers, they warned, would need further compensation if they were to be expected to do without the opium cash crop. (Although the poppies were only a sideline for the farmers, and in opium poor for four years entitled to find an alternative crop, no significant progress had been made toward making the farmers less dependent on opium cultivation.)

Now Ankara has announced that the ban on the cultivation of the poppy has been lifted. Since the United States did not up the ante, the flow of deadly narcotic is to be turned on again. The Turkish Government has announced that private cultivation will be regulated by strict controls. But in the light of Turkey's record, some skepticism about the direction and nature of these controls seems justified. Turkey can be strict (positive might be a better word) in dealing with traffic in narcotics — or even suit drugs like hashish, within its own borders. But the record shows that the devastation worked elsewhere in the world by heroin made from the Turkish poppy is not a matter that arouses keen alarm over in Ankara.

LETTERS

Keeping Busy As Senior Citizens

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Your lead editorial in Monday's edition of your paper dealt with a proposed project of the Rotary Club of Belleville, to assist senior citizens to make use of their talents in their own special fields of endeavor, before they retired.

Being a senior citizen myself — retired Sept. 1973 — I am interested in anything which can be classified as "hobby" for my wife only last month; I have an increased incentive to seek some "hobby" or whatever energies I have remaining.

"Unemployment" really was pie for over 30 years, during which time I was out of from all social life. Now that I am on my own, I find it rather difficult to adjust to the social life around me.

I would join the Sitting Senior Citizens Club — which no doubt will be formed, if necessary. However, as they spend considerable time playing euchre, or other "time-killing" games, I believe I would be satisfied — feeling that I would be wasting my time, when I could be doing what I feel more useful.

I was a commercial artist, which as you know, is not a line of work, and apart from my paper, after a lifetime in that field, is sure to something else.

Many years ago, when the seniors feel the same way about the "unemployment" problem, they should concentrate on creating "hobby" centres, for whatever they undertake. If in the establishment of these hobbies can be made commercially valuable, so much the better — and the greater satisfaction to the individuals concerned.

Many seniors have found a handicap is the provision of "free pensions" but, which in fact states that the recipient of this pension may earn only $240 per year ($75 per month) without affecting the pension. However $240 and $15 per hall (a maximum of $300) is taken from the pension. Quite a bit from $1500, dollar for dollar is removed from the pension. This tends to stifle initiative, through which the individual may be blessed. The result? Many receive the supplement, who might not otherwise, thus saving our country money. There are many hobbies that could be engaged in, such as leather work, copper work, wood carving, etc.

All of the above is merely to illustrate my purpose of this letter.

I would like to know who are not yet retired must be assured that the use to which these senior citizens may be put will in no way affect the ability of those employed in their fields, to earn a satisfactory income.

I assume that the purpose of the Rotary plan is to provide the senior citizens with a purpose in life, in keeping with his capabilities, in his declining years.

In other words, it is not necessarily a question of money. Many of the retired, prefer to look upon any activities in which he or she might become involved, as a matter of keeping busy, occupied — not as a service to the community.

Therefore I therefore must regard the activities of senior citizens as primarily hobbies and if these hobbies can be made to serve a useful purpose in the community — excellent!

I for one would welcome some activity which also serves my fellow man. Handicrafts are common with many other movements. We have special means for accomplishments of handicrafts. I am prepared to serve, but also desire to retain some of that freedom of movement to which modern retirement what it is.

The basis for which must be taken into consideration. Not all retirees are alike in every type. Some will hesitate to join in a "Senior Citizens" restrictive hours, feeling that they have left all that behind.

I feel that the organization should concentrate on creating "hobby" centres, initiative; it is work-shop jewellery; you name it. As long as the equipment, this, they are forthcoming available, plus a centre in which to do it, there is no limit to the possibilities.

The point to remember is that the senior citizen must not be made to feel that he is drafted into the service against his natural inclinations, to be really of any benefit to himself. Who else me, prefer to forget the word "work" and to be more particular field? Did he sigh with relief when the burden of his job became lifted?

Before you catalogue talents, you must first change the attitude of the individuals from "drudgery" to that word from life, or retirement! Then you can start to build. Nothing to recall or study a special interest his job interfered with? Now he believes he can devote those their share — now they have the time for their own special hobbies.

Talk to the retired people first — what do they want? Only thus can you spend your time wisely.

Scriptural Interpretation Queried

Editor
The Intelligencer.

While I normally read the Bible Digest, I find that I disagree with interpretations and assignment. I must object to some of the content in the issue most recent one for July 13.

Specifically the statements (a) that the Book of Daniel was written before the time mentioned in 18 B.C., and (b) that the view that God could inspire writers to put down what He wanted men to know "begins the mind."

Surely Dr. Smyth knows that the Book of Daniel was included in the Septuagin version of the Old Testament, 200 years B.C., as the New English Bible puts it, and he believes that Daniel was a human writing, that men foreshadow of God, men they were, but impelled by the Holy Spirit, they spoke the words of God.

Surely Dr. Smyth this need not boggle the mind of Christians!

Holidays on the Farm Gaining in Popularity

Anyone for a country farm vacation?

That's the type 'd vacation rapidly growing in favor among many city-bred families.

And a growing number of farm families throughout Ontario, realizing the potential, are offering their farm facilities for urbanites who want to get away from it all for a week or so.

One of the Quinte district farm families offering farm vacations are John and Shirley Kerr, who operate a 700-acre beef farm in Prince Edward County, 25 miles east, of Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr got into the farm vacation business four years ago and in the interval have found it an interesting sideline to their normal farm operation.

And although the months of July and August are considered the normal time for vacationing, they find the farm vacation period can last from Easter through to the late autumn.

Vacationing families from south of the border help to keep the Kerr farm busy at weekends through almost to Christmas.

The Kerrs at one time were dairy farmers, but escalating farm labor costs forced them out of milking cows twice a day in favor of a beef herd operation.

Their 100 head of Shorthorns with a few Angus and Holsteins live year round on the 700-acre range and even in winter never see inside a stable.

They call their one-and-a-quarter mile square acreage Maple Ridge Farms in recognition of the 500 maple trees from which Mr. Kerr boils spring bushes maple syrup.

Up to the spring season the Kerrs normally expect to sell their 700-acre spread on the south shores of the Bay of Quinte.

But with an inborn love of easy going country life, the one wish of Mrs. Kerr would be to take a farm vacation each year.

"I'd just love to take such a vacation and let on that we are complete greenhorns," she laughs.

Although the Kerrs' big, rambling, two-storey frame farm home could easily accommodate several farm vacationing families, Mrs. Kerr says she prefers to limit her visitors to one family at a time.

In this way any possible "conflict of personalities is avoided.

This week the Kerrs have the Kuhlberg family of Toronto — mother and two young children — as vacationers.

Eight-year-old Mark and 11-year-old Anne Marie are fitting right in with the Kerry children, Sheryl, 14, Sandra 12, and Keith 9.

The Kuhlberg tiddles think farm vacationing is the real thing and an enjoyable change from apartment living in Toronto.

This is the third year of farm vacationing for the Toronto family, although the first time at the Kerrs, and Mrs. Kuhlberg says the children "just love it".

The visitors find instant friends in the Kerr herd pet, saddleborse Tracy and pony Whirlwind, in the farm dog and family of cats and kittens.

They even get to help milk the family Guernsey cow, Nancy.

Although they are still a long way from retirement, the Kerrs normally expect to sell their 700-acre spread on the south shores of the Bay of Quinte.

But with an inborn love of easy going country life, the one wish of Mrs. Kerr would be to take a farm vacation each year.

"I'd just love to take such a vacation and let on that we are complete greenhorns," she laughs.

Harvest Labor a Problem

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — A regional director for the National Farmers Union (NFU) has sent a letter to federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan asking him to take immediate steps to assist farmers faced with labor problems in harvesting.

NFU director, said today that past experience has shown qualified people quit harvest jobs for income tax purposes, after earning $250.

Mrs. Van Breda is asking Mr. Whelan to allow qualified people to earn $1,000 free of tax in a period of 25 to 30 days. She says the family cut gets a special treat of fresh milk. On the right are Mr. Kerr and son Keith, 9.

farmers to harvest their crops.

Mrs. Van Breda said transient farm labor is not moving into this area as fast as in previous years, and farmers could be faced with the worst year ever in harvesting labor-intensive crops.

Crop Outlook Good

OTTAWA (CP) — Wet weather had put crop development behind schedule in British Columbia and the Maritimes, but scattered rains on the Prairies have improved conditions there, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

In Quebec and Ontario, favorable weather conditions have brought average to high yields in most crops.

Conditions by regions:

Atlantic: Rains have hampered haying operations in the Maritime provinces. The Prince Edward Island potato crop appears promising, but growth is not as far advanced as normal. In Nova Scotia, the apple crop is reported to be average but corn prospects are below average. New Brunswick reports a variable fruit set in regions. The strawberry crop is expected to be down again this year.

Quebec: Haymaking, helped by favorable weather conditions, is expected to be complete soon. A good strawberry crop is being harvested, although it is a week later than last year. Grain and potato growth is average, while vegetable tobacco has been damaged by heavy rains. Pastures are in good condition and milk production is being maintained.

Ontario: Winter wheat is turning rapidly, and harvesting operations will begin in most areas in extreme southwestern Ontario. Yields in all areas are expected to be average to above average. First cut hay has been harvested in southern and western Ontario, while the other regions are well over half finished. Much of the hay is of good quality. Corn is reported to be in good condition, nearly up to pre-weather maturity. Corn has shown fast early growth, but cool weather is generally still behind normal. Spring grains are looking well in most of northern and western Ontario and crops are developing well in other areas. The bulk of tomatoes should be available, however, depending on the date of seeding.

Manitoba: There have been heavy rains in the last week in west-central Saskatchewan and most of the north of the province and central and north-east Alberta. Other districts throughout the Prairies have had showers. More rain is needed in Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan, however. Crops needed rains on the Prairies districts and oilseeds are in bloom. Haying is general with variable yields reported.

British Columbia: The last week has been marked by mostly cloudy, cool weather with above-average rainfall. The season is considered to be more than two weeks late. Haying of strawberries is completed. Raspberries are being picked in volume, and loganberry picking is starting, with prospects of a good crop in both. All vegetables are developing well and party potatoes are in good supply.

IN TEST, COLOR YOUR WORLD CAME CLEANER BETTER THAN 2 OF CANADA'S MOST EXPENSIVE PAINTS.

No doubt about it. Any paint you put on your walls is going to get scuffed, smeared, stained and splattered.

That's why we had a group of independent laboratory technicians test Canada's best known and leading exposure paints against one of ours. Color Your World latex.

The tests were tough.

Surfaces painted with each of the brands were ultimately stained with a variety of household substances, from crayon to ketchup. Scrubbing was attempted with a large variety of cleansers, ranging from mild to the abrasive and harsh.

Now that no one paint stood all the soil marks totally?

But significantly, Color Your World was the most consistently successful of the three tested.

Now Super Kem-Tone sells regularly for between $11.50 and $12.90.

Decorator Supreme sells regularly from just under $10.00 up to $13.00.

And Color Your World sells every day of the year for $7.69/5 Is Color Your World the greatest paint in Canada at any price? It depends on how you read the test results above.

But who's got the best paint buy in Canada? We do.

We feel we have a clear shot at the title.

City Escapers

Family Enterprise Restores Old Country Inn

By ISABEL HUGGAN

From being an ex-nurse homemaker living an ordinary life in Toronto, to a hotel and restaurant manager working 18-hour days, has been a large and sometimes awesome step for Shirley Langer.

"People often ask me if I'm a nurse, even as I'm registering them at the desk," she says, and then laughs. "I don't know if they mean it as a compliment or not!"

In fact, her hospital experience has been good training for the business of running The White House Inn in Brighton. Ideal nursing qualities — efficiency, warmth, tact, and being able to deal with crises — are particularly useful, as well as being able to maintain a good sense of humor.

Her husband Dr. Joe Langer, and their four children, Achille, 15, Steven, 13, Valérie, 11 and Silvia 10), Mrs. Langer moved from the city 14 months ago and has never looked back in regret.

But it has been an extraordinarily challenging year.

"If you can imagine the things that go wrong with any old house, with lawns and gardens to keep up, and then multiply several times over, you get a idea of what it was like to move in here," says Mrs. Langer.

When the Langers bought the 58 acre estate from the Nesbitt family, The White House Inn was being run by Irene Dickson, who had been in charge since 1939.

Mrs. Dickson had instituted such features as the "Tea and Tour" (a tour of the house and grounds with afternoon tea) but as the years passed was unable to continue the tour, and operated the Inn more as a boarding house than a hotel.

However, when a figurative sign on the 401 Highway drove the Langers to seek a place for the night, they arrived at The White House Inn, were given a room, and promptly fell in love with the place.

"At breakfast the next morning Mrs. Dickson told us the Inn might be for sale. We soon inquired, and before we knew it, we were hotel owners," Mrs. Langer recalls.

"There has been a lot of work to do, but what's happened is that our family has been strengthened by working together.

"I think that children today are often given 'token' jobs to earn their allowance. But our four have been absolutely indispensable. They've really pitched in to help, and without them we couldn't manage.

"They know this, and it makes the family very close. Of course, our move from the city was primarily for this reason, to find better surroundings for raising children. And I think we've found it."

Julie is a waitress, Steven helps with gardening and grass cutting, and a staff of nine others assist Mrs. Langer in running the Inn. Dr. Langer, a surgeon, has moved his practice from Oshawa to Trenton, and helps when he can.

And there is plenty to do. The Langers have plans for major additions and restoration to the Inn, hoping to provide recreational facilities on the property to supplement the grounds that guests can stroll through now.

Inside, the house is much as it was when John Easyes built it in 1853. A railroad magnate and provincial Member of Parliament, he sold the house in 1896 to Sam Nesbitt, another provincial politician, who made his fortune in land and canneries and added costly improvements to the palatial house.

Much of the furniture that fills the stately rooms has been in the house since the nineteenth century, although Mrs. Langer has added many of her own antique pieces.

One of the most remarkable rooms of furniture is the enormous walnut bedroom suite from the Lieutenant-Governor's Chorley Park residence in Toronto. The bed (now called the King's bed) was slept in by the Prince of Wales (later King Edward VII) on his Royal Tour in 1885.

The house itself is unique in its architecture, and in the quality of the mahogany, marble and glass that decorates the interior.

The high point is the tower, reached by a winding wrought iron staircase from the third floor games room. It affords a view over the apple orchards, lake and nearby Presqu'ile Park.

Mrs. Langer has resumed the "Tea and Tour" on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons at 3 p.m. She is continuing to do research on the house and area, collecting interesting local anecdotes and history.

The White House Inn has a dining room that is open to the public as well as to the hotel guests. Now that she has a professional cook to take care of menus and preparation, Mrs. Langer has a little more time to herself. But not much.

She is busy these days gardening, trying to provide fresh flowers for dining tables and bedroom each day.

"Flowers give that special personal touch we're trying to make sure is part of the White House Inn," she says.

"This is such a happy place for our family to be, we're hoping that atmosphere fills the house."

The Brighton White House Inn

Situated on a hill outside Brighton, on Highway 2, this stately old home, has been an Inn for 25 years. During the week there are resort-type meals available by reservation, and on weekends there is a varied menu featuring home-made desserts using apples from White House orchards.

Wednesday and Sunday afternoons, the Langers have resumed the "Tea and Tour" program, costing $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for children.

The Langers at Lunch

Dr. Joe Langer and his wife Shirley enjoy a rare leisurely lunch outdoors on the wide tree-shaded lawns of their new home. Mrs. Langer says that not being able to eat regularly means together is one of the changes the family has had to adapt to since starting the hotel-restaurant business.

The Consumer Sharon Airhart

A Thimbleful Of Irritation

I can spend another 30 cents (yes, I know it's only 30 cents but when you're parsimonious by nature they're wasteful) I'll spend cent hurts) and have another crack at thimble sizes or I can try to convince the store to take back the thimbles. Now is I were the store, I wouldn't take back the thimbles because where could I put them? Without the blister packs they aren't hang on a pegboard.

The thimbleless finger points to the manufacturer, who is the end result, take all the blame for a lot of useless and annoying packaging. Pollution Probe at the University of Toronto is currently conducting an advertising campaign urging people to show manufacturers just how annoying all this extra garbage is by mailing the blister packs — empty of course — back.

It's a fine idea and if it doesn't get me thimbles that fit at least I'll feel a little better.

Salve for the gardener's aching July back: the Ministry of Agriculture and Food last year advised home vegetable growers that a small home garden — 30 x 100 feet — would be worth more than $150 in produce eaten and stored. The inflated value of those vegetables probably makes them worth more this year.

Over-one, things aren't looking good for the metric system. In fact, the British housewife is reportedly so adverse to buying a kilogram of mince that butchers and grocers are refusing to go over to the metric system. Consequently, says the government's meticulous hoard, Britain's changeover is running two years behind schedule. Announced in 1965 for completion in 1975, the changeover is apparently not going to be complete until legislation makes it mandatory.

If things keep going the way they are now, don't be surprised if your next new car turns up in a blister pack.

Those obnoxious and wasteful plastic and cardboard packages realized they've been squeezing several years ago when merchants could help cut down on shop lifting by making little objects into bigger objects. Everything from razor blades up seems to come in the see-through containers, including those of all things, thimbles. Now, you may know your thimble size and I may be in the minority but when I wanted to buy one the other day, my choice was a package of two — not just one — in three sizes.

The fabric store clerk didn't know much about thimble sizes — I didn't even know thimble sizes — and so after looking my finger up to the plastic bubble didn't help much either.

In the end, being in desperate need of a thimble I bought a package in size 8 — 9½ or medium.

Now I have two thimbles that don't fit and a very sore needle-pinking finger.

New College President Intends To Change Smith

TORONTO (CP) — When Jill Conway, the University of Toronto's first female vice-president for internal affairs, becomes the first woman president of Smith College in Northampton, Mass., next year, opening avenues for a better economic mix of students will be one of her projects.

The 39-year-old professor of U.S. history says she is looking forward to working at Smith—the largest privately-endowed liberal arts college for women in the United States, a college noted for its high academic standards and its distinguished faculty.

Born in Australia and raised on a sheep and cattle station, she won a university medal at her graduation from the University of Sydney, then went on to get her PhD at Harvard. For her thesis, she did a study of the changes which take place in the social structure whenever a new group gets access to education, focusing on the first generation of American women university graduates.

That study led to an interest in the role of women which continues today and may serve her well as the college's president, should she tackling what she regards as one of Smith's problems.

"At the moment, the student body is composed either of children of the very prosperous or of scholarship students who appreciate the abolition of the economic spectrum. We'll need to find a way to open up the school to the middle class as well."

Happily, she concedes, the economic groups at Smith have not split into separate social camps.

"The entire student body is in residence, in small houses, that range in accommodation from 20 to 80 students, so the two elements mix very quickly."

The youngest of three children, Prof. Conway was the first in her family to embark on an academic career.

"I think that my parents were not interested in academic questions (but were very) supportive. They set high standards and they never distinguished between boys and girls."

At the University of Toronto, her role has been centred in a concern with the human and physical environment of the university.

"I've maintained relations with all the organizations on campus, as well as directing campus services, which include everything from campus police to day care centres."

Moving from a public institution to a privately-financed college will mean a greater concern with fund-raising, she says.

"It's essential to be involved with alumni groups, and Smith is fortunate enough to have very devoted alumni."

She also welcomes the fact that she will continue to teach.

"Teaching is the only part of the day that is not frustrating. You walk into the room and you're greeted by this splendid group of people who just want to learn. It's wonderful."

When his wife moves to take up her new post, John Conway, a history professor at Toronto's York University, will leave his 20th century specialty for Smith's 19th century.

There they'll join four colleges in the area, transporting his talents almost present no problem.

Mr. Conway started his career as a lawyer in Vancouver, then taught at Harvard, where the couple met.

Fashion Story

PARIS (AP) — If some leading designers have their way, women this winter will be hidden under slinky, sexy lines and broad shoulders, spelled well over the eyes.

Pierre Cardin, of Italy's top fashion designers, predicted a return to the "masculine" women of the second half of the 19th century under Italian couture inspiration.

He was the first Italian designer to bring forth the strict, severe shoulders and to popularize wool, the fabric of tailored side trousers, fitted high-heeled jackets and broad-rimmed hats and checks.

Straight skirts were split to mid-calf to reveal legs like no lady ever had, and soft jackets peeked out of the bulletproof chassis to hustling white satin.

Balmain's night dresses, like his day dresses, were grey, from pale smoke to ironclad, with Silk chiffons and soft crepes de chine, trimmed year after year, had favorite satins, printed dramatically in black and white, grabbed the hips and flared to the feet.

Tough to Find Mates For Educated Women

VANCOUVER (CP) — Professional matchmaker Marjorie Worth says the easiest people to marry are women over 40 with modest educations and small-town backgrounds.

It's tougher to find mates for educated women and short men and tall women are not a hot commodity on the marriage market, says Ms. Worth.

The proprietor of the Alpha Marriage Bureau, who prefers to be known as Ms. Worth, says she has trouble finding eligible women under 30 to introduce to men registered with her agency.

"I think women in this age group may be afraid of marriage, and it's a pity, because the men are really decent types."

Professional men aren't fussy about their would-be wife's educational level, says Ms. Worth, but professional women almost always want males who don't move from their line when they read.

Ms. Worth, who has matched about 150 couples in the last five years, says about 500 hopefuls have registered with the bureau at any one time. The majority are between 28 and 48 and have similar backgrounds.

They are generally in the professional or executive category, are interested in classical music and ballroom dancing, and read more nonfiction than any other kind of literature.

Ms. Worth says men generally look for a wife about five years their junior. However, men often leave with women a few years older than themselves.

"I not interested in registering men who want a girl 20 years younger than themselves," she says.

About 90 per cent of the women registered are in their 30s, either executive or professional jobs, and seek a male of their years or older in a similar vocation.

"I'm much easier to arrange introductions for women over 50 who are looking for a man who works with his hands. I have quite a lot of carpenters and farmers registered."

The registration fee ranges from $20 for women in their 30s and old age pensioners to $125 for a marriage results. After a new customer registers with Worth, clients through her files.

"I rarely come up with more six to 10 possibilities, or I don't have a match until someone new registers. I'd rather refund the client's fee than get anybody into making an introduction."

Dear Ann Landers: This girl, I'll call her Lila, who works with me, is obsessed with your column. Really, it's enough to drive a person crazy the way she sits in the cafeteria during lunch hour reading it out loud. This afternoon, a supervisor got mad because Lila was interfering with her conversation. I heard her say, "Shut up. We read it this morning coming in on the train." Lila kept right on reading.

I don't know if your dizzy fan is a frustrated actress or what, but she puts so much expression into her reading, it's like she's trying for an Academy Award.

This girl is not making any friends for you, Ann Landers. It's enough to make a person dislike your column. Any suggestions on what to do about it?—Lost Friend

Dear Friend: I hate to put the knock on such a faithful fan, but since Lila seems hell-bent on performing daily, the best thing to do is sit as far away from her as possible.

Ann Landers

Obsessed with Ann

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl, 15 years old, who tried out for basketball and made the team. The problem is, I have a hideous birthmark in the centre—and my leg which will show when I wear my uniform. It is large, very dark, and I hate it. I love to swim and, of course, wherever I wear a bathing suit the birthmark is noticed by everyone. I've been asked some very dumb questions.

I want to have the birthmark removed and Mom is agreeable. Can you tell me how it can be done, how much it will cost and what kind of a doctor should do it?—Self-Conscious

Dear S.C.: Ask your family doctor to recommend a dermatologist. He will counsel you on the removal. There are several techniques and he will decide on which is best for you.

Until the birthmark is removed, you can hide it with any pharmacy) some remarkable makeup creams or lotions that will cover the birthmark so well no one will know it's there.

Dear Ann Landers: I was amazed at your response to the man who paid $1,000 for his wife's abortion. The pregnancy was caused by his best friend and the husband felt his "buddy" owed him $500. You answered: "When a married woman gets herself into a jam like that, it's HER problem."

Your reply struck me as very charitable. Why penalize the woman for having the biological apparatus for childbirth? You seem to overlook the fact that the partner in this episode was just as much a part of the problem as she was. I say, equal responsibility.—Peeved In Nevada

Dear Peeved: Sorry, Buster, but when God gave women the biological apparatus for childbearing, He also gave her the responsibility of deciding what she was going to do with it. It's a well-known fact that most men will take whatever they can get. Any woman who has the brains she was born with should know this.

I say a married lover is as free of obligation as the mouse who steals the cheese from the trap and scurries away to play another day.

Snug as a bug!

Former Quinte Conference Head Among Nominees for Moderator

TORONTO — Commissioners (delegates) to the Twenty-Sixth General Council of The United Church of Canada, meeting here at Guelph, August 18-24, will have a wide choice in the person they choose to be the Church's Moderator for the next triennium. Two women are in the running, plus a black man, a layman and several well-known clergymen.

The Rev. Harriet Christie, St. of Toronto, is probably the best known of the nominees across Canada. She is the only woman among the United Church's senior secretaries and for 11 years she was the church's only vegan college principal (Centre for Christian Studies, Toronto). She was nominated for moderator in 1972 but declined to stand because of her recently acquired responsibilities as Deputy Secretary of the Division of Mission in Canada.

Dr. Christie considers herself "essentially an educator". She would see herself "strengthening the educational role of the church, helping to meet the deep needs of people for faith and a sense of purpose".

The man who was a close second to Dr. N. Bruce McLeod in 1972 has been nominated again this year. He is John Black, 56, of Kingston, Ont., a former president of the church's Bay of Quinte Conference, and a member of the executive of General Council.

Described as a warm, enthusiastic, informal person, Mr. Black says, "I enjoy people — where my heart is".

"We've got to get to the point where we feel comfortable talking about our faith, he says. "I see my position as evangelism is the biggest priority for the church. We're seeking for a deeper commitment of the man in the pew and then a movement out into the, adherents to enlarge the core," he told Patricia Clarke, Associate Editor of The United Church Observer.

A third nominee who appears to have wide support is one nominated by three United Church Conferences, is the Rev. Wilbur Howard, of Ottawa.

For 12 years, Dr. Howard was an associate editor of the Church's School and Agency Publications. He has a quick, dry wit, and is in demand in the lead conferences around the world.

"I really think my strength is in being creative," he says. "I've had a great time in the pastorate. But I see a need for my people to play a greater role." Dr. Howard considers he is a member of a team ministry in the church with the lay people having asked him to join their team. They've told him that if he is elected moderator they want him to stay on and combine the jobs.

Dr. Howard, who was president of quite Church's Montreal and Ottawa Conference two years ago, is the first non-white to be nominated for moderator.

There probably has never been a more literary nominee than the Rev. A. ". Leonard Griffith, who at least count had published 16 books — he is minister of Deer Park United Church, Toronto.

Dr. Griffith, 54, would be a "pastoral moderator," giving leadership to local churches. "I've ministered in every brand of local church," he says. "I'm a depth of experience few have. I don't know all the answers but I do know the problems preparing sermons, ministering to the dying, reconciling polarities. I'm not interested in the structures. I would stay in Canada and help build up the local church."

The priorities for the church, as he sees them, are first, "a deep personal renewal — making sure that what we say, or plan, is undergirded by second, revitalizing local congregations, creating a new faith in their relevance, mission and role. "The basic unit of the church is the congregation, community and third, I'd like to pull off the church union, it's the most exciting thing that ever happened."

Mrs. Jean Collins is a 71-year-old Ottawa grandmother and former missionary who has spent the last two years talking with Canadians across and conference, on her favorite subject, Africa. She and her late husband, the Rev. Ralph Collins, spent 29 years in Angola, where he died in 1967. Mrs. Collins is the theological seminary for 11 years; since returning she has taught at Carleton University and Algonquin College, Ottawa.

Mrs. Collins has the pop of other retired missionary, there are many other things I have questions about.

Dr. Bob McClure, Ottawa Presbytery, which nominated him in 1972 (he was in Africa instead of General Council) and again this year, "would be the world church to office. Some is the only minister with long overseas experience.

"I feel very keenly about the lack of a world view in pastor-to-pastor concerned about Angola and Kenya; "many parishioners are concerned with the fact that within those countries is a strong, sensitive church which is under severe persecution."

At the other end of the age range is 44-year-old Robert Rumball, a former Ottawa Roughrider and Toronto Argonaut football player, and minister of the Evangelical Church of the Deaf in Toronto. His nomination is a great surprise, and the discovery that the deaf were "second class citizens" started his ministry over 18 years ago.

Rumball sees his nomination as providing the church with "a different kind of leader, from a conservative evangelical," he says. "My priority is the affirmation of the faith, a declaration without apology. Nothing is more relevant than the gospel. I don't know of any better answer. I would stay in Canada and help build up the local church."

God Is Love and Jesus Is 'Best Photo of God'

By Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

One of the briefest definitions of God is found in the first Epistle of John 4:8. It has only three words, "God is love." Just like that. But can one believe it in a world like today?

Perhaps you say, "If God is love, why did He not provide a way to withdraw the power of men doing evil, of breaking His laws and having to bear the consequences?" I think the answer to that question is not so difficult.

All of us who have children know that they will never grow into mature persons unless we give them opportunities to make choices and decisions of their own. This always involves the risk that they will make the wrong choice and the wrong decision. But that does not mean to take if we want them to grow up. And so it with God.

Perhaps now you say, "That may be so. But what about all the suffering that comes into man's life as a result of forces over which he has no control? What about natural catastrophies, floods, earthquakes, germs?" Here the answer is more difficult.

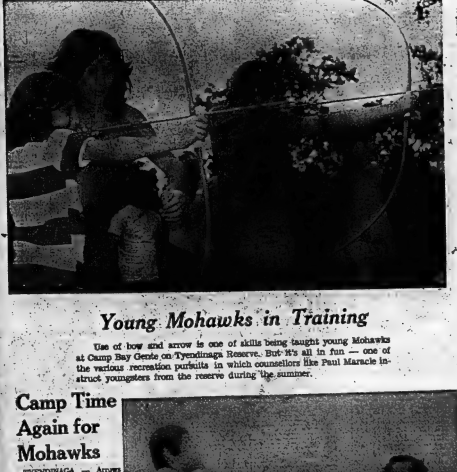
And yet suppose for a moment that God had said to Himself, "I shall let no evil, no suffering, ever fall upon mankind. I shall give people nothing but health, comfort, pleasure and security." Would Guiness always be fine?

Indeed, would such a plan not have deprived the human race of the possibility to develop all the qualities which character and history? We would have been condemned to lives of mediocrity and boredom.

However, few are convinced by reasoning alone. Love is a personal quality. There usually has to be a breakthrough in experience. For instance, this happened in the case of Alec Guiness.

He has described how he grew up as a Christian and a Roman Catholic.

For many years Sir Alec believed that life was a matter of chance, with no Power behind it at all. But then he accepted the leading role in the Father Brown story, played by G. K. Chesterton. They were filmed in a village in France.



One night Guiness began to walk through the village where he was staying. He was still wearing the garb of a priest, which he went down the lane. A little French boy caught up to him and held his hand tightly.

Guiness dared not speak, lest his accent betray his role. When they reached the village square, the boy gave the man's hand a final squeeze and went happily towards his home. Alec Guiness stopped in his tracks and began to think. That young actor had trusted him because he saw in the man something which represented trust. Somehow, Guiness thought, there must be a greater, perfect Father, the Heavenly Father, to trust his own life into the hands of the God revealed in Jesus Christ.

An Italian-American pupil was asked in a Boston Sunday School who Jesus was. He expressed it succinctly in good English but in good theology. He told his teacher, "Jesus was the best photo of God — and I never took." So He was! As He transformed the lives of the sick, God: And so can we!

All one thing is certain, circumstances are bound to stop us in our tracks. But will we react like an Alec Guiness or a John Wesley or a simple village lad? That is up to each of us. I wish for every reader of this column a personal experience out of which will come these words of the Apostle Paul: "I am sure that nothing will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord."

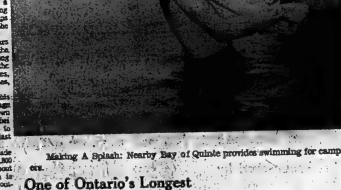
Young Mohawks in Training

Use of bow and arrow is one of skills being taught young Mohawks at Camp Bay Gentle on Tyendinaga Reserve. But it's all in fun — one of the various recreation pursuits in which counsellors like Paul Maracle instruct youngsters from the reserve during the summer.

Camp Time Again for Mohawks

TYENDINAGA — Arrows sometimes also be shot on this Quinte Mohawk reserve these days.

But the archery is not so much linked to requiring any ancestral skill. It's pure recreation.



For the second successive season, Camp Bay Gentle has won an Opportunities for Youth federal grant and is back in a summer resource for reserve youngsters.

On a site with a choice view of the Bay of Quinte near the Deseronto Skyway bridge, a project is now in full swing with eight one-week camps scheduled throughout the summer weeks.

Young Mohawks six years and up can experience the outdoors and day-long recreation, from boating to archery — includes blazes, campfire cooking, games, swimming.

To house the campers this year, the project's manager Gordon Brant built their own dormitory — with lumber supplied by the reserve — to replace tents from last year.

The camp was made operational with a $6,800 OFY grant. It is about $60,000 the OFY program is expending this year on outdoors and recreation projects in Hastings County.

Making A Splash: Nearby Bay of Quinte provides swimming for campers.

One of Ontario's Longest Canoes Race for Trenton

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A first, will be marked this year in the eighth annual Peterborough — Trenton canoe race now underway. David Camp, race committee chairman said Friday.

Sunday the second day of the two-day race, pitted 10 teams will pilot canoes down the last leg of the course from Campbellford.

Mr. Camp said your taken, including a husband and wife have registered for the race down the Trent River. The new mixed class is a departure from the normal men's class, amateur, professional and pleasure classes — seen in previous years.

As of Friday, 15 teams had registered with Trent-On Waterways Canoe Club. The 96-mile race is one of the longest in Ontario.

Only one other in the province, near North Bay, is believed comparable length.

Canoeists paddled away from the Campbellford start starting line early today and will stay overnight in Campbellford. Early tomorrow afternoon they will reach the finish line behind Trenton Community Gardens.

Mr. Camp expects the eventual winners to reach the finish around 1 p.m. Sunday, after an estimated 10 hours to be race.

Prior to today's start, he was still expecting further entries. Among others, he received a call yesterday indicating two professional canoe canoes were coming from London, Ont.

Also competing for today's race are John Hanson and Philip Spencer, winners of the recent Campbellford — Frankford canoe race.

Two Hurt Seriously On 401

TRENTON — A woman visitor from the United States and her 10-year-old daughter were taken to Kingston General Hospital Friday after their car crashed on Highway 401, a mile west of here.

A spokesman at the hospital said today Valerie Mae Greenlees, 26, Hyattsville, Md., is in critical condition with head, back and rib injuries.

Her daughter, Tisie Adele, is in fair condition with a fractured right leg and concussion.

Both were transferred from Trenton Memorial Hospital where they were first taken after the mishap.

Four other occupants — including the woman's husband — of the car were treated for minor injuries and released from hospital here.

They were Dennis Emmerson Grandison, 28, and also Norma Hunter, 27, the driver; Sonia Dawn Walker, 18, and Andrea Lorraine Prince, 14, all of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Provincial police at Brighton say the Hunter car was westbound in the passing lane of the highway when its wheels left the pavement. The driver lost control and the car rolled several times into the median. Police say the car ended on its roof, just inches from the highway's eastbound lanes.

Damage was estimated at $3,000.

Damage $2,000

TWEED — James Gordon Pollock, 28-year-old Plainfield area man, escaped with a broken ankle Saturday after he rolled his car west of Madoura near the Crowe Lake Road.

Mr. Pollock was alone in the car which was damaged to the extent of $2,000.

Mishaps In Tweed District

TWEED — Earl William Welsh, 22, of Willowdale, escaped injury early today when his car went out of control on the Stoco Road a mile east of Highway 37. Damage to his car was estimated at $1,500.

Late Friday afternoon there was a two-vehicle accident on Creekbridge Road two miles west of Highway 37, when a pickup truck driven by Lorne I. Cumming, 31, was involved in a collision, as he turned into his farm driveway. Driver of the second car was Ronald Thompson Taylor, 41, RR3, Tweed, whose car had $200 front end damage.

Shereen Morriss, 22, of Limerick, had $200 damage to the roof and rear of his car in a single-vehicle accident on a Hungerford township road near Thomasburg. The mishap occurred late Friday evening.

Fire Hazard Mounts in Quinte Forests

Quinte district bushland is under close watch this weekend as outdoors travel increases along with a mounting forest fire hazard.

As urban dwellers indulge for cottage and camping country Friday the hazard index was rated high throughout the district — and extreme in spots — by provincial natural resources ministry forewarners at Tweed.

Sporadic thunderstorms in the area are not helping matters the problem, caused by a prolonged dry spell.

In fact, such weather conditions may compound the situation. Lightning is a major cause of bushland fires and unless accompanied by heavy rain can spark outbreaks in dried-out areas, says Floyd Caverley, ministry field service and land supervisor for the 25 townships in the district.

As summer now enters a peak period of outdoors travel, forestry officials are concerned that the public should exercise extreme caution."

As the dry spell lengthened, the Tweed district office Friday cancelled all outdoor burning permits. These are granted rural residents for clearing brush and other first where an incinerator is not used.

At Tweed, the situation is also complicated by the absence of regular firefighters teams. The district's two regular fire units were despatched two weeks ago to reinforce crews fighting to control conflagrations in northeastern Ontario.

Personnel from other departments of the district offices have firefighting training and have been drafted in to standby duty.

Since spring, 39 forest fires in the Tweed district have burned 230 acres. The number of outbreaks is about the same as last year at this time.

Vacancies for Rent Said 'Zero'

Squeeze On Apartment Seekers As Building Starts Decline

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Sharp declines in construction starts of multi-family dwellings may soon put the squeeze on Belleville apartment seekers.

Figures released by the city's building inspection department show 306 units were built in 1973. Less than half that total — 142 — are slotted in 1973 and only 18 units have been built in the first six months of this year.

Bill Hunt, city assistant building inspector says his figures show no new units have been built so far in July — customarily a month that heralds with construction.

The backoff on building licenses even more crushing with Belleville already experiencing what a leading realtor, claims is a zero vacancy rate in rental accommodation.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said she is concerned about the present zero rate. But some of the construction problems will be cleared up once the city's official plan is in operation.

She said areas in the city — off Pine Street and near the northend Quinte Mall — will never had a designation have been opened downtown core will be defined in the official plan that will allow multi-family unit construction.

"We're interested, and everything will be easier once the official plan is complete," said th mayor.

Mr. Joyce, president of the Quinte and District Real Estate Board, said his "personal opinion" of a zero vacancy rate is rental accommodation was supported by a spokesman for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation — after the corporation made extensive surveys in Kingston.

No survey has been taken of the Quinte district, but Mr. Joyce said through conversation with area realtors he knows "people looking for rental accommodation are having a hell of a time."

"There's virtually nothing on the market," he said. "And it's vacant, it's spoken for."

A healthy rental climate requires a five per cent vacancy rate.

Mr. Board, meantime, considers this year's statistics as "dismal considerably".

He attributes the building decline to restrictive laws passed by city council in the last 18 months.

City council favored high-rise opponents by banning highrise construction from three-quarters of the city.

Eligible apartment buildings are not permitted in 75 per cent of the West Hill and 50 per cent of the East Hill, said Mr. Board.

"It's partly this re-zoning policy and it's partly the new restrictions council has placed on parking, building specifications and lot sizes that has cut building starts," says Mr. Board.

Mr. Joyce criticized extended zoning bylaws and new restrictions.

He says the old rules for multi-family structures were as "loose", but the new ones are "unrealistic" and should be re-written.

"When citizen groups were complaining about apartment building going up next door, council thought it was a good political decision," says Mr. Joyce.

"The bylaws were anticipated but in re-writing them, they overdid it."

Mortgage companies could refuse loans for construction of buildings where rents may be too high, predicts Mr. Joyce.

"There's only so much you can get out of a man's pay to cover his food and the restrictions are pushing rents too high," said Mr. Joyce.

Mortgage companies look Belleville is on the lower side of the national family incomes scale and unless a builder can show a good balance sheet for a finished building, he won't get the money, said Mr. Joyce.

The mortgage companies are reluctant . . . they don't want to see the builder go bankrupt, he said.

Increasing overhead of buildings may put rents up but "it's not likely landlords will speculate on rents," said Mr. Joyce, commenting on the possibility of escalating rents as apartments become scarce.

But, Mr. Joyce said, "increasing prices would be a logical thing to happen."

Killed Near Home, Train Hits Truck

A 55-year-old man was killed instantly Friday night when the truck he was driving was hit by a train.

Oscar Leonard King, of RR8, Belleville was travelling east on County Road 1 near the Belleville airport and was turning into his driveway. He had to cross a railway track to do so and was hit by an eastbound passenger train.

The incident occurred about 9:30 p.m. Mr. King was the sole occupant of the vehicle.

Bay Bridge: Once More It's Woe in the Works

Pleasure boat owners passing up and down the Bay of Quinte can expect more additional delays as they wait for the Bay Bridge at Belleville to open.

As of Friday — and until further notice — the bay bridge will swing only once each hour instead of every half-hour as has previously been the schedule.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Transportation and Communications at Port Hope said there was concern about possible wear on the rollers beneath the bridge on which the span swings.

Additional delays as they wait for the Bay Bridge at Belleville to open.

The problem could be checked out in detail and decided to reduce the bridge opening frequency, he said.

"It's not a structural problem," said the ministry spokesman.

Only boat traffic will be affected by the reduced swing frequency on the bridge, which is part of Highway 14 causeway linking Prince Edward County to Belleville.

Youth Hurt

CONSECON — Michael Parker, 16, of 44 Wall Street, Trenton, remained in serious condition in Kingston General Hospital today after a single-car crash on Consecon Road, a half-mile west of here early today.

The youth suffered head injuries in the crash.

Provincial police at Picton said the Parker car had swerved when it went out of control, veered into a ditch and rolled.

Push Is on For Student Employment

There's nothing odd about solving odd-job problems, Canada Manpower in Belleville says it has an uncomplicated answer.

So much so, it heightened its drive this weekend to find students summer work.

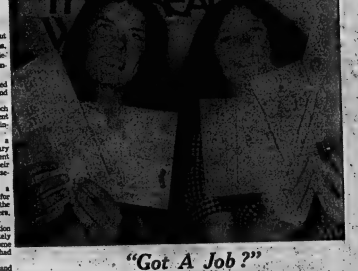
Manpower moved a branch of its student employment centre into a public mainstream — the Quinte Mall.

The location was part of a push to mainly find secondary school students employment by publicizing their availability at various householders.

There's likely many a Canadian job to be found for students by prompting the attention of householders, Manpower people believe.

While the Mall information booth wasn't immediately swamped with requests, some orders for casual help had been placed Friday.

Both registrations and orders are up this summer over 1973, says student centre manager Judy Davidson. About 1,400 university and secondary school students have registered so far — an increase of around 200.



Assess Project

Provincial Agricultural officials at Shirling continue to assess results from a pilot long-term pasture project on Pancake Hill in the Marsh area.

This year a total of 57 head of cattle, the highest number since the project was started five years ago, have been pastured on the property which is seeded to a variety of grasses. Strickland Timothy is the predominant grass there.

In addition to pasture, the cattle were fed a liquid protein supplement and are weighed monthly to check gains. Different breeds of cattle, including Shorthorn, Charolais and dairy breeds are watered the pasture lot in different groups.

Also being carried on at Pancake Hill are pasture improvement projects ranging from regular seeding to broadcasting atop the ground.

"Got A Job?"

Despite the smiles, job counsellors Terry Wilson and Debbie Callaghan, both 19, had serious chore at Canada Manpower booth in Quinte Mall Friday night. Their assignment was to help prompt more work orders particular for Secondary School students, from passing public.

Billingham Struggles for Win, Rau, Marshal Combine for LA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sore-armed pitcher helped Cincinnati Reds to a 4-1 victory over Chicago Cubs Friday night, but a Los Angeles Dodger hurler with a pain in the neck kept the Reds from gaining ground on the National League West Division leaders.

Jack Billingham, troubled with stiffness in his right shoulder, struggled to gain his 10th triumph of the season for the Reds.

Elsewhere, the Dodgers blanked Philadelphia Phillies 4-0; New York Mets topped San Diego Padres 4-2; San Francisco Giants clipped Montreal Expos 5-2; Pittsburgh Pirates edged Atlanta Braves 2-0, and Houston Astros downed St. Louis Cardinals 5-1.

Bill Plummer and George Foster each drove in two runs to pace Cincinnati's 12th victory in 16 games.

The streak has brought the Reds within 6½ games of the Dodgers, but stiff-necked Don Rau beat the Philadelphia Phillies to keep the margin from dwindling further.

Rau, who had been sidelined for a month, raised his record to 9-3.

The Expos turned three of their hits off Caldwell into two runs in the eighth inning. Foste singled to left, Jose Morales doubled to left - centre, Larry Parrish was safe on an error by Garry Thomasson and Davis singled to right.

Caldwell didn't surrender his first hit until Bob Bailey singled with one down in the fourth. Hal Breeden then grounded into a double play, ending the inning. Breeden walked leading off the second and was erased on Ron Woods' double-play grounder.

The Giants missed a scoring opportunity after Chris Arnold led off the fourth with a single. Arnold was out attempting to steal and Dave Rader was safe on Pepe Frias' fielding error. Caldwell bunted into a force play and Phillips flied, retiring the side.

Caldwell continued his mastery against Montreal. The southpaw raised his career record to 5-1 against the Expos--including three wins without defeat this season.

Torrez didn't enjoy his usual success against San Francisco. He entered the season with a 7-1 lifetime mark against the Giants, but has lost twice to them this season.

Matthews Paces Giants' Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gary Matthews belted a pair of two-run singles while Mike Caldwell and Randy Moffitt combined for a six-hitter, leading San Francisco Giants to a 5-2 win Friday night over Montreal Expos.

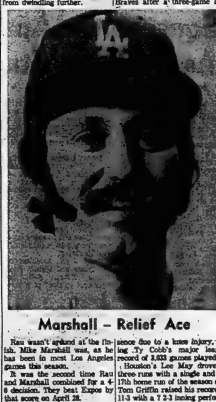
The Giants took a 1-0 lead with an unearned run off Mike Torrez, 5-6, in the first inning. Mike Phillips walked and Chris Speier reached second when centre fielder Willie Davis dropped Ken Henderson's fly. Garry Maddox' grounder scored Phillips.

Wallis to Speier and Bobby Rondo scored Maddox' next single loaded the bases with two down in the third, preceding Matthews' first two-run single of the National League baseball game.

Maddox singled with one out in the fifth, stole second and went to third on catcher Barry Foote's throwing error. Rondo walked and stole second and Matthews followed his second two-run single, giving him 47 runs batted in.

Moffitt singled home the Giants' sixth run in the eighth after Matthews hit his third single.

Caldwell, making only his second start since tendonitis sidelined him for more than a month, raised his record to 3-2.



The Expos turned three of their hits off Caldwell into two runs in the eighth inning. Foste singled to left, Jose Morales doubled to left - centre, Larry Parrish was safe on an error by Garry Thomasson and Davis singled to right.

Caldwell didn't surrender his first hit until Bob Bailey singled with one down in the fourth. Hal Breeden then grounded into a double play, ending the inning. Breeden walked leading off the second and was erased on Ron Woods' double-play grounder.

The Giants missed a scoring opportunity after Chris Arnold led off the fourth with a single. Arnold was out attempting to steal and Dave Rader was safe on Pepe Frias' fielding error. Caldwell bunted into a force play and Phillips flied, retiring the side.

Torrez didn't enjoy his usual success against San Francisco. He entered the season with a 7-1 lifetime mark against the Giants, but has lost twice to them this season.

Marshall – Relief Ace

Rau wasn't yanked at the finish. Mike Marshall was, as he has been in most Los Angeles games this season.

It was the second time Rau and Marshall combined for a 4-3 decision. They beat Expos by that score on April 28.

Jerry Grote had two hits and drove in two runs to back Jon Matlack's five-hitter and lead New York past San Diego.

Tug Mathews hit two-run singles in the third and fifth, while Mike Caldwell and Rich Moffitt teamed for a six-hitter to carry San Francisco past Montreal.

Hank Aaron started for the Braves after a three-game absence because of a knee injury, tying Ty Cobb's major league record of 3,033 games played.

Aaron's absence was proven in three runs with a single and his 17th home run of the season and Tom Griffin raised his record to 11-3 with a strong pitching performance to beat St. Louis.

Bosman Flirts With Perfection Settles For Just No-hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland's Dick Bosman was perfect throwing to the plate, but imperfect throwing to first base and it cost him a chance to be absolutely perfect Friday night.

Making only his fifth start of the season, the 30-year-old right-hander threw 79 pitches to Oakland A's and 60 of them were either strikes--he fanned four--or resulted in outs. Bosman also threw twice in first base and one of them was high, glancing off the glove of Tom McCraw for a two-base error. The miscue cost Bosman a perfect game and had to settle for a no-hitter as the Indians stopped a six-game losing skid and Oakland's six-game winning streak by defeating the world champion A's 4-0.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox downed Texas Rangers 3-1, Baltimore Orioles clipped California Angels 5-4 in 10 innings, Kansas City Royals topped New York Yankees 5-4, Chicago White Sox slammed Milwaukee Brewers 7-3, and Minnesota Twins outlasted Detroit Tigers 7-3.

"I've made hundreds of plays like that before," Bosman said of Sal Bando's slow bopper to the right of the mound. "I felt like I had taken a long time to get to the ball and I threw it too quickly. Then I realized I had a no-hitter but more time."

Joe Lis provided all the runs Bosman needed with a two-run homer in the third off Dave Hamilton.

Lois Tiant scattered eight hits as Boston took advantage of four Texas errors. Tiant, 10-7, set down the first 12 Rangers until Mike Hargrove doubled in the third off Phil Niekro and scored on Jim Sundberg's single.

Boston nicked Jackie Brown for a run in the fifth on Jim Blackwell's RBI single and added two more in the sixth on three errors and an single by Dwight Evans, Carl Yastrzemski and Rico Petrocelli.

Don Baylor's home run in the 10th inning enabled Baltimore to end a four-game losing streak after the Orioles had wasted a 4-1 lead.

Alvon Oliz slammed a three-run homer off Sam McDowell with two out in the fifth inning and John Mayberry followed with a solo shot, powering Kansas City to a 4-1 lead. The Royals picked up what proved to be the winning run in the ninth on Fran Healy's single, Fred Patek's double and Al Widmar's infield hit.

Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double as Chicago rallied to an 8th straight victory. Bart Johnson picked up his third triumph in as many decisions.

Red Carew singled home one run and Rod Gilbert and Larry Hisle doubled home two runs, propelling Minnesota over the slumping Tigers. Dave Goltz, who was greeted by Bill Freehan's three-run homer when he relieved Vic Albury in the first inning, carried 7 1-3 innings to earn the victory.

"Leading Nothing New to Me" —Sifford

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — "Leading is nothing new to me," Curtis Sifford said of his one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $150,000 B.C. open golf tournament.

"I just haven't won. But I'm going to win this one."

Sifford, 46, a nephew of pro Charley Sifford, offered the observation after his four-under-par 67 broke a logjam of players.

Sifford, one of the few blacks on the pro tour, was tied with four other players until he chipped to four feet and made the short birdie putt on the 18th hole.

He has been on the tour for six years and has led at least twice, but hasn't won.

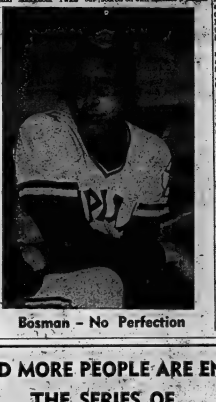
His two-round total of 138, seven under par, dropped Don Iverson, Bruce Fleisher, rookie Mark Hayes and Tim Collins back into second at 139.

Iverson, Fleisher and Hayes all shared the 18-hole lead and each had 70s.

None of the five leaders has ever won a regular tour title.

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton had the day's best round, a 66.

Wednesday's first round.



Jaroslia Barsky of Calgary defeated Candy Senn of Toronto 6-4, 6-1 and Andree Martin of Montreal downed Vivienne Strong of Toronto 6-3, 6-3. Stephanie Bardsley of Vancouver also advanced to the third round with a 6-4, 4-6, 7-6 victory over Taffy Savard of Vancouver.

In men's doubles, Dale Power and Dave Brown, both of Toronto, defeated the French pair of Debbicker and Castelle 6-4, 3-6, 6-4. Other seeds to the second rush, Tony Bardsley and Keith Carpenter of Toronto downed Glenn Booth of Toronto and Steve Whitehead of St. Catharines 6-2, 6-3.

Chavez and fellow countryman Luis Barrabi got past the Quebec City pair of Benjamin Dennis and Richard Legendre 6-3, 6-3. Rudy Hernandez of Detroit and Seewagon beat Bob Kreil from Vancouver in two straight sets, 7-5, 6-3.

Stomper Pulls Salt Trick Again In Title Defense Win

By ALAN TEWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

For the fifth consecutive time at the Memorial Arena, Archie "The Stomper" Gouldie has retained his North American Championship Wrestling Belt. He did it last night by defeating Vic Rosalani in a two-out-of-three falls bout before about 1,200 fans at the Market Street meeting place.

The bout was a regular match, just a plain exhibition of brute strength, viciousness on behalf of the two, and good old violence.

The Stomper, once again the scourge of the crowd, came into the ring last, but not without several shots at him by the challenger Rosalani, eager to take the crown away from the champ.

Rosalani came on like a boxer, with several shots to the head of the champion even before he had entered the ring. Then, as the fight started, so started the referee flying from the challenger even more.

With a warning for hitting from the referee, Rosalani moved in on the agressive even more, this time throwing the Stomper around the ring, punishing him with heavy shoulder blocks, forcing him out of the ring, drawing blood from the betrig of his nose.

But the Stomper came back, taking advantage of a break out of the ring, to regain some of his energy. He came back — and got the better of the challenger in the last half of the first fall action, pinning him with shoulders 18 minutes gone in the 60-minute match.

After a brief sparring session to start the second fall, Rosalani got back on the track into wrestling once again, this time coming out on top. He managed to get a Stomper hold on the camper, putting him out like a light on the canvas, taking a win in the second fall and the title bout at one each.

and setting the stage for the third fall.

With fury in his eye, Rosalani walked impatiently for the Stomper to wake from the second bout — winning hold. With only 45 seconds left until the third bout was to be declared, with the challenger the winner, Rosalani managed to wake the Stomper up to fight, striking a sharp blow to the back of his neck.

The third and final bout started once again with Rosalani on the offensive. He forced the Stomper out of the ring several times, either kicking back, or throwing him out roughly again on his return.

Part of the action in the third fall actually took place on the crescent floor of the Arena, after Rosalani had forced the Stomper out. Rosalani then went around the ring, but could not catch him.

When he did, the Stomper turned the tables, taking several good blows at him, including several times banging Rosalani's head on the spectators' and judges' ringside table.

After they got back to the action in the ring, Rosalani [illegible] upper hand, but it backfired. He had the Stomper in a headlock, ... champion facing the referee directly on. The Stomper placed his foot carefully in the official's stomach, kicking him out of the ring through the ropes and onto the floor, apparently unconscious.

Meanwhile, Rosalani was f... , seized and whi[illegible] would be winning pin on the champion, but to no avail. The referee did not see any of his shenanigans in the action, lying on the floor.

Rosalani then went to help the official back to the ring, leaving the Stomper alone for the short moments he needed. The Stomper once again went for the winning dangle he used in the cage match two weeks back — salt.

When Rosalani was climbing back into the ring after reviving the referee, he really got an eyeful — of salt, blinding him just long enough to be pinned by the Stomper, the second of the three, for the retaining of the title.

Tony Parise, who had fought in a preliminary bout, came out of the dressing room, to chase the Stomper back into the ring. He apologized over the public address system to the crowd for the actions of the champion, and challenged him to a good, clean bout, with no secret weapons.

The Stomper accepted the challenge, and the two will meet in the next action, in Stollan Stretcher Match, with the loser the one carried out on a stretcher.

In the other matches, Billy the Kid took a decision over Bobo Johnson at the 17:30 mark of their bout, and Tony Parise and Lats Marthes were disqualified in their tag team bout with Chris Tobin and Eric the Animal for attacking the official. Dominic Denucci took a win from Baron Schuss in the final action of the night.

Corby Pace to Johnny Command

By MARK SHETT

Johnny Command, owned by the husband and wife team of Allen and Gloria Vance of Corbyville, took the featured Corby Invitational Pace at the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway last night.

The race was the ninth of the 10 race card, with Allan Vance driving to the victory in a time of 2:07, the fastest time of the night.

Vance also won the fourth race of the night, behind Glory Al, winning in a time of 2:14.

Johnny Command took the lead from the beginning of the race, and held on to win, followed closely by the Number Two horse, Jimmy Bing, owned by Lloyd Murray of Colbourn, Ont. Zorro Gretton, owned by Stan Kiernan of Trenton, was third.

The tenth and final race of the night ended in a dispute with Carl Finlay and the track. Finlay vowed never to race to the Belleville track from his home of Whitby.

The incident occurred just after his horse, Darts Encardo, had been announced as the unofficial winner of the tenth and final race, prowing many ticket holders to throw their tickets away.

Finlay, driver of [illegible] himself, was charged with interference, and was [illegible] back to third place from first. Star Boy Gratton was moved into first place, with Riddell Acres climbing into second. Time of the race was 2:15.

Six Photo finishes were required to determine winners out of the 10 heats, a rather high total, for an average night.

Pound Argos 36-15

No Power Failure for Roughies

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated Toronto Argonauts 36-15 Friday night in a Canadian Football League exhibition game cut short by power failure, lighting and cloudbursts.

The teams were only a point apart, 15-14 in the Roughriders' favor after two quarters, but Saskatchewan's three quarterbacks each provided an unsurpassed touchdown in the rest of the game.

Veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster hit halfback Bobby Thompson for a 16-yard score set up seconds earlier by a fake field-goal attempt. Lancaster got a first down at the Toronto six with a pass to Lawrie Skilnick.

Jim Lindsey hit Steve Mann on a 61-yard pass and run play at 13:11 of the third quarter.

After an interruption when a power failure left the stadium in darkness, Randy Mattingly passed for the final touchdown on an 18-yard throw to Leif Pettersen.

Other Saskatchewan touchdowns came from George Reed on runs of three and one yards. Both Galloway and Tom Berg each converted two touchdowns and Don Marcotte kicked the final convert.

The powerful Argos' attack, which had scored 36 points against Saskatchewan's Bob Pearce last the Toronto kicker opening the third quarter in his and Reed and a forward lateral to Jim Elder. A point was awarded to Toronto, credited to the team and not to any individual player, because of the official time pass in the end zone.

Harris to Lead '74 Edition

Team Canada Easy Assignment?

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Billy Harris says building a team Canada '74 is like trying to be the easiest assignment he has ever had in hockey.

Harris, 38, still lead the Canadian against Russia this fall in the eight-game international hockey series between the Soviets and what he predicts the new squad will have an easier time than Team Canada '72 in showing its sightscreen series.

"We'll have Bobby Hull, who leads by example, and Gordie Howe, the number in everything he does," Harris said in an interview. "We have Pat Stapleton, who has experience from the '72 series and a style necessary to lead the Montreal Canadiens.

"And we'll have Paul Henderson. All we have to do is stay close with him and he'll make us and Henderson will win for us. That's what he did in 1972, remember?"

Henderson, Stapleton and Frank Mahovlich—if he joins the team—will be the only veterans of the September '72, which edged the Russians four games to three with one game tied.

"We'll have to play a defensive game, handling the puck well and not trying to beat the Russians physically," said Harris, who has coached people, plus Hull, Howe and whoever else we name, will be our leaders.

Harris said he is confident Toronto will be ready and Tuesday's Toronto of the World Hockey Association after leaving Montreal Canadiens.

The league, a rival to the League, will decide to play.

"Already he has recommended three dozen of young guys for consideration. That shows his interest.

"We've assured him this series won't be anything like the series then in 1972," when Canada's contention was more he was forced to take part of the series.

"Henderson has not yet been named formally to the team but I'm sure he'll be there," Harris said. He joked the Toros recently have nothing but NHL careers with Toronto Maple Leafs. Stapleton hasn't been named to the team but has played a new conference Stapleton will be on the team.

Harris, who played most of his NHL career in Toronto, has excellent credentials for the job of coaching international hockey.

He played 22 games with Canada's national team in 1959 at the advanced hockey age of 23 and was a member of standing player of the world championship.

"I had heard for some years that my style was suited to international hockey," said Harris, who still expects to coach Toronto one day and go into teaching. "I was glad to find out the suggestions were correct."

Harris also coached the Swedish national team for a short season.

"I will be different coaching Team Canada," he said.

"Some of the guys will have a problem in avoiding being psyched too high. If isn't like any other hockey competition. You're playing for your country. That's bigger than any and most.

But Harris is optimistic.

"I feel very good about it with Hull and Howe and Stapleton and Henderson to make sense guys play better—but we've not expecting to need miracles."

Harris said the team now being constructed will be no stronger than Team Canada '72.

"We won't have as many players, so we won't have the depth.

"We will learn from the Soviet hockey style, which took for granted they would win easily, and we'll have a stronger team in terms of dedication."

The series is considered by many to be the WHA's latest attempt to claim parity with the NHL.

The NHL expected to win all eight games and failed when it didn't. Now that way. Nobody expects us to win even, but I'm sure we can do it.

We might win all eight games. But we'll show some players with class and some classy hockey that has nothing to do with stapping sticks and high sticking shots at the opposition. "I feel we can all right. Win or lose, we'll make some friends for Canada—and that's important, too."

Panasiuk Holds Two Stroke Margin at CPGA

CALGARY (CP) — Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., staged a late surge Friday to maintain his two-shot lead in the second round of the 1974 Canadian Professional Golfers Association championships.

Panasiuk had a 68, two under par, over the 6,215-yard Willow Park course, for a 133 total.

Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., who had the best round of the day, and assistant pro Dave Gartner of Mississauga, Ont., fired a 66 and a 68, respectively, to tie for second with 135 totals.

Panasiuk is trying to become the first to win three successive CPGA titles since Stan Leonard of Montreal did it in 1956. And he would like to capture the Canadian Open next week at Toronto.

"I'm playing so well that for the first time I feel I can win anything," said Panasiuk, who plans to seek a playing card for the United States pro tour soon.

Norman and Gartner took different approaches Friday, when the field was chopped to the low 70 and ties for the final two days of the 72-hole tournament which carries a total purse of $30,000 and a top prize of $4,000.

"All you have to do is shoot straight and you can't miss the course," said Norman, a former CPGA champion.

"I keep it straight. That's why I never quit at Willow Park. I always score well there."

Gartner said bold but unspectacular putting has been the key to his success. "I haven't missed a putt of more than four feet all week long."

Norman and Gartner moved one shot ahead of John Morgan of Victoria who had 136, after his 70 Friday.

He told reporters his power had dwindled in the opening round, had cooled off somewhat in the last two days and otherwise.

Bobby Orr, a former CPGA champ from Richmond, B.C., turned in a 69 for a two-round total of 137, and Gary Bill Tape of Kitchener Ont., and Jerry Pate of Ashburn, Ont., at five under par.

Ben Kern of London, Ont., a semi-regular on the U.S. circuit, had a 68 that left him tied with Frank Whibley of Toronto, Al Kennedy of Richmond, B.C., and Brian Kaye of Mississauga, Ont., at 138.

Among those inside the cutoff level of 150 was Al Balding of Toronto, who struggled to a 78 Friday for a 149 total.

Intrepid Disqualified

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Defending America's Cup champion Intrepid was disqualified from a race in which it was leading in the 1974 United States' elimination trials for the defense of the yacht Valiant.

The New York Yacht Club's racing committee ruled that Intrepid did not had properly for the right of way Thursday before its steer ripped a six-inch hole in the starboard quarter of Valiant.

The boats collided after turning head-to-wind on the 12-mile course while manoeuvering for the windward mark in the close-hauled Island Sound.

Intrepid's steering quadrant was broken in the collision and Valiant was unable to keep in sight with the trim tab, an auxiliary rudder.

Valiant, considered only a slight favorite in the trials, finished by 28 seconds after the crash but its first unofficial victory in the best-of-7 series. Intrepid had filed protests over the collision.

Valiant leads the best-of-seven heads with 16 victories and four losses in the preliminary round observation trials to select a challenger only for the Sept. 19 America's Cup racing series.

Shrouded in Secrecy, Some Headway Made

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although both sides have taken a vow of secrecy, it appears some progress has been made in the talks achieved between National Football League owners and their striking players.

The talks are part of bargaining, begun Friday behind closed doors at the labor department, to settle the players' strike.

Friday's session, the first to involve a neutral party, produced an agreement that neither side would make any further public statements about issues.

Federal mediator James Scearce, assisted by former Attorney General Lewis Schaland, would say only that "we spent a long day" and would continue clarifying any questions on positions. He said he expects the two to help parties reach an agreement."

Despite the progress, a complete agreement still could be far off, due in part to the

Major Edge McCoys For First Place Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats' Jim Jackson is the ninth leading forced in the winning run Friday night as Hamilton beat McGuys 6-5 to tie the Ottawa Rough Riders for the Inter-County Baseball Association Major lead.

Stratford Kravens moved to within a half game of London and the idle Elsmere Tigers by whipping Kitchener 4-3 on a two-hit pitching effort by another game.

With one out in the ninth and the bases clear, Jackson, who had seen Denny McLain, former Detroit Tigers pitcher, in the stands, lofted a fly ball to centre fielder Ron Bird, drew a walk. Larry Haggith then followed with a base on balls and Wayne Pinkney hit a single to right field, scoring Jackson.

Dave Byers walked and Reid Hall singled to drive in the tying run. Jackson then took four straight pitches to force in the decisive run.

Hall Schmidt went the distance for the victory. He allowed three hits while striking out 17 and three.

Ron Bizzi, the last of three Hamilton pitchers, was tagged with the loss after coming on in the ninth. The three batters he faced gave up a total of six hits and walked 13. They scored five times.

At Stratford, the Kravens came up with four runs in the seventh to Alan Ridley's downfall. Jackson's steamer homer to erase a 3-2 deficit. Pat Sinclair's two-run single in the third for Stratford had tied the score at 3-2.

Al Payne had a home run in the seventh for the Kravens, who forced ahead 3-2. His first-inning double drove in Wray Upper with the game's first run.

Carlos Moreno, who came on in relief of starter Doug Landreth in the fourth, got the credit for the victory. He gave up five hits and three and six. Landreth allowed five hits and walked four.

Pat Papala, who loaded the bases prior to Ridley's home run, took the loss. Bob Dick, who shortstopped the key blow, finished the game.

Guelph C-Joys play host to London in today's only game. On Sunday, Brantford is at Kitchener, Hamilton plays the Maple Leafs in Toronto and London has a second weekend game in Guelph.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be sure your guard is up for two days. There are some tricky conditions that could spell trouble in your financial dealings with another.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Any agreements that you enter into had better be backed down with clearly spelled out or else not much will come of them.

REPREVE FOR SPUD

LONDON (CP) — Officials have discarded plans to banish the King Edward potato from British gardens in an attempt to curb wart disease in this variety of spud. The officials decided there was no technical reason why control of the disease would require growing of the King Edward to be restricted to commercial farms.

Truce in Cyprus Arranged by U.S.

BULLETIN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim told the United Nations Security Council today that "fighting is still going on" in Cyprus although the ceasefire deadline agreed on by Turkey and Greece.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deadline for a ceasefire on Cyprus passed today but there was no immediate word that the Mediterranean island on whether the fighting had actually stopped. Just hours before Turkey was reported pouring fresh troops in by air, sea.

At the 1 p.m. Nicosia time (10 a.m. EDT) deadline, the Cyprus radio broadcast an order for Greek-Cypriot troops to stop shooting. The broadcast was heard in Beirut, Lebanon.

Earlier in the day both Greece and Turkey announced that their forces on the island would observe the United Nations-sponsored ceasefire.

At UN headquarters in New York, officials in contact with the UN peacekeeping force on Cyprus said they had received no reports of continued fighting after the ceasefire deadline.

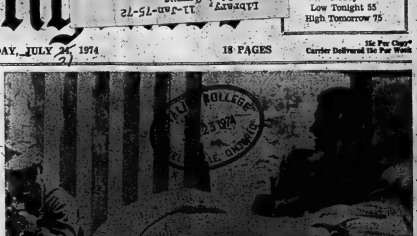
The officials declined, however, to make any official announcement that the ceasefire had become effective throughout the island.

Nearly 3 hours after the deadline a Canadian Press dispatch from Nicosia received just before the ceasefire deadline reported that massive Turkish reinforcements had been landed on the beaches of northern Cyprus today. It reported that paratroops were brought in by at least 12 Turkish C-47 transport planes and at least 20 helicopters ferried troops from landing craft.

The dispatch went through Greek-Cypriot censorship before being transmitted, and it did not say what time the reinforcements had arrived.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from the northern port of Kyrenia, 45 miles from Turkey and 10 miles from Nicosia, that heavy fighting was going on three hours before the ceasefire was to begin.

Jensen, who was later captured by the Turks along with two other American correspondents, said Turkish jets were bombing and strafing Greek-Cypriot positions as both sides fought to improve their positions.



South of Kyrenia, Greek-Cypriot artillery shells burst along the top of mountains where Turkish troops had dug in.

AP photographer Paul Rosse returned to Nicosia from Kyrenia with the report that he Turkey announced at about 2:30 a.m. EDT that it had agreed to the ceasefire and the Greek military junta announced its agreement about two hours later.

Announcing the ceasefire, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said he hoped for "new victories" before the ceasefire took effect. Radio Cyprus reported that Turkish air attacks were continuing, and it said the Greek-Cypriots shot down three of the planes today.

Sources in Ankara said Ecevit agreed to a ceasefire after Greece agreed in negotiations with Turkey on all outstanding problems between the two countries, including their dispute over oil-drilling rights in the Aegean Sea.

Canada Backs UN Decision

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada supports the United Nation's weekend decision to retain its peacekeeping force in Cyprus, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Sunday.

Efforts are being made to evacuate Canadian residents and tourists on Cyprus. But the 520-man Canadian contingent of the UN forces would remain there, despite the outbreak of serious fighting Saturday when Turkish troops launched a full-scale attack on the Mediterranean island.

Mr. Sharp's statement to a Sunday news conference ended speculation on the fate of the UN troops which had been mounting since last Monday when a military junta overthrew the Cyprus government headed by Archbishop Makarios.

The external affairs minister commended Secretary-General Waldheim on the work of the peacekeeping forces on the strife-torn island and added special praise for the Canadian contingent.

Mr. Sharp also said Canada supported British efforts in urging Greece and Turkey to join the United Kingdom in consulting under provisions of a treaty with Cyprus "as a move to end hostilities.

Meanwhile, two Canadian consular officers in Nicosia, the Cyprus capital, were attempting to reach all Canadian civilians on the island and plans had been made to evacuate them to Britain's bases in the south. From there they would be flown by Canadian Forces aircraft to "safe haven."

Later, a defence department spokesman said the first Canadian forces aircraft, a Hercules, had arrived safely in Cairo with 76 evacuees aboard.

All of them were women and children and 37 were Canadians.

The spokesman said the evacuees' friends and relatives in Canada were being notified as quickly as possible of their safety.

Spokesman for both the defence and external affairs departments also confirmed that there were no serious injuries among nine Canadian soldiers who were wounded when they were caught in the fire of weekend fighting.

Geneva Talks Open Tuesday

GENEVA (Reuter) — Britain, Greece and Turkey will open talks here Tuesday aimed at establishing peace on the island of Cyprus, informed sources said today.

The talks will be held at the European office of the United Nations, which has served as the venue for the Middle East peace conference.

Wrong Guess

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States intelligence info-read from Cyprus to Washington — U.S. administration officials say. "It was our conventional wisdom that the Turks could be talked out of invading Cyprus," one official said. "Obviously, we were wrong."

Trenton Man Flies Civilians To Safety

LAHR, West Germany (CP) — A Canadian Hercules aircraft loaded with 91 Canadians and other nationals evacuated from Cyprus landed early today in Cairo, a Canadian armed services spokesman said today.

The plane, piloted by Capt. Jim Bateman of 435 Squadron, Trenton, Ont., flew in Sunday to pick up the stranded civilians from a British base there.

Aside from the Canadians aboard, there were nine Britons, six Australians, five Dutch, five Austrians, five Swedes, three Americans, two French, two Swiss, one Italian and one Irish.

The spokesman said the party included several Canadian journalists, including a CBC crew from Paris who had gone to Nicosia to cover the Cyprus fighting.

The source here had no list or names of those aboard.

Committee Will Rule On TV Coverage Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives judiciary committee is preparing to vote on whether its impeachment debate should be televised.

The debate begins Wednesday and may last four days or more.

A change in House rules would be needed to allow the television cameras into committee sessions, and a resolution proposing the change is scheduled for House action shortly before the committee meets this afternoon.

At an earlier closed session, the committee will receive a list of arguments against impeachment presented by Sam Garrison, newly designated by Republican committee members as their minority counsel.

Albert Jenner, who had held that position from the start of the inquiry, while Garrison served as his deputy, will remain on the staff as associate counsel working under special counsel John Doar.

Jenner made it clear from the start of the proceedings that he regarded himself as working for the committee, not the Republicans, and they have repeatedly urged on Garrison action they felt Jenner had been too permissive.

The Republicans' patience with Jenner, a prominent Chicago lawyer, snapped last week when Jenner endorsed Doar's conclusion that Nixon abused his powers of office and should be impeached.

Garrison, who served as an aide to former vice-president Spiro Agnew before coming to the committee, has been asked by the Republicans to rebute the case for impeachment presented by Doar and Jenner.

Cypriot Rebels And Turks Both Slaughtered Foes

LONDON (AP) — Bodies littered the streets and there were mass burials during the fighting on Cyprus, Britons flown home from the Mediterranean island report.

Derek Read, a businessman, was vacationing in the Greek-eastern town of Paphos when the shooting started last Monday and the Greek officers of the Cyprus National Guard overthrew President Makarios.

People who were told by Makarios to lay down their guns were shot out of hand by the National Guard," he said. "They were buried in mass graves."

John Harris, vacationing with his family in Famagusta at their seaside apartment, said ships shelled him out of his home and the his family had to flee on foot.

A British major helped him and a dad four-mile dash with bullets and shells whistling around to a British Army unit, he said.

University student Angelo Kyriakides, a 21-year-old naturalized Briton, said he saw the bodies of Makarios supporters thrown into a mass grave four days after the coup began. He said they were from a column of pro-Makarios fighters who came to Limassol from Paphos to help others holding out in the town.

Kyriakides said he saw both the Greek-Cypriots and the Turks, who invaded the island Saturday, killing on a large scale.

"There were 14 Turkish-Cypriots who fled to the safety of the consulate and were killed where in," he said. "They were shot by members of the National Guard, and, when they surrendered they were all killed.

"I was still in the town when Turkish troops captured the police station. Shortly afterwards 13 policemen were found dead, each with a bullet hole in his head."

The defence ministry said so far about 1,000 refugees have been flown in Britain bases in Cyprus to transport but fleet troop reinforcements to protect the two big British bases at Akrotiri and Dhekelia, Cyprus. The evacuees included invalids, women and schoolchildren as well as Britons.

Health Minister Declares Dentists Not Interested in People's Health

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Frank Miller said Sunday night he suspects that the dental profession is trying to drive dentalists out of business by urging the government to set up unnecessarily tough qualifying courses for them.

Mr. Miller accused the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of acting "in the interests of the dental profession."

"These are not actions of people who are interested in the health of people," he said in an interview.

Mr. Miller said that talks between his ministry and the college, the provincial regulatory body for dentists, ended in a stalemate Friday after the two bodies failed to reach an agreement on the upgrading courses which dentalists must take following provincial examinations in August.

The college favors an intensive four-month program of upgrading that would include clinical examinations conducted by dentists.

Dr. Peter Zakarow, president of the college, said in a release that the college was dissappointed with the results of the talks.

"We are extremely disappointed that the ministry of health does not agree that denture therapists should undergo a minimal and meaningful course before they are given blanket approval to make full dentures for the public without supervision by a dentist," he said.

Under proposed regulations, Ontario would allow denturists who pass the August, examinations and an upgrading course to become licensed denture therapists and deal directly with the public.

Existing regulations require that denturists work under the supervision of dentists.

Canoe Race Tough Grind

TRENTON — Sixty seconds and some confusion separated Ken Reeves and Ray Healey from breaking their own record and putting foot to ground at the finish line in the eighth annual Trent on the Waterway two-day canoe race here Sunday.

The confusion arose when the first three canoes pulled into the finish line and then weren't sure it was the one to finally end a 64-mile journey down the Trent River from Serpent Mounds near Peterborough.

No official indication existed that the point behind Trenton Community Gardens was the end. Racers then paddled across the river to the government docks, only to be told the first point was home. Back they went.

Either way, no one disputed the victory of the Reeves-Healey team. The Lindsay racers placed first in the professional class marking a total time over the two days of 10 hours and 44 minutes.

A minute separated the men from a 10-hour, 45-minute time set in 1972 when they set the course record.

Four times the two have entered and finished the gruelling 64-mile race. Why?

"We're not very bright," chuckled Reeves Sunday. "There's a lot of other things we can do — like playing a good game of euchre."

However, his wife, Joanne cautioned against the impression her husband was creating. It's a case of post-race light-headedness, she said, he'll race again.

Eight racers have already gone under the paddles of the two men and another six are likely this year, she told.

"He'd be a millionaire if he worked this hard for a living," Mrs. Reeves concluded.

The pair have raced in the Peterborough-Trenton competition for the past four years.

Also to their credit is finishing in the gruelling 122-mile Ville Marie, Quebec-North Bay three-day race — what Reeves calls the "grand-daddy of them all."

Among other kudos, the team holds the five-hour course record for the 45-mile, one-day Notawasaga Falls marathon.

But Reeves quickly ended the recitation of past glories: "The only race that counts is the one you're in."

Weather conditions are what were a factor in the total time, he said. Seconds, minutes were added by a breeze on Rice Lake. From Hastings to the Trent River, a headwind added more time.

But the weather matters little. "After you're out two or three hours, your enthusiasm ends quickly."

When all is said and done, it's a good race, he concluded, adding, however, that he wasn't particularly fond of portaging, "this rugged stuff."

Three Injured In Collision

BRIGHTON — Three Trenton youths were treated for minor injuries in Trenton Memorial Hospital Sunday and released following a two-car collision on the Cedardale Rd., seven miles southeast of here.

Brighton provincial police say the two vehicles collided almost head-on in the $1,200 accident.

Treated in hospital were driver David Mallory, 18 of RR 1 Trenton, and passengers Brad Dunning 18, of Davis St. and Robert Ryan, 18, of Bay St.

Driver of the second vehicle, Douglas Dugan, 19, of Whitby was not injured.

Two Injured

SMITHFIELD — Two men were treated for minor injuries in hospital Saturday following a two-car collision on a township road, a mile north of here.

Police say a car driven by Clayton Taft, 20, of RR 2 Brighton collided with a vehicle driven by David Kerr, 18, of RR 1 Trenton.

Both were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital following the total $1,400 collision.

Driver Charged

MADOC — A Wilkesdale man was charged with careless driving following an accident at 6 p.m. Sunday on the Cooper Road, 10 miles north of Madoc.

Roy Albert Vicente, 20, was charged by D.C. Bosh of the Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police after he lost control of his car. The vehicle skidded 222 feet and rolled over. It was a write-off, police said.

Check-in Checkup

Belleville squadron 608 cadets Ben Braddock (centre) and Greg Charlton, both 13, turn out their kits under the watchful eye of Acting Corporal Ed Ogrin, of Elliott Lake, at CFB Trenton Sunday. The cadets, two of the 11 members of Belleville squadron, moved on base for a two-week air cadet camp that will put them through a course in leadership. Other activities scheduled are tours of CFB Toronto and Ottawa, plus a journey to Kingston's Royal Military College.

Belleville Air Cadets at Camp

TRENTON — Two city, the air cadet camp at CFB Trenton here, received new occupants this weekend. Among them were 11 Squadron 602 cadets from Belleville, a group that went through the required admitting procedures moved on base for a two-week air cadet camp that will put them through a course in leadership. Other activities scheduled are during the six-week duration of the camp.

Besides various tours of CFB Trenton, the boys will fly to the Toronto and Ottawa bases and visit the Royal Military College in Kingston.

Essentially a summer camp with the exception of the military surroundings, it is one of four air cadet camps in Canada — the only one still under canvas.

In the over 45 tents inside the perimeter of the base, the Belleville boys, ranging in age from 13 to 19, will participate in over 20 different activities during their two-week stay.

Chief training officer, Major Peter Patterson, said Sunday the boys will go through three basic areas of activity — leadership and guidance, recreation, such as canoeing and sailing, and group and individual sports.

Contrary to popular belief, said Captain Walter Klinduch, cadet information officer, the summer camp and the air cadet movement is not an extension of the armed forces recruiting arm.

It serves to only stimulate an interest in the armed forces, he said. Many parents refuse to let their boys join a cadet squadron for fear of possible recruitment.

Maj. Patterson said indoctrination has been de-emphasized in the past years.

"In the past few years we've gotten away from the idea of indoctrination," he said, speaking with 18 years' experience with cadets behind him. "The main emphasis is on a co-ed group citizenship."

The Belleville cadets will be split up among several flights — groups of approximately 30-35 boys — though they all stay in one tent.

This policy provides them the opportunity to meet and work with boys from across most of Ontario. Some 100 boys are housed in Tent City during each two-week period

TRENTON — In all 12 teams of two canoeists each walked away somewhat tiredly with awards from the annual eighth Trent on the Waterways two-day canoe race here Sunday.

Lindsay canoeists Ken Reeves and Ray Healey took top honors with a sparkling 10-hour 44-minute finishing time, a minute off the course record set by them in 1972.

Placing second and third in the professional class were Campbellford canoeists Ei Pethprick and Peter Evergreen (11 hours 29 minutes) and Trenton's John Hallett and Philip Spencer (12:05)

The latter two came off a recent victor in the Campbellford-Frankford race.

In the amateur class, Elden Rawding and Paul Greenaway placed first, (11:16) with Sidney township residents Frank Bailey and Hugh Lyons in the runner-up spot (14:14). Third place was taken by Marmora Bowie and James Snape (16:53)

In the single-day event, Huntsville area canoeists Pam Ryan and Len Lock pick'ed first (five hours, 19 minutes), in the amateur class. In second were Ken Campbell and Pat Boissonneault (5:46). Third place was taken by Stanley Smag and J.D. Smag (5:56).

Only three teams raced in the relatively new mixed class. One team didn't finish the full 32-odd-mile course.

Chris Spencer and teammate Susan Warspkas made the Campbellford-Trenton trip down the Trent River in eight hours and 35 minutes. A Toronto couple Peter and Mary Moran finished second in 10 hours flat.

$800 Damage In Rear-ender

TRENTON — Two drivers escaped injury in a two-car collision that caused a total of $800 damage to the vehicles Saturday.

Town police here say a vehicle driven by Arthur Whaley, 30, of 27 Nicholas St. was struck in the rear by a car driven by Arthur Tessier, 18, of Cornwall, Ontario.

The Whaley vehicle was in the process of making a left turn from Byron St. to McCam St.

Contract Awarded

MARMORA — Cliffcrest Construction Co., has been awarded the contract to construct a sewer system in the village of Marmora.

The provincial ministry of the environment announced the award of the contract last week.

The Journey's End

Lindsay paddler Ken Reeves pulls his skiff and his canoe-mate Ray Healey out of the Trent River after completing the eighth annual Trent on the Waterway canoe club sponsored two-day canoe race Sunday. The two canoeists finished first for the second time in the four years they've piled the 64-mile route from Peterborough to Trenton. They were a minute of their record 10-hour, 45-minute time in 1972.

Lindsay Paddlers Win Two-day Canoe Race

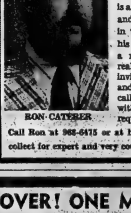
TRENTON — The Lindsay team of Ken Reeves and Ray Healey won the Peterborough-Trenton two-day canoe race for the last time here Sunday.

However, the Trent On the Waterways race record holders are not retiring their paddles with their second and 1st ever win.

On the contrary, the race will no longer be held over the estimated 64-mile course down the Trent River — thus departing from an eight-year tradition in this community.

This year's race marks the end of what was considered to be one of the longest canoe races in southern Ontario," it was announced by race committee chairman David Campbell Sunday.

Mr. Camp said in 1975 the race will be run one day, Sunday, July 20, from Campbellford to Trenton. Professional and amateur canoeists will make the 32-mile run from Campbellford. The pleasure and mixed classes will start from Glen Ross, a distance of approximately 15 miles to Trenton.



The reason? Lack of participation.

"There aren't enough entries," said Mr. Camp. "Last year there were only two."

Damage $400

TWEED — Brian Heath Lebow, 17 of Carrying Place damaged his car to the extent of $400 Saturday, when he dropped off the edge of the road in the Lost Channel area. The accident occurred at 5:45 p.m. Saturday on lot 3, concession 4, Hungerford township.

Useful Retirement

Preparation for retirement is one of the initiatives constantly is being urged upon professional men and white and blue collar workers alike these days.

One man we have been reading about in this connection is Ralph Epps, a black postal worker in Boston. Epps, on graduation from high school was accepted for Harvard; but that was in depression days with no scholarship money available and he went into the postal service.

A few years ago Epps began studying Spanish and now works as a volunteer tutor in Boston and Cambridge high schools where there are many Spanish-speaking students. He works on their English vocabulary and pronunciation, and when the students are in difficulty in these areas he can switch to Spanish.

Unmarried, Mr. Epps is a man who has used his time well, combining night work in the post office with study by day, and with travel. He has visited a number of countries and now is putting his new-found knowledge to use among the younger generation.

And, an interesting fact that he brings out: in this hemisphere more black people speak Spanish than English — an interesting fact to the large English-speaking black population of the Caribbean and Latin America.

Teen Smoking

A Government publication makes some significant points regarding the increase in teenage smoking, especially on the part of girls.

"Digging down to even one more level of analysis," it observes, "one could identify within a general population aged 5 to 14, certain individuals whose behavior is not only negative as it affects themselves but who also exercise a strong influence on their susceptible acquaintances.

"The phenomenon of adolescents adopting the values and habits of rebellious peers, rather than the values of society in general or those of their parents, is not new but the scale on which it is now happening is truly alarming.

A Dr. John A. Tamerin in the U.S. is quoted. He acknowledges a link between peer smoking practices and wanting to look older, rebelliousness, impulsivity, risk-taking, and poor academic performance.

Confirmation of such a link is to be found in further American findings of recent days that friends, rather than pushers, are the most significant influence in introducing people to the hard drugs.

We might conclude with words of William Paley in Natural Theology, and quoted by Ogden Nash: "Highly rated and daily bread, the ordinary use of our limbs, and senses, and understandings, are gifts which admit of no comparison with any other."

New Conductor

The hands that hold the baton and control the musical destinies of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in recent years are cosmopolitan indeed.

In recent years the orchestra has been under Japanese and Czech conductors. The position has become vacant with the death of Karel Ancerl and now the orchestra has secured the services of a talented young Englishman, Andrew Davis.

Thirty years old, Davis was an organ scholar at King's College, Cambridge, and is described by orchestral manager Norman Westaway as an "immensely talented musician whose international reputation and stature are of high calibre."

The Globe and Mail's John Kraglund said of an appearance by Davis in Toronto recently: "My impression of Davis (he was selected over a German and a Pole) was of a slender, boyish conductor with a vigorous and sometimes showy style, an impressive command of orchestral forces and, less consistently, of musical style. A flaw seemed to be his emphasis on conducting technique rather than on orchestral discipline . . ."

But then as Kraglund acknowledges, one concert is not enough to make a final judgment.

There will be satisfaction that the Toronto Symphony now has a permanent conductor in the offing — Davis is due to take up residence in the city next year — since it enjoys a high reputation at home and has a growing number of admirers overseas too.

Short Forms Camouflage Terror of Weapon Systems

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The short forms, or acronyms of the weapons business are about as mystifying if not as terrifying as the weapons systems themselves.

There are ICBMs and SLBMs, MIRVs and two kinds of SALT, namely Salt I and Salt II, not to forget good old MIRVs and the even older NATO, which some of you might have forgotten about in the summer heat.

Or maybe the heat has forgotten it over unfolding new developments big enough for us. We know Watergate is a place, a hotel in Washington and more than that, the name attached to a burglarizing group of one all-powerful human beings on trial, now reduced to insignificance by a new and appealing drama.

But our minds cannot grasp the staggering firepower, quantity or complexity of weapons which are being talked about. This is one reason why the acronyms are much used to cover a multitude of sins, including too long explanations of the very big "mags" we have created.

In fact our "overkill" capacity, to use a world self-explanatory enough not to be reduced to acronyms, is at least 10 times greater than we need. With Salt I (Strategic Arms Limitation Phase 1), we are talking about a Soviet defence establishment with 1,618 ICBM (Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles) by 1977 compared to 1,054 in the U.S. arsenal of ICBMs. So far, so good.

But the Soviet ICBMs are much heavier than U.S. ICBMs by number in 1977 than the U.S., and the Russians are the arms experts.

The fewer number of American ones can do more; heir-raising though some of their "highly sophisticated miniature computer-directed guidance systems."

Now if you have swallowed that, they have American ICBMs the capability of placing clusters of individually aimed ICBM, each one separately guided.

And these are your MIRVs (Multiple Independently Targetable Re-entry Vehicles) which give the U.S. a firepower advantage which technology over the larger number of Soviet ICBMs.

But we haven't heard the end of the big ballistic missiles. The Soviet U.S.S.R. has 700 of them, of nuclear-powered submarines, many of them armed with the A-3 supply-even more.

In the United States Navy the Polaris class nuclear sub has been increased by 31 submarines, larger 7,000-ton Poseidon-type (as big as a World War Two draft cruiser), with performance 600 times the firepower of all the navies in the world.

Even the old "old" Polaris have been equipped with new ranges with their missiles which are now call SLBMs (Submarine Launched Ballistic Missiles) of around 2,500 miles. That means a huge area of the Soviet Union where in the North Sea and his Polaris can reach.

Now another part of Salt I, the first (city) defence is limited to "limiting" the growing number of such super subs, is to allow the Soviet Union 44 of them by 1977 and the Russians 62, submarines which can fire 950 missiles for American acceptance of this level differential.

Then just all the involved U.S. politicians or senior Pentagon brass are convinced the Russians will still be behind in nuclear computer technology to level up weapons and so on.

They therefore have wanted Salt 2 (Strategic Arms Limitation Phase 2) to concentrate

Children's Books Distort Sex Roles

The following is an extract from an article on sexism in pre-school books by Linda Dellos, Consultant in The Christian Science Monitor.

Only a few years ago, when feminists began to publicize the pervasive sex stereotyping found in books for young children many of us on the far fringes of the women's movement were joined into awareness by a brief article in Women's Day (March 1971), entitled "Miss Muffet Must Go; So Mother Plans Back," by Marion Meade.

Certainly the occasional book about a nitwit female will not pervasively damage a little girl's psyche as much as the scorn his sister. Yet there is legitimate cause for parents to be concerned with sexism in books for young children. Children learn sex roles at a very early age. We cannot accurately measure to what extent the books we read to them contribute to the rigid sex stereotypes learning. But we do know that the children's favorites are read over and over again. They must have some effect. Obviously we can make our children's librarians conscious of what is potentially damaging in their collections. We can point out offensive stereotypes whenever we find them. We can ask for books about girls or for non-sexist books and make a point of reporting on the ones we find them. We can discuss booklists and even books. Better still, we can reassure them that we will have booklists prominently displayed, in addition to purchasing copies of the best books. We can ever ask that the most offensive volumes be removed from the shelves.

Pollution a Plague From Nice to Belleville

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

According to the Toronto Star many of the world's beaches are filthy from pollution. Nice, some to the extent that one should check the bacteria count before bathing or swimming.

Areas such as the Costa Brava and around Barcelona, in Spain, and Nice, France are the beaches up to 30 miles from Marseilles, in France, as well as many of Italy's beaches, are so filthy pollution is the order posting their condition are posted.

Mexico and Asia are listed as having the worst polluted beaches of all. The United States comes out better than most but there is a number of dumps that are springing up all over the city. Some of the filth that is being dumped there can hardly be called harmless.

Short End of Stick Belonged to Nurses

Editor,

Strikes always arouse mixed feelings and this one is not some against. However, in the case of the nurses few will argue that they have typical Belleville philosophy. There need be much about this side of Belleville in the Stalinist Council's plan.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

(ED. Belleville and District Canada reports that Belleville's average industrial wage in 1971 was $10,147. By September, that of St. Catherines was $9,971, and Brantford $9,515. While Belleville's figure was somewhat above Ontario's average of $9,248 Ontario's average, this province's average was well above those of all other provinces.)

In conclusion, Shame on the public administration that will let upon himself to go round among the people with a hat, asking for signatures showing willingness to accept a lower wage scale than the typical Belleville philosophy. That is the Stalinist Council's plan to paper the other night, had no publicity whatsoever. Belleville as paying the lowest wages in the province of Ontario.

Reduced Travel Rates Would Aid Bilingualism

The Globe and Mail

There is no doubt that this is a very large country and that many of its citizens know only their part of it and that few know all parts of it. Canada's Commissioner of Official Languages, Keith Spicer, believes that this ignorance of each other is a factor standing in the way of enthusiastic acceptance of bilingualism by many Canadians. He suggested at the opening convocation of Glendon College, York University, a number of programs to enable Canadians to move around and get acquainted. One program was actually for that neglected group — adults who are not students and not other old-age pensioners and therefore are of an age to benefit from travel programs to aid youth and age.

"I think," said Mr. Spicer, "the federal Government should subsidize Air Canada, the CN, CP Air, the CPR and public business to enable every Canadian to a 50 to 75 per cent fare reduction once a year on trips over 1,200 or 1,500 miles. Almost inevitably, this would help hundreds of thousands of citizens to meet and better appreciate many Canadians of the other language group."

In this period of inflation, we cannot approve subsidies, but need there be subsidies to make a real start on such a program?

Why could the Government not require airlines, railways and bus lines to make available to all Canadians the reduced fares now available to young and age? A plane, a train, a bus travels no more cost when it travels full than when it travels partly empty. The company, in fact, gains if it is full. It has the full fares it would not get anyway, and it has — as gravy — the reduced fares of people who would otherwise not travel.

The system would have to be worked out with many reservations of space. The travelers' list would be ordered; rule would have to go to the airport or depot and take his chance on finding an empty seat unless all full-fare passengers had been aboard. But the machinery is already in place for young people to go. It could only have to be used more extensively.

The system could indeed expand travel among those who cannot afford to travel now. It could bring Canadians into relationship with other Canadians, help us to know each other, perhaps indeed increase in many the desire to understand and speak more than one official language. It would also offer benefit to that large group of Canadians who now support all the others — the middle-aged.

Crops, Not Seasons Should Divide Year

The Ottawa Journal

The Old Farmer's Almanack has never learned to divide a country year into the proper seasons. It clings to the traditional, said and obvious system of four seasonal periods. The fact is the year is divided into such periods as first fresh apple pie, first roast pork after butchering, first maple syrup and the first mess of peas.

Somehow the first mess of peas always has a special meaning. It means a hard crop row from the good earth — a crop that confirms one's faith that as a man sows, so also shall he reap. The countryman, who has an aversion to heeding ever as he harvests, raises his peas on a six-foot wire trellis. He enjoys poking along the green, lush barricade with basket on arm and plucking the long, handsome pods. And he wants his peas in special way. They come two biscuits and place them in a soup plate. Butter the halves well and pour on about a pint of peas and plenty of juice. Perhaps the gods on Olympus did not eat peas that way, but one feels sure they would have if they had known about it.

Public Stakes First Claim

Mining Industry Caught Between Governmental Rates

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The mining industry in Canada appears to be caught between two fires, neither of which offers much warmth.

On the one hand, the federal government's budget proposals of May 6 singled out tax fiscovers and for cancellation or reduction of certain tax allowances.

On the other hand, various provinces have either proposed or implemented new levies that would greatly increase the government's take.

In each case, seems to be based on the unstated premise that the public has first claim on the materials below the earth's surface—and on the more doubtful premise that those materials ought to remain in the ground because their value will go on increasing forever.

This extreme form of conservationism overlooks the need for a continuous and reliable flow of supplies from the mines to the ultimate customer.

Mr. Chrétien's mining companies should be forced to close (through inability to earn a return on their capital), their customers obviously would turn to alternative suppliers in other countries.

"Once that has happened, it would take much more than a change of decision to get the provincial capitals to get the mines back into production at some future time. With the world demand for minerals, as John Turner has proposed to tax mining income at 25 per cent (vs. 40 per cent for manufacturing and processing profits) and 48 per cent for other corporate earnings).

Mr. Turner would also cancel the mining companies' long-established right to treat their payments to provincial governments (mining taxes, royalties and the like) as a business expense. These would no longer be deductible from taxable income, but would be replaced by a 15-per-cent abatement in the basic corporate tax rate.

Other changes would reduce the depletion allowances and exploration-and-development write-offs.

Among provincial governments, British Columbia and Ontario have led the mining industry handout in recent legislation.

British Columbia now levies a basic royalty, plus a second royalty calculated on profits but rather on the selling price of minerals. Its effect, if not its purpose, is to prevent mines from compensating for increases in their operating costs.

Ontario has introduced a sharply graduated scale of minimum profit to be shared by the province. Finally, the heaviest burden falls—apparently by design—on the larger companies.

Saskatchewan is considering the introduction of a new levy on potash reserves, related—at least theoretically—to the net operating profit and to the prevailing world market price.

If the purpose of these harsh new taxes is to switch public policy from development of natural resources to a dog-in-the-manger conservationism, that purpose may well be met.

But neither federal nor provincial governments have yet proved that they are willing to the point of running out of metals and industrial minerals—and the harm to countless individuals, communities and companies could be serious and unforgivable.

Perhaps the politicians' purpose is to stone the mining industry to death. If so, they should be forced to publish it for all to see (which, in the circumstances, would have been considerable). If so, they have been shamefully tricked.

When the tax on an industry's earnings can be raised arbitrarily almost to 100 per cent in some cases, that industry cannot long survive—as the record of other countries has shown.

Mines should, of course, pay their fare share of taxes. But it is wrong to single out any industry for punitive tax treatment.

Canada is now facing an era of 'tough' oil.

So far as finding crude oil is concerned, the good old days are over. Today most of Canada's undeveloped oil reserves are in remote areas of the Arctic Islands, in the Athabasca tar sands, or even far out under the seabuff our coastlines, requiring multimillion dollar projects to develop. That's why we say that Canada is now into the era of 'tough' oil: Tough to find, expensive to get.

On the bright side to this picture, it is that Canada does have sufficient potential oil reserves to see us through for many years to come. The trick is to get to it and get it out. And that takes time, technology and money. By way of example, the petroleum industry has already spent more than four billion dollars in the last 10 years in the search for oil reserves. The result of this search is that known recoverable reserves can be made. Fortunately, these indicate that we have in Canada potential oil reserves on a scale comparable to those of Alaska.

But it is going to take a great deal of money, effort at these new reserves and keep Canada self-sufficient in oil—60 billion dollars in the next

Some from Profits

Some of the money that is needed must come from earned profits of the oil companies. In spite of the erroneous statements that people have made about industry profits being too high, this is not so. Last year the average return on capital employed by the four largest integrated oil companies in Canada amounted to only 12.2%. Considering the investment needs of our industry—and comparing with the level of return one can get from investments in less risky businesses, and even from no-risk government bonds—this average return is not "excessive"—not even sufficient.

Our Company, on average, realizes net earnings of not much more than one cent a gallon on all the petroleum products we sell.

It does seem to us that a cent a gallon is a reasonable amount for manufacturing the many different petroleum products required, and making them conveniently available to our customers. We hope you agree.

It is a fact that profits have to be made or a company cannot stay in business. Companies that only make losses are not around long. The best "job insurance" our employees—and their families—have is the knowledge that they work for a company that makes a profit. You need profitable companies to serve you and to create employment.

Invest in new investment!

Canada's oil industry needs many new investors if we are to continue to spend vast sums exploring for oil in hard-to-reach places, and developing both the technology to get at it and the equipment to get it out to where it is needed.

What is required is a fair return on money invested and an opportunity for growth in relation to the amount of risk. So, it is very important to Canadians that governmental policies encourage massive investment of risk capital.

Tough (or not—it CAN be done)

All this is not going to be easy, but with the right incentives and public policies that recognize the size and difficulties of the job ahead, the oil industry can continue to meet Canada's future energy needs. Even though, like we said, we are now in an era of 'tough' oil.

RHa Mennings, in spite of having just moved into the family's new Charles St. home, a summer course at Toronto's York University in special education and taking care of son Richard, who is 5, finds time to prepare favorite dishes like this beefsteak and onions main course. She's married to Wilfred, a lawyer and teaches kindergarten at Queen Elizabeth Public School.

Beefsteak and Onions

two tbsp. vegetable oil two tbsp. butter
two lbs. beef tenderloin
1¼ cups chopped onions
½ tsp. chopped garlic
½ tsp. caraway seeds
¼ tsp. marjoram
freshly ground black pepper two tbsp. white vinegar cup of beef stock

In a heavy skillet, heat oil and butter. When foam subsides, add meat and brown on both sides. Remove to platter. Pour off most of fat, leaving thin film, add onions, cook, stirring occasionally, for eight minutes. Add garlic and cook three minutes. Stir in caraway seeds, marjoram and generous grinding of pepper. Add vinegar and boil one minute. Pour in stock and bring to boil, stirring in browned bits that cling to pan. Return meat to pan and bring to boil again. Turn heat to low and simmer meat for 15 minutes or longer until tender. Remove steak.

Sauce: one tbsp. flour, one cup sour cream. With wire whisk beat flour into sour cream in small mixing bowl. Whisk mixture into skillet and turn to lowest heat and simmer for 10 minutes without letting the sauce boil. Mask the steak with some sauce and serve remainder.

Strange, Unusual Pioneer's Story

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sylvia Stark was a frail-looking, lonely woman in a strange land.

She and her husband Willis struggled to make a home in a log cabin in the woods of Salspring Island, off the southern end of Vancouver Island. Five years later, in 1862, she died.

The document was written for family consumption but realizing its significance Mrs. Holleman donated it to the archives in its unedited form.

The story starts around 1839 when Sylvia Stark was born to slave parents. She recalled her mother tying an apron around her neck and standing behind a chair to dry dishes for white people.

Mrs. Stark's father, Howard Estes, went to California during the gold rush. He saved enough to buy freedom for his family—$1,000 each for himself, his wife and son and $900 for Sylvia.

Two years later the family joined Estes who worked in the gold mines. In 1858, five years before Abraham Lincoln's emancipation proclamation, the family decided to leave California.

Legislation had been enacted that prevented free blacks to own property and disqualifying them from giving evidence against white persons.

The blacks sent a delegation to Victoria to meet Sir James Douglas, governor of British Columbia, and as a result they formed an emigration organization and moved north to Canada.

About 400 came to B.C., many of them settling around Victoria. By the time the Stark family arrived in Salspring six black families were on the island. Thirty years later, historians estimate, there were probably 40 "colored or partly colored" persons there.

A half-dozen descendants remain on Salspring. Among them is Mrs. Holleman.

About 700 settlers were there when the Starks landed at Vesuvius Bay.

Hostility between settlers and Indians plagued the Starks and their friends for years.

"For the dark clouds of conquest had already hovered the land and the triumph of the conquerors was deeply resented by the natives," Mrs. Wallace's account reads. "They retaliated by slaying the settlers. So the pioneers lived in constant fear of their lives."

Several black settlers were killed.

Once, five Indians visited the Stark home when all three children were sleeping.

"They searched everywhere, everything in the house," the story said, including a loaded gun. They left after a scuffle with Stark, known to be a good marksman.

As a footnote, Mrs. Wallace commented that the Indians were usually friendly.

However, they became angered "as they saw their beaches and hunting grounds usurped by the settlers and the sight of carcasses of animals lying on the beaches, their hides taken and the meat left to spoil."

After several incidents of violence, the Starks moved to a new homestead at Fruitvale on the other side of the island.

Life was not easy. In the winter of 1861-1862 records show, 100 head of cattle died on Salspring. There was no way to get enough hay and the transportation system was poor.

Mrs. Wallace recalled that children, leaned heavily on her mother, who bore seven religion.

"Her husband was not sympathetic, so she would steal away into the woods to pray, although wild animals roamed in the bush.

Successful Living

Pulls in Purse Strings

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Miriam's a second marriage and we are both in our forties. Little by little my husband started pulling in the purse strings.

He didn't even want our house put in both of our names but I blew up and told him what he could do with it and all the rest he had, and he arranged with the lawyer to put both names on the deed.

The worst heartache is that he does not believe in sentiment, so in a little over two years he has never told me he loves me. Kissing, to him, is just being mushy.

I plan to ask him three questions: (1) Does he love me? (2) Does he want this marriage? (3) Is there another woman? I have had the feeling that he is going out with others.

It takes a lot of nerve to do this and I am wondering whether I should just let it ride, and if there is no change, let the lawyer take over. Maybe a stranger could see things differently. — Can't Go On.

Dear Can't: He has not given himself to you as a marriage partner, has he? Even intimate relations are a mere insensitive routine. Emotionally, he has not grown up. I think you are ready for a showdown; and I would suspect the infidelities with money is a symptom of deeper trouble.

Your questions are right on and homosexualism is urgent. If you need a push from me, consider yourself pushed.

Dear Doris: We are two girls with a problem. Each has this bad habit of snorting. We've talked about it to stop. It's politely and rudely, and she says she just can't help it.

We are still her friends, but please help us to clear her of this problem. — Desperate.

Dear Desperate: Has it occurred to you that perhaps she really can't help it? She may have a sinus or respiratory problem, and should see her doctor.

Even when something like this is annoying, try to be tolerant. If she is worth having as a friend, you can overlook the snorts.

Confidential to Exhausted: No physical handicap, no. But your husband obviously is inefficiently unstable mentally that he cannot work steadily. If you can keep your family together and help your husband to do whatever light work is within his capacity, do it. But you are living under circumstances which you should not have to tolerate.

You have been a Rock of Gibraltar over the years when the going has been rough. Don't delay in getting the help there is in the way of a disability pension, to save you from losing heart and breaking down.

(There's always something to do about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Ann Landers

Love Her, Hate Him

Dear Ann Landers: What does one do when half of the couple is lovely and the other half is obnoxious?

I'm very fond of a woman who lives near us. Betsy is intelligent, charming and great company. But her husband is a vulgar, foul-mouthed glutton who attacks food and drink when he had been caged up for months. The man tells filthy stories and monopolizes every conversation.

Recently we had a series of dinner parties. I begged my husband to let me invite them for one evening. I knew Betsy would see the cars in our driveway and realize they had been excluded. My husband said, "Absolutely not."

When I ran into Betsy a few days ago, I could see the hurt look on her face, but I said nothing. Should I have? How do others deal with this problem? — Across The Way

Dear A.C.: It's the age-old dilemma. "Love her, can't stand him." (Sometimes it's the other way around.)

See Betsy in the afternoon and say, "I'm uncomfortable about leaving you off our dinner party guest list. Obviously they have been invited and the husband made a decision on himself. Once is enough.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I, who are 19-year-old daughter are planning a trip to see my aging in-laws. When I reach our destination we will be staying in a motel for five days.

We don't have much money to spend and have decided to take one double room instead of an extra room for the girl. I told my husband that he will be asleep in the double bed with my daughter, and he can use the other bed. He said, "Nothing doing. Either we're sleep together." (We have six kids.) I think you are ready for a showdown; and I would suspect the infidelities with money is a symptom of deeper trouble.

Miss Spain Is Chosen As Miss Universe

MANILA (AP) — Miss Spain, named Miss Universe of 1974, Amparo Munoz, 20, a five-foot eight chestnut-haired beauty from Malaga Sunday was runaway of the Folk Arts Theatre before the 8,000 persons attending the pageant and a world television audience estimated to be in the millions.

Iroquois Headquarters Moved to Walpole Isle

BALA, Ont. (CP) — The Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians voted Saturday to move its headquarters to the Walpole Island Indian reserve on Lake St. Clair from the present site on the Six Nations reserve near Brantford, Ont.

The vote in favor of the move came during the association's two-day quarterly meeting at the Gibson reserve, 15 miles west of here.

Bala is about 30 miles north of Orillia.

R. L. Hopkins, president of the association representing about 20,000 Indians in 10 Ontario bands, said the move is a temporary measure and a committee has been set up to seek a permanent headquarters.

He said one reason for the move is to bring the headquarters closer to his home near Chatham.

Indians Hold Pow-wow

KENORA, ONT. (CP) — Dan Iyese, told about 300 persons attending the Ojibway Nation Conference at this northwestern Ontario community that it is his Bands, national field director of the American Indian Movement (A.I.M.), said Saturday the organization should try to make the public aware of the plight of Indians in North America.

Mr. Banks, an Indian leader at Wounded Knee, S.D., last month, said he did not want to resort to violence but Indians' problems had to be dealt with thoroughly before any positive results could be reached.

Slide in Vain

Sue Fobert of the Belleville Broadioom team slides into home with one of their two runs in Saturday's first game of the Provincial Women's Softball Union playoffs at the Abenlie. Despite hard play like this by the Belleville team, they dropped an 8-2 decision to go one game down, losing the second on Sunday in Brockville to drop into the C division, while Brockville remained in the B section.

Crawford Confident

Summer Hockey Starts Tonight

By MARK BRETT

Summer hockey is alive and getting better in the Quinte area. This is the optimistic outlook of the chief organizer for the league, Floyd Crawford.

Floyd well knows through out the area how his contributions to the game hopes to make a success of the venture, the first time that it has been undertaken.

If all goes according to plan there will be three divisions: a senior division, for over 18 years of age, juniper from 15 years to 18 years and novice under 15 years, although ages will be flexible. There will be four teams in the senior division, four teams in the midget section and two in the last division.

Chances are good for good for the formation of a girls division due to the interest shown by several ladies in the Belleville-Trenton area.

Floyd was approached by Tom O'Rourke Hockey School operating out of the Trenton Gardens, where he was an instructor last year, on the subject of forming a league.

The league will benefit not only those people who can't get enough of hockey in the winter months but also those players who will be travelling to the training camps later in the year.

As in any venture though there are a few bugs to iron out, with one of the problems to date, the lack of players for the novice division. If the problem is not resolved by the time of the official sign up some of the older players will be moved in to fill up the division.

Floyd acknowledged that this may not be to everybody's liking but is better than folding up the division due to the lack of a few players.

There will be signing-up session for the senior division today from 7:30 at Trenton Community Gardens. Anyone interested should be present.

Olympics Whitewash Oshawa for 1st Place Tie

OSHAWA (Special) — The Belleville Olympics of the Premier Soccer League moved into first place Sunday with a 5-0 win over Oshawa Wanderers, in a game played in Oshawa.

The Belleville team was without the services of goal tender Zoltan Vigh due to a time change in the game, while employer Canadian Tool Rubo was not on hand as he also could not be reached.

Goalie Warren Rushlow, using equipment borrowed from Oshawa, was called upon for the Golden Mile Junior Olympics to replace Vigh, proving to be a good choice, making many excellent saves, especially late in the game.

The Olympics were on the offensive right from the start. Peter Hillier scored with less than two minutes played in the game but, five goals were on a free kick after Nick Del Grande was fouled in the box. The Olympics also received strong defence, giving the Oshawa forwards no chances.

The Belleville team continued to press but due to poor ball control goaltending by Oshawa goaltender Ian Thomes the score remained 1-0.

The Olympics came out stronger than ever in the second half and it was not long before Tornmy Maxwell made a 2-0 lead. Peter Hillier scored after Bob Watson and Gerry Sargent -Minton had been fouled and a free kick had been awarded by the referees.

The Belleville team's defence was perfect in the second half constantly coming back to protect Rushlow. The visiting team also received good efforts from Bob Watson who was always on the move in the middield area, leading the attack and doing some excellent back checking.

Yardmen Split At Oakville

The Belleville Yardmen Benlik Fund Ladies split their pair of games in the Oakville Tournament on the weekend. In their first match, they dumped St. Thomas by a 3-1 margin, while dropping the second, 8-0 to Hamilton Hill.

The win over St. Thomas advanced the Yardmen to the A division of the tourney, behind the three hit pitching of Sue Morton. She struck out three and walked four in taking the win.

M. Bodden absorbed the loss on the St. Thomas ruling, picked for eight hits by Belleville batsmen. She struck out one and walked three.

Judy Pulla and Morton each had two hits to lead the winners, with Hazel Reid, Penny Hughes, Joyce McInnis, Sharon Alexander, and Shirley Gulliver each connecting for one.

Richmond Hill rounded Morton for 14 hits in the second game of the day, eliminating the Yardmen from any further competition. She managed four strikeouts, while not walking a batter.

Marion Fox on the Richmond Hill mound threw a one hitter at the Belleville team, striking out 11 on her way, not walking one.

Donna Shard had four hits for the winners, with Mary Ann Lloyd and Sue Morton Fox helped herself with one base hit.

Joyce McFarlane, the Yardmen first sacker, was the only Bell to touch Fox, with a single.

Reds Just 5½ Games Out

Dodgers Same Place as Last Season Cincinnati Is Too

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Phillies and Los Angeles Dodgers are leading their respective divisions in the National League East and West, a means that the Phillies should meet Cincinnati Reds in the playoffs, beginning the teams that are in first place at the all-star break meet for the second title in the fall.

But the National League West race is something else. The Dodgers, who lost to the East-leading Phillies 2-1 Sunday, are 5½ games ahead of the Reds. Ironically, that is where they were this time last year, when the Reds erased the Dodgers' lead with a second-half rally.

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals beat Houston Astros 6-3, Montreal Pirates stopped Atlanta Braves 6-3, Cincinnati Reds walloped Chicago Cubs 9-1, San Francisco Giants blanked Montreal Expos 4-0 and 3-0, and San Diego Padres beat New York Mets 7-2.

In Saturday's games, St. Louis defeated Houston 6-5, Montreal edged San Francisco 3-2, Chicago beat Cincinnati 11-6, Pittsburgh defeated Los Angeles 5-2 and New York downed San Diego 10-2.

Willie Montanez hit a 7th inning pinch-hit in the eighth inning to give Jim Lonborg 12-5 and the Phillies their victory over Los Angeles.

Al Downing, 5-4, walked Dave Cash to start the eighth and Larry Bowa bunted him to second. Cash took third on a single by Schmidt, who continued to second on the throw to the plate.

Montanez then sent Cash home with a single to right. Willie Crawford's throw to the plate nailed Schmidt trying to score.

Left-hitting Mike Tyson hit a two-run double and Ken Reitz and Jose Cruz hit home-runs, leading the Cards to victory.

A 14-hit Cardinal attack also featured Ted Sizemore and Joe Brock, who drove in a run and each hit his 30th and 40th base of the season.

Richie Hebner drilled four hits, including a pair of home runs, and scored four runs, trying to give Pittsburgh over Atlanta. Manager Eddie Mathews of the Braves was fired after the game.

Dock Ellis 5-8 limited the Braves to five hits, including a solo homer to Darrell Evans in the first inning, as the Pirates won their eighth straight game.

Ken Griffey's home run with two on in the fifth powered Don Gullett and Cincinnati over Chicago. With the score tied at 1-1, Dave Concepcion doubled with two down in the fifth off Burt Hooton, 3-8. Griffey followed with a line drive to right.

Willie McCovey belted a pair of two-run homers to pace San Diego over New York.

CPGA Win

Norman Proves Basics Best

CALGARY (CP) — Sticking to the basics of the game, hitting the ball down the middle, veteran Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont. shot a closing round of Sunday to win the inaugural Professional Golfers' Association championship by two strokes over defending champion Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont.

"All you have to do is keep it straight, keep it straight," said Norman. "That's what I do."

He won the $5,000 first prize money in the $30,000 event.

Norman, playing with clubs he said are not good enough for the Canadian Open later this year at Mississauga, Ont., finished at 271 for 72 holes, 13 under par over the tricky, lightly-treed par-71 Willow Park course where he won the CPGA title on Friday.

Norman's 68 was his second on an easy day. He led Panasiuk by one shot going into the final round.

Panasiuk, CPGA champion in eight previous years, had his chance to win on the 17th, but knocked a long-putt about 10 feet past the hole and missed his putt coming back. Norman, the 1971 Canadian Open champion, used a three-iron to double his second shot through a trap to the fringe.

He laid his approach close and sank the putt for a birdie, the two-stroke margin that stood up through the par three 18th and left Panasiuk with $4,-500 for his second-place finish.

It also ended Panasiuk's hope of becoming the first to win the CPGA title three years in a row since Stan Horne of Montreal did it in 1936-38.

Panasiuk, 32, led the first two rounds of the tournament at 133, two shots ahead of his partner, to boost his claim of heading the tournament for 19 consecutive rounds. He won in Hull, Que., in 1972 and Burlington, Ont., in 1973.

"It had to end sometime," said the perspiring Panasiuk. "Moe played well."

Panasiuk registered a course-record 64 on opening day.

His final-day 68, which left him with an 17-under-par 270, two shots better than the 272 total registered by Jerry Pate of Kitchener, Ont.

It was obvious in the early holes that nobody would launch a serious challenge against the front-runners, but Tapp provided a comforting procedure. He eagled the par five 14th hole to go nine under par and raise the hopes of the 4,000 or three-per fight through the final holes. But Norman, the last player to be paired off on the 18th he faded with a bogey-6 and conclusion.

MAKES $3,000

Tapp, 27, earned $2,000. He finished in 5th place with the best round of the day.

Also at 274 was Will Homenchuk of Winnipeg, a veteran of the United States professional tour, who vaulted into a tie for fifth place with talented young Ben Arms of Calgary.

Herb Holmchelter, Bridgetown pro from Ashburn, Ont., fired a 68 that included bloodcurdling cries of 34 to retain solo possession of fourth spot with 275, seven under par.

Holmchelter's 68 was matched by Neil Green of Calgary and Bob Rose of Carpentown, Ont., as well as Norman.

Panasiuk cast the top 24 players for Hamilton of Toronto, with $3,000 apiece.

Holdcroft closed with his 68 to win $1,000 money and, Morgan with a 71 and Garner, a little-known club pro, with 72.

CORKINS SENT DOWN

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego Padres called up catcher Glenn Lockhart from their Hawaii farm club Sunday and sent right-handed pitcher Mike Corkins to the Pacific Coast League team. Lockhart was batting .341 with 8 home runs and 51 runs batted in with Hawaii. Corkins posted a 2-3 record with a 4.43 earned-run average in 25 games with the Padres.

NEAR WORLD RECORD

SIENA, Italy (Reuter) — Silvio Leonard of Cuba and Steve Williams of the United States were both only one-tenth of a second outside the world record when they met in the 100-metre event at the Dellamicizia athletics meeting Monday. Leonard won over Williams both timed 10.0 seconds. Reg Jones of the United States was third in 10.3 seconds.

Minnesota Hot, Tigers Cold as Teams Break

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As the major leagues' three-day all-star break begins today, Detroit Tigers are failing and Minnesota Twins are riding a streak.

Monday, for example, Bob Darwin hit a two-run single and Eric Soderholm had a three-run homer to highlight a seven-run fourth inning that gave Minnesota a 10-7 victory over the Tigers. The Twins' 12th victory in their last 15 games and Detroit's 13th loss in 21.

In other American League baseball games, New York Yankees edged Kansas City Royals 6-5, Oakland A's defeated Cleveland Indians 6-3, California Angels topped Baltimore Orioles 5-4, Texas Rangers topped Boston Red Sox 2-1 and Chicago White Sox beat Milwaukee 6-3 before the Brewers took the second game 3-2.

Cleveland edged Oakland 10-9 Saturday, New York beat Kansas City 5-3, Chicago edged Milwaukee 3-2, Minnesota whipped Detroit 12-6, Texas beat Boston 8-6, and California won the nightcap of a doubleheader 5-0 after losing the opener 5-2.

Home runs by Tigers' two-time base-loaded double in a three-run seventh inning led the Yanks over Royals.

Ted Kubiak's two-run single highlighted a three-run seventh inning that gave Oakland the edge over Cleveland.

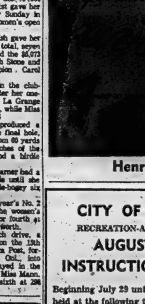
The Angels got two runs in the ninth on one of Mickey Rivers' three doubles, scoring on Clark's bunt single. Frank Robinson's sacrifice fly and Joe Rudi's single, Bobby Grich, Brooks Robinson and Mark Davis hit solo homers for Baltimore.

Seventh-inning singles by Jim Sundberg, Alex Johnson and Jack Burroughs scored the

Haynie Putts To Victory

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP) — Sandra Haynie's 15-foot putt on the final hole after two bogeys and a birdie put on the 71st gave her a one-stroke victory Sunday in the United States women's open golf championship.

Miss Haynie's finish gave her a closing 75 and 295 total, seven over par. It wrestled the 21,000 first prize from Beth Stone and 1969 open champion Carol Mann.



Miss Stone was in the clubhouse with a 296 after her one-under-par 71 on the La Grange Country Club course, while Miss Mann had a 75—296.

Miss Mann had produced a brilliant shot on the final hole, when she pitched from 40 yards out to within 12 inches of the cup for a tap-in and a birdie four.

Favored Jolene Carner had a chance to win or tie until she stumbled to a double-bogey six on the 70th hole.

Mrs. Carner, the year's No. 2 money winner on the women's tour, finished tied for fourth at 297 with Kathy Whitworth.

Miss Haynie's fourth drive, a streaker appeared on the 13th green at the Oak and sent Gallery mercy of Oakville, Ont., into hysterics. She played her 13th same twosome with Miss Mann. Miss Post finished sixth at 298 after shooting a 76.

Henry Aaron

20th Classic Will Be Final For Hammerin' Hank Aaron

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Hank Aaron, chosen to the National League all-star team for the 20th straight year, plays in his final mid-summer game Tuesday night against the American League.

The 40-year-old Atlanta Braves' slugger, who surpassed Babe Ruth's home run mark of 714 earlier this year, has had little success in 22 all-star games, hitting only two home runs in 64 times at bat.

"I'm honored to make it again," said Aaron, the NL's leading vote-getter with more than 2.6 million. "I hope I can hit a homer for the fans."

Fans chose the starting lineup, except for the pitchers.

A capacity crowd of more than 50,000 is expected at Three Rivers Stadium and an estimated 48 million will watch on television, NBC says.

Game time is 8:15 p.m., EST.

Aaron, hitting .260 this season with 13 homers and a career total of 725, was expected to play only a field for the first three innings.

The AL has lost 18 of the last 21 all-star meetings and has 11 victories and one tie against 39 losses in the series. The AL last won in 1971.

AL president Lee MacPhail has taken steps he hopes will make the junket circuit a win over this year. AL clubs have gone along with MacPhail's directive to change their pitching rotations so that an all-star pitcher wouldn't work on Sunday.

This prompted all-star pitcher Wilbur Wood of Chicago White Sox, who worked Saturday instead of Sunday with just two days off, to ask:

"What is the objective of the American League race, to win in a division or to win the all star game. Why should the Sox or any other club be deprived of using a pitcher on Sunday?"

MacPhail said he told team manager Dick Williams his job was "to win the ball game, not keeping the players happy."

The NL team under manager Yogi Berra has made no similar moves.

Cleveland's Gaylord Perry, who fell one game short of the AL record by winning 15 of the Yankees will catch.

straight this season, was expected to pitch Tuesday night.

In addition to Perry and Wood, the AL also has hurlers Mike Cuellar of Baltimore, Nolan Ryan (7-8) Hunter and Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Catcher Ray Fosse of Cleveland, Steve Busby of Kansas City, and John Hiller of Detroit. Berra has called Reuschel, Jones and Mike Marshall of Los Angeles, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, Ken Brett of Pittsburgh and Clay Carroll of Atlanta.

Joining Aaron in the starting lineup in the outfield are Pete Rose of Cincinnati and Jim Wynn of Los Angeles. Other starters include Johnny Bench at first base and Ron Cey at third, Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati's Big Red Machine at shortstop, Cincinnati's Joe Morgan at second base and, subject to word of Hal Reds behind the plate.

Oakland's Reggie Jackson, leading vote-getter in the AL, leaves with nearly 3.5 million, Bobby Murcer of New York Yankees and Jeff Burroughs of Texas will start in the outfield for the AL. Dick Allen will start at first base with Minnesota's Rod Carew at second, Baltimore's Brooks Robinson at third, Thurman Munson of the Yankees will catch.

Clears CFL Waivers

Evanshen Dropped by Alouettes As Clubs Ready for Wednesday

Montreal Alouettes pulled one of the biggest surprises during the weekend as Canadian football League teams trimmed their rosters to 32 players in preparation for the 1974 season.

The Eastern Football Conference club dropped Terry Evanshen, noted as one of the league's best pass receivers.

The 36-year-old wide receiver said Saturday he was "shocked" when he learned that he had cleared CFL waivers.

"I found out I had been on waivers all through training camp because the team would not be using an outside receiver this season.

"I am just reaching my prime. I figure I have five or six years left. There's no way that I can't play football somewhere."

During five years with the Alouettes and four with Calgary Stampeders, he caught 468 passes which put him third on the all-time CFL list. He ranks fourth over-all in yards gained from passes, 7,606.

With Calgary in 1967, he teamed with quarterback Pete Liske for 86 catches—a league record—and 1,652 yards in 16 games.

Virtually ignored by Montreal quarterbacks last season, the Montreal native wound up with 778 yards on 18 receptions. He didn't score a touchdown until the final game of the season, giving him 6 for his career.

Also cut were: defensive back Mike Law, by Ottawa; Tommy Pharr, quarterback, slotback and defensive back, by Hamilton; quarterback Sonny Sixkiller and tackle Randy Halsall, by Toronto; quarterback-punter Eric Guthrie and defensive back Ike Wilson, by B.C.; and linebacker Gary Chown, by Montreal.

To reach the limit of 17 Canadians and 15 imports, several clubs put players on the three-game or 21-day injured players' list.

Among these were: receiver George McGowan of Edmonton, running back Johnny Musso of B.C., defensive back Tony Proudfoot and quarterback Sonny Wade, both of Montreal, and defensive back Peter Ribbiss of Winnipeg.

Toronto traded defensive end George Wells to Saskatchewan for quarterback Jim Lindsey. Winnipeg sent tight end Paul Markle to Edmonton for the Eskimos' No. 1 1975 Canadian draft choice, and the Eskimos sent linebacker Mickey Doyle to Calgary for a future considera-tion.

The Argonauts have the most new players, 17, four more than Winnipeg. Ottawa, last year's Grey Cup champions, have the smallest number of newcomers, three.

Toronto has the most players on the injured list, seven.

The first league game is Wednesday night when Hamilton visits Montreal.

Caujolle Wins Rothman's Open

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Francois Caujolle of France upset fellow countryman and top seed Eric Deblicker 6-1, 6-2 Sunday to win the $5,000 Rothmans Ontario Open tennis tournament.

Caujolle, the tournament's No. 2 seed, also defeated Deblicker's second-seeded countryman Guy Forget in the first round.

The victory Sunday was Caujolle's first ATP title and his attempt to win his third consecutive tournament when the four more Tuesday in Sault Ste. Marie.

Unseeded Jaime O'Hara of Toronto earned $225 with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over top-seeded Andrea Vuckovich in the women's singles final.

Miss Merlin teamed up with Miss O'Hara to defeat Stephanie Barnsley and Susan Stone, both of Hamilton, 6-4, 7-5 in the women's doubles final.

No Settlement Yet in NFL After 3 Weekend Sessions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomily continues to plague the labor dispute in the National Football League between the 26 club owners and the striking players.

Another contract negotiation session, following three over the weekend, is scheduled for mid-afternoon in Washington today but the players' association will be absent in full force.

The NFL management council, representing the owners, abruptly broke off negotiations Sunday afternoon and said — tis-agreement would not return until the association submits a revised package of demands.

"The management council will not be available for further meetings unless and until the players' association comes with a proposal which is economically and failed to submit for the last three days," said a statement from the owners' negotiators.

"The management council will have a representative available to receive any proposals when, as and if they are made by the players' union."

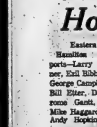
"The management council will then be available for further meetings with a mutually agreeable time and place as soon as it has had the opportunity to review the proposals."

Bill Curry of Houston Oilers' Association president, said only that the council's statement amounted to the second breach this week of the agreement that was sided had with federal mediator James Krause.

He also said that the owners' statement is a "lie" because the players' union has already tempted to negotiate a new contract in an effort to end the 23-day strike.

"We're going to be there to-morrow and continue to negotiate in good faith," said Curry. "We hope the owners will be there."

Sources said the owners departed Sunday's session after refusing to respond to a compromise proposal by the union's original 63 demands.



Details of the management offer are not known but the owners announced earlier they were prepared to spend $4 million on pay for pre-season games, the Pro Bowl and other money issues.

The so-called freedom issues, which the players argue are the crux of their demands, were just about ignored by the management proposal.

Fifth Tour de France For Eddy Merckx

PARIS (Reuter) — Belgian Eddy Merckx won the Tour de France cycle marathon for a record-equalling fifth time Sunday after completing the toughest of all cycling races.

Merckx outdid his nearest rivals Bernard Thevenet of France and Raymond Poulidor of France by a comfortable margin of 2 minutes 47 seconds.

Merckx's 4,098 miles in 96 hours, 1 minute and 2 seconds, had just edged Merckx on every count by a 20-kilometer point on the Vincennes Velodrome here.

Merckx's 28th full-stage victory in his five tours, another record, wiping out the previous best of 25 stage wins by Frenchman Andre Leclerc.

Only one other man has won five tours, retired French champion Jacques Anquetil.

The Marauders added to their home for the first time, padded their margin in the fourth quarter with a 46-yard pass reflected for a touchdown by rookie John Reed and an eight-yard touchdown pass from Dennis Dermit to Powell.

Weese went to the air 23 times and completed 12 passes for 223 yards. Wyche was 15 for

A crowd of 10,000 turned out for the game, the first of the 1974 season at Honolulu Stadium for the opener.

The teams played with three downs and two rest. The Hawaiians dominated the statistics, gaining 343 net yards to the Wheels' 267.

Reserve running back Jesse Mims of Detroit led all rushers with 94 yards.

No Protests From Czechoslovakia

LONDON (AP) — Ronny Ahearne, president of the World Ice Hockey Federation, says the Czechoslovakian hockey authorities have made no formal protest to him about Vaclav Nedomansky, the captain of the Czech national team who defected and plans to play with the Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

Ahearne said Sunday that if the Czechs complain to the service to them would be to cable the Canadian amateur hockey Association and tell them that Nedomansky must not play in Canada.

Ahearne said if the Canadians still persisted in using the Nedomansky, 36, then the world federation would "break off all international relations" with the Canadian groups involved.

"This, in effect, would bring to an end participation in matches with Europeans, including games scheduled against the Soviet Union this season.

Thousands Of Students In Film

HALIFAX (CP) — The National Film Board is nearing completion of a musical documentary with a cast of thousands—the schoolchildren of Halifax.

The youngsters have been filmed learning and performing music under a program that has aroused international curiosity and admiration.

The NFB film will attempt to illustrate why 30,000 children have and are becoming musically literate individuals—and even musicians of high calibre—without private tutoring.

Halifax music students consistently win top honors at national competitions and demonstrate ability to compete successfully with adults.

One reason, suggests Wiznan Trecartin, producer-director of the film, is the "tremendous enthusiasm" two music staff which the 50 city music teachers have fostered for all students. Enthusiasm to learn and love for music borders on fanaticism, Mr. Trecartin says.

As well as imparting their own feelings about music, the teachers combine applied psychology with tough discipline, he said. "They really know what they are doing."

The core is a compulsory general-music course for all students from Grades 1 to 6. It has a comprehensive curriculum, including history, theory and listening. A key to the approach is the use of a music-education system developed in Hungary that emphasizes control of the body and muscular reactions.

Music courses subsequent to Grade 6 up to and including Grade 12, are elective. They are given outside regular class hours by sub-departments specializing in categories such as woodwinds, strings etc.

The students also are encouraged to join a band or school symphony orchestra. Practice is done at home.

Under this system, children may learn several instruments and play in more than one group.

Mr. Trecartin said the excellence of the program is largely due to Chalmers Doane, music department director.

Mr Doane has been visited by educationists from as far as Hungary and Iceland and from all over North America, who come to study his innovative system.

Professional musicians also are fascinated by the program. Garry Kerr, called the world's foremost double bassist, moved from the United States to live in Halifax more than three years ago and to teach in city schools.

Mr. Trecartin's film, a 58-minute film, expected to be distributed internationally will cost $60,000. The crew of six began shooting last April.

A highlight will be a public performance by the school's musical groups, including several ensembles, a senior jazz band, a chorus arranged orchestra, a senior stage band, a choir and a group of ukelele players.

Usually Barren Plains Fast Becoming Foodbowl

KALGOORLIE, Australia (CP) — Arrival in this West Australian city marks the end of a monotonous ride for travellers on the Indian Pacific express.

Australia's transcontinental train has just completed the crossing of the longest stretch of dead-straight track in the world.

It runs 297 miles across the Nullarbor Plain which is devoid of trees. In fact Nullarbor is Latin for "without trees."

Originally the bed of a prehistoric sea, it was raised above sea level in some great primeval upheaval. Now it is a inhospitable vastness where scrub usually bottles for survival with an annual rainfall of only five inches.

This year, however, 20 inches have fallen and the red dust has been replaced with a carpet of flowers as the Australian hinterland. One sheep farmer says the plain usually supports about one sheep to 30 acres. Right now it could support one to the acre.

This city of 20,000 owes its existence to the riches hidden in the dust. In 1893 gold was the first attraction. Kalgoorlie became the richest gold mining town in Australia.

Alumina, iron ore, natural gas and uranium followed.

Then in the late 1960s came the discovery that set the world afire—vast areas of nickel.

The name Poseidon is probably best remembered. It became a household word as shares rocketed from a dollar to $275.

The Palace Hotel here was the centre of activity. Millions of dollars changed hands in stock exchanges throughout the world on the basis of a rumor started in one of the Palace's bars.

While these boom days are gone, millions of dollars are still being spent on exploration and development.

And today there is concern enough about the future of the mining operations in Australia's interior.

The policies of the Australian Labor government came in some concern, but the issues predate Labor's election.

Stirrings of economic nationalism were alive. There was concern that Australia should not face the same problems as Canada where United States ownership of natural resources has become an issue.

The government is taking steps to boost Australian ownership with a particular emphasis on local ownership of energy resources.

But here in Kalgoorlie concern such as these don't bother the miners.

They work hard to earn their money and then work hard to get it spent. It is in drinking clubs—known locally as mines where thousands change hands on the turn of a card.

Then, the money gone, they return to the mines.

This life-style is hard to imagine, arriving here in the air-conditioned luxury of the train.

Once men spent weeks making the crossing, battling heat, desert and water. Many perished; many succeeded.

The men who built the bulk a country out of wilderness, and even today the "Bush" dominates. If the vast areas of Australia were likened it might be the foodbowl of the world.

But the lack of water is only the first problem. Often the inland water can be as saltier than the sea, an inheritance from a million years before when the sea roiled over the Nullarbor.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Tom Smothers has married his high school sweetheart, now the mother of seven, a spokesman said Thursday.

The bride is Rochelle Robley of Ceres, Calif. The ceremony was performed Wednesday in Las Vegas.

Smothers' publicist said that the comic met in high school in Modesto, Calif. Both are 36.

The first marriages of both ended in divorce. Smothers has a son.

OTTAWA (CP) — Baritone Allan Monk and soprano Jo-Ann Meier, Heather Thomson and Gwenlyn Little drew rounds of applause Thursday night for their starring roles in a revival of the National Arts Centre production of Mozart's opera Don Giovanni.

First produced at the centre last summer under the direction of John Neville, new artistic director of Citadel Theatre in Edmonton, the opera was restaged by Anthony Besch, noted English opera director.

The National Arts Centre Orchestra was again under resident conductor Mario Bernardi and the same sets and costumes by Robert Prevost of Montreal were used.

Mr. Besch appeared to call for more movement on the stage than Mr. Neville.

LONDON (Reuter) — Pauline Skoze, widow of film star Lawrence Harvey, and Justin de Villeneuve, the former hairdresser who knocked Twiggy on a glittering modelling and stage career, are to marry next month.

Justin, 25, met Pauline, 33, at a dinner party 12 days ago.

Pauline married Harvey in January last year, 10 months before he died of cancer. She has two daughters, one from her marriage to Harvey and another from her first marriage to society photographer Tony Norman.

Justine and his wife Pamela were divorced in 1968 and have a 14-year-old daughter.

O'Neill Biography 17-Year Labor

NEW YORK (AP) — If he knew then what he knows now, Louis Sheaffer thinks he'd never have put the giant drama library together.

"Despair, frustration, panic are some of the words with which he describes creation of the two-volume life of Eugene O'Neill, the Nobel and the 1974 Pulitzer Prize for biography.

Sheaffer, who calls himself "not exactly a scholar" or journalist, spent 17 quietly obsessed years and $50,000 compiling the monumental narrative about the United States most famous playwright.

Piled up around him in a book-jumbled bachelor lair, Sheaffer estimates, is "30 times as much material as went into" the published 600,000-word manuscript.

"My collection is my future," he says of plans for possible himself working. A book of the pictorial material assembled during his hunt for everything about O'Neill is already being discussed with a publisher. A projected edition of his biography is planned in the autumn.

"I'd like to write a book and let someone else," he says, "but that would be starting it for desperates, and I'm a little too old for that class."

The Sheaffer quest led the 51-year-old writer into O'Neill scholarship, a field invading Eagle, where he began as an office boy and wound up as a theatre critic, most of both of business in 1955. Turning to theatrical press agentry, he soon happened to be on a revival of O'Neill's The Iceman Cometh and premiere of Long Day's Journey Into Night.

The productions helped start a widespread surge of interest in the dramatist's work that has almost forgotten for a decade. Other plays were dusted off, and a squad of researchers, eager to cash in on the fad, started unearthing the largemass of personal background that no one had bothered to look into a book before the literary giant's death in 1953.

Struck by Sheaffer's enthusiasm, Random House editor Norton suggested that he get into the biographical race.

"That explained a great deal to me," Sheaffer says, recalling a lively style.

Accumulation of all the background data sent Sheaffer into a tangential maze, struggling to learn how to index and assemble bits in proper relevance. For seven years he searched, travelled and sorted before putting paper in typewriter. Completion set in.

"The danger of writing biography is that you may project yourself onto your subject.

"Sometimes I'd rewrite a paragraph 15 or 20 times. It's like drilling for oil. You think you've got the bit as deep as you can get. Then suddenly, at widow's peak, there's a moment of elevation to the book's readability when to be scholarship." He fathomed, and you tense up with the thought that clarifies."

Jim: "Anyone can take a finesse. If it works he is a hero—if it fails he can say that he tried. The really good player tries to find ways to force his opponents to take his finesse for him."

Oswald: "South decided to bid six spades and hoped for the best. He knew that he might be unlucky to even and also that even six might not make. After his partner's jump to four spades there just wasn't any scientific way to bid."

Jim: "South played it low club from dummy at trick one. West was not going to underlead an ace against a slam. East played low and South ruffed. Two rounds of trumps were necessary to pull those out standing. Then South ruffed a second club, cashed his ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart in dummy, ruffed dummy's last club and led his last heart."

Oswald: "When West produced the queen of hearts South didn't have to worry about a diamond finesse. He simply discarded a diamond from dummy and left West on lead. West was dead. A diamond lead would take South's finesse for him. A club lead would allow South to discard a diamond from dummy, ruff in his own hand and claim the rest of the tricks on a cross-ruff."

MONKEYS AT LARGE

DUDLEY, England (CP) — Fourteen monkeys escaped from a zoo here through a hole in a wire fence which officials say must have taken them days of determined effort to even open. Zoo keepers recaptured Charlie, leader of the fugitives but the others remained on the lam despite a search by police and zoo officials.

Fungus Causes Loss of Toenail

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you explain what fungus is? Five years ago my big toenail fell off. It grew in again and fell off again. I went to a doctor who gave me a prescription and I am supposed to take these pills for a year and a half so my nail will grow in right.

He gave me very little explanation. I am 67 and in very good health. I am not a pill-popper. Maybe your advice might save my nails.—Mrs. E.O.

A fungus is a vegetable-type of growth—mushrooms and mould are two types of fungus that you can see. But there are other kinds so small you can't see them.

Some of them can thrive on, and in some cases feed on, living skin. Athlete's foot is a fungus infection.

A fungus isn't like a disease germ that penetrates tissues of the body. It exists on or near the surface. But it can be rather difficult to get rid of it. There are medications which will kill fungus, but the difficulty is that, if treatment stops too soon, a few spores of fungus survive and then start to grow. It sounds as if that's what happened to you.

When a fungus gets into the nails, it is particularly difficult to get rid of it often the whole nail or part of it has to be removed.

But in some cases there is one medication that can be taken by mouth, and it makes the body resistant to fungi of some kinds. The drug is griseofulvin, which is marketed under at least a number of different (but usually similar) names.

That's probably what the doctor gave you. It takes a quite long time to work, but it has succeeded in cases in which many of other efforts have failed. So don't think you are a "pill popper" just because you're taking it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband desperately needs dialysis treatment because of failing kidneys. He recently underwent extensive work at the hospital and was told to report for kidney treatment in a few days. Friends have informed me, however, that if a patient is bedridden (my husband is) the dialysis treatment would not help him. I desperately need some advice.—Mrs. C.K.

With "friends" like that, you don't need enemies! Why do they spout off about things they don't understand? What they told you is wrong. Kidney dialysis can be arranged even in the home if necessary. The National Kidney Foundation, which I am sure has a branch or near your city, should be contacted about that. I'm sure the people at the hospital can help put you in touch—so listen to the advice you got at the hospital and shun your ears to false notions.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had an awful time with the stings until I remembered that if you mix a teaspoon of meat tenderizer with two or three drops of water to make a paste and smear it on, it immediately takes away the sting. No swelling or hurt.—P.J.

I've reported this in my column, but it's useful enough to bear repeating once a year. Thanks for reminding.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a wart right on the side of my face and would like to know how to get rid of it without having to pay a lot of money.—E.J.S.

No way for you to do it yourself. But removal of a mole is quite simple for a physician. Since it is on the face, I would recommend that you have a dermatologist remove it. Or if it is in a particularly prominent place, you might want a plastic surgeon to do it. It is not, in most cases, an expensive procedure.

Helicopter Escape Bid Is Foiled

PARKHURST, England (AP) — Albert Baker, a militant Protestant convicted of killing four Roman Catholics in Belfast, was foiled Saturday in a bid to escape by helicopter from an English prison.

Baker, 36, serving a life sentence for murder in a top security jail on the Isle of Wight, grabbed a guard as hostage and held him for two hours while bargaining for freedom.

Prison authorities finally agreed to Baker's demand for a helicopter to fly him from the island off England's south coast to Northern Ireland, but his attempt was to ask for four other prisoners to accompany him on the flight.

The four were reluctant to join in the escape and overpowered Baker in a truck jacking them from the prison to a nearby helicopter pad. Another terror was waiting, prison officials said.

Children Reported Tortured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Henry Jackson (Dem., Wash.), said Sunday that Senate investigators have uncovered allegations that children of United States military personnel have been tortured in psychotic research done by the defence department.

The alleged abuses included injections with drugs, research use of drugs, use of chains and isolation of children in solitary confinement, Jackson said.

The allegations will be the subject of hearings by the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations beginning Tuesday.

At the Pentagon, a spokesman said defence department officials will meet with the subcommittee hearing and is appropriate to make any comment now.

The government program under review is the defence department's Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS).

Jackson, the subcommittee chairman, said investigators made a general review of the program, but the hearings will focus on two institutions, Green Valley School of Orange City, Fla., and the University Center in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Wins Race

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Nanaimo bathtub with Don Downer at the controls triumphed Sunday in the annual Great Nanaimo Bathtub Race.

Downer piloted his bathtub across the 35-mile course from Nanaimo Harbor to Kitsilano Beach in three hours, 53 minutes and three seconds, four minutes off the record.

It was the eighth running of the race across Georgia Strait.

Reject Plan

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario said Sunday the ministry of health has rejected a college proposal that dentur ists be required to complete a four-month training course before being allowed to fit false teeth without the supervision of a dentist.

In a statement, the college said the ministry rejected the proposal in what it called a 15-cal negotiating session Friday.

The release expressed disagreement with the provincial decision to stick to plans calling for a four-week course for denturists.

Woman Robbed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Ella Pittrich, a 65-year-old cleaning woman, told police Saturday that four women held her up with a gun and robbed her of up to $30,000 in cash she was carrying in a shopping bag. She said she didn't trust banks and didn't know exactly how much money was in the bag—she hadn't counted it for a while.

Four Slain

MONTREAL (CP) — Four men were killed during the weekend in three shooting incidents. An unidentified man was shot to death in the city of Anjou Sunday night and police said they were looking for two suspects for questioning. Early Sunday morning, two bodies were found in a car in a west-end Montreal suburb. Police identified the dead as Jacques Morin, 25, and Jean-Claude Arbour, 27, while the two victims were seated at a table. Both men died of gunshot wounds. A fifth incident came Saturday night when Adamo Ricci, 36, of Montreal, was fatally shot in the face. One of two masked men as he was leaving a nightclub.

25 New Fires Burn In Northwest Ontario

DRYDEN, Ont. (CP) — Twenty-five new forest fires were reported Sunday by the ministry of natural resources.

Firefighters branched themselves for a change of wind following a three-day effort to contain the flames on the eastern edge of the area, 85 miles northeast of Kenora.

Steady westnortherest winds expected after Sunday "are the winds that will be driving our fires," said fire management officer Bob Brady.

Provincial police, Emergency Measures Organization and municipal officials met Sunday to plan evacuation co-ordinators have been working on plans for the evacuation of nearby communities in case the fires spread close to populated areas.

Consolidation efforts—building dozing, chemical-retardant bombing, and burning to straighten out uneven fire lines—are helped by a wind shift last week. How well the lines hold, said Mr. Brady, will depend on the severity of weather conditions in the next few days.

Firefighters were unable to determine the extent of a major blaze 22 miles west of Red Lake, Ont., about 60 miles north of Kenora, because of the intense smoke. At last count the fire covered close to 178 square miles.

Aussie Says He Saw Americans Mowed Down

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A former Australian soldier said Saturday he and five other Australians watched New Zealand troops kill six American soldiers in South Vietnam.

He made his allegation as an interview with the Sydney Sunday Telegraph.

It followed an anonymous statement last week in a radio talk show in New Zealand from one of the New Zealanders allegedly involved in the shooting.

The New Zealand defence department has begun a top-level investigation into the claim which it says it believes is genuine.

The anonymous New Zealander said that he and three others shot and killed the six Americans they found raping and torturing Vietnamese civilians.

The Australian soldier said he and the five other Australians were on a jungle patrol when they heard the gunfire.

He said that later by three other New Zealanders and the Americans firing at each other.

He said: "The New Zealanders carved them up. It was bloody murder. One of our Australians was sick. We were afraid the New Zealanders would turn on us."

Hotel Life Perilous In Nicosia at War

NICOSIA (CP) — The full hell of Cyprus at war first dawned on this reporter when the exploiting rattle of machine-gun fire ripped across a quiet tree-lined street in Nicosia.

Other journalists and myself, who moments before had been the tabletop calmly with Canadian military peacekeepers, had dived to the ground.

The soldiers, members of the United Nations force in Cyprus, took the noise in their stride. We all hurried back into the Ledra Palace Hotel across the street, perilously near the city's famous dividing line between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

There we experienced the full hell of war again, in more sustained fashion, Sunday when the blaze of artillery, machine-gun and automatic fire kept some 400 guests huddled on the floors or behind partitions for many hours.

Outside, Greek Cypriots and Greek Cypriot troops battled near the Canadian-patrolled line which separates their communities.

The ferocious struggle in the old and nearby Nicosia area was accompanied by the roar of Turkish jet fighters and bombers sweeping in to bomb Nicosia airport.

The most frightening of all was the blast of two mortar shells which shook the hotel and forced a mass of movement of men, women and children to the inner core of the building where water supply was being provided by the Canadian troops despite the perils in the streets.

Even as the guests crowded, in darkness and sweaty, towards the bomb-shattered front of the hotel, Canadian officers who earlier had brought food, fire to the hotel by shooting from hotel vantage points, staged a last minute effort to get the hotel's so-called mid-Sunday departure by sandbagging.

And then, as part of a UN protected convoy of open trucks and food for a coastal British town, the civilians had to dive for over-again when shots rang out.

But they got safely through the menacing streets of Nicosia and, the bleak countryside of Cyprus.

The nightmare of the 36 hours after the invasion of Cyprus took many forms for foreign visitors. Death was always close.

Then there was dinner by candlelight, Ledra Palace style. The evening after the invasion, with electricity off, guests had to line up in the hotel kitchen for dry sandwiches, the only food by then available.

Tepid water was available, too. Then, suntan trunks were trampled against a background of deafening horror which echoed through the glass-adorned kitchen from the battles raging outside.

Dirty scenes abounded, even inside the normally sedate hotel.

The Greek-Cypriot troops who were frustrated Sunday efforts by guests to use the seemingly doomed hotel were denounced by one armed Greek policeman as "boy soldiers who preferred hiding behind the skirts of other people's wives rather than their own."

The Greek Cypriots ended up as the villains of the piece as far as the hotel guests were concerned. The latter felt they were being held as hostages of a sort.

This ill-feeling encouraged the spread of reports that the Greeks were transporting their guns in ambulances around Nicosia in vehicles marked with red crosses.

As this reporter joined the 400 other civilian guests trying to sleep along darkened hotel corridors and on stairways to avoid flying bullets from outside, they narrowed Greek Cypriots picked their way over the prone forms en route to the hotel roof and upper-storey windows from where they could unleash rounds of rifle and automatic fire which provoked the York-Cypriot reprisal bombardment of Sunday morning.

The Ledra Palace Hotel evacuees, along with thousands of Greek Cypriots and other Cyprus sectors, spent Sunday night at the British army camp at Dhekelia, 30 miles east of the outskirts of the capital, awaiting their turn for evacuation from Cyprus.

There Are Always Seven In War Game of Cyprus

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Every time the game of "Cyprus" is played at least seven players sit down at the table.

Greece, Turkey, Turkish-Cypriots, Greek-Cypriots, Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union are the regulars.

Occasionally there has been a new player, invited by Greece: Israel's Foreign Office opposed to Archbishop Makarios.

What do the players want?

Greece: Wants Cyprus. An annexation of the island, which has a few Athe Greek-Cypriot majority, to mainland Greece is an old Hellenic dream and much desired by the ruling junta.

Turkey: Does not want Greece to have Cyprus.

Turkish-Cypriots: Want what Turkey wants. Both would settle for a form of federation in which Turkish-Cypriots had substantial autonomy in the areas they inhabit, scattered all over the island.

U.S.-Canadian Trade Review Seen Essential

WASHINGTON (CP) — Citing the "self-evident" need for the United States for "continued and reliable access to Canada's natural resources," a private research group called Sunday for a new look at the role of raw materials in U.S.-Canadian relations.

More specifically, the business-financed International Economic Policy Association (IEPA) urged:

—A review of American trade policy which it said encourages imports of raw materials and threatens the expense of processing industries which would create more jobs in Canada.

—An early visit to Ottawa by State Secretary Henry Kissinger for a dialogue with the new Trudeau federal government.

—Formation of a new international joint economic committee of government-appointed citizens from each country to advise the two governments on investment, trade and resources policies.

The IEPA's 125-page report termed Canada the "most important source of foreign raw materials for the United States."

It devoted a 15-page section in analyzing the growth of foreign ownership in Canada and the extent of American dependence on Canadian iron, oil, metals, nickel, aluminium and other vital minerals.

The crux of the report includes proposals for more general changes in U.S. natural resources policy, notably on stockpiling of resources and on foreign trade resources and on foreign trade relations.

Noting the 58-per-cent ownership of U.S. corporations in the Canadian manufacturing and the inter-relationship of Canadian investment, the labour-gallup poll says.

ply," the report nevertheless says recent Canadian attitudes and policies suggest the "need for a reconsideration of U.S.-Canadian relations in the light of [illegible] materials needs."

The IEPA recommendations are not likely to stir general enthusiasm in Ottawa, where diplomatic sources said, for reasons which the report itself outlined:

"In recent years Canadian foreign opinion has come to favor greater national determination of economic behavior and a more conscious effort to 'contain' foreign capitalism,' the Canadian term for a predisposition to even greater North American interchange and interdependence.

The IEPA said a "new effort at co-operative interaction and consultation (is) in order to moderate the prospective changes which it foresees about future U.S. investment in Canada, raw materials and the export of such materials to the United States."

The report says the membership of its proposed new international commission should include business, labor, consumer and government representatives. It could make recommendations both jointly to the two governments or separately through its national sections.

"Given a sufficient mandate and backing in Ottawa and Washington, such a commission could do much to relieve tensions and avoid future problems in the sensitive areas of investment, trade and materials policy."

Ford Leads

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Vice President Gerald Ford has emerged as the leader among Republicans and Independents for the 1976 Republican party's presidential nomination, the latest gallup poll says.

Turkish Premier Cheered

New President Named
Cyprus Fighting Starts up Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Greek-Cypriot who took over the presidency of Cyprus from the ousted Archbishop Makarios resigned today and a prominent figure in the old regime was named to replace him, Cyprus radio said. The move was seen as an attempt to reach a peace accord with Turkey.

The British reported a new outbreak of fighting on Turkey's invasion beachhead in northern Cyprus near Kyrenia despite a ceasefire agreement accepted by all sides.

Shortly before these developments, Turkey's deputy prime minister, Necmettin Erbakan, renewed an old Turkish demand for partition of the Mediterranean island between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots.

Named to take over the Cypriot presidency is Glafcos Clerides, who was speaker of the House of Representatives before Makarios was overthrown July 15 in a coup by the National Guard under the leadership of regular Greek army officers.

The fighting report came from the British defence ministry which said in London that the battle action took place as a Royal Navy task force was evacuating stranded citizens and other foreigners from the northern coast. The ministry said the evacuation of about 2,500 foreigners continued without too much difficulty because the fighting was about six miles from the evacuation point.

The defence ministry said it had no details of the battle action.

The United Nations in New York said troops of its peace force on Cyprus took over the airport at Nicosia, the Cypriot capital, because of unrest fighting there. A UN headquarters spokesman said no details of the Nicosia fighting were available to him but that he described it as "a new and serious breach of the ceasefire."

The ceasefire had been called for 10 a.m. EDT Monday but fighting continued for several hours after that deadline. Then about six hours later, the UN announced that the fighting was all quiet on the island and that the ceasefire appeared to be holding.

Earlier today, Associated Press correspondent Frank Hawkins reported from Nicosia that sporadic fighting broke out along the so-called "Green Line" separating the Greek and Turkish communities but that in general the ceasefire agreement had been respected by both sides.

The dispatch was filed before the British and UN reports of new action.

U.S. officials have said they expect fighting to continue between the Greek and Turkish communities for at least several more days.

The Greeks outnumber the Turks on the island by about four to one.

Casualties apparently were heavy on the island but with the confusion and communications breakdowns there was no way to obtain any exact figures.

The UN announcement of the takeover of the Nicosia airport said the "airport thus has become a UN international protected area. This will at the same time facilitate the arrival of reinforcements."

A report that a coup had taken place in Greece itself were denied in Athens by Constantine Rallis, minister of the Greek premier's office. The official Greek radio repeatedly broadcast denials. There was no visible evidence in government offices in Athens of any overturn of the military junta.

Strife-torn Isle

Fighting was renewed in Cyprus today. Earlier a truce had followed heavy casualties reported inflicted on soldiers and civilians alike during fighting between Turks and Greeks. Greek ships, reported to have attempted to land troops on the southern coast, at Paphos, on Sunday are said to have come under Turkish naval fire. And there were more casualties on land, particularly in the area around Kyrenia and the Cypriot capital of Nicosia. (AP Map)

Canadian Consul Courageous

NICOSIA (CP) — Courageous leadership helped Canadian Consul Ted Fleming of Ottawa escape the dodges of Canadian consul here at the height of the invasion crisis.

Fleming and his wife Joan spent endless hours checking Canadian tourists and residents in Cyprus. At one point they had 186 of them on their list, but some have since left the island so part of those figures is now obsolete. Fleming, a Canadian official said Monday.

In the early hours of August 15 the Flemings were taking emergency telephone calls when the line to battle-ragged Kyrenia in northern Cyprus.

The British carrier Hermes, the guided-missile destroyer Devonshire and frigate Andromeda took part in the naval escort operation which began at dawn.

A British military spokesman said 2,500 persons had assembled east of Kyrenia on Six-Mile Beach and were being taken by helicopter towards the Hermes.

Impeachment Issue Political Tussle

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the evidence in and the arguments made, members of the House of Representatives judiciary committee are turning to strategy in preparation for their crucial decision on whether President Nixon should be impeached.

At party caucuses and private meetings, Democrats are searching for the best way to bring articles of impeachment to a vote while Republicans are planning counter-moves.

Democrats found themselves divided at a caucus Monday night over whether to phrase in with a proposed article of impeachment when debate opens oral resolution on impeachment and leave specific articles to be proposed later.

Republicans are opposing moves on before another is offered, preferring to have all the voting at the end. They don't like the prospect of a snowball effect in case an early article is approved.

After proving troublesome to the Democrats is the order to each day will propose articles. Some favor going with the strongest first, while others would prefer to lost the strongest with a marginal one.

A proposal that was added to the debate and voting procedure, voted to allow 30 minutes of debate and rebuttal summations. Some Democrats fear the Republicans will resort to delaying tactics in an effort to produce good-looking rulings by Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem., N.J.) that would give an appearance of stalling debate.

James St. Clair, Nixon's impeachment defence counsel, added his touch of strategy about the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Great fat was made the conviction involving the FBI.

Rodino said in a news conference Monday night that Doar has abandoned his role as an impartial compiler of facts and become a prosecutor advocating Nixon's impeachment.

While being the case, St. Clair said, he too should be present to provide defence arguments.

St. Clair's proposal was rejected by Rodino as outside the committee's rules, which do not permit participation by outsiders.

"Mr. St. Clair has no further role as I see it," said Rodino.

Rodino said the minority view will be well represented by Sam Ervin, the newly named to the Republicans as their counsel in place of Albert Jenner, who outraged many Republican members by endorsing Doar's conclusion that the evidence warranted Nixon's impeachment.

Canada Balks as Waldheim Seeks to Double UN Force

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim announced plans to double the size of the 2,300-man peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

Austria, Sweden and Finland joined British today in responding positively to the UN request for more troops but Canada has not responded. Waldheim took to consultations with these new contributing troops in the days before making his proposal.

The force now is made up of soldiers from Austria, Britain, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Ireland and Sweden, with small civilian police units from Australia, Austria, Denmark and Sweden.

It was established, in 1964 to serve as a buffer between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots and at one time numbered 7,000 men but was reduced as tensions appeared to subside.

Canada now provides 520 troops to the force, mostly from the Edmonton-based Canadian Armored Regiment. Canada's contribution is second only to that of Britain, which supplies 700 troops.

After Waldheim's statement on troops, Britain announced it is ready to send its another 600 men. Sweden announced today it is to increase its contribution by 200 men, Finland said it is ready to send 200 more now and another 200 later while Austria said it will send another 50 troops. Sweden now has 240 men on Cyprus, the current Austrian force is 377 men while the Austrian force will be increased to 200 men with 25 on UN police duties.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Sharp said the UN might need so many more men in Cyprus that Canada may ask the UN to ask not only those countries already there but other countries as well to make a manpower contribution.

Pay to Be $17,000

Everybody Wants to Sweep Streets of San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Artists, students, laborers, even a lawyer are among thousands clamoring for coveted jobs sweeping the streets and gutters of San Francisco for $17,000 a year.

"The guys are going to be making almost as much as me," said Bernard Orel, general manager of the civil service commission which has 750 inquiries and applications a day—but no openings.

The city's 220 street sweepers already earn $13,000 annually.

Most now work five days a week, eight hours a day, but the new jobs would require only four days a week, 10 hours a day.

The city charter has a clause here over recently enacted pay raises. Mayor Joseph Alioto says it creates an "obvious inequity," and the city attorney has been asked for a legal opinion.

An applicant must pass a civil service test, and a physical examination that requires lifting a 100-pound sack over his or her shoulders.

Orel said he knows of one applicant, John Larsen, 22, a 200-pound college student who has studied business, criminology and physical education. "I couldn't come out of college and find a job that pays that much."

Paula Lee, 24, a housewife and mother of two, said she is applying because "it's good money."

"I am perfectly qualified for that job. As a housewife, I've got plenty of experience behind a broom," she said.

The provision in the city charter has created a furor here over recently enacted pay raises. Mayor Joseph Alioto says it creates an "obvious inequity," and the city attorney has been asked for a legal opinion.

Rollers in Bad Shape

Bay Bridge Problems Getting Worse

Boat owners passing up or down the Bay of Quinte are in for still further delays as the result of weekend inspection of the Bay Bridge at Belleville.

Big Contract

A Belleville firm, AOCO Ltd., has been given a $31,921 Federal contract for the manufacture of an gleaner, the Department of Supply and Services announced Monday. It was one of 222 mechanical contracts, each worth $10,000 or more for a total value of $7,531,854 awarded to Canadian companies during the week ended July 12.

Until further notice the much maligned bay bridge will swing only every three hours, instead of the once an hour put into effect late last week.

The bridgemaster said the every three hour swing policy went into effect Monday noon, four hours of operation for the bridge are from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Excessive wear on the rollers on which the span moves during the swinging is the reason for the less frequent bridge opening.

The three-hour swing intervals will be in effect until new rollers can be ordered and installed.

Special Council Meeting May Discuss Zoning Bid

A special meeting of city council could be called to deal with the application of Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. for a zoning change on Palmer Road to allow construction of the condominium units.

The application is for rezoning of a tract of land west of Palmer Road and north of the extension of Bridge Street West.

Plans for the proposed housing subdivision, which in addition to the condominium units would see 13 single-family residences built at the south end of the property, have been before the various city boards and committees for consideration and comment.

Monday the city traffic committee approved in principle basic development plans although there was considerable discussion as to how a condominium subdivision differed from a conventional one.

Frank Stakmens, assistant planner with the Quinte Planning Board, noted that with a condominium subdivision, construction and maintenance of roads is the responsibility of the developer as is internal garbage pickup. Police enforcement on traffic matters is another matter of consideration.

The proposed new condominium subdivision would have internal roads to serve the various townhouse units as well as a new east-west street running across the south end of the property.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey noted that if comments from the various city boards and committees were received in time the rezoning application could be considered on Friday, following a special council meeting being called for council to deal with proposed land sales.

Herchimer Residents Are Still Unhappy

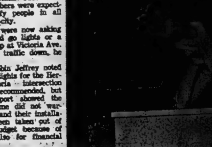
Herchimer Ave. residents who without success earlier this year asked council to bar heavy trucks from their street still want something done to slow down the traffic rumbling past their doors.

Traffic committee recommended no action on the residents' earlier request pointing out that there was no alternate route the trucks could take.

But on Monday's traffic committee meeting Alderman Arthur Keegan said Herchimer residents were still unhappy and suggested if something was not done "we will hear about it in December."

Alderman said committee members were expected to satisfy people in all parts of the city.

Residents were now asking for stop and go lights or a four-way stop at Victoria Ave. to slow the traffic down, he said.



Mayor Robin Jeffrey noted that traffic lights for the Herchimer-Victoria intersection had been recommended, but a later report showed the traffic volume did not warrant lights and their installation had been taken out of the 1974 budget because of this and also for financial reasons.

City Manager Wilbur Purcell recalled that the police chief, in a traffic survey report on the intersection, had recommended against a four-way stop. He didn't recall the exact reasoning for the recommendation.

Monday, however, Traffic Inspector Ralph Hatchford didn't feel a four-way stop would solve the problem of Herchimer Ave. residents.

He wasn't sure that many heavy trucks were using Herchimer since Canada Cement-LaFarge closed its Point Anne Plant and moved to Bath.

The inspector felt a four-way stop would only aggravate the noise problem with trucks having to stop and then grind gears to get going again.

The Only Girl

...nly girl in 45-member ...argun club on Tyendinaga Reserve is nine-year-old Vaughn Maracle. She receives instruction from Richard Brant, a reserve police officer who assists with supervision of youngsters' group formed to instruct in safety measures.

Air Gun Club a Success

TYENDINAGA — A recreation project with a serious objective has hit the target with young gusto on this Quinte Mohawk Reserve.

The Mohawk Air Gun Club has just discharged the parting shots of its inaugural season.

The club — which counts 45 members eight to 15 years of age — was started last spring, the initial in a growing number of recreation programs on the reserve in recent times.

But its organization has a deliberate intent. By historic right, Indians are free to hunt and fish on their own reserves without need of license. This, however, also means regular safety training courses needed to qualify for provincial hunting licences are not mandatorily available.

Adults active in reserve affairs, were convinced such training would be beneficial. They pondered ways of organizing it.

The solution was the airgun club where, one night a week, young Indians are supervised to...scroffs in a hangar at the old Mohawk airfield.

Involved adults act as instructors, initialing the young members — now totalling 45 — in gun-handling and other aspects of safety.

Another beneficial side effect seen is heightened easy contact between youngsters and grownups — like the reserve's two-man police force and school teachers, who are among the supervisors.

The organizers believe it's the only club of its kind in the area. Their project has been so successful, they feel, they now wish to contact other clubs and arrange competitions.

The club's first season has closed out with a target competition. Winners were: Seniors — Jamie Hill, 13, Kelly Brant, 14, Eddy Maracle, 11; Juniors — Bonnie Maracle, 16, Trevor Brant, 13, Chris Brant, eight.

The Safety Fact

Tom Maracle, Tyendinaga Reserve police officer, instructs John Beta, five, and 11-year-old Eddie Maracle, in correct gun handling. Through air gun club, today's recreation teaches safety to young hunters, say organizers.

Going to the People

A project by five Belleville students called Priorities of People an Opportunities for Youth project has shown carrying on for over a month now. In...

The job is being undertaken by a group of five students, all Centennial Secondary School graduates, working on a ten-week Opportunities for Youth project called Priorities of People. The project began the week of June 18.

The project is funded by a $4,788 federal grant under the OFY program and the results of the survey will be published by the city's Chamber of Commerce.

Already 650 surveys have been done and 350 out of an total objective of 1,000 remain to be done. The students are hoping to get a good cross-section of social, ethnic and age groups.

Those working on the assessment project are Mark Everard Doug Preston, Marion Jones, Drew Gonsolus and Randy Whiteman.

The ability of the questionnaire is a flexible one but as guidelines, the students have considered everything from downtown improvement to facilities in the city for senior citizens and youth. They are asking people to respond to these or add their own.

Among the responses which students have had so far are the following: better parking at the hospital, Sunday buses, should Belleville grow larger, possible economic discussion is awaiting a senior citizen rooms and should the city support the Yardmen's Olympic Centre.

The areas the students have yet to cover are the Hillcrest area, Keller Drive, Highland Avenue, East Bridge and the King George area.

While the work of obtaining interviews is a serious one, there have been a few light moments. For one thing, the students say they have been mistaken for everything from Jehovah Witnesses, to salesmen to appraisers.

Eggs people have the occasion to vary that the interviews are mandatory and a few people don't want to have anything to do with the whole thing.

But for now, the students are hoping that everyone will co-operate in their efforts to find out which priorities Belleville needs. They ask those who have been contacted and said they would send in the survey, have, would phone, mail or drop in their responses. The number is 962-4566 and the offices are at the number of Commerce downtown.

Crosswalk Question Raised - - Again

The whole question of official crosswalks in Belleville is to be reviewed — again.

The question has been raised by Peter Ferrier, resident, who, in a letter to Mayor Robin Jeffrey, suggested that the pedestrian walk across Dundas St. near Loblaws should be clearly marked on the roadway with an overhead sign.

The resident noted that as conditions are at present somebody is going to get hurt with motorists speeding up to beat the lights at Bridge and Dundas.

Mayor Jeffrey pointed out that the pedestrian crossings in Belleville are simply crosswalkers and were not official crosswalks.

"They are merely guides," she said.

The problem, however, was that many pedestrians feel they have the right of way when in actual fact they do not.

Alderman George Zagnus is admitted that he had been approached by shoppers in the Dundas St. area about the pedestrian crossover at the Loblaws and Quinte crosswalks.

"I thought they were legal until about a month ago," he said.

City Manager Wilbur Purcell noted that the idea of official crosswalks had been considered in the city on several occasions with reports from the police chief on it least two occasions, the latest in 1972.

Establishment of official crosswalks entailed considerable expense as overhead and underground wiring is required at each location as well as at the intersections.

Also, he said, there were no parking restrictions within a certain distance of the crossovers.

Whether there was a proven need for the crosswalks was another matter to be considered, he said.

The city manager pointed out that to install official crosswalks on Pinnacle Street without doing the same for other locations would be confusing.

Traffic committee chairman Jack Ireland said that the introduction of official crosswalks without adequate educational programs for both pedestrians and motorists could be dangerous.

Pedestrians could not expect to simply point their way across the street and then step out in front of a car expecting it to stop, he said.

On recommendation of Mayor Jeffrey, the committee agreed that the whole matter of official crosswalks should be reviewed.

Boost For Nurses

The pay increases negotiated on behalf of nurses at Belleville General Hospital and a number of other hospitals around the province are in keeping with the status and responsibility of the profession.

This recognition comes at a time when inflationary pressures are a universal problem. Yet without such increases this indispensable profession of nursing was in danger of remaining something in the nature of a Cinderella group in the sphere of medical care.

A Kingston General Hospital nurse, Judy Dorman, wrote a letter to the city's newspaper recently which put the nurses' case eloquently. She spoke of the disillusionment felt by many in her profession because of insufficient staff and consequent inability to look after the patients to the extent they would like. And this at a wage which by today's standards was certainly inadequate.

Noting that many nurses had left the profession because they could not afford to do what they were trained to do, Ms. Dorman wrote: "If I had to support a family on my income, I'm afraid we'd be sleeping on park benches and eating macaroni. . ."

The nurses in many instances have won their case for better pay and working conditions. Let's hope it will lead to improved morale and nursing care, as well as favoring recruitment to the profession. And, most important of all, a level of attention to patients that will make the hospital sojourn as pleasant as possible and help restore as many as possible to full health.

Alarming Trends

A reading of contemporary happenings reveals the usual plethora of events at home and abroad. Some, so far as the home front is concerned, are more alarming than others.

Take the social and educational scene: on the surface calm, but deep down restive, disturbed, and potentially explosive.

Consider this observation by Doug Hall, a policeman who became an Anglican priest and court chaplain. "The young people today," he said in an interview in Toronto, "are tougher and harder. They have more contempt for the system. There used to be a greater number who were frightened and crying." And where prisoners used to come from the downtown core, they now come from all parts of the city, he says.

In Belleville last April, Children's Aid Society director Bruce Kerr said more teenagers were being admitted to the society's care. He said this, and the particular problems they brought with them, were placing a considerable strain on CAS resources.

Most of this is rather startling comment: "We haven't really learned yet how to handle teenagers."

Two other news items; signs of our times, we're those: the Ontario crime rate has risen 91 per cent in the last five or six years; and abortions now outnumber births in some Metro Toronto hospitals.

Perhaps the most telling of contemporary horror stories was a recent article by a Toronto secondary school teacher, Tom MacFarlane. The article was headed "Terrible Times in Toronto's blackboard jungle."

Mr. Markowitz paints a depressing picture of life in the establishment, one of nine special schools in the downtown area which are designed to teach students with learning problems.

In these places the story is one of vandalism, indiscipline, youngsters in an atmosphere tantamount to captivity, and teachers who are both capable and dedicated but find themselves waging a hopeless uphill battle.

Markowitz offers some suggestions to Education Minister Wells which he believes might relieve the situation. Not everyone between the ages of two and 18 in Ontario (ages mentioned in the Hall-Dennis report) belongs in a school, he points out. Some should be reduced systematically to 70 per cent of the age group, and the school leaving age should be lowered to 14. Furthermore, school authorities should be permitted to expel students where it is justified.

Artificial Heart on Way

Medical Technology Largely Left up to Manufacturers

UNESCO Features

The National Heart and Lung Institute in the United States has stated that a totally implantable artificial heart capable of meeting the physiological needs of a human being, powered by a rechargeable battery or an atomic energy source, and providing for patient comfort and rehabilitation, is likely to be developed within the next decade.

Some of the social implications of this very advanced type of medical technology were described by Dr. Aldred Gellhorn, then dean of the School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, and now director of the Centre for Biomedical Education, City College of New York, at a round-table conference in Geneva under Unesco and WHO auspices.

The subject of the meeting organized by CIOMS — the Council for International Organizations of the Medical Sciences of which Dr. Gellhorn was president — was the protection of human rights in the light of scientific and technological progress in biology and medicine.

The fact that the artificial heart has not yet been developed to the point of human application offers an opportunity to study its implications and weighs the advantages and disadvantages which lie ahead, Dr. Gellhorn stressed, and he added:

"What is our reaction? Shall we cry hosanna and surge full speed ahead? Or shall we point to the symbolical role of the heart as the seat of the soul and the fount of love and sorrow, the removal of which and its replacement by a machine would create only a masquerade of a human?"

The Artificial Heart Assessment Panel in the United States put it very candidly: "Will (the device's) replacement by a mechanical pump and motor not merely place technology deep in a man's breast, but place man more deeply in the bosom of technology?"

In the pace, the physician's role is to preserve the life of his patient at all costs. But as technological means of maintaining respiration and circulatory function have become more sophisticated, the quality of living has come to be recognized as a necessary consideration in the preservation of life, Dr. Gellhorn said.

"If the artificial heart merely makes it possible for a man to survive, while the quality of his life remains at the vegetative level, then there is a very real question as to whether this constitutes a benefit to the individual."

The issue is also important, Dr. Gellhorn said, from the standpoint of society. If the individual to whom an artificial heart has been given has the capacity to perform well and productively, then it is an advantage to society. If, on the other hand, he is made a living invalid, then the costs to society have enormously increased."

Assuming that the artificial heart is entirely successful and that it extends the individual's useful life for 10 years, what are the implications for that young people who grow up? Will they be held back in terms of assuming responsibilities, or should society plan alternative uses for people whose life has been extended?

If the artificial heart were to result in a significant increase in the number of older people, the present social trend to hold off having children until a later age, so that we should not become over-populated. Population specialists say that some doubt as to whether this would actually occur. But, said Dr. Gellhorn, if it did result in delaying the period of childbearing, this would affect the person considerably.

Yet another concept is the cost of the technology. It has been estimated that in the United States $5,000 per person per year would be available to receive an artificial heart and the operation would be performed at a cost of perhaps $25,000 — making an annual total of $1.25 billion. Some $25,000 would be beyond the means of most patients," Dr. Gellhorn said. "So our cost would have to be borne by society. The question becomes: Is it wise for society to spend its money in this way?"

In 1972, expenditure for medical care in the United States was nearly $83 billion, and of this, more than $2 billion were spent on such industrial products as drugs, surgical instruments, X-ray equipment and electronic apparatus.

"Just as we have the pharmaceutical-industrial complex," Dr. Gellhorn said, "so there would be added to it the health-industrial complex in which profit-making corporations play a major role . . . But, unlike many other industrial products, medical technology is little influenced by the usual forces of the market place, because the consumer who ultimately pays the bill is not the one who has the opportunity to examine the issues, such as effectiveness or cost-benefit impact on the total cost of medical care, or possible alternatives."

The introduction of advanced medical technology, he stressed, should not be left solely to the discretion of the manufacturer, who has a profit motive, nor of the physician, researcher and his teaching hospital, who gain prestige and renown for development and application. To meet the moral and social issues raised by such technology, he suggests that a tribunal, which would act as a citizens' advocate as well as a weigher of scientific evidence, may be needed to make final recommendations on policy.

This is all the more important when one realizes how many things are not being done in the health area because the physicians know would be valuable. Is it really so unacceptable, Dr. Gellhorn asks, that the one country we should spend $1.25 billion for an artificial heart, when some of the leading cardiovascular research specialists say their needs are not being met? For example, it has been demonstrated that a major cause of heart disease is cholesterol in the blood. "And mercury," Dr. Gellhorn said, "is entirely preventable."

The time may be approaching, he believes, when the expenditure for advanced medical technology will have to be weighed against expenditure for less glamorous measures that might make a greater contribution to health.

"The evidence is compelling that morbidity and mortality, for many diseases, can be reduced to low socio-economic levels by relatively inexpensive associated with poor nutrition, poor sanitation, poor sanitation. It is probable that allocation of resources to the alleviation of poverty, coupled with health education, would have a greater impact on health than an equal allocation to medical services or advanced medical technology."

. . . it can also be argued that there might be a higher priority in the expenditure of funds for air, rich and poor alike, than for the control of the environmental pollution, than for advances in medical research."

Tanaka Facing Familiar Crisis

By JOHN D. HARRISON

Thomson News Service

Japan and Britain, two fellow nations among the world's industrialized powers, are still in the throes of the same kind of government uncertainty which Canada faced before Prime Minister Trudeau's victory July 8.

This column earlier compared the chronic uncertainty of democratic governments in all the world's major democracies, noting that all their prime ministers including ours, were in power with either confidence or minority governments.

Since Mr. Trudeau's strong come-back suddenly made us the exception to this curved condition rather than part of it, Japan's crisis of democratic leadership has severely worsened while Britain's remains about the same.

Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka, after an upset in the cabinet upper house of the Japanese Diet, called the Diet or Councillors, has been faced with three senior cabinet members' resignations. Two of these men, Deputy Premier Takeo Miki and former Prime Minister Tetsu Katoka, are considered candidates for the party leader of the ruling Liberal-Democratic party.

Like the Liberals in Canada when the end of the Second World War, the Liberal-Democrats in Japan have largely held electoral power.

Other comparisons with our Liberals come from cabinet ministers' accusations that Premier Tanaka has party ties and shots are too closely associated with big business (which in Japan is almost entirely Conservative), and that Tanaka has failed to control inflation in his campaign.

Japanese inflation now has reached the annual rate of 24 per cent, a long way ahead of our 11 per cent, but also Japan, as a rule the Japanese fight they would not tolerate.

If Prime Minister Trudeau could lost his election July 8 he had been forced to put together another minority government with the NDP's David Lewis or John Turner could have looked somebody like Claude Wagner, a cost opposite number in Japan.

Tanaka is the man who is ready to take over from the weakened leader.

Things in Japan a brace of rough opposition parties representing both right-and left-wing factions (one is the Buddhist social religious Soka Gakkai is the outer-bachelor Socialists are ready any time to unseat the Liberal-Democrats.

But dissident Japanese Liberal-Democrat cabinet ministers are not prepared to desert the Liberal-Democrat machine and they appear to favor Tanaka for party dominion office.

In Britain, Prime Minister Harold Wilson's majority isn't enough to prevent the defeat of the House of Commons of which he has suffered four since re-election. The Labor party's parliamentary scheme-of-things does not seem considerable attention to the Opposition has won a vote of non-confidence in the government.

It is generally believed Wilson will go to the country this fall. And like Prime Minister Trudeau he will be hoping to win a majority.

But then look back to general election returned Wilson's Labor majority in the 1970 election, although Conservatives won all the polls, except one Gallup poll, predicted a Labor win.

It is useful to know in a world of readily distasteful regimes, that there are countries that are, literally, the envy of others the better but still has the final say.

No Deterrent to Robbers

Bankers Decide to Soon Put Away Their Six-shooters

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The banks are now putting down their shooting irons.

They have "re-assessed our position" and decided to remove guns from branch banks, says Michael Ballard, director of security, Canadian Bankers' Association.

However, the decision has not yet been carried out at all branches throughout Canada, he adds. So a bank robber still runs some risk of being involved in a shoot-out.

The traditional opposition between bank and gun is North American can be traced back to the old days of the Wild West, south of the 49th parallel, where few only effective law enforcement was the threat of a six-gun," says Mr. Ballard, writing in the Canadian Banker.

"The banker, like everyone else, always had his "total machismo" at stake when confronted by a gun. And when the need arose, he became sheriff, jury, judge and executioner—or, more frequently, occupant of a cheap pine box."

Here are some of the reasons that have led Canadian bankers to change their minds about the desirability of having firearms in branch banks:

—The presence of guns provided little deterrence.

—Bank personnel received no training in the handling of firearms.

—In most cases the weapons were not properly maintained.

—Accidents have resulted, including the shooting of customers.

—The presence of a gun increased the potential for personal shoot-out during a robbery.

An example of the tragic potential of misadventure in a gun was the fatal shooting of a young Toronto bank clerk by his manager, who was aiming at a revolver bandit.

Another was the suicide of a fellow-student of mine who, depressed, sought a summer job with a bank apparently in order to have access to a gun.

The decision to remove guns from bank premises and replace them with closed circuit television cameras, bank security officials say, will:

It does not mean that the banks have become apathetic to robbery, however, Mr. Ballard explains.

But it underlines the banks'

Mother Bell Gets Message

Cambridge Reporter

For someone who is big in the communications business, Mother Bell has a small way of receiving messages.

With considerable fanfare, a Bell spokesman told the regional advisory council of Kiwanis of trade and Chambers of Commerce that someday soon telephone subscribers would be able to dial toll-free throughout the region, with a few exceptions.

Perhaps to cushion the bad news side of the story, a general rate increase in Gait, Preston and Hespeler was also announced noted that toll-free service between those three centres had been in effect for some time. No mention that those three centres are now part of city, Cambridge, and that it is normal to be able to phone any one side of a city to the other without paying a long distance toll.

Mortgage Matches Wits

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In his reply to my letter on mortgages Mr. Lewis suggested that he is the "ball-street" as he accused me of being.

It stands to reason that the average man with $50,000 saved and wishing to buy a house, is unlikely to become involved in a $50,000 deal. He will cost him over $100,000 in 25-year period. He'll put his cash down.

Mr. Lewis unnecessarily overlooked to mention that average working man (the majority in Canada), has to buy his home on credit, and for the most part three days, the cheapest housing for sale.

As the average man does not have $50,000 in the bank to pay for a house, he has to resort to the making of a mortgage.

With also Mr. Lewis did not deny that the cost of the mortgage, namely $150,000 for $50,000, was correct.

Soon after publication of the Lewis letter, I received a call. The caller indicated that he was a Real Estate Agent. For the record, he agreed that the cost was astronomical.

Four Economic Myths Dispelled

By Economist (UK)

This may be the time to finish off the dying cult of extreme scepticism.

The prophets have, assumed four limiting factors on the world's economic growth, if by causing order of respectability; they say the world will run out of raw materials, will suffer ever-increasing pollution, will have too large a population and too little food.

At present, "known reserves" of most metals are historically rather high — about a hundred years' supply. But random samples suggest that the natural occurrence of most metals in the top mile of the earth's crust is about a million times as great as known reserves, so we could probably extract as much "known" reserves for many hundred years' supply of metals from that top mile by existing technology.

The world's food problem is nothing to do with physical it ratio on food production. Even if there were no new discoveries in food-growing technology from now on, and we continued to cultivate only the very small proportion of the earth's surface now used as farmland, a raising of all other countries' efficiency of cultivation to that of the Netherlands would already suffice to feed a population (with world population is 3.7 billion), but also big improvements in food-growing technology are almost certain during our children's lifetime — the whole agricultural system is revolutionized in the ground, and then waiting for the sun and add to make them grow, is surely in its last phase of inefficiency with especial early adopt the poor countries where a very small input of new technology would have some dramatic results.

There was a real paradox in the food price boom: every issue of these was accompanied by pictures of environmentally-damaging farm machinery. The man who prefers to grow food rather than to destroy it should consider why they fail to attract the financial investment in the kind of products that are needed — such as the building of irrigation and performance contracts for all who will bring in reclaimed opportunities, modern urban management systems, and nutrition and health education. Moreover, not cultivation, will be the key to the world's growing urban problem.

Kingston Plant Is Closed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Alcan Canada Products plant here shut down Monday after 1,300 union employees voted Sunday to go on strike.

The employees are members of Local 343, United Steelworkers of America, and Lodge 54, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

The closure is the first total work stoppage at the plant, the largest Aluminum fabricating plant in Canada.

The two unions, which negotiate separately but for almost identical contracts, are asking for a cost-of-living adjustment and dental plan which the company has so far refused to consider.

Unleaded Gas To Be Plentiful

OTTAWA (CP) — United States tourists and Canadian motorists travelling here can unleaded gasoline should find the right service stations without much difficulty by this fall, say government officials.

One in every five brand name gasoline outlets will supply unleaded gas by fall, when 1972 model cars with new catalytic converter systems started to vices start flooding the market, says an industry department report released Monday.

Dan Wallace, director of the Canadian government's motor vehicle control branch, said the report he has seen convinces him there will be enough service stations with the unleaded fuel. Last, motorists will not have to worry.

Police Action Called Callous

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lawyer said Monday that the police's Symbionese Liberation Army members killed in a May 17 shootout with police "could have been a "secondary homicide," and called the incident a "callous lack of regard for human life."

A police spokesman called the allegations "ridiculous."

Lawyer Leonard Weinglass, speaking for the American Civil Liberties Union, at a press conference that a public inquest should be launched into whether questions not answered to his satisfaction in an official police report released Friday on the shootout.

Weinglass said William Wolfe, 22 year-old son of an anesthesiologist, was not an SLA member and "I have information that he was even on their 'hit list' and he might even have been a secondary hostage."

Get New Craft

TORONTO (CP) — Operators of a hovercraft service between Toronto, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Que., and Youngstown, N.Y., have added a second vessel.

A spokesman for Can-Am Hover Express said the operators had expected to carry about 50 per cent of passenger capacity for seven days but sold out their seats.

The first hovercraft had a capacity of 38 passengers, the second one, which began operating last week can carry 47 passengers.

The spokesman said the number of round trips across the lake also has been increased to seven from four.

No Demand

TORONTO (CP) — The Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO) has not listed alcoholic beverages of older than 25 years because there is little or no demand for it in the province, George Kitching, chairman of the board, said Monday.

"It's not a question of refusal," said Mr. Kitching. He added the problem is one of trying to find a market through the board's outlets for older products now listed.

The board recently "delisted" two imported ciders and further delistings are indicated.

Fires Spread

TORONTO (AP) — A forest fire in northwestern Ontario, 22 miles east of Red Lake, has spread on the north and west perimeters and now covers 2,000 to 3,000 acres, the ministry of natural resources reported Monday.

Motel Read Described

Police Say 'Everybody' Knew About Drug Use

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Niagara regional police had decided to search every patron of the Lakeside motel in Fort Erie before they conducted their May 11 drug raid, Crown Attorney Andre Mille'jours said Monday.

The sergeant, a member of the Niagara regional police intelligence squad that specializes in drug investigations, also said during the first day of a royal commission hearing into the raid that he authorized "skin searches" of female patrons in the hotel.

The commission, under Judge John Parker of Toronto, which was ordered by Solicitor-General George Kerr last month after criticism of police methods during the raid.

Monday, commission counsel Burton Kellock asked whether some of the persons involved inside the hotel might not have been more suitable subjects.

"My information," said the sergeant, "was that drugs were quite openly used on the premises; anybody there would be open to a search and seizure."

Mr. Kellock said police force in Fort Erie was an immense one, and that some customers who weren't initially known to the drug problem had complained to police.

"They left," the sergeant said.

Mr. Kellock then asked about the possibility that people unaware of the police search might be caught in the raid.

"It's possible, but very remote, in my estimation, they would leave," the sergeant said.

The raid conducted by the Niagara regional policemen resulted in few arrests and the sergeant testified he found two grams or less of what police tests later showed to be marijuana. There also was a couple of roaches of hash, which have yet to be analyzed.

The undercover men were brought along and it was in connection with their work the arrest said he decided that the strip search would be used on female customers.

All of the women—about 20 in the crowd of about 100 patrons were subjected to a skin search, the sergeant said, so men were searched, according to earlier reports to the legislature.

The strip search of the women would involve them taking off all their clothes while they were searched by the policewomen.

"There was to be absolutely no physical contact, except to search the hair and look in the ear—that was exactly what was to be done," the sergeant said.

He was asked why strip searches were necessary on women and not on most of the men.

"They (the men) pass drugs to women, they stuff them down their pants and such. I think they're borne free. In heroin cases, it's a common practice."

Earlier, there was a conflict with Mr. Kellock and the sergeant and Robert Wood, the St. Catharines barrister for the men.

The sergeant said he thought Mr. Wood had the information that he was preparing for the warrants. Mr. Wood testified he had not seen the information.

The sergeant echoed Police Chief Robert Sherman's testimony that complaints had been received about the use of drugs at the Lakeside.

The sergeant testified he had also had information last fall that drugs were being sold in the hotel.

He also said telephone call, from a man identifying himself as a heroin addict, said that an employee at the Landmark was supplying heroin.

"He said he'd been sold powdered sugar instead of heroin; he'd been ripped off," the policeman said.

On another occasion, a woman had called saying she and her husband stopped going to the hotel because they feared "fights with druggies."

On the night of the raid, he said police searched four cars by the trunk method rather than a strip search.

The sergeant announced the raid was taking place over the hotel's public address system after at least two policemen were spotted by patrons carrying in the evening.

Earlier, Chief Sherman said he first became aware of the Landmark problem in a discussion with police association members May 1, when a constable told him there was a problem here.

He said he "made a mental note . . . that we would look into the matter."

He said that on May 2 he called Insp. Frank Parkhouse of the intelligence squad and, he said, similar information that same day.

Two undercover agents were sent to the hotel to investigate. They reported they observed marijuana being smoked openly in the lounge area in front of the staff.

The inspector then decided on the raid and Chief Sherman approved it.

Insp. Earl Pace of the criminal investigation bureau in the Niagara Falls area said he had received phone calls from informants indicating a drug problem at the Landmark.

He also testified that informants said two employees of the hotel were drug pushers.

Chief Sherman said he was not informed that all the patrons were going to be searched.

"I had no knowledge all were searched until after the raid was finished," he said.

He said he gave Insp. Parkhouse permission to invite RCMP officers on the raid.

The chief said he later learned that "one of the RCMP men had been burned (an undercover term for recognized) shortly before we'd gone in."

The hearing continues.

Hydro Head Shuns Accepting Inflation

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of Ontario Hydro told the Ontario Energy Board Monday during hearings into Hydro's application for a 15-per-cent wholesale rate increase that he disagreed with predictions about inflation made by the utility's chief economist.

George Gathercole said he did not accept some of chief economist D. A. Drinkwater's statements in a five-year financial forecast prepared for the hearings, that inflation will become more stable and the government efforts to combat it will subside.

Mr. Gathercole said inflation was a particularly serious problem in capital-intensive operations such as Hydro.

Even if there was an immediate freeze on prices and wages and a stabilization of income rates, he said, "the cost of electricity would have to keep going up."

The hearings continue.

Britain Borrows Billion from Iran

LONDON (AP) — The British government is using a $1.3-billion loan from oil-rich Iran to fill holes and increase social subsidies in an attempt to check inflation.

The loan, announced Monday in Tehran, will consist of three bonds, with the bearing on the prevailing interest rate in the international money market, Denis Healey, chancellor of the exchequer, said the money will boost such nationalized industries as coal, steel and railways, which are running at deficits in an attempt to check inflation.

The loan will also help bridge the gap until Britain's North Sea oil fields are flowing enough oil for most domestic needs. This is expected in about five years.

Price Spread Annoys Egg Producers Here

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario egg producers are "not very happy" about what they regard as an artificial range in prices across Canada, says Brian E. Haworth, secretary-manager of the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board.

The latest weekly report from the federal agricultural department shows the farm price of grade A large eggs in British Columbia was 77 cents a dozen, compared with 57 cents in Manitoba, 53.5 cents in Newfoundland and 50 cents a dozen in Ontario.

Mr. Ellsworth said Monday that at the beginning of January, the difference between Ontario and British Columbia was five cents a dozen.

Joseph Hudson, a director of the Ontario board and one of the largest egg producers in Canada, said Monday that he had recommended that the Ontario board raise its price 10 cents a dozen and that U.S. tariffs be raised to make it prohibitive.

New Job Security Offered Railroaders

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal that would protect the jobs of non-operating railway workers with eight years experience or retain Monday by h county's Conservative member, 88 per cent of their normal basic income, was submitted to arbitrators here Monday by the country's two major railways.

Jack Anderson, vice-president for industrial relations of CP Rail, submitted the plan on behalf of his company and Canadian National Railways to Mr. Justice Emmett Hall, retired Supreme Court of Canada judge appointed arbitrator after Parliament ended the 1973 national rail strike.

The proposal, described as supplementary to existing job security provisions, involves a breakdown of the barriers separating various job classifications.

Mr. Anderson said, a railway worker with 18 years seniority now may be laid off, even though a newly-hired employee is doing similar work—but in a different work unit and often at a member of a different union—retains his job.

The railways' proposal would move the senior worker into the other work unit, even if it involved a transfer into a different union, and bump the most junior employee wherever he works in the non-operating section of the railway.

NO REDUCTION

The senior worker moved into a new job, would not be reduced to the status of a junior comer, but would take his seniority with him.

The railroad negotiators were present during the presentation of the management proposal, but did not indicate their feelings. They will probably present their views today.

Job security and the size of straight train crews were also a stumbling blocks to agreement during the rail strike last year.

Submission of proposals on job security to Mr. Justice Hall is the culmination of discussions between unions and management held with government officials next week by submissions of proposals on train crews.

The unions have already said they want a job-security plan that would prevent the layoff of any employee with four years' seniority.

REAL ESTATE:

LAND TAX LAWS

Recent amendments to Ontario's new Land Tax Laws provide some relief for investors and investors that were not included in the original bill.

Where a homeowner buys a new house without having first sold his old one, he will be allowed to claim that the old one was continuous for a six month period without being liable for speculation tax.

Another exemption now granted is where a person over 65 ceases to occupy a family residence and buys a smaller one, but at least five years. In his case and provided the senior citizen lives in rental accommodation he or she will be thought of their residence at a later date without attracting the speculation tax.

Another section of the act provides for a reduction in the taxable value of industrial rental property held for three years between April 9, 1974. This would appear to afford relief for the investor as opposed to the speculator.

The real estate department of the Toronto-Dominion Bank says that the demand for a person dealing in property in Ontario is an ever increasing need for sound advice from a lawyer, accountant and realtor.

Shaheen Thinks 'Mastermind' Directs Attacks on Nixon

NEW YORK (CP) — John Shaheen says he believes someone "mastermind" is directing attacks on President Nixon—"very successfully so far"—with the objective of forcing him out of the White House.

Mr. Shaheen, a prominent oil refiner, a close friend of the president, also agreed with suggestions that Nixon's enemies were done a psychological pro-cess on him to exploit his weaknesses.

"I'm sure that's true," Shaheen said in an exclusive interview with The Canadian Press.

"I don't point any finger at any one person, or any group, but I think that the events will bring some of it out. I don't think Nixon himself appreciates that all this is happening.

"The roof is falling in on him, and I don't think he quite realizes who's been up there with a sledge hammer breaking in the roof—a good number of the presidency—and it takes a powerful lot of sledge-hammer blows to break down the American presidency."

Shaheen also is a commissioner of the United States Information Agency and a member of the National Petroleum Council, an advisory body to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton.

But I've never discussed the oil business with the president since the day he went into the White House," Shaheen said. "I wouldn't dream of it."

Before he was elected to the presidency in 1968, Richard Shaheen's lawyer for seven years was the Shaheen Natural Resources Co. and the big new Come-by-Chance, Nfld., refinery is Shaheen's.

Shaheen's comments on Nixon's problems, revolving around the Watergate political espionage scandal were among the most caustic he has made from a top member of the Republican business community.

The multi-millionaire oilman said that on balance the president "has performed a near-perfect function to administer his office properly."

Shaheen said Nixon has an uncanny ability to analyze.

"It's a pity he doesn't have equally uncanny ability to administrate.

"He's probably the best analyst that this country has ever had in the White House."

Bank Rate Up

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce announced Monday an increase in its minimum lending rate by one-half of a percentage point to 11¼ per cent, effective immediately.

The interest rate paid on non-chequing savings accounts will be increased to 5¼ per cent from 5%, effective Aug. 1.

The increases are similar to those announced June 26 by the Bank of Montreal.

Revolt Ruins Vacation

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian family who quit their Montreal restaurant business to pay for a two-month holiday in Cyprus are heading sadly back to Canada after being flown out of the war-torn island with other tourist refugees in a Royal Air Force plane.

"It took me 20 years to make that trip, and," Tony Karidas, 42-year-old father of four, who was born in Limassol in 1/2 south of Cyprus and had lived 28,000 in the vacation he planned to spend with his father and two sisters, who still live in Limassol.

Rate Rises

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) announced Monday that its landleasing rate for mortgages for housing units to be built under the Hogse Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) plan will increase one per cent to 9¼ per cent.

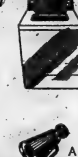
The increase, effective immediately, means the H.O.M.E. mortgages about two per cent below conventional rates. The announcement said the plan will still help people with moderate incomes to take advantage of H.O.M.E. projects.

Pigs Down

OTTAWA (CP) — The pig population on June 1 this year totalled roughly 6.58 million, a seven-per-cent drop from the 7.07 million pigs living in the country on the same date last year.

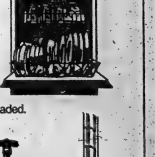
Statistics Canada reported Monday that the decrease during the first five months this year dropped five per cent to 536,000 from the June 1973 count. Farrowings are expected to decrease still further during the remainder of the year.

Nurses Picket



TORONTO (CP) — About 38 psychiatric nurses who work in Ontario government hospitals picketed the Queen's Park Monday in a bid to achieve wage parity with nurses in general hospitals.

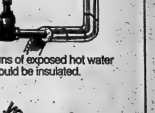
Last week, nurses working in general hospitals were granted salary increases of 6 to 8 per cent over 18 months, while psychiatric nurses with the government hospitals were offered a 39-per-cent increase over 18 months.



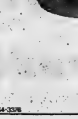
It takes energy to make hot water.

Let's not waste it.

Whatever kind of water heater you have, it makes good sense to use hot water carefully, to conserve energy. Here are a few tips which may help to avoid waste.



You'll use less hot water in the laundry if you wash only full loads. If your washing machine has a water level selector, choose the right amount for the size of the load.



If you have a dishwasher, don't use it until it's fully loaded.

A dripping tap or shower head wastes a surprising amount of hot water, and they're both easy to fix.

While the Cascade water heater is designed to use electricity efficiently it's up to you to use it wisely, not wastefully.

Long runs of exposed hot water pipe should be insulated.

Flying Was Fun

A Dare Put Nurse in the Air

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pat Maxwell was a nurse at St. Paul's Hospital in 1938 when Trans-Canada Air Lines advertised for stewardesses.

"I wasn't interested in this new, glamorous job," she said. "Things were going fine where I was. But one of the nurses said to me, 'I'll bet you $5 that you wouldn't dare apply.'

"With that challenge, I put in my application at the last moment and three days later I had a phone call saying I was hired. I had never even been to the airport before."

She said joining Trans-Canada, which later became Air Canada, was the best thing that ever happened to her.

"It was wonderful, and changed my life entirely. In the hospital setting you really don't get to know too much about the business world, but flying taught me a lot."

Mrs. Maxwell and Lucille Garner were stewardesses on a twin-engine Lockheed 14 that TCA ran twice daily on its only passenger flight from Vancouver to Seattle. Their preliminary training was with United Air Lines.

In 1939, when the airline began its transcontinental passenger service, Mrs. Maxwell became assistant chief stewardess and was sent to Winnipeg to train 14 other women. She spent the next couple of years in a supervisory capacity, before she left to get married.

But most of her memories are of the Vancouver-Seattle run.

"The old Mapple bridge was forever opening and our passengers would be stranded at the city end in their cars or taxis.

"We had one passenger who travelled with us two or three times a week and one day when I was alone at the airport, his secretary telephoned to say that he was held up by the Mapple bridge and could we possibly hold the flight as he had an urgent meeting in Seattle.

"He was our only passenger, so I said OH.

"When the crew came back from the weather office, I told them about this and they said I had no authority to hold up the King's mail. There was an urgent meeting. We decided to wait and the passenger was thrilled."

Mrs. Maxwell said stewardesses have changed in 35 years, for the biggest change coming in their association with passengers. In the early days of passenger flying, the stewardesses would talk to the passengers in the waiting room, stand with the ticket agent as they checked in and then check them off as they boarded the aircraft.

Marriages Start with Fantasy

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — "Almost everyone starts a marriage based on fantasy but they have to cope with differences they didn't expect," says a University of Connecticut clinical psychologist who specializes in fight training.

The "goal of fight training" is to set up ground rules and define fighting styles so that couples can harness their aggressiveness and use it for positive purposes," said Donald Mosher, a Gestalt therapist.

Mosher said his workshops are usually limited to six couples who are taught techniques in "fighting fair and clean."

"It's like the boxing ring," Mosher said in explaining the concept. "You can't hit below the belt, you can't hit with more verbal skill and so forth. Through fight training, the does has a better chance of hitting with a hare."

Although Mosher says fighting is a healthy and valuable aspect of marriage, "most couples tend to have the wrong fight a thousand times and differences go unresolved."

DEXTER ON DESIGNS

To break up the cycle, Mosher suggests setting up ground rules for "constructive fighting," instead of ritual fighting.

"Couples must decide what are the important issues in their marriage. With a fight training they can more constructively resolve the differences."

Couples should agree not to bring issues out of the past if there is no benefit in threshing them out. They should agree on penalties areas that are too delicate to withstand a fight.

Rap Ontario Knuckles Over Women's Pay

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Laura Sabia, chairman of the Ontario Status of Women council, said Thursday she is appalled by the fact that 85.3 of the lowest-paying jobs in the Ontario civil service belong to women.

Mrs. Sabia told the council's monthly meeting she is "extremely disturbed" at the figures in the Civil Service Commission's annual report which discloses that as of last March 31, a total of 11,000 of Ontario government's 25,980 employees and 43,640 male employees were making less than $6,000 a year. Of those below $6,000, 94.3 per cent were women.

She said that 51 per cent of people making between $6,000 and $7,999 were female, and the $30,000+ bracket only 1.4 per cent were women. Positions paying more than $14,001 have only 9.7 per cent women, the report said.

"As the salaries go up, the women diminish," Mrs. Sabia said. "It means rapping the government's knuckles. I say that we do it."

"The government, I am sure, is trying very hard and its attention should be brought to this discrepancy."

She said she has arranged a meeting with the chairman of the commission on Monday to see what can be done about the situation.

Ethel McLellan, the commission's only woman member who is also a government representative on the council, said the figures reflect job discouraging. Hospital workers, clerks and typists make up the largest number of government employees and women fill these positions, she said.

She felt that the government should work from the other end to get women into courses that will give them the qualifications for high paying jobs.

Divorce Course Shows You How

TORONTO (CP) — Divorce is a crisis but it doesn't need to be a nightmare.

In fact, it can be the turning point for a new, more positive and constructive approach to life.

That is roughly the philosophy behind a 15-week course at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

The course is designed to help people deal with the crisis and events afterwards.

"It is not just a matter of adjusting to single life again," said Peter Kivilso, instructor in sociology. "It also means establishing one's own self-identity."

Many people react to divorce by keeping to themselves.

Divorce still is not accepted by many employers, friends of all church groups and people involved are regarded as social rejects, disliked and even slightly devious, he said.

One of the major hazards of the course is that it allows people who are separated and divorced to meet other people in the same circumstances.

Currently, at least 70 per cent of those taking the course are women. The course also deals with financial matters involved and the necessary arrangements afterwards.

Mr. Kivilso has been through a divorce himself, so is teaching the course, but in dealing at least partly from experience. Now happily remarried with two children, he is convinced separation does not have to be traumatic.

"It all comes down to learning from our mistakes instead of using them as excuses," he said. "As this course attempts to show, divorce can be a positive experience."

Flying Was Fun

A dare from a colleague launched Pat Maxwell on a new career in 1938 as one of the early stewardesses to serve with Trans-Canada Air Lines—the forerunner of Air Canada. She says flying was fun in the early days,

Victory for Farm Wife

CALGARY (CP) — "It is not only a victory for myself but a victory for all Canadian women in similar situations," Barbara Jan Fiedler said Tuesday.

Mrs. Fiedler, a Sandy, Alta., school teacher divorced three years ago, has been awarded half interest in the farm she helped her former husband establish during their 22-year marriage.

Mrs. Fiedler, 39, was awarded rights to 1¼ sections of land near Cessor, Alta., where the couple lived during part of the time they were married. They also lived in Cremona, Alta., and Calgary.

"I am very pleased with the decision. In my case, I contributed $51,600 during the marriage and this contribution has been recognized by the court."

Hugh Landerkin, Mrs. Fiedler's lawyer, says the decision handed down by Mr. Justice W. K. Moore of the Alberta Supreme Court is significant in that it reaffirms women's property rights.

Mr. Landerkin said Tuesday the Fiedler decision, handed down July 11, cleared legal ambiguity surrounding the controversial Murdoch case. The ambiguity was also criticized by Mr. Justice Moore in his written decision.

The Supreme Court of Canada, in a majority decision last Oct. 2, upheld an Alberta court judgment that Irene Florence Murdoch, separated from her husband, did not have property rights to their ranch at Nanton, Alta.

The majority decision said Mrs. Murdoch's contribution in labor consisted of no more than what could ordinarily be expected of a ranch wife and that she did not make a "substantial contribution" to the property acquired by the Murdochs when they lived together.

The Fiedler case, the first one of its kind in Alberta since the Murdoch case, "is significant in two areas," Mr. Landerkin said in an interview.

"The Murdoch case might have created the impression that the door was closed to women's claims to property rights but, as Mr. Justice Moore said, each case will be considered on its own merits.

"Second, Mr. Justice Moore has made it brighter on the ambiguous clause in the Dower Act."

A new federal Divorce Act was passed in 1968. It contains a clause saying that women should apply for a lump sum or maintenance payments "upon the granting of the decree nisi."

Mr. Justice Moore said in his decision that this clause "has caused considerable amount of anguish to lawyers."

He said that before 1968, "it was clear that a spouse could apply within a reasonable time after the divorce for support and some legal circles have interpreted the word 'upon' as meaning 'contemporaneously with'."

Dave MacNaughton, lawyer for Mr. Fiedler, said the decision may be appealed to the appellate division of the Alberta Supreme Court.

Making Divorce Less Painful

TORONTO (CP) — The breakdown of a marriage can be psychologically destructive for both husband and wife. And all too often children are the most seriously injured victims of their parents' inability to end a relationship amicably.

Two years ago, a group of concerned Toronto lawyers and social workers decided to do what they can to remove some of the pain, bitterness and panic out of divorce.

The group is informal—it has no name. But it might choose to call its work conciliation counselling.

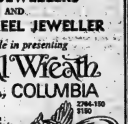
"Not reconciliation," stresses lawyer Ida MacDonald who, with the co-operation of the Metropolitan Toronto Family Service Association, helped start the project.

The group is trying to build a bridge between lawyers and family counselors so husband and wife may review the options.

"Sometimes you get the feeling a couple is faced with a choice going to bed together or getting into the boxing ring," said Mr. MacDonald.

"But the choices aren't necessarily marriage or no marriage. There are areas between, such as temporary separation, while a couple work out whether they really want to split up or try to rebuild their relationship.

"The group now consists of Toronto lawyers specializing in family law and five counsellors who meet monthly. It is headed by Marlene Stelnicky, a Family Service Association counsellor, and lawyer David Main.



Lawyers and social workers meet the pair individually or jointly, talk over the problems, try to work out which are legal and which are personal and what questions of custody, access and money is an emotional issue—considerably different from the one which usually faces a divorce-seeker.

The counselling doesn't always result in a reconciliation, said Ms. Stelnicky, nor should it.

"Many people don't understand that 'marital' counselling can mean 'separation' counselling, too. . . . Even if the marriage can't be saved, it is better if the choice is made with as little bitterness as possible."

The group is planning a conference here for next October on the first of its kind. Sponsored by the federal health department, 100 local lawyers and social workers will meet to discuss ways to make the legal and counselling approach work on a broader scale.

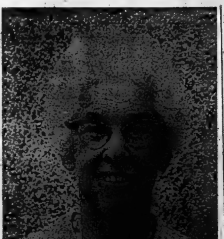
Lorraine Young

Publishes Book

Lorraine Young, a Belleville woman who learned to take fine crochet many years ago, recently published her own book of doily patterns.

Mrs. Young, who lives in King George Square, began crocheting in 1911 when she saw others doing the work and was fascinated. Since that time she's bought hundreds of pattern books and crocheted thousands of doilies for herself and others.



About a year ago Mrs. Young decided she might be able to design crocheted articles herself and began the task of creating the patterns and recording them.

The result is Mary's Crochet, book number one. (Mary is her real first name although she uses Lorraine.)

The book, which she sells by mail and through local stores, included only her own patterns, which she admits takes a knack to write.

Besides creating designs for doilies and cushions — books number two and three are in the works — Mrs. Young helps other people with crochet problems and in addition works on articles of

"I've always got something I can pick up and work on," she says.

Quiet Woman

Maude Harrison, Tweedsmuir Historian

Ask anyone in Latta or Plainfield where Maude Harrison lives and you'll be told it's the pink house near the river.

Ask Maude Harrison about anyone in Latta and Plainfield and she can tell you where he lives — and probably who his grandparents were.

For nearly 28 years, Mrs. Harrison (now widowed) has lived in the same house, and for the last 19 she's been Tweedsmuir historian for the Plainfield Women's Institute. In the course of this field work she's had a great deal about the area that's been her home since she moved from Castleton to teach school in Latta and Thomas Harrison who became her husband.

The Tweedsmuir scrapbooks Mrs. Harrison has made are a mine-full of information about the region. Organized into fifteen books, they include geographical description, information about early settlement, history of old homes and farms, community activities and churches, and many pages devoted to the "personalities" who have made outstanding contributions to the area over the years.

The scrapbooks show in detail the changes that have occurred during Latta's growth, decline, and recent regrowth since the coming of Jericho Settlers' building farms along the river.

Mrs. Harrison has kept track of local news items in daily and weekly newspapers and has recorded obituaries in the East Hastings Municipal Bank.

She also has made several extremely detailed family trees, going back as far as research can take her.

"I was never especially interested in history when I was younger," says Mrs. Harrison, and I always hated writing compositions . . . but now that I've got something to say, I enjoy writing."

She's collected a lot of information interviewing people, and I've become really interested in local history.

"I think maybe as you get older the past means more to you. I can appreciate now of family heirlooms I never cared much for before," she says. It's not just that things are old, but the fact that they have some family meaning."

Mrs. Harrison sleeps on a wood bed that belonged to her mother, and says it's just as comfortable as any modern mattress.

She's seen the changes wrought by 28 years of advances — and remembers well life was like before the decline of Latta's sawmill caused the once-busy village to dwindle.

"The community was the source of entertainment in those days," she recalls. "People made music, and there were parties and socials every week. My brother and sister of the block used to bring their instruments over in the evening and we had a little orchestra.

"Music has always brought me a lot of enjoyment."

Mrs. Harrison taught cooking — as well as many other subject — during her 27 years as a public school teacher in Ontario and Ivens throughout the area. She was choir director and organist at the local United Church for many years, and still leads sing-songs for the IDW and the WI, to which she has life membership.

In 1969 she received a medal from the Governor General for exceptional service to her community "probably because of helping with projects during Centennial year," says Mrs. Harrison.

Keeping involved with projects is still a habit with her, and she tries to "stay busy" by regularly visiting patients at Belleville General Hospital and Hastings Manor, by her continuing work with the scrapbooks and diaries, and by quilting innumerable quilts which she gives to her nieces and nephews and their families.

Successful Living

High Cost of Smoking Broccoli with

By DORIS CLARK

"Cigarettes, when thrinkled in a steaming cart, are too often regarded as part of the food bill. They are lumped in with beans and meat and broccoli. This concealment is part of the smoker's defence mechanism. It allows her to have no regret when protesting at part of the grocery bill.

Shopper's Guide watches show that where Mom and Pop smoke, they spend $85 a month on cigarettes. In some homes it is less, in too many other it is much more.

If both would quit smoking they would give themselves a tax-free raise of $85 a month. That figure is subject to inflationary pressures and smoking families could anticipate price hops like 39¢ per carton. This is beyond money, wasted, if used on key eggs and bread it has life-sustaining values.

Tobacco leaves have no use in sandwich. Lettuce, cress, cheese, and sardines are far real. Constantly declining food purchases will make it harder for tobacco users to justify a silly habit. Retroactive all you like, but a food is first. — Bob Lediey, Non-Smokers' Association of Ontario.

Dear DORIS: My husband's parents live with us, all the time, insisting on hard work on his farm. He had to quit and run. Dad was mostly and took it out on me.

Each day I asked for a brighter tomorrow and never gave up hope. Now both parents are dead. Our children are teen-agers and 26K is still debt-ridden.

He spends very little time with us; thinks about his work all the time. He talks fields, silage fields, cute fields.

I try to point out the beauties in life. I try to get him to relax. When my husband drives himself we feel uneasy and in turn he expends so much of our girls. They used to work willingly on the farm but he had no patience, and expected them to know what to do as well as him.

What can I do to help my husband to be happier and in turn this will make the family bear with things? — Tense.

Dear Tense: That compulsive worker of yours got that way through the constant pushing and complaints of his mother. He now feels so guilty, that work habits have been ingrained into his personality.

You can help another human being only so far; and it sounds as if this one needs, first of all, a deep desire to change, and to enjoy life.

Could you talk to him gently in one of your periods of communication, remind him of the shortness of life and the joys he is missing?

A family counselor could help you sort this thing out. It might mean a turning point. Otherwise, degeneration and complications will continue to be the name of the game, for your misguided mate.

Dear Doris: I am 19 years old, going with a guy 22. He is the nicest guy I ever met, and my Mom and Dad like him very much. We went to get engaged this summer, although I'm not sure I want to.

Each time I see a diamond or a bigger engagement ring than mine, I start to feel I'm not good enough for him.

He spends very little time with us; thinks about his work all the time. He talks fields, silage fields, cute fields.

I try to point out the beauties in life. I try to get him to relax. When my husband drives himself we feel uneasy and in turn he expends so much of our girls. They used to work willingly on the farm but he had no patience, and love each other. — Undecided and Mixed Up.

Dear Undecided: Seven weeks is too short, 19 years too young, to commit yourself for life. Your parents are right to want you to work a little, live a little, before you marry.

Hold off! It is too soon to be tied down, and your engagement will only arouse opposition. At least wait until you've finished high school before becoming engaged. By then, your outlook on the future may be quite different.

Alderman In Arctic

TORONTO (CP) — North York Alderman Katie Hepburn is spending the summer in the Arctic.

Miss Hepburn, 27, and two companions are paddling three aluminum canoes along the Hubbard River northeast from Lake Athabasca in northern Saskatchewan into the Arctic tundra along a route first canoed by a Canadian explorer in 1900.

The party is not carrying radios because no places fly over the area of their route and they could not summon help if they had to.

They have registered with the Northwest Territories government, said Miss Hepburn. They will know if we've vanished.

The party is carrying an extensive medical kit, but Miss Hepburn said: "If there is a broken leg among us it will be tough."

Shero Returns To Flyers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fred Shero, coach of Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers, signed a new three-year contract Monday, ending his flirtation with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

Shero, 48, said the new contract gives him more money, but his agent said Minnesota offered more. The Fighting Saints had offered Shero the jobs of coach, general manager, and part owner to jump to the WHA.

"The aggregate sum of this contract is something less than offered by Minnesota," said Mark Steward, Shero's agent.

Steward added however, "When you take in other considerations, it is a fine contract."

During the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup final playoffs against Boston, Shero hinted he might leave coaching and return to law school. Monday, Shero said he had begun taking correspondence courses in law.

Steward described the negotiations with Minnesota as "very cordial" and indicated that if Shero had not received a new contract for more money, he would have left Philadelphia.

Shero had two years remaining on a previous contract. His old contract was torn up.

He has coached the Flyers for four years, leading them to a fourth-place finish in the NHL West in his first year, second-place finish the next year, and the Stanley Cup this year.

The Flyers also had to consider the amount of the new contract, although Shero joked that he could find his own coaches as cheap as some of his players.

The outspoken Shero had once said his head coaches are treated as second-class citizens.

Monday he said, "It's ridiculous how much money assistant players are signing for, while head coaches have dedicated their lives to this game have been paid like poor relations."

Generally, however, Shero sat quietly through a heavy conference, preferring to let his agent do the talking.

He did say that, "Despite the ups and downs, I never really wanted to leave Philadelphia. I'm very happy here and so is my family."

Intrepid Breaks Deadlock

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — Intrepid defeated Courageous by one minute Monday in the first race United States 12-metre yachts have sailed over the America's Cup course since the trials began last month.

By winning, Intrepid took a 5-4 lead over Courageous in races.

Monday's race was highlighted by a record-breaking tacking duel between the two boats on the first windward leg in 4½ miles of sailing each yacht made 53 tacks. A tack involves a change of sails from one side of the boat to the other.

The previous record for the number of tacks on the leg in America's Cup trial match race was 41, set by 'Constellation and Sovereign' in 1964.

Intrepid, a wooden boat built in 1967, is trying to become the first yacht in America's long history to defend a trophy three times. She formed back Astorbilt challengers in 1967 and 1970.

The success of the U.S. contenders in the new Intrepid and Courageous each 11-M. Marber 9-3 and Valiant 12-M.

Venture will race Wednesday against Intrepid on the third day of the observation trials.

The first trials start Aug. 15 and the New York Yacht Club has until Sept. 2 to name a defender in the America's Cup match. which start Sept. 10.

Alouettes and Rough Riders Early Favorites in CFL East

By IAN MacLAREN
The CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Alouettes lost their second running back of the year Monday when Jim Harvey, last season's top rusher in the Eastern Football Conference (EFC) spun to open practice.

Harvey, finalist in voting for the Canadian Football League's best player in 1973, has joined Memphis Southmen of the World Football League.

His absence was expected to leave a big hole in the Montreal backfield, but coach Marv Levy apparently has recruited well. So well that he was able to drop former all-star receiver Terry Evanshen from the club.

And despite the loss of Harvey, the Alouettes are still favorites with Ottawa Rough Riders to top the EFC standings this season. Both clubs finished pre-season with 4-2 records and the Grey Cup champion Riders get a fifth win over an CFL all-stars.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, more settled than at this stage a year ago when they had 17 new faces in the lineup, should take the spot ahead of the troubled Toronto Argonauts.

Whatever happens, its doubtful that there will be the 1973 scramble for playoff spots when Riders, Alouettes and Tiger-Cats all the silverware, had just eight victories—one more than the other three EFC clubs.

Canadian Press football writers in the Big Eastern Conference cities pick the Riders to repeat with Montreal fighting them, Hamilton third and Toronto last.

New coach George Brancato of Ottawa saw front four he had developed for several years fall apart with both Rusty Rinas and Ron Lancaster lost for part for the WFL.

Under Brancato, the two imports along with Wayne Smith and Tom Hall, Hasbrook had been nicknamed the Capital Punishers.

Ottawa general manager Frank Clair pressured legal action against Philadelphia Bell unless the two linemen and running back Art Green completed their contract obligations with the Riders.

Lengthy negotiations centered last week in Philadelphia resulted in Gilks and Green being ordered to report to Ottawa, the defensive giant to sign a one-year contract and Green signed a two-year contract.

There was still some question marks in the Hamilton makeup, primarily concerning Gerry Hensley's knee that underwent surgery in the off-season while the Argos have been absorbed with internal problems.

Ottawa Rough Riders

With Sims back, the Riders are trying to replace Lapolla with rookie Carl Taylor.

Green's return gives Ottawa a formidable backfield with Jim Evenson. The big surprise in camp was the play of Rick Casata. The consistency of the three half of Hebert starter back tandem, Jerry Keeling, Bruce Bennett appear to be happy.

Apart from the front four, Ottawa has little to worry about defence with linebackers Gerry Campbell, Wayne Glazier and Mark Koonce along with Wayne Trask and Al Marcy in at the corners and John Helton, Ted Woodward and Dick Adams patrolling the deep zone.

Ottawa has strength and experience along the offensive line with 37-year veteran Moe Racine, Bob Schmitz, Roger Pedrin, Charlie Brandon, Donn Smith and centre Bob McKeown.

Montreal Alouettes

Tight end Peter Dalla Riva inherited his knee in June and didn't see any action until the team's final pre-season game at Hamilton and veteran quarterback Sonny Wade, recovering from a knee surgery, re-injured his knee in Saturday.

Levy said the Wade injury wasn't serious, but Jimmy Jones will be the No. 1 quarterback.

Larry Sherrer, a 24-year-old ex-lineman from the University of Hawaii who sat out the last two years after being injured during a tryout with New York Giants will be on the Montreal list as the season starts.

So far as all-star John Robinson is concerned, Levy doesn't feel last year's criticism is deserving since his rookie led the conference in pass receptions.

"But this year, as a sid back, he's signed for an about 50 per cent. more often."

As for comparable Rodgers wasn't used enough, the Montreal coach argues no team can build around one player.

Rugged Steve Ferrughelli and Rodgers and Canadians Rudy Florio, Larry Smith, Skip Expense and Ron Stevens give the Als offensive depth.

Dan Yochum, Ed George, Wayne Crabtree, Dave Braglio and Barry Randall are solid returnees on the defensive line.

Critchlow has strengthened the defensive front, Pair with Gordon Judges, Glen Weir at Junior Ah You with linebacker support from Chuck Zapiec, Carl Crennel and Mike Widger Phil Price shaping up for the right corner.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats

Coach Williams feels the Tigcats will get away to a faster start for two reasons—more changes and a more experienced Chuck Ealey directing traffic.

Ealey, who impressed in his rookie year; had trouble with his play calling and execution last year in 1973 when the club won four of their last six games and came within a whisker of making the post-season games.

Andy Stankiewicz, the centre-back Steve Wade, recovering from a knee surgery, re-injured it in the exhibition season.

Larry Smith, Skip Walker and Jerry Keeling will be the starting halfbacks with a host of backups including Ron Ellis, Bibbs and Bubba Bridges, both 220-pound defensive ends back from the Toronto Argonauts, a 24-year-old veteran who set out the last two years after being injured during a tryout with New York Giants will be on the injured list as the season starts.

In a Peewee game played last night, the Belleville DAV 1570 edged Thrive 16-8, behind the game ball pitching of Dale McTaggart and Steve Carr. The pair struck out nine between them.

Dave Blakely was tagged with the loss, allowing 11 hits. He struck out ten and walked four.

Mark Crawford led the winners at the plate with two doubles and a pair of singles, while Dale McCreary added a double and two base hits. Dale McTaggart, and Carr each had a triple, with Shawn Mahoney and Steven McCoy each stroking a hit apiece.

For Thurlow, it was Dave Ashley with a triple and a single, while Dave Birch added a double and single.

Light skating sessions are planned to get under way for the team in about three weeks, with training camp set to open in the first week of September, or even the last week, of August, depending on the availability of the Belleville and Trenton.

Exhibition games have been set for September 28, 25, and 27. A home and home set will be played between the Cats and Pickering on the first two dates, with Wexford coming to town on the 27th. One more date has still to be set.

The league is slipped a little differently this season, having expanded to 14 teams over last year's 12. The new teams are Kingston, North York Rangers, and Whitby. Although last place finishers last season, Oshi Ridges, are not represented this season.

The divisions have been set, with the Bobcats aligned in the Eastern division, along with Kingston, Oshawa, Peterborough, Pickering, Markham, and a Whitby entry.

In the other division, to be known as the Central, are champions Brampton Bandits which will face Milton, Streetsville, Wexford, Etobicoke, Toronto Red Wings, and the other new entry, North York.

The teams will play a 56 games schedule, including four games, two home and two away with each team in their division, along with a home and home set with the other section.

The playoff setup is also revamped for the upcoming year. The first place team of each division will choose their opponents for a four out of seven series for the right to advance to the division finals. The next highest remaining team will play the team of their choice for the rest, in a best of five set to meet the winners of the last two clubs in a semi-final set, also three out of five.

In other happenings at the league, it was agreed by the teams that Belleville, with its enthusiastic and large in number crowds would be an ideal spot for the league's annual All-Star contest, held in aid of the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters' Association, to add to their work with crippled children.

Matthews has let it be known, that if all the arrangements go right, the game will be played here in Belleville. The game would be held probably on Wednesday, January 15, or the following week, the latest.

Also, with the switch in age groupings in the Junior A and Junior B circuits, 21-year-olds now able to play an extra year, but in the B category, preventing the possible "stacking" by some teams in the league.

The 21st stimulus has been remedied by a motion passed by the league stating that players who have played Junior A hockey last year may play Junior B this year.

Season tickets are expected to go on sale around the first week of August. With no increase on the per game prices over last year, but will sell for $35 for one, or $55 for a pair.

Alternating Pitchers Fails Howard and Robert This Time

It was the second time Howard and Robert used the switch the pitcher trick against Rollies Construction, but this time it was of no use, the Constructionmen coming up with a 4-3 win over the Quinte Quints Monday night.

Pitchers Howard and Robert Scott Reid and Rob Ebbeler on the mound, alternating between first base and the rubber, until the fifth inning, when Reid was given the pitch hitter. In the previous game, the pair caused Rollies Construction men on two hits, for a 4-1 win.

It was different this time. Beaten with Jim Chase on the Rollies rubber stopping 11 and 8 in only three innings, fanned 11 and walked only one in taking the win with 3 of the season for them. The loss was the 5th for the Printers, leaving them six points out of first place, back in fourth.

Ebbeler faced a total of 17 men in his stanza of the Howard and Robert mound, fanning five and walking two innings, since he faced seven and walked none while he gave up six hits. Reid threw to 14 batsmen, allowing two hits in the 6th out three, walking two.

Glen Carleton had the big stick for Rollies, coming through with a triple, double, and single, Paul Goodfellow had a double and single from his leadoff spot. Scott Boedtkower, Wayne McTaggart, and Doug Dafoe adding one each. Dafoe's hit was a fourth inning double.

Rollies get their 7th win, and what proved to be winning run in the first inning, when Reid gave up McTaggart's single, a walk to Dafoe, and Carlton responding with his triple. Reid was tagged with the loss.

They gathered two more in the 5th, and an insurance run in the 6th on a walk away the victory.

Quinte Printers could do no wax leave three men on base in the 7th, and waved bye-bye.

In the second game of the night, Developers Motors whitewashed the Kaiz Printing Juniors 3-0 on only four hits.

The Motormen scored all their runs in the first two innings, one of them unearned. Base hits by Ray Gederavicz and Jerry Heagher combined with an error to Pete Bonnell from Bruce Dale's ball added up to three Developers runs.

The Juniors had the bases loaded in the bottom of the second frame, threatening to score, with none out, but could only manage second place and a single.

Developers' Jim Chase struck out 11 and walked only one in taking the win, with Dale Dale striking out two and walking three in the loss.

Steve Campbell led off the inning with a base hit, Jim Chase reached and Brian Gariepy followed with walks, two of three given up by Holoway, to fill the bases.

Dave Dolan's fly ball went to Lumsden in right field, catching both Campbell and Robertson away and ending Lumsden fired to second by Sickle for the double play with Sickle relaying to Meagher at third for the third out of the inning.

The Juniors had only four other baserunners in the game, all of them left on base, with Holoway added ten strikeouts to his win, the only run and hit Lumsden one for Dovolin. He walked three.

John Sprackett went the route for Kaiz in giving up only the four hits. He walked four and issued one base on balls in his game.

Lumsden collected three base hits in his first inning single, with Meagher and Dovolin adding the others.

Pete Stathovich, Steve Campbell, and Dolan were the only hitters to touch Holoway in the game, all connecting for singles.

The win gave Dovolin a tie for third place with Aspen Pizza Kings, each with 10 points, while the loss leaves the Juniors in fifth place, and final playoff berth.

Reggie Jackson Hopes to Win, Pete Rose Doesn't Want to Lose

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "I hope we win," said Oakland slugger Reggie Jackson, "but if we don't, it doesn't mean we've an inferior league.

"We won the world championship the past two years and that's the important thing."

Jackson is the most valuable player in both the American League and the World Series and last year was defending the A's showing in soccer's all-star games. The National League has won 11 of the rivalry by winning 18 of the last 11 meetings.

Tonight the midsummer showdown will be played for the 45th time with Gaylord Perry of Cleveland Indians starting for the American League and Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles Dodgers opening for the National before a sellout crowd of 50,235 at Three Rivers Stadium. Game time is 8:30 p.m. EDT.

Jackson, who will be in right field and bat in the No. 3 spot, emphasized that he'll play to win, but "I'm not going to crash into Joe Morgan at second base or Johnny Bench at the plate."

Ed Pete Rose, who will bat leadoff, and probably play left field for the National League, said he will "do my best as I always play. I don't want to hurt me."

In the 1970 all-star game at Cincinnati, Rose barreled into AL catcher Ray Fosse and scored the winning run in the 10th inning.

Los MacPhail, the new AL president, doesn't want to lose either. He directed AL clubs to set up their rotation so that all star pitchers would not hurl on Sunday. Except for relievers Rollie Fingers and John Hiller, they all sat out Sunday's games.

Manager Yogi Berra's National League team will have Joe Morgan of Cincinnati batting behind Rose in the No. 2 spot and playing second base. He will be followed by Atlanta right fielder Hank Aaron, the home run king in his final all-star appearance, and Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench batting cleanup.

Three Los Angeles Dodgers will be in the fifth, sixth and seventh spots—centerfielder Jim Wynn, first baseman Steve Garvey and third baseman Ron Cey, followed by shortstop Larry Bowa of Philadelphia and catcher Ted Simmons.

Berra wasn't certain who would follow Simmons, but Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, Jon Matlack of New York Mets, Brent of Pittsburgh and Lynn McGlothen of St. Louis were likely since Messersmith's Expos and Al-

Messersmith, who has an 11-3 record this season, criticized MacPhail's strategy. "It's kind of fanciful to put this game ahead of a pennant race."

Bill Parry, who notched all of his 15 victories in the first half season, one short of the All-Star record for a single season, defended MacPhail's action as necessary because "you can't have one man look too many all-star games."

"I know it's going to be close, so I'm going to throw as hard as I can."

Al manager Dick Williams said he would probably follow Perry with either Boston's Luis Tiant or Jim Catfish Hunter of Oakland.

Second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota will bat first for the American League and will be followed by shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland and centerfielder Amos Otis of Kansas City. Then Baltimore's Dave Alien of Chicago White Sox, controversial Bobby Murcer of New York Yankees, left-fielder Jeff Burroughs of Texas, third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore, catcher Thurman Munson of the Yankees and Perry.

SPLIT IN DAVIS CUP

DONETSK, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The Soviet Union and Yugoslavia split the opening singles on Friday in their European Group II Davis Cup semi-final tennis series. Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union beat Nikola Pilic 6-4, 6-4, 0-1 and Yugoslav Nikola Pilic beat Teimuraz Kakulia 8-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-1.

Allstar Break Brings Back Memories of '73

NEW YORK (AP) — As you glance at the standings during the all-star baseball break, you may get the feeling you have made this scene before.

Item: At the all-star break a year ago, Los Angeles Dodgers had won 61 games and led Cincinnati Reds by 7½ games in the National League West.

The Dodgers have won 63 games and lead the Reds by 6½.

Item: New York Mets were last in the NL East, 7½ games back.

The Mets are currently in last place 7½ out.

Item: When the Mets returned to action on the Thursday following the 1973 break they played a doubleheader in St. Louis and their starting pitchers were Jon Matlack and Jerry Koosman.

The Mets' are scheduled to resume play Thursday with a doubleheader in St. Louis and the listed pitchers are Matlack and Koosman.

Item: Pittsburgh Pirates had a 46-48 record and were four games back in the NL East.

The Pirates currently have a 45-49 log and are 9½ games from the top.

Item: Boston Astros were 12 games out in the NL West.

The Astros are 12 games out again.

Item: Oakland A's had a 55-42 record en route to their third consecutive flag in the American League West.

The A's are a 55-41 mark and are leading the division again.

Item: Baltimore Orioles were second, 1½ games out, in the AL East.

The Orioles are currently second, one-half back.

Item: Milwaukee Brewers were fifth in the AL East with a 47-49 record.

The Brewers are currently fifth with a 47-48 mark.

Weird. Well, that's where the baseball writer usually repeats there are some teams finding the 1974 going a little different.

The only division-leading team that went on to win it in 1973 was Oakland A's. New York Yankees yielded to Baltimore in the AL East while the Reds overtook St. Louis Cardinals and the Dodgers were lonely. In the National League.

This year's big gainers are Cleveland Indians, Texas Rangers and Philadelphia Phillies. The biggest losers are New York Yankees, Kansas City Royals, California Angels, St. Louis Cardinals and San Francisco Giants.

The Indians were 4 sorry sixth of the 1973 results, 30½ games to eight behind. Now they are third, just one game back, and would be leading the division but for a forfeited game against Texas which they were threatening to win in the fifth inning when nearly nine overran the field at Cleveland Stadium.

The Rangers also were last by 30½ games last year. This year they are fourth and third Oakland by eight games.

The Phillies were fourth, 34½ games back, last season and now they are pacing the NL East by seven games over the Pirates, which fell by one-half-games a week ago Sunday.

If the Yankees had last year's 37-44 record they would be fourth games in front of the AL East.

As it is, they are fourth, two games under .500.

In the AL West, the Royals have dropped from second place last year, 14½ games behind Oakland, to third place, seven back. The Angels had a .500 record in 1973 and were fifth, 20½ games back. Now, despite a second surge under new manager Dick Williams, they are a solid last, 17 games back.

The California Angels finished third at the same 1973 juncture, six games behind Los Angeles. Now, they're fifth, 19½ games back.

And if you are wondering how Atlanta Braves did in 1973 under Eddie Mathews, who was just fired as their manager, they were in fifth place, 18 games back. Now, they're second, three-fourth, 14 games back.

A Scout Replacing Mathews?

ATLANTA (AP) — Specialization Scout Maxwell Emanuel King, former major league manager and coach, Monday was named as the successor to deposed Eddie Mathews as manager of Atlanta Braves.

The firing of Mathews, 43, the former star with the Braves who hammered 512 career home runs before retiring in 1968, came Sunday after Atlanta lost its fourth straight game, dropping its record to 50-49 at the all-star break.

Club vice-president, Eddie Robinson, announced Monday's decision after Monday there were three candidates for the job—King and Braves coach Sam Mathews's successor either, today or Wednesday.

"I've said he would come back," said Robinson. "Now we're going to make a three-under-par 67 Monday to capture an international golf tournament at the Royal Montreal Golf Club, defeating 11 other leading professionals. Four golfers—Lee Trevino, Bob Rosburg, Charles Coody and Kermit Zarley—finished two-under-par 68s. The only Canadian participating, Toronto's George Knudson, shot 70.

Asia's Highest Dam

This is the downstream side of mainland Asia's highest arch dam, now nearing completion at Cochin in the Indian State of Kerala. The dam, being constructed with the aid of Canadian engineers, will be 555 feet high with a crest length of 1,350 feet. (CP Photo)

Canadians Nearly Finished High Arch Dam in Kerala

COCHIN, India (CP) — A group of Canadian engineers are near the end of their jobs here—constructing a 555-foot dam to supply much-needed power in the southern Indian state of Kerala.

The Idikki Dam, mainland Asia's largest arch dam and Kerala's first, will help encourage industry and provide employment for people living in this smallest but most heavily pop-

A latest state of India.

The dam, designed by SNC Inc. of Montreal, is scheduled to start generating power in 1976.

"This is the biggest thing ever to happen in Kerala," said Marcel Tremblay, senior engineer on the project since 1970.

"It has meant as many as 15,000 jobs at our peak period."

But despite Canadian participation, SNC engineers are quick to say the dam is India's achievement.

Project manager Hebert Griesbach of Montreal said although the dam is partly financed by the Canadian International Development Agency, the Kerala State Electricity Board is the owner.

He also said that Canada has benefitted from the export of about $14 million worth of equipment for the project.

The dam will produce 780,000 kilowatts of power.

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 100 prisoners are on death row in United States jails two years after the Supreme Court ruled the death penalty unconstitutional.

The issue is before the court again, with more than half the states having re-enacted laws imposing capital punishment.

In Congress, the Senate has passed federal legislation reinstituting the penalty, but it is still in a House subcommittee and unlikely to get action. The Nixon administration supports it.

In Colorado, the last state to execute a man, the issue will be on the ballot in the Nov. 5 election.

Capital punishment bills have been vetoed by four governors: Republican Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts and Democrats Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, William Waller of Mississippi and Richard Kneip of South Dakota.

Shapp's veto was overridden, posting the country's third most populous state on the death penalty list. The others in the top five—California, New York, Texas and Illinois—also have enacted capital punishment laws.

How well the new laws will stand up in court is a subject of debate.

Gov. Malcolm Wilson of New York, signing that state's new law, called it "a constitutional approach."

But Steven Sklar of Baltimore, criticizing a bill which didn't pass in the Maryland legislature, said: "Our tax laws seem airtight by comparison."

The laws follow a single pattern, with variations. They list specific crimes, mostly confined to certain types of murder; but sometimes including rape, for which the death penalty will be mandatory.

When the Supreme Court ruled June 29, 1972, in a case arising from rape and murder convictions in Georgia and Texas, it specifically held that juries could not be allowed to condemn some persons to death while convicting others on the same charge but sparing their lives.

The court split 5 to 4, with President Nixon's four appointees in the minority.

The first state to re-enact a death penalty law was Florida. An Associated Press survey showed three now are 26 states with such laws.

Actually, the death penalty had continued in effect in both South Carolina and North Carolina even before new legislation was passed. Courts in both states ruled that the Supreme Court had merely eliminated parts of their laws which gave the jury the option of verdict for life imprisonment.

Under these interpretations, a South man was sentenced to death in South Carolina and 42 in North Carolina. Attorneys for five of the condemned North Carolina men have asked the Supreme Court to review their cases. The court is expected to decide next fall whether to do so.

British filed in the North Carolina case said 161 men and women have been sentenced to die in the United States since the 1972 Supreme Court ruling.

In Ohio, despite the state's law providing death for "aggravated murder," the state's electric chair sits unwired in the southern Ohio correctional facility in Lucasville after being moved from the old penitentiary at Columbus.

Joseph M. Havener, superintendent, said he was never asked how long he would wait before wiring it.

"As long as I can," said Havener.

Chess Master, 20, Recovers His Form

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jonathan Berry, 20, is making a comeback as a chess master.

Two years ago he had accumulated the 2,200 points necessary for the rank under the World Chess Federation. But things began to slide.

"I had a period of regression that I regard poorly," said Mr. Berry. "But now I'm coming back up to that level."

Mr. Berry, who has played chess since he was eight, was recently elected president of the British Columbia Chess Federation, the youngest person to hold that position. But his youth is no great barrier in chess society.

He says the majority of the Canadian's members are under 28 or over 50.

"Chess is both a young man's game and an old man's game. A young man's because he has the energy to play and an old man's because he has the time."

Mr. Berry, who has completed three years of a mathematics program at University of B.C., took the last year off to compete in tournaments.

During an eight-week hitchhiking trip to Mexico he captured the Mexican Open championship and competed in a massters tournament in Caliber city.

Mr. Berry refers to chess as a sport, noting the physical fitness and stamina needed to endure the pressure of a tournament.

It has been estimated that during a five-hour match, a grand master will expend as much energy as a boxer during a fight, he said.

Mr. Berry plans to return to school in September and says it will hurt his chess.

"Doing any other intellectual pursuits hurts your chess because you drain intellectual energy and imagination," he said.

Regardless of the stories of a computers beating chess masters, Mr. Berry said computers are actually poor chess players.

"They lack imagination, he said.

"When you hear of someone beating a c computer, he's probably only an average player," he said, adding that experts would win almost constantly.

Hypnotherapist Technique Is Similar to Mesmerism

OTTAWA (CP) — Hypnotism as a medical treatment has been suspect since the late 1700s when Friedrich Mesmer's Paris practice was curtailed by a government investigation.

The German doctor, who developed a system of treatment through hypnosis called mesmerism, has modern-day counterparts in three doctors who have just opened a clinic called Hypnotherapy Associates in Toronto.

The doctors—Stanley Kushnir, A. D. Bancat and C. P. Marks—say hypnosis is still getting a bum rap because of misconceptions and myths that surround it.

How strongly they feel about the advantages of hypnotherapy is shown in recent scientific articles in two leading medical publications.

In the Canadian Medical Association Journal the doctors reported on 50 patients they treated for manifest anxiety using relaxation techniques related to hypnosis.

Of 41 patients who completed the program 33 believed, in a subjective evaluation of their progress, that they had been helped considerably.

In theo ther publication, Canadian Family Physician, the doctors said psychotherapy is only one of a wide range of clinical applications for hypnosis. Some other applications are in the treatment of migraines, cigarette and alcohol addiction and obesity.

They say two of the most common misconceptions about hypnosis are that it causes loss of consciousness as well as loss of control.

But research indicated otherwise. A person in a trance is likely aware of environment but with a selective attention, they say in the article.

Moreover, the subconscious content of a patient in trance was required for any actions he performed.

Dr. Kushnir said in an interview he believes most family doctors can become hypnotists with a little training.

This training would ensure, at the least, he said, that doctors can communicate better with patients. Doctors who were not good hypnotists, for whatever reasons, would be able to recognize patients who would benefit from hypnotherapy and refer them to other doctors more skilled in the art.

He found discouraging the reluctance of medical schools to teach it as a medical technique.

This was in spite of recommendations during the last 20 years by the Canadian, British and American medical associations that it should be included in undergraduate and postgraduate curricula, said Dr. Kushnir.

To his knowledge, only University of Toronto among Canadian medical schools taught it, and only as an elective one-year course.

The three doctors say medical men still fear ridicule and alienation from their colleagues if they put any faith in hypnosis.

There are many definitions and theories for hypnosis, including one by skeptics that a person in a hypnotic state tends to play a role, acting as he believes a person should act in the circumstances.

Another theory maintains that hypnosis is a return to a more primitive form of mental functioning in which suggestion plays a major role.

Dr. Kushnir says application of hypnosis is far ahead of any scientific understanding of what it is all about. He says there is no single satisfactory definition, only various descriptions.

As a medical treatment it should be used in three general ways, Dr. Kushnir emphasized, however, that physicians must remain within their field of competence, using hypnosis only in cases they would normally treat by other means.

It could be used as an adjunct to other treatment methods, often to relax the patient and make conventional forms of therapy more effective.

Examples include preparation for surgery and obstetrics, chronic arthritis and psychotherapy.

Hypnosis could also be useful when other methods fail. When drugs do not work for patients with migraine, chronic pain states, terminal cancer, drug addiction and alcoholism, for instance, hypnosis often does, Dr. Kushnir said.

Finally, hypnosis could be first-choice treatment as an analgesia following accidents or for obstetrics in isolated areas or when drugs are unavailable. It could be used to treat phobias and ease the pain of natural childbirth.

Railways Revived

MANILA (Reuter) — The Philippines' once dying railway system is being revitalized and the authorities hope it will become one of the finest in southeast Asia.

A rehabilitation program costing more than $50 million began three years ago and is due for completion next year.

After years of running at a loss, officials of the Philippine National Railway (PNR) report a profit of $1 million during the first seven months of the current fiscal year, compared with a net loss of $1.8 million two years ago.

Fourteen new cars have been acquired by the railway and 9 more are expected to be delivered by Japan under a Second World War reparations agreement between the two countries.

Under a contract signed with India's Projects Equipment Co. the PNR next year will receive 30 economy-class cars.

Examples include preparation for surgery and obstetrics, chronic arthritis and psychotherapy.

Hypnosis could also be useful when other methods fail. When drugs do not work for patients with migraine, chronic pain states, terminal cancer, drug addiction and alcoholism, for instance, hypnosis often does, Dr. Kushnir said.

'Threat' Helped Actress

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — To be a success, you have to leave Canada, right?

Wrong.

All you have to do is threaten to leave.

At least that's what Susan Mitchell found.

Susan Mitchell, a Canadian actress, made up her mind recently to pack up and move to Australia.

But when she tried to sever all connections with the Toronto theatre world, her career took off like a flash.

"When the word got around Toronto that I was leaving Canada, I received more offers . . . than I had managed to get in two years," she said.

Susan began her theatrical career in England, where she was born.

She studied acting, dancing and singing, then spent several years with various British theatre companies.

She has appeared with Theatre Calgary, as well as with Regina's Globe Theatre touring company.

Susan has also performed in plays for the British Broadcasting Corp. and the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., television networks and has participated in 28 productions for CBC radio.

Thanks to her decision to leave Canada Susan received "a fat part" in the CBC TV series, The Collaborators.

"This in turn led to a successful audition for the Stratford Festival," says Susan.

Aries (March 21-April 19) This is one of those days when it will be rough to get others to co-operate. Expect little and you won't be frustrated.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Keep a wary eye on co-workers, especially those who resent functioning as a team. Their carelessness could cause a mishap.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) There are some unusual circumstances that warn you not to have fun at the expense of someone else. Be considerate.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) If your attitude is negative, it will have a very depressing effect upon your entire family. Look for something you can laugh about.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You are apt to experience some problems in communication today. Persons you want to get in touch with won't be available.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Some discussion with a friend is going to be required to iron out a situation where you have either loaned or borrowed funds.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You tend to react contrary to what others expect from you. This won't win you any popularity contests.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Over the next few days you will tend to make volatile issues of trifling frustrations. If you do, you will feel extremely put upon.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone who has taken advantage of you before still thinks you are an easy mark. This person will try to tap you for something again.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's going to be difficult for you to win others to see to your point of view at this time. Particularly if they think you are pinning too hard.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not your best day for trying to do work of a mental nature. You will fare better with tasks that require brawn.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) One who owes you a great deal about you is a little disappointed with your behavior because you are hiding some facts.

Win at Bridge

By Gerould and James Jacoby

In a beginners' game South trick and he will be left to lead back. South's queen-nine will be set up if he lands whatever card is played by East and the contract will wheel in.

Incidentally, this hand has all sorts of possibilities. We will play it again sometime against slightly different East-West holdings.

East-West vulnerable

West	North	East	South

Pass	2♠	Pass	4♠

Dummy's king will win the ding is just about automatic. He will win the diamond lead, draw trumps and lead a spade toward dummy's king. Brutener West will hop up with his ace and South will get his contract. If West is smart enough to duck, dummy's king will win the trick, but the defence will now collect two tricks in each minor suit.

A good South will foil the defence in lead-plus. After drawing trumps he will cash his high hearts and ruff a heart in one. Then he will lead a diamond. East will take two if he misread tricks and shift to a club.

If East is right on his toe he will lead the eight and no matter what South does the contract will fail. If East isn't at his best he will lead the six. South will play low. West's best play will be the jack but it won't be good enough, good."

Instead of bidding three spades your partner has jumped to four spades over your three hearts. What do you do now?

IT'S A SICK JOKE

LONDON (CP) — A notice appeared at a London hospital recently plagued by labor troubles. The strike is now settled, the notice said. Someone added: "But the malady lingers on."

Activity Lacking In Nursing Homes

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There must be others' besides myself who would like to know how we can help a member of our family in a nursing home to have some physical therapy. They get so little exercise walking from their room to the dining room and back. Sour they are bed patients only because of inactivity.

There must be something we can do to help them. They are not allowed to go outdoors by themselves because they might wander off.

It seems to me some sort of physical therapy should be required in every nursing home! Please comment and tell how we can help.—R.G.

For openers, you might arrange to go to the nursing home fairly frequently and take your relative for walks. The mental stimulation of having these visits might be even more useful than the sheer exercise.

As I've written in this column before, frail elderly persons often lose gradual havoc with anybody, young or old, and homes with personnel and activities, however simple, for their occupants are making a valuable contribution to them.

When you suggest making "physical therapy" mandatory in nursing homes, I'm afraid that you are asking for more than you realize. Such a requirement would add very substantially to the cost of such homes, and it would have to be strict in the charges made, for such care.

But I do feel that keeping people interested has a tremendous impact on their well-being.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About nine years ago, when I was in the hospital for something else, on my chance my doctor found I had diverticulosis. I was told to eat no roughage, but going without roughage is no help to my constipation.—S.D.

Call it roughage, call it "bulk," but avoiding it altogether is no longer accepted as the proper course with diverticulosis.

Avoid the few irritants which are known to be risky with that condition, but eat a reasonable amount of bulk to the diet helps rather than harms.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that women are not supposed to do sit-ups unless their legs are held or they will damages their ovaries. Is this true? If not, why don't gym teachers do anything about it?—M.A.

Gym teachers don't do anything about it because it's not true. The stress is on the abdominal muscles. The ovaries are protected well by the pelvis and are not affected by exercise.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it necessary to take a blood specimen from the arm to test adequately for blood sugar? I am a diabetic, of many years and recently had to change doctors.

My previous doctors have always taken blood from the arm but the new one does not. His hand and the finger-prick method is substituted, along with the urine tape test.—O.

There is a finger-prick test which will give the level of blood sugar—high or low. It will not give as exact a reading as the blood test and need lengthy chemical analysis, but often the result is all the doctor needs to know—if too high or too low, the amount of diet or insulin (or other medication) is indicated.

The finger-prick test is convenient, it gives an immediate answer, and is not as costly.

Forrester Triumphs in Medium

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Contralto Maureen Forrester's vivid portrayal of a fiery, whisky-ridden fake spiritualist in Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera The Medium drew rave reviews from the critics after its opening-night performance at the Stratford Festival Thursday night.

Miss Forrester, famous on six continents for her recitals and concert performances, displayed her singing and acting ability to a capacity audience of 739 in Stratford's Third Stage, built in a curling arena. Tickets already are sold out for the remaining scheduled performances.

Music Makes Festival Mark

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — With two operas and an opera-ata currently running in the Stratford Festival alongside the plays of Shakespeare and Molière, music is making its mark on the festival scene along with acting.

Raffi Armenian, 33-year-old recently appointed music director of the festival, says the increased role of music here is making an important contribution to the region, just as Stratford actors have added to the national theatre scene.

Mr. Armenian, conductor of the Kitchener - Waterloo Symphony, has formed a 12-member Stratford Festival Ensemble, which serves as the nucleus of the orchestra performing in Offenbach's La Vie Parisienne in the Avon Theatre, and the two operas, on the festival's third stage. They also contribute to the incidental music for plays in the main festival theatres.

The Stratford Ensemble is to be a permanent new addition to the musical life of the country.

During the winter months, its 12 members play in the Kitchener-Waterloo Symphony, and will be available for chamber concerts on tour.

Each member also has time to teach, adding to the musical resources of the area, Armenian said in his interview.

He has been musical director of the Kitchener-Waterloo Symphony for three years, coming to Ontario from Halifax where he was assistant conductor of the Atlantic Symphony.

Born in Egypt, he spent several years in Vienna studying music, and then three years in London where he studied medical surgical engineering. But he returned to music.

Urjo Kareda of Toronto Star wrote that Miss Forrester "achieved her height of triumph of musical theatre."

"She certainly makes the most of what material there is without exaggerating the gothic extravagance of The Medium. Her fear is hair-raising, her vulnerability very spiritual. This is a most intelligently controlled dramatic performance."

Jacob Siskind, music critic of Montreal Gazette, described her performance as a personal triumph.

One of those who see it this will set the standard against which all productions for the next 20 years will be measured. Vocally it is impeccable, visually it is at very nearly the same level."

John Kraglund of Toronto Globe and Mail wrote that Miss Forrester is a great new dramatic artist of the operatic stage, "ranging her way through the opera in superb vocal style and tearing herself and her rapt audience into emotional shreds."

Kraglund said Miss Forrester acting passion, he feared for the stage set and properties. In fact, in the first act when she swept open a curtain it fell off its hinges and had to be refixed during the intermission.

Lorraine Endicott of Ottawa Citizen wrote that:

"Miss Forrester plays the role of Madame Flora, the Medium, with superb strength. It is an acting role as much as a singing role, and she makes every moment on stage significant."

Harvey Cusson, writing for Canadian Art, said Miss Forrester showed rare brilliance among opera singers who have tried the role.

"Her full eyes and ears were focused on the great Montreal-born contralto, her performance was followed by coloratura soprano Jana Gronstein as her daughter, Monica, and by a real singing son, Sister Barbara Baird, of Sault Ste. Marie and Toronto, as Mrs. Nolan.

Charlton Dinsmore played the route boy; Toby, with great acting skill. Few, it might be, will be back as he did under Madame Flora's lash and lover by the mighty Miss Forrester.

The National Film Board's eminent film-maker Norman McLaren, continues to receive acclaim for his work from the film world. Attending a retrospective of his films at the Berlin Film Festival, McLaren was honored with the UNICEF prize in recognition of his outstanding film accomplishments over the years.

McLaren was praised for his personal vision and films "which have enriched all cinema and have brought happiness to film viewers around the world."

"He is one of the most worthy and complete creators of the art of the screen," announced Charles Ford, president of the International Union of Film Critics.

HALIFAX—The Lighthouse Cross-Canada '74 tour made Rock music history in the Maritimes following a tour of western Canada.

The LIGHTHOUSE concert at the Forum here was attended by almost 5,000 people — the largest rock audience in the history of Nova Scotia. Concerts in Campbellton, Newcastle and Amherst were also standing room only for local audiences. After two concerts in St. John's, Nfld., sold out in less than 24 hours; a third show was added and sold out completely in 11 hours.

The National Film Board series "West" is being reported on the CBC-TV network on Sundays at 1 p.m.

The 13 half-hour filmed programs were shot last winter. Covering a cross section of everyday life in the three prairie provinces, the "west" series was well received during the first run on television.

Another series dealing with the coastal regions of Canada is now in production at the NFB for presentation during the next winter season. The NFB is also planning to produce a similar series about the Canadian north.

Lauched two years ago with Gordon Pinsent's successful "Adam's Fleece" series about Quebec, these regional studies into Canadian life are also provoking community and educational film libraries with productions following initial releases to television broadcasts.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Shaw Festival officials have announced a further extension, to Oct. 5, of the current season with the production of Charley's Aunt and Too True To Be Good.

The 1974 season, which got underway Aug. 13 with Devil's Disciple, will be the longest in the festival's history. With the extension, the season will now run 51 weeks, compared with 15 last year.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Maggie Smith said Wednesday she and actor Robert Stephens are to be divorced after seven years of marriage and theatrical partnership.

Miss Smith, 39, won an Oscar for her performance in The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie in 1978, in which she starred with Stephens. She and Stephens recently appeared in a highly praised revival of Noel Coward's Private Lives on the London stage.

They have two children, Christopher, 7, and Toby, 5.

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Musante was sitting in his lawyer's office in Los Angeles a few weeks ago when the phone rang. The caller asked if the star of the Toma series was available for a certain role.

"I was miserable doing it," she said. "It was like a big sentence. The hours that we had to work were terrible."

The agent, Musante recalled, "turned to me and said, 'Do you have any political reservations about playing Wilson's lawyer?' And I said no, none at all."

And that, he said, is how Stanley Kramer signed him for the title role in The Trial of Lt. Calley, which ABC says probably will be shown late in the year.

The drama is based on the court martial that convicted the former United States Army officer of killing 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968. Calley is at present at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

"At this point, I can't say how I personally feel about him," Musante said. "But I do feel that it's a story that should be told."

Musante portrayed a cop of many disguises in the now-cancelled Toma series on NBC.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Could the unparalleled 85-year acting career of Helen Hayes be reaching the final performance?

She thinks so, but she is reluctant to make the official announcement.

Once before she said she had given up the stage. A few months later she appeared on Broadway in a revival of The Front Page, written by her late husband, Charles MacArthur, and Ben Hecht.

Miss Hayes, 72, is headed for London to appear with Peter Ustinov in Cain of Eden. Her saurs is Missing. It would mark her second Walt Disney production and—she thinks—her last film.

"I really must stop all this," she said. "It's such an interruption of my life. I love my home, I love my house in Nyack. I would like more time to enjoy them and do the things I like to do."

The Snoop Sisters, the television series in which she starred with Mildred Natwick last season, bastened Miss Hayes' urge to retire.

Clapton's Concert Rocks the Forum

MONTREAL (CP) — Eric Clapton's short-lived success with Blind Faith, the British star dropped out of the rock music world.

His current 36-city North American tour marks the third time he has come out of retirement. He played at George Harrison's Concert for Bangladesh in 1970 and made a special appearance at the Rainbow in London a year later.

The Montreal concert was the 35th appearance and the only Canadian stop on the tour.

Canada a Travel Bonanza

In a land as vast and lightly populated as Canada (21.5 million people occupy close to four million square miles), the opportunities for outdoors activities are almost unlimited. There are plenty of lakes and streams, fields and forests, mountains and valleys for everyone.

You can hike, fish, boats, ski, canoe, camp, birdwatch or golf to your heart's content. Each of the 10 provinces and two territories has abundant natural beauty and facilities for a variety of activities.

You can enjoy the thrill of deep sea fishing in all four Atlantic provinces, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. The prized catch is tuna, but smaller fish, such as mackerel, are also in good supply.

In British Columbia, in the west, salmon is the predominant saltwater game fish.

The distribution of freshwater fish species is on a north-south basis. In the southern regions, you find bass, muskellunge (also known as maskinonge or muskie) and pike. Moving north, trout becomes more frequent.

In the north, too, are the great northern pike, prized trophy of many anglers. Farther north still, you come across such species as arctic char and arctic grayling.

Fishing regulations and seasons vary from province to province and visitors are advised to check in advance with the individual provinces they will be visiting.

Hiking is an activity that has enjoyed an upsurge in popularity. For really experiencing the feel of the land it's hard to top.

Favorite locations for hiking in Canada are in the national parks, although a few of the 29 parks, especially those situated in the western mountains and on the oceans, tend to become very busy during July and August.

Five parks where you can count on facilities and space are Kejimkujik in Nova Scotia; Fundy, New Brunswick; Terra Nova, Newfoundland; Riding Mountain, Manitoba and Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. Its best to visit places like Banff and Jasper, Alberta, in the fall, after the summer crowds are gone.

Some popular hiking trails include the 170-mile British Columbia Centennial Trail, starting in the Coast Mountains ringing Vancouver then heading into the British Columbia interior; the Bruce Trail, stretching 435 miles from the Niagara Peninsula in southern Ontario, to the Bruce Peninsula; and the Highland Hiking Trail and Two Rivers Trail in Ontario's Algonquin Provincial Park.

Canada's wilderness waterways fire the imagination of today's city bound "explorer." He dreams of reliving his heritage, going back in time to become a frontiersman, trapper or fur trader, once again experiencing the tranquility and beauty of a clear, clean stream in an untouched forest.

Because of the wilderness character of some of Canada's best canoeing regions, an experienced guide should be hired.

Among boating campers, the Rideau Lakes region in eastern Ontario is one of the most popular waterways. A 126-mile-long chain of lakes, rivers and canals links Lake Ontario and the national capital city of Ottawa at the junction of the Ottawa and Rideau rivers.

Canada has about 1,000 golf courses, almost all of them combining challenge with scenic beauty.

Canadians are enthusiastic about winter sports. In British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Quebec, especially, skiing is the main attraction. The Laurentian Mountains and Eastern Townships are two of the largest ski regions in Quebec.

Cross-country skiers all over the country, like snowshoe enthusiasts, have discovered the tranquil pleasures of the Canadian woods in wintertime.

Other winter activities include curling, hockey and broomball.

For further information about outdoors activities in Canada contact your nearest Canadian Government Travel Bureau office or write Bureau headquarters at 150 Kent Street, Ottawa K1A 0H6, Canada.

Fifth Wheelers Gain on Trailers

5th Wheel trailers are the least common of all of the recreational vehicles on the road today, but they are growing in popularity faster than any other form of RV.

If you're an RV enthusiast, or are becoming one, you probably ought to look into 5th Wheels especially if you're a truck owner.

The 5th Wheel unit is designed to be towed by a pickup truck which has been rigged with a special hitch placed in the cargo body. This hitch is a flat, wheel-like turntable (thus the name 5th Wheel) on which the front of the trailer pivots.

A good 5th Wheel offers all the features of a travel trailer (which happens to be the most popular form of RV) and then some.

One big advantage is quite obvious. It's the cabover, or the area of the trailer that is on top of the pickup bed. Inside, this area is usually devoted to an extra bedroom. That's the case in the Monitor unit shown here.

It has a full-size double bed and a spacious wardrobe. Since this bedroom is over the bed of the truck, it doesn't add to the overall length.

A travel trailer of the same length would add about 5 feet to the total length of the whole rig. In other words, a 23-foot 5th Wheel has all the living space of a 28-foot travel trailer, but the total length of the rig (tow vehicle and trailer) is 5 feet shorter.

Another advantage of the 5th Wheel unit is its stability and towability. The point of connection between the trailer and the truck is almost directly over the truck's rear axle, a system which has been highly refined through years of use by highway semitrailer rigs.

Because the trailer and truck are so closely engaged in this fashion, there is a minimum amount of sway or fishtail, and less susceptibility to wind.

Ease of hookup is another reason 5th Wheels are so appealing. The tow vehicle is simply backed under the front of the trailer; then the trailer hitch pin slides into the coupler mechanism on the hitch. Large jacks raise and lower the front of the trailer for quick, easy coupling and leveling — just plug in the electric cable and you're ready to go.

With ease and towability like this, it's easy to see why 5th Wheel trailering has become one of the most popular forms of RVcationing.

Genealogist Says Canadians Confused About Origins

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada populated by Vikings? Not really but the majority of Canadians probably could trace their origins to the days of the Normans, who were originally Norse Vikings, says J. Y. Rowe of Ottawa.

A lifelong student of genealogy, he is one of two Canadian members of the British-based Harleian Society, specializing in genealogical traces.

Mr. Rowe, also a member of the Devon and Cornwall Record Society, feels that a sound knowledge of genealogy would help ease conflicts based on supposed racial origins.

To refer to the French and English as Canada's two founding races is "nonsense," he said in an interview.

The surname Leveaque, for instance, which most Canadians associate with French ancestry, has a Norman origin, he said. The name could be traced back to Roger de L'Eveque, Archbishop of York (1154-1191). As the name indicates, this Norman archbishop came from Pont-L'Eveque in Normandy, about 10 miles southeast of Trouville.

The problem, said Mr. Rowe, "is that we have all had over 40 billion ancestors in the past 1,000 years and a lot of people do not even know the name of their grandmother."

Most would associate the surname Courtenay, also spelled Courtney, with British ancestry.

"Not so," said Mr. Rowe "That name has a French origin."

It came from Courtnay which literally meant a "short nose of land" and was situated south of Paris.

It troubles Mr. Rowe when reference is made to the French-English conflict in Canada. Most Canadians, in his opinion, are English or French only because they have not bothered to trace their ancestry beyond their parents.

The same misunderstanding is present in the Irish conflict, he said, referring to a news story from Belfast. The story cited Rev. John Glynn, a Roman Catholic priest, as non-apologetic about his distaste for British people in general and British soldiers in particular.

It was an ironic statement, said Mr. Rowe, since the surname Glynn is a Cornish-Welsh one and you "can't get anyone more British than that."

The first known mention of a Glynn was in 1198, when Richard de Glynn was fined four marks for a breach of forest laws during the reign of Richard I. Father Glynn's dislike for the British, Mr. Rowe said, amounted to one Briton disliking another.

Tracing origins of the name Fitzgerald, which he says is Norman-Welsh and not Irish, Mr. Rowe made another genealogical find. This involved the two IRA sisters, Marion and Deloura Price, recently moved from an English to an Irish prison after a hunger strike.

The sisters are of Welsh origin, not Irish, he said. His research shows that Walter Fitz Otho, son of Otho, the Constable of Windsor Castle, married Gladys, the daughter of Rees, about the year 1100. Rees was the son of Tudor Maur, prince of Wales.

However, in genealogical sketches, the phrase "son of" becomes AP, so that "son of Rees" becomes AP Rees, Mr. Rowe said. With the passage of time, "son of Rees" became (A)Price. Hence the surname of two non-Irish IRA girls, said Mr. Rowe.

Some of the more common genealogical misconceptions cited by Mr. Rowe involve such names as Neville, Haig and Sinclair. Neville, which most assume to be British, actually comes from the village of Neville in Normandy, he said.

Boating Campers Have Advantage

By BILL AsCOIN

The last 10 years or so have seen millions of people actively pursue the sports of boating and camping. But, surprisingly, very few of those outdoor lovers have tried combining the two. Yet, boat camping, like the growing sport of back-packing, offers the perfect, unspoiled campsite, right on the water.

Boat campers, instead of motoring to their overnight accommodations, can stow their tent, sleeping bags and grub on board and find a remote shoreline cove or scenic island.

Just as an example, a boater cruising Lake Keowee, a beautiful South Carolina lake on the edge of the Smokies has over 300 miles of shoreline and innumerable islands from which to choose a campsite. And Lake Keowee is typical of many other lakes, rivers and bays.

As with any sport, though, it's wise to store up a few tips that will make your boat camping more pleasant. Here are some suggestions from the people at Johnson Outboards.

If it is your first boat-camping experience, schedule only one or two nights out. This will be an excellent primer and shake-down for the extended boat camping trip of a week or more.

Learn beforehand how much weight your boat can safely handle. Stop short of that figure when loading up your gear and passengers.

To make camp set-up more organized, try to keep all the food in one package (like an insulated cooler), the tent and sleeping bags in another, and clothes and miscellaneous items in a third package. It is wise to cover all the packages with a waterproof tarp or covering of some sort.

Keep the gear off the floor, too, unless you're sure the boat floor will stay dry.

Check beforehand to make sure you don't set up camp on private property. Or ask permission first.

Unlike back-packing, boat-camping allows you to take along some of those luxuries more typical of car and recreational-vehicle camping. And you'll still be able to locate that perfect, uncongested, unspoiled campsite everyone dreams about.

Just one more thing: Leave it like you found it.

Some boaters disconnect the trailer lights before launching to prevent the possibility of blown bulbs or fuses.

Getting Ready Half the Fun

"Cabin Fever Time" to a fisherman is anytime — for one reason or another — that he's confined to the confinements of somewhere other than a lake or stream doing what he wants to do — fish.

He can always clean the garage, paint the den or fix a leaky faucet. But he usually doesn't and instead spends at least part of the time figuring out how to catch the big one next trip. (Or get out of the house.)

If such is the case, might be a good idea to use that spare "cabin fever" time fix'n or cleaning up that tackle he's going to be needing. Even though some put such chores on an annual calendar, the time to do it is when it needs it. Here are a few hints from the folks at Zebco on how best to do it:

REELS — strip off old line. Disassemble reel. Use a pan for a bathtub and pour in a cup of kerosene. Using a small paintbrush or toothbrush (one you don't plan on using again) rinse and scrub all visible gunk and lubricant from reel. Dry with a cloth or spray with a small can of compressed air. Apply a light coating of reel grease to the gears. Use oil other places where metal runs against metal. Re-assemble and put on new line.

RODS — check guides with magnifying glass. If any grooves or chips are located, take the guide off and replace (preferably with aluminum oxide guides). Check wraps and revarnish with any good rod varnish or flow-coat epoxy topping. Check ferrules and tip top. If loose at all, heat, remove and reseat with ferrule cement or epoxy. Do not use epoxy on tip top. Scrub handle with pad and water, rinse off and dry. It'll look like new.

Nothing's really hard to do if you know how to do it. Using spinning tackle is no exception. Although spincasting with a closed face reel or thumbing a bait caster may be your cup of tea, the proof is in the use that spinning is fast gaining popularity among America's anglers.

And spinning gear is being used — by both the amateur and the expert. There are a lot of reasons for its popularity. Probably most important is that it lets you use lighter lines and smaller baits which within themselves will probably put more fish in the box than will the bigger and heavier stuff.

So why don't more anglers use spin tackle? One reason most heard is that "I can't get the accuracy I had with the other." Such may be the case but shouldn't. For spinning gear, used properly, can thread the needle right along with the other tackle.

The secret of accuracy in anything is control. While some try to control the speed and flow of the line by closing the bail of the reel, it shouldn't be the case.

The key is your index finger and a method of control called "feathering". When you pick up the line with the index finger before you cast, that's the first time to use it, not the last.

Keep the finger out there and let the line "feather" against it. By bringing the finger closer to the spool, the more you slow the line. When you're ready to stop the line, simply press your finger against the spool. You've stopped the line (and the lure) and all that yet remains to be done is keep practicing.

Regular Checkups Essential

Let's get down to basics in motorhome maintenance, remembering that a motorhome is an investment, sure to bring you and your family thousands of miles of fun and relaxation.

Fulfilling the responsibility of keeping your investment by proper maintenance and service will add years of life to your vehicles and a nice allowance when you trade for a new coach.

Proper maintenance begins at the purchase point —the dealer. Ask two important questions:

Does the coach manufacturer have a record of reliability and a warranty to back up the product?

Does the dealer have adequate service facilities and is he willing to be helpful when your coach requires maintenance and service? When answered in the affirmative, you have a good start in the protection of your investment.

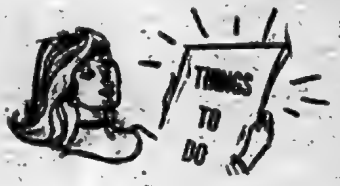
Chassis. Always follow the chassis instruction manual on what should be checked or changed and when. Oil and filter change, plus frequent tune-ups (depending on coach use) will add to your engine's life and save on gas consumption.

At every gas stop, check the engine oil, radiator and windshield washer bottle. Thump the tires, too, with a hammer or lug wrench. An unknown flat on one of the dual tires can cause a costly fire if driven on for some miles. Include tools and spare parts in your coach, especially when traveling in isolated areas.

Exterior. Keep the exterior of your coach clean when possible. Road film can dull the finish and delete from the new look of your motorhome.

Be sure to check the condition of all exterior lighting — headlights, tail lights, turn signals, emergency flashers, brake lights, backup lights and running lights — before every journey. Be sure they are visible and kept dirt free. You may prevent an accident and a police citation.

Let Youngsters Help Cooking



The temperature is running high and your patience is running low with "mother's little kitchen helper". Relax. Still her by letting her help you with meal plans for that future camping trip and promise her that when you get to camp, she can be chief cook.

Promises . . . Promises . . . but this is one you can keep because cooking in camp is usually easy enough for a child and it's the perfect chance for you to teach her a few elementary cooking skills without worrying about your kitchen floor.

Keep the process simple by introducing her to variations on foods that she can already fix, like adding fresh or wild fruit to pancake batter or cooking eggs in a new way. Stick to a cold luncheon menu and those "camper's favorite" one pot meals for dinner.

Teach her to solve that all time outdoor cooking problem, getting ready at the same time, by using a propane camp stove. With two big burners and a broiler grill combination, she can have bacon, eggs and toast ready all at once!

Water Ski Tips

Watching a skilled water skier, it is easy to forget the importance of the boat driver. Here are some tips on how to competently (and safely) pilot a ski boat, from Mike Osborn, president of Osborn Marine in Winter Haven, Florida, a former water ski champion, boat driver in many water ski racing contests and longtime member of the Johnson Outboards Sports Advisory Board.

— You should have (and most states require) an observer in the boat.

— When approaching a skier floating in the water, always approach on the driver's side for better visibility. Always bring the boat in down wind of the skier, so the boat will not drift into him.

— Use a strong rope, free of knots. Attach a float ball near harness to prevent entanglement with propeller.

Doors Let Outdoors Inside

If Mr. Blandings were to build his dream house today, the blueprints probably would specify a patio — a feature much sought after by consumers looking to purchase a home.

Nearly 1½ million families in the U.S. add a patio each year, the Bureau of Building Marketing Research reports. Thus, the desire of Americans to include fresh air and sunlight in their leisure time activities is reflected in the growth of patios as a home improvement project.

Patios are ideal locations for backyard cookouts, sun bathing or just relaxing without worrying about gasoline and jet fuel shortages. Family entertainment can be more enjoyable outdoors. A birthday party on the patio can go a long way toward eliminating wear and tear on the house interior. And adding outdoor lighting can make a patio functional after dark.

Patio is working only pr[illegible] if it is idle when the weather turns cold. Installing gliding patio doors can make the patio work full time and year-round — The patio—viewed through patio doors — becomes a visual extension of the room adjacent to it. The room seems larger and gains a dramatic new focal point.

Gliding doors such as primed wood or vinyl-clad are readily available at local lumber dealers. They can open up a section of a wall or the entire side of a room. Safety insulating glass is standard. The door also adds to your enjoyment by requiring no painting.

Deer Hunting Can Be a Family Affair

Each year, it seems, more and more time-honored axioms are falling by the wayside. Among the latest to go is the long-held belief that big game hunting is strictly a man's sport.

This is no longer the case as each hunting season sees an increasing number of both women and youngsters among the myriad of gunners going after the big game animals. And, they are doing it in the best and most enjoyable way possible — not by themselves, but along with dad as an outing for the entire family.

Among the many types of animals hunted in North America that are classified as big game, by far the most popular — and probably the most plentiful — is the whitetail deer.

Many families like to combine their deer hunting outings with their vacation trips so as to give them more time to enjoy this exciting sport. There are three basic ways they can do this.

They can visit an established hunting camp and use a hunting cabin or lodge for accommodations. Or, if they prefer to really "rough it," they can make their own camp site by pitching tents near the hunting grounds.

However, the type of hunting trip that is growing fastest in popularity is the one in which the family uses a recreational vehicle (motorhome) for both transportation and accommodations. These vehicles not only provide most of the modern conveniences found in the home, they also allow the family the flexibility of travelling from one hunting area to another whenever they desire.

When packing for the deer hunting trip, in addition to a good deer gun and proper hunting clothes, it is important to include a reliable alarm clock, for deer are usually on the feed in the very early morning and it is almost essential that the hunter be afield by the first rays of dawn. He must also be prepared to sit and play the waiting game and, next to his gun, his best asset is a great deal of patience.

However, after the family has returned home from a successful deer hunt and mom has prepared a sumptuous game dinner, the first forkful of venison steak inevitably makes all the waiting well worthwhile.

Trailering Needs Extra Attention

Good Trailer There Safely

The boat trailer is a marvelous invention, allowing the average boater to fish, water ski, camp, picnic and cruise on water miles from his home.

If you're considering purchasing a boat and trailer, here's some advice from the Johnson Outboards News Bureau on how to get there safely and confidently.

Buy a good trailer. Your boat hull should fit the rollers and stability bars squarely. Make sure the trailer is strong enough to handle not just the boat and motor, but all of the water skis, ice-chests and other gear you would store onboard while trailering.

Federal regulations now require new trailers to have a weight certification plate on the frame for the protection of the consumer. Look for it.

Also, get care and maintenance instructions from the dealer and follow them. It's wise to purchase a "spare" tire and a lug wrench for the trailer tires.

Insure your boat and trailer so you can put your mind at ease while on the road. Most insurance companies can attach a rider to your car insurance at surprisingly modest rates.

Make sure that your towing vehicle is heavy enough and with power enough to pull your boat and trailer. Experts recommend the tow car be equipped with an automatic transmission. This allows for smoother shifting and makes hills easier to negotiate.

You may also want to consider purchasing a vehicle with four wheel drive. While this isn't often necessary, you'll be able to launch at unimproved spots that others avoid. On steep ramps, four-wheel traction can rescue your boat easily while others are slipping and sliding.

If you've never pulled a trailer before, spend some time practicing backing up. It's not difficult, but the "turn-right-to-go-left" technique does take some practice.

Before heading out make sure the boat is tied to the trailer securely.

Driving a trailer rig is easy, so long as you always remember that it's back there. When turning a sharp corner you'll have to take it a little wide to make sure the trailer tires clear the curb.

Give yourself plenty of braking room. You'll need extra power on hills. When passing, be sure to give your rig plenty of room to get around.

Cassette Tape Tips

Keep cassettes out of the oven-like heat of a closed car in the summer. Most manufacturers subject the cassette, and the magnetic tape within the cassette housing, to some grueling tests. However, when conditions are extremely hot and humid, the molded plastic cassette housing could warp. The tape within the housing could deform. So play it safe. Take cassettes out of the glove compartment when the mercury rises.

Sounds of songbirds in a meadow may be captured by recording directionally. Place a cardboard tube or cone over the mike, then aim it in the direction of the sound.

HOW TO PLAY SAFELY NEAR THE WATER

ELEVEN WATER SAFETY RULES FOR PARENTS

1. Watch your children whenever they are near the water . . . and prevent a dreadful tragedy.
2. Children are poor swimmers or non-swimmers . . . they must wear life jackets. You know — young children move quickly . . . watch them carefully.
3. Watch children playing with plastic toys. They are fun on the beach — HAZARDOUS in the water. The slightest breeze will carry them out of reach into deep water.
4. Don't use inner tubes, water wings, etc., if you can't swim. The false confidence they build may cost your life.
5. Even after small children learn to swim, VIGILANT SUPERVISION must be continued.
6. Do not permit swimming in unknown waters. Have a responsible adult check a new area for drop-offs, currents, water purity — and for safe, firm bottoms.
7. Do not swim alone under any circumstances. Child and adult alike may panic when no help is near.
8. Don't swim in the dark . . . it's dangerous.
9. Know and teach "reaching assists" . . . how to help a swimmer in difficulty by lying flat and extending an arm, a pole or paddle, or towel or clothing . . . how to throw a line or a ring buoy . . . KNOWLEDGE SAVES LIVES.
10. Prevent boat accidents - WEAR YOUR LIFE JACKET!
11. DON'T OVERLOAD A BOAT . . . It's dangerous and stupid. If boat does capsize — HANG ON! Wait for help to come to you.

SAFETY HINTS AROUND THE HOME

Because children love to play in water, they must be watched constantly if there are creeks, rivers or ponds, no matter how small, near the home. A ditch, flooded after a storm, can be a death trap.

Cover open wells. Attention to this constant danger will prevent tragedy.

Make sure deep excavations in your neighborhood are fenced, and small children supervised at play.

Anticipate and prevent that one fatal slip.

Garden ponds and plastic wading pools should be supervised while children are at play — and closed off when supervision is absent. Remember! Children have drowned in as little as two or three inches of water.

Around the home, teach your children to avoid these dangers.

SAFETY TIPS FO

YOU MUST: Check your boat thoroughly and never leave your mooring until you have done so.

YOU MUST: Never overload your boat. At all times be especially careful about non-swimmers and children.

YOU MUST: Carry life preservers for every person on board. Be sure they are worn on deck duty in rough weather.

YOU MUST: Carry filled fire extinguishers, lights, signal apparatus and ground tackle according to the law.

YOU MUST: Keep to the right when meeting another boat and give the right-of-way to vessels op-

Coolers Problem Solvers

Campers and picnickers have always known that eating outdoors adds new taste delights to food — and many travel-minded Americans are joining their ranks. Not only does the meal taste better, but with spiraling restaurant prices, it pays to take an ice chest along.

For camping, extended trips and group picnics, large coolers are needed to accommodate the amount of food required and carry sufficient ice. One of the most convenient models available today is a new cooler that contains just about everything but the kitchen sink.

These super coolers have two dual-purpose food trays to insure adequate space for carrying meat and produce. One tray is covered with a flat lid that can be used as a cutting board; the other tray fits neatly over the ice to keep melted water from splashing out and getting food wet. A centre compartment provides additional space for covered foods and beverages, and a liquid container compartmentalizes food and beverages in the 100 quart cooler.

When packing a cooler, remember that block ice lasts longer than chipped ice and is better for camping on extended travel.

Fishing is Fun

Fishing is always a relaxing way to spend a warm summer day. Even if you don't catch anything, there's no better way to enjoy the outdoors. Here are two youngsters hoping to land a big one. All through the summer, anglers line the Moira Riverhop ingto catch a fisherman's delight.

Gas Barbecue Handy Outfit

You may not be country-bound as often as you'd like this energy-conscious summer, but you can plan exciting local "get-aways" that may be just as enjoyable. Some families, already anticipating summer gas shortages, are planning to head to nearby parks and beaches. Others are turning their own back yards into recreational centres for summer fun. To enhance their pleasure, outdoor enthusiasts will be adding leisure time equipment, including swimming pools, lawn games and barbecues.

For fast and easy outdoor meal preparation, the gas barbecue is becoming a popular item.

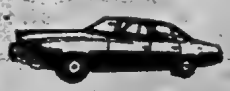
With a gas-fired grill, you just turn on the gas, allow the grill to preheat for a few minutes and you're ready to cook almost anything. And, because gas barbecues generally have built-in heat controls for exact temperature setting, there's no guessing at how hot the coals are — and no late supper hours because the dinner didn't get done as quickly as expected.

Food prepared on a gas grill has the cooked-outdoors flavor associated with charcoal — but you'll have none of the bother and mess. (That outdoor barbecue taste actually comes from the smoke of natural meat juices dripping on hot briquets, not from any flavor the charcoal imparts.)

With gas grilling, there's no need for dangerous starter fluids and no messy charcoal clean-up afterwards. You cook with a clean, heat-radiating ceramic briquets that last through hundreds of barbecue feasts. After cooking, leave the gas on for a few moments and whisk the cooking grids clean with a nylon brush. Food residues will fall onto the briquets and burn up, leaving the grill ready for the next meal.

Leave Guide For Caretaker

Whoever is given the responsibility for acting for your lawn and garden should be given specific instructions prior to your departure. Draw a rough plot of the garden and circle the areas that need the most attention. Write down when each area should be watered and for how long.



Again, the best practice is to move potted plants into a shaded area where they may be easily reached with the water hose. Specify in writing how often, and how long to water the plants. Be implicit that thorough soakings are required.

If you're concerned about insects, discuss with your nurseryman the necessity to spray he garden — he will have knowledge of what possible damage could occur in your absence, and if necessary, can recommend safe and effective controls.

Finally, don't fertilize during the two week period prior to your vacation, otherwise new growth and its special need for water will cause trouble.

New Tents Comfortable and Convenient

Enjoying activities in the great outdoors is rapidly becoming one of the most popular and economical ways of spending leisure time.

A summer vacation, a weekend retreat or a one-day trip might encompass just about anything from picnicking and hiking to camping and fishing. For many people, scenic locations for pursuing these activities are located close to home — often within walking distance. And for children, a safe and appropriate campsite is the back yard.

Camping is one of the most economical ways to spend a vacation, and to help cut expenses when travelling. And for today's people on the go, vacation and travel plans are based on freedom, convenience and economy.

That's why more and more people think of tents as essential leisure companions — whether during travel or on vacation. There's never a need to make reservations, stop early for accommodations or look around for a moderately-priced motel. When they see a pleasant spot or tire of driving, deciding where to stay is as easy as setting a tent in place.

A favorite of many youthful and young-minded travellers are the igloo-shaped tents that can be popped into place by one person in less than two minutes. These Pop-Tents by Thermos are especially appealing to ecology-conscious people because they require no stakes.

This makes them easy to move from place to place even after fully assembled. They become instant cabanas at beach or poolside, extra bedrooms when travelling by trailer and easy-to-assemble land shelters for boaters.

These tents are available in two styles: a seven-foot size to sleep two, or a nine-foot model for four. Both come complete with compact carrying case, mosquito netting, zippered storm flaps, and a window for cross-ventilation.

Although outdoorsmen never expect a thunder shower, they'll be well-protected by the water-repellent walls and sewn-in floor. Enjoying fresh air and sleeping in the great outdoors was never easier or more fun.

Chores Simplified

There's an old adage that claims the difference between existence and life is the intelligent use of leisure. And, according to current statistics, an increasing number of Canadian families are spending more time and money on the business of leisure, particularly in the form of second homes, boats and campers.

Whatever the mode of leisure living . . . even if it's in your own backyard because of the energy crisis . . . one aspect of daily life remains constant — cleaning chores. In order to shorten and simplify the inevitable process, here is a vacationer's guide to leisure-time housekeeping. For instance, here's how floating family could tend to daily chores on board: Store a portable hand vac in the cabin for quick clean-ups, but to avoid shocks, make certain the area to be cleaned is completely dry.

For second-home dwellers, a compact cleaning centre will solve the problem of organizing cleanups before and after the beach or outings. A few clean rags, mop and pail, detergents and cleansers along with a vacuum should make the cleaning centre efficient. Sand, dirt and grass manage to find their way into the home with the rest of the family. One vacuum cleaner can be depended upon to make a clean sweep of the whole house and sandy feet, too.

For mobile home families, a lightweight vacuum cleaner is the way to tackle cleaning. It can be pulled out in a jiffy to get at crumbs, dust and road dirt.

Whether you're on the move or staying at home this summer, the experts at the Home Care Institute offer these additional tips for easy-care living that should provide you with more leisure time.

— Outfit the family in clothes of synthetic knits that remain wrinkle free and require no ironing.

— Avoid doing hand laundry by loosely placing delicate articles, such as slips in a pillow case and then tossing them in with the regular wash.

— Use disposable cups, plates and flatware for breakfast, lunch and snack times to save on dishwashing.

— Whenever possible, prepare one-dish meals or use plastic bags designed for cooking that do not sacrifice flavor but save on scouring pots and pans.

— Insist that each member of the family keep his or her living area in order. In addition, assign special duties to each person. In a family of four, if each person spends 15 minutes a day helping with general household chores, you vacation home will stay "top clean".

Triple Fun

Outdoor activities are more fun if there's more than one taking part. Here's a good example where the fun has been tripled. The three were enjoying a cooling leap into the harbor waters near the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. The scene will be repeated many times during the summer throughout the Belleville area.

Radios Rugged

Tender loving care isn't always necessary to keep your most rugged electronic products working. The following will help make any battery-operated radio or cassette recorder last longer.

— Check batteries for strength or any liquid leaks. Remove liquid from the inside of the battery compartment with an ammonia-soaked cloth —then replace those leaky, bat teries.

If your portable battery-operated radio or cassette recorder gets wet because it was dropped in the lake or left out in the rain you can dry it by remembering these simple steps.

Do not turn the set on! Water acts as an electrical conductor and may cause a short circuit. Remove the batteries, and sponge out the water, rinsing out any salt water with fresh water. Fan dry or place in sunlight. Clean battery contacts with ammonia and then turn on.

Never attempt to clean a rain or water-soaked portable electronic product that is AC operated. Take it to an authorized service technician.

Wheeled Homes The Best For Tour

If you want to see the country, or the continent for that matter, there is no better way to do it than in a motorhome. Most people find that motorhomes are easy to drive.

Surprisingly, even in this day of women's "lib", the question frequently comes up, can a woman drive it? Women can and often do; indeed husbands and wives almost always share the wheel on long trips. Actually, thanks to power steering and automatic transmissions, standard on almost all RVs, a child could do it.

h The principal difference between driving a Motorhome and a car is that you must remember to drive the coach half-way across the intersection before making a right-hand turn, otherwise the rear wheels get dragged across the curb.

Motorhomes come in all sizes from the minis on up to full bus lengths.

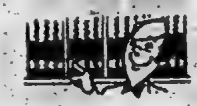
Like yachts, the bigger coaches offer more room for luxury — some come equipped with lounges and private bedrooms. But regardless of size, all modern motorhomes are furnished with full length beds, bathrooms (often equipped with a shower), hot and cold running water, refrigerator, oven-range combination and a space heater or furnace.

Retired Couples

A growing number of retired couples are selling their homes and attendant problems and literally living in their motorhomes.

The arrangement provides them with enormous flexibility, or as one lady said, "Now we can have a choice of wintering in Florida, Arizona, California, or all of them." Are they lonely? "Never," she said, and her husband agreed. "We continue to make friends wherever we go and can always look forward to seeing friends wherever we are."

Unlike trailers and campers that are almost compelled to use a campground which requires making a reservation often long in advance, the motorhome has a great deal more flexibility. While not every state will allow them to park overnight in highway rest areas, a good number do.



Sometimes farmers and ranchers will allow the motorhomes to park, especially if the owner explains he will be there only overnight and will not picnic or use campfires or outdoor stoves to cook.

Travel in Comfort

Also because of the growing popularity of motorhomes, and their complete self-sufficiency, an increasing number of motels and gasoline stations are making overnight space available to RVs at a nominal cost.

In any event, if you want to travel in comfort and at your own pace, a motorhome is the best way to go.

Toronto's New Zoo Has Jane, no Tarzan

TORONTO (CP) — The African pavilion of the new zoo has a Jane, but no Tarzan. Jane Berg is an attractive, 24-year-old keeper in the African pavilion of the zoo which is scheduled to open Aug. 15.

As a keeper, she has become an "auntie" to a baby gorilla and is cook and housekeeper for hundreds of exotic animals taking up residence at the 710-acre zoo.

But Jane, partly because of her name, has become one of the most talked about people at the new zoo.

When she answers the phone in the pavilion she says: "African pavilion, Jane speaking."

There are no vines to swing from in the African setting at the zoo, but otherwise it looks like a real jungle.

As opening date nears, Jane and her fellow workers hope visitors to the zoo will be able to cope with the openness and freedom of the zoo's design.

The zoo is based on a geographic concept that attempts to show the animals in their natural setting. To do this, thousands of tropical plants and trees have been imported, and the natural terrain of the site has been rearranged to help make the animals' display areas look like their natural environments.

There are few cages, fences and solid enclosures and in some areas the public is permitted to mingle with the animals.

"For the first little while we will be as interested in people behavior as in animal behavior," said Walter Gray, the zoo's development director.

A trial run will be held during the first two weeks of August when 300,000 Metro elementary school children visit the zoo for a sneak preview.

"If we have to make changes we will make changes," Mr. Gray said.

The new Metro Zoo will be one of the largest in the world and the only one to use the geographic concept to such an extent.

The areas in the zoo include Indo-Malaya, Africa, North and South America, Eurasia and Australia. The large Canadian section, which will feature native animals in their natural habitat, will not be open until next summer.

Rat Patrol Guards Alberta

ALONG THE ALBERTA-SASKATCHEWAN BORDER (CP) — Albertans proud of their province's reputation as a rat-free province can thank men like Marvin Horpestad.

He has spent 10 years working on the "rat patrol," tracking down rats and destroying them before they have a chance to establish a colony.

Mr. Horpestad is one of five men who patrol the 330 miles of border between Montana and southeastern Alberta, seeking Saskatchewan rats heading for greener pastures.

Last year, they killed 25,000 rats, using 15,000 pounds of rolled oats mixed with poison and 2,783 packages of water-soluble poison.

It's a typical day for Mr. Horpestad, who earns $7,500 a year, as he bounces along a mud-slicked road in a blue pick-up truck.

Mexican Restaurateur Revives Aztec Menus

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's pre-Columbian art treasures are well known, but a local restaurant owner has resurrected that era's cuisine, complete with snakes, grub worms, lizards, salamanders and frogs.

"Mexican cooking can easily compete with that of China," says Jorge Alberto O'Farrill, scion of an old Mexican family. "But the food that people associate with this country is the product of the post-Spanish conquest."

To present what he calls the real cuisine of Mexico as eaten by the Aztecs and other Indian cultures more than 1,000 years ago, he has opened a restaurant with authentic pre-Hispanic dishes.

Although known records of the Aztecs go back to 1111 AD, other cultures such as the Toltecs preceding them are known to have been in the area 300 and 300 AD, say archeologists.

The adventurous diner will not find tacos or chile con carne in the restaurant—"Chile con carne isn't Mexican; you Americans are responsible"—but food that the Emperor Montezuma was served at royal banquets.

"Montezuma's table on any given day would have literally hundreds of different dishes with all kinds of sauces," says O'Farrill, who formerly managed restaurants in France and Mexico before opening hit own Plaza Tepita recently.

O'Farrill says he spent years researching ancient recipes from historical documents and from visiting parts of Mexico where pre-Columbian cooking traditions are still observed.

The clientele is mostly Mexican but he says some tourists have started visiting his establishment, located in the heart of the capital's tourist district.

"Some Mexicans are even frightened to try the food I serve here," he says. "It will take some time to get them accustomed to the authentic Mexican cooking."

Water Is Key to Life In Aussie Hinterland

ABOARD THE INDIAN-PACIFIC (CP) — Water is the main ingredient in the battle for survival in the great Australian hinterland.

And the names of tiny communities on the route of the Indian-Pacific express often tell the story of that constant search for water.

They're little communities, often just a blur in the window, not important enough for the trans-Australian train even to pause. But each is important in the cycle of survival that is the outback of Australia.

There's Wallerawang, aborigine for water on the rocks, and Tarana, again an aborigine word, the name for a large water hole.

Gunebang to the aborigine means the place where a river overflows its banks. Yongala is the native word for good drinking water.

No explanation would have been needed for the early aborigines who roamed Australia in areas where the white man would have died of thirst within days.

Olary is named after a man who sank the first bore there. In an area where water is worth more than gold it's a big name.

The community of Caltowie is named again in aborigine. It means the waterhole of the sleepy lizard. And Wynbring means fiery or burning water.

Golden is an important spot on the Nullarbor plain, important in the way of life, but just another land mark for this luxury express.

It means "a meeting place where water is available" and is important because it's the only supply of natural water on the Nullarbor plain.

Mundrabilla again is not a stop. It's where man started his battle against the desert. Here in the search for water for the old steam trains numerous bores were sunk. They went down as far as 1,476 feet and ended in failure. They ended in solid granite.

Kalgoorlie, where miners' dreams were born and died, once had water carted in. Today a pipeline is the town's lifeline.

Water is piped 346 miles and the lawns are lush and green.

Water is precious to the area but cannot bring civilization.

For the Nullarbar plain not only lacks its own fresh water but fresh water can't help. As a sea bed of millions of years ago salt is predominent, so much so that salt manufacturers flourish.

Rain might make pools. But the pools often are saltier than the sea.

It is with this in mind one watches as the Indian-Pacific spends its last few hours in West Australia. It follows a valley with its accompanying stream.

The stream is dirty-brown and foam covered. Somewhere along its path it is being polluted. Nothing can survive in a stream such as this.

And as the journey of the Indian-Pacific ends in the golden city of Perth you remember that stream, a river of dead water in a country so short of that commodity.

The men of the outback would hang the men of the city who caused the death of the stream.

Money Seen Cause Of Poor Health

TORONTO (CP) — Money is the root of aches and pains that plague your health, say doctors.

Money buys things like cigarettes, liquor, food, vehicles and conveniences that keep you away from healthy, old-fashioned exercise.

Ontario government health experts say the province should spend more money to persuade you not to spend money on cigarettes and liquor.

Currently, the province spends about 80 per cent of its annual $2.4-billion health budget on trying to cure illnesses after they start.

Allan Backley, assistant deputy minister of health services, said Ontario should give more attention to prevention of disease and promotion of good health.

That means, he told a health conference here, that if the average citizen wants to remain healthy, he must clean up his lifestyle.

One villain cited at the conference is smoking. In addition to being a factor in lung cancer, heart disease and bronchitis, it also lessens the body's resistance and slows recovery from a variety of illnesses.

One hospital administrator said smoking had contributed to the illness of between 15 and 25 per cent of his patients at any given time.

Alcohol is worse. Dr. David Archibald, director of the Addiction Research Foundation, fears Ontario may suffer the same fate as France where 50 per cent of all hospital beds go to patients suffering from alcohol-related diseases.

Dr. Archibald estimated the alcohol-health problem in Ontario is about 25 to 33 per cent as serious as in France but the average per capita consumption of alcohol is rising yearly.

Eating too much and eating the wrong foods, combined with physical inactivity, is another cause of illnesses, said Jean Pigott, a member of the Ottawa District Health Council.

"The poor nutritional habits start in childhood," she said,

Russian Brothers Re-united After Thirty Long Years

EDMONTON (CP) — The tears streaming down Adolf Rutkowski's face washed away almost 30 years of hopelessness.

He stood, weeping without shame, in the arms of the family he had lived without since the waning days of the Second World War. He survived 20 years in a Soviet prison camp and an additional 10 years of imprisonment within Russia and now, at Edmonton's International Airport, he stood face-to-face with his mother Olga and brother Henry who struggled for years to gain Adolf's release.

Trouble began for the Rutkowski family in their native Russia in 1939, when their father, caught in the wave of violence which accompanied Joseph Stalin's reign, was arrested and shot.

Olga Rutkowski and her two sons, then aged 14 and 11, left for German-occupied Poland, where they lived with relatives.

Both boys, under pressure from inquisitive German officials, became members of the Hitler Youth.

When Russian forces swept through Poland in January, 1945, the family was scattered—Henry and his mother eventually meeting in West Germany after the war but without Adolf. Through second-hand reports, Henry and his mother concluded he had been captured by Russian troops.

In 1953, Henry and his mother moved to Canada, still not knowing whether Adolf was alive.

But in 1962 they received confirmation through the Red Cross in Switzerland that Adolf was being held in a Russian prison camp. The agency passed along Henry's Edmonton address and within six months a letter arrived from Adolf asking for help to get him out.

Henry tried to get his brother freed, working first through the West German embassy and then through the Canadian embassy after he became a Canadian citizen in 1963.

In early 1964, acting on Adolf's suggestion, Henry wrote a letter to Leonid Brezhnev, who at that time was chief of the Soviet secret police, asking that Adolf be released from prison.

Six months later, an official letter from the Russian government informed Henry his brother was to be released from prison in three months.

"But when the day came, we heard nothing," Henry said. "We were sure that he had met with failure once again."

Two days later, the Rutkowskis received a telephone call from Adolf, who was in Moscow.

The family's problems were not over. Adolf could not obtain an exit visa to leave Russia, despite the willingness of the Canadian immigration department to grant him a landing permit.

Letters, applications, documents, affidavits and forms started flowing again as Henry renewed his campaign to bring his brother home.

On the eighth try, it clicked.

On March 2, 1974, Adolf telephoned to say he had received his passport and was waiting for his exit visa. In April, he called again to say he was on his way.

On arrival, Adolf said he had no immediate plans, but that he had worked as a welder and as an electrician in a hydroelectric plant.

About a month later, Henry said his brother was still without a job, but added "he never looked for one yet . . . he's remodelling mother's house."

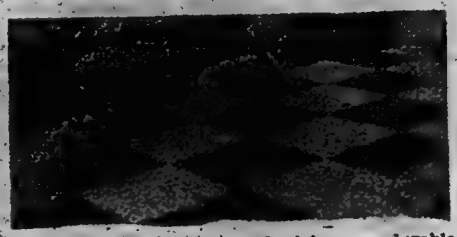
Adolf still doesn't speak much English, but he's learning, Henry said.

Vacuuming Of Plants Suggested

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Plant doctor Barry Schwartz says vacuuming is an excellent way to add lustre, prevent foliage disease and remove dust particles from stomata, the tiny pores through which plants breathe.

"Clean plants are healthy plants and healthy plants grow and survive," he said.

Because greenery is a popular decrative element in homes and offices, Eureka's Home Care Institute researched the problems of caring for house plants.



After consultations with Schwartz, they offered guidelines for achieving green-thumb status with healthy, happy plants.

First, make the cleaning of plants as routine as cleaning carpets or dusting table-tops.

Small plants or those with delicate foliage should be wiped clean and polished with a damp non-abrasive cloth. Large plants with broad leaves can be quickly and thoroughly cleaned with a vacuum.

Many plants are on the vacuum list, including: rubber plants, schefflera, corn plants, dragon trees, cactus, dumb cane, cast iron, sansevieria (also known as snake plants and mother-in-law's tongue).

Yield Tapes, Nixon Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court ruled 8 to 0 today that President Nixon must surrender White House tapes and papers wanted in connection with the Watergate cover-up trial.

Chief Justice Warren Burger, a Nixon appointee, delivered the opinion of the court.

"We conclude that when the ground for asserting privileges as to subpoenaed materials sought for use in a criminal trial is based only on the general interest in confidentiality, it cannot prevail over the fundamental demands of due process of law in the fair administration of criminal justice," Burger said.

The court ruled that the dispute between the president and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski was subject to determination by the courts, contrary to Nixon's assertion that it was not on grounds it was a dispute within the executive branch of government.

The Supreme Court also ruled that:

—The material sought by Jaworski satisfied a federal court rule that subpoenaed material be useful and relevant as evidence in the trial for which it is sought.

—The doctrine of separation of powers and the need for confidentiality of high-level communications, without more, before the trial branch does not mean that the president has an absolute privilege to withhold material from the courts under all circumstances.

—In a case such as the controversy before the court, claims of confidentiality "are not based on grounds of military or diplomatic secrecy, the president's assertion of privilege must yield to the need of the evidence.

Cabinet to Decide Thursday On Expanding Truce Force

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision on whether to expand Canadian military participation on the Cyprus-Mediterranean Island of Cyprus was expected to be taken Thursday at a full cabinet meeting.

A cabinet committee met Tuesday to thresh a request by United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim for more men from the seven countries now contributing to the UN presence on the island, but no decision was forthcoming.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp appeared to favor the idea although he would not specifically say so and Defence Minister James Richardson said after the meeting that Canada might easily double the 480 men it now has on the island with the UN force supervising a truce between Greek and Turkish Cypriots that was shattered last week with a coup d'etat, deposing president Makarios and this week by a Turkish invasion.

Mr. Sharp told a news conference following the cabinet committee meeting that several considerations will have to be looked at before a decision is made on sending more troops to Cyprus.

He noted that Canada, which now has 1,000 men there, was on the way to reducing its commitment when the coup took place. He said the UN force pledges to supervise a truce and Canada would want to know exactly what would be expected of the men before sending more into the area of disturbance.

He also said Canada would like to see countries other than the seven already on Cyprus asked to participate in the UN force there, although he acknowledged this would require a different mandate from the Security Council.

But another consideration, not mentioned Tuesday by Mr. Sharp, was that Monday by a department spokesman and brought home Tuesday when two Canadian soldiers were wounded in three outbreaks of fighting on the island.

Dairyman May Face Bribe Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate prosecutors say they may bring bribery charges against a dairy co-operative official in connection with President Nixon's 1971 increase of federal milk-price supports.

One of the co-op officials who promised $2 million for Nixon's 1972 campaign, David Parr, pleaded guilty Tuesday to conspiring to donate corporate money and services illegally to six candidates, including Democrats Hubert Humphrey and Wilbur Mills.

But in a letter filed with the court, the prosecutors said that Parr's guilty plea won't give him immunity from prosecution on possible charges of bribery and conspiracy "in connection with the March 25, 1971, milk-price support decision."

First Republican Decides To Vote for Impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's hopes of avoiding impeachment have suffered a setback on the vote of the House of Representatives Judiciary committee's debate today.

Representative Lawrence Hogan, a conservative and one of those committee Republicans expected to go in-house impeachers, announced Tuesday he will support impeachment.

Hogan is the first committee Republican to announce he will vote for impeachment. His decision touched off open talk of impeachment in the Republican cloak room.

The debate, beginning at 7:30 p.m. EDT, will be carried on television and radio. A vote on whether to recommend impeachment is expected by Friday or Saturday.

The opening committee debate will be televised live on ABC-TV and on various Public Broadcasting System stations.

Hogan's announcement led to a prediction by one Republican member that as many as seven of the 17 committee Republicans may end up calling for Nixon's impeachment. Hogan said in an interview last night that he expects eight Republicans to vote for impeachment, and 21 Democrats have pledged ready to vote for at least one article of impeachment.

Representative John Anderson of Illinois, the third-ranking Republican in the House, said: "It seems to me quite obvious that Mr. Hogan's statement is convincing evidence that the committee is dragging out its vote one or more articles, and I would gather that the House would follow suit from what I hear in the corridors."

Hogan, a candidate for governor of Maryland, said at a news conference that after examining the evidence before the Judiciary committee, he is convinced Nixon has committed impeachable offenses and should be removed from office.

Representative John Conyers of Michigan said he would have to consider the advisability of pursuing Congressional action to disclose where Nixon might go if killed or severely wounded.

Already since the coup 11 Canadian military personnel have been wounded, none seriously, in fighting either among opposing factions in the Greek-held section of the divided island or in fighting between island defenders and Turkish invaders.

Both men wounded Tuesday are with the Canadian Airborne Regiment at Edmonton. They are Capt. Normand Blaquiere of Ville St. Michel, a Montreal suburb, and Sgt. Bernard Rushlow of Ottawa. Both were described easily today as in satisfactory condition.

Montreal Murders Believed Linked To Double-cross in Big Bond Theft

MONTREAL (CP) — Investigators for the Montreal Urban Community police department said Tuesday a recent series of murders in the city may be connected with gangland warfare but it is only "one of several theories we are working on in connection with the murders."

Investigators said Tuesday the four killings since Saturday which brought to 23 the number of murders in the city this year.

Jean-Paul Arbour, 27, and Jacques Morin, 28, both described by police as underworld figures, were shot and killed by two masked gunmen in an east-end restaurant Sunday.

Pierre Bolduc, 21, was murdered by three gunmen in his east-end apartment.

Police said the killers of Arbour and Morin were spotted leaving Bolduc's apartment that day.

Two men, also described by police as having underworld links, are being held in connection with the Bolduc murder, and a third is being sought.

Police have said they speculate the murders of Arbour and Morin are linked to several other recent underworld slayings that stemmed from a double-cross in the theft of more than $400,000 in bonds and securities from a post office truck last year.

New Greek PM Turk's Friend

ATHENS (AP) — Premier Constantine Caramanlis began putting together a new civilian government for Greece today, and the strong man of the fallen military dictatorship, Brig.-Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, was reported headed for a front-line command on the Turkish frontier.

(Reuters news agency said Ioannides was reported under house arrest but said officials would neither confirm nor deny the report.)

Reliable sources said Caramanlis, 67-year-old elder statesman of Greek democracy, agreed to end 11 years of exile in Paris and head a government of national unity only after receiving assurances that the military leaders would return to their barracks and let him run things his way.

It appeared that the military were keeping their word. First to go was Ioannides, the dreaded and mysterious chief of the military police who toppled dictator George Papadopoulos in a bloodless coup last November and ran the regime from behind the scenes.

He was reliably reported to have submitted his resignation from the army early today, but this was refused. Military sources said instead Ioannides was being assigned to the northeast front, where Greek armed forces have been massed to fight the Turks if war comes.

Bomb Found on Plane

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Police discovered an unexploded bomb Tuesday aboard a British Airtour holiday plane flying to Canada with 45 passengers, James Flanagan, the police chief of Northern England, was not sure. An anonymous caller reported the bomb after the British Airways Trident had taken off from Belfast.

Arm Replaced

EDMONTON (CP) — A three-year-old Hutterian, Alta., girl Teresa Bake, has had a severed arm replaced in a rare eight-hour operation. Teresa was apparently playing in a field at the family farm, about 55 miles southwest of Edmonton, when she was run over by a tractor driven by father, Hubert Bake, who was driving the mower, scooped up the tiny blonde child and, with the severed arm wrapped in a towel, drove to Edmonton where two plastic surgeons and an orthopedic surgeon were waiting.

ANKARA (Reuter) — Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit today welcomed the emergence of Constantine Caramanlis as the new premier of Greece and said he will be able to repair the relations between the two countries.

He said Turkey's invasion of Cyprus helped pave the way for a return to democratic government to Greece, and he felt "great happiness" at Caramanlis's appointment.

"Mr. Caramanlis is a true friend," he said. "He will be able to repair friendship between Turkey and Greece."

The new Greek premier was praised Tuesday night by Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes.

Gunes, interviewed on television after the political changeover in Greece, said Turkey would be pleased to see a civilian government headed by a real minister. Then he added: "Caramanlis is an experienced statesman. He is not a nobody."

Two More Canadians Wounded

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

News dispatches from Cyprus report that Canadians were wounded Tuesday. But United Nations forces reported a number of ceasefire violations, and the Security Council adopted a new resolution demanding compliance with the truce that began July 16.

Reuters news agency reported new fighting today along the Green Line dividing the Greek and Turkish-Cypriots in Nicosia. The line runs through the Canadian troops of the UN peacekeeping force. Reuters also said a UN post on the Green Line came under fire with some casualties. No details were immediately available.

The Canadian soldiers were wounded Tuesday, bringing the number of Canadians wounded since the Turkish invasion to 11. Most of the wounds were believed serious. Canada has 480 men in the UNEF peacekeeping force on Cyprus.

The evacuation of foreigners continued from the British bases in Dhekelia and Akrotiri, in southern Cyprus. The bases were reported jammed with refugees, and British forces were taking them to waiting ships.

The British government had hoped to open negotiations in Geneva today between the Greeks and Turks in arranging for a peace agreement, including the restoration of constitutional rule to Cyprus. But a UN spokesman in Nicosia said he understands that the change in the Greek government will delay the meeting.

The government ousted in Athens brought former King Constantine from his home on the outskirts of London to a conference with the British government, and then he moved into a hotel in the West End. Apparently he was ready to go, he would be called back to the throne he fled in 1967 after an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the military regime.

The British government was reported extremely cautious toward the 56-year-old king.

"We are not in the kingmaking line these days," a British official.

The Greek military regime abolished the monarchy on June 1, 1973, and a national referendum the next month confirmed the abolition.

Official Plan: Tourism, Recreation Won't Dominate Economy

Fewer Farms with Higher Income Seen for Prince Edward

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A draft official plan for Prince Edward County predicts a decline in the total of local farms but a rise in farm income and does not foresee tourism as a dominant economic role.

The plan was presented to county council Tuesday night by the county planning board. The report is drafted as an overall reference and guide for development until 1988.

"If is not a be-all-to-end-all," said board chairman Roy Wight. "It is as good as ten good men can do."

Council requested a draft plan seven years ago. The plan now presented took 15 months to prepare under direction of county planner Brendella Abood.

The plan predicts that agriculture will decline locally in labor employment and the number of operational farms. Agriculture will focus on cattle-raising and cattle feed grain production. In spite of decline in the employment and farm numbers, farm income will rise. The average size of the farm will also increase during the plan period. Fruit and vegetable production also will continue to contribute to Prince Edward's agricultural economy.

Recreation and tourism will continue to play its supporting role within the service sector. It is not expected to take a dominant role in the county's economy, either as an employment base or as a major source of income.

The present public parks and beaches will attract visitors in greater numbers as other metropolitan centres grow. But, by virtue of the fact that these visitors belong to low and lower middle income groups, it is not expected there will be a large amount of money spent by them in the area.

The plan predicts that cottages will increase in the county from the present 1,451 to about 2,500 during the plan period. The tourist industry can acquire a larger supporting role of the economy by providing year-round recreational facilities for visitors.

The possible growth of manufacturing in the county may be influenced by the recent provincial policy for providing economic incentives to the industrial sector to expand and locate in the eastern Ontario region.

This policy, coupled with initiatives taken by county council, has already established five new industries in the Loch Sloy industrial park at Prince Edward Heights.

Prince Edward's plan sees divided lake two categories, economic and land use development. Future land use development will take place on two different levels, rural land and urban use.

"We feel it's a good plan," said Mr. Wight.

He said that rejections or amendments by council would be welcomed, but he emphasized the importance of moving forward with it to Queen's Park.

Prince Edward County warden Keith MacDonald said that council feels a study period of the draft plan is required and should be held with Mr. Wight and the county planner. Some 35 copies of the plan have been prepared, ten of them for planning board members and 17 for county councillors.

Mayor Warns PUC on Hiring Policy

TRENTON — Mayor Robert Patrick has considered a newly-instituted Public Utilities Commission policy of hiring town high school graduates because he fears it could be discriminatory.

"Are you not creating in the broadest sense a form of discrimination?" the mayor asked the PUC Tuesday. "Are we not treading on dangerous waters?"

Mayor Patrick told the commissioners his concern is from a statement made by chairman Charles Hilton last week.

Mr. Hilton fired salvos in the direction of public bodies, including the PUC, which do not give preference to Trenton High School graduates staff hiring practices.

The chairman said girls given work in town would not be forced to dump Trenton in an effort to gain employment.

Commission manager Douglas Manlow was instructed to seek an opinion from Canada Manpower officials on the PUC's new local hiring policy.

PUC's Fears of Duck Pollution Has Conservationists Scoffing

FRANKFORD — Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority executive members have termed ridiculous a Trenton Public Utilities Commission recommendation that birds from Fox Swamp are polluting adjacent Tremur Lake reservoir, the town's main source of water.

"How you can tell me a few wood ducks and Canada Geese are polluting a body of water is beyond me," said Paul Tripp, Trenton's representative with the authority.

"It makes us look like we're bringing in thousands of birds to pollute the water."

The reaction followed notification Tuesday that the PUC is terminating a four-year-old lease on Fox Swamp, land used by the authority as a bird sanctuary.

The notice is retroactive to July 1. The authority has been given six months to step up use of the swamp area it occupies on the southeast corner of the Officer on Authority

FRANKFORD — Natural resources ministry conservation officer Robert Orok has been appointed to a member of the fish and wildlife board. of the Low'r Trent Region Conservation Authority.

The officer, working out of Napanee, will serve in an advisory capacity for a one-year term.

The authority executive approved the appointment here Tuesday.

New Development and Technique studies, directly opposite Tremur Lake.

Fox Swamp, which is approximately 50 acres, has been used sparingly, the authority claims.

Secretary-treasurer Willkem Lawson said nesting boxes for wood ducks, now scarce, were installed in 1969. A pair of giant Canada Geese, brought there in 1971, were shot by hunters in 1972.

Last year, two other pairs were introduced, but have not returned. They apparently left the swamp and have settled behind Trenton Community Gardens, he said.

Member Cy MacDonald said as far as he's concerned we haven't worked to create a bird sanctuary.

"There's a few ducks as a source of pollution. It's damn silly. We've done nothing to attract birds."

The PUC's contention, said Mr. Tripp, "should be exposed as foolish. Because all it does is give the authority a black eye."

He called for, and received acceptance, for a natural resources ministry inquiry to evaluate "how many birds it takes to pollute the water."

Birds are attracted to Tremur Lake, say officials, but not through the authority's efforts.

Authority resources manager Brian Joyce said he has seen "at the 300 ducks at Tremur Lake during the autumn migratory season."

He added that there is "no way that we brought them in.

Any large expanse of water will attract ducks."

Bruce Spencer, the club's trap-and-release shotgun, suggested signs could be placed on the lake, encouraging birds to "Please do not alight."

Last of 3 Escapees Caught Near Huntsville

BRIGHTON — Exactly 16 days of freedom for James Barkwell, 19, of Huntsville ended today as the solicitor-general's department returned the last of three July 8 escapees to Warkworth medium security institute.

Barkwell was under the prison's east wall with two other inmates. His companions were captured the following day by a cottager from Hi-

$18,000 for Substation Site To Service New Housing

TRENTON — Town public utilities commissioners agreed Tuesday to pay $18,000 for land on which a new substation will be built to service the proposed Cherry Hill subdivision.

The substation, fed by a 44-kilovolt power line, will occupy a 115-by-90-foot lot at the intersection of Trapp Blvd. and Dundas St. West.

Plans are to build a bungalow type structure similar, said PUC manager Douglas Manlow, to the style of an ordinary home. One such structure is already in Trenton.

Commissioners accepted the subdividers' asking price after general agreement that the PUC offer of $14,500 would not be cheaper. The commission would have been required to pay interest charges, won't help engineering, and administration fees on top of the purchase price.

It is not known precisely how high the overhead costs would run.

agara Falls on an island in the Percy Boom area, about 12 miles north of here. The local police have said today OPP at Huntsville captured the final escapee Tuesday.

No details of the capture were available.

The Huntsville provincial police detachment had charged for Barkwell within a week of his escape, and was believed to have left the Percy Boom area.

Public Underground Spring For Town's Water Supply

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission will investigate reliability of an underground spring in the Hannah and Leopold Sts. area to ascertain how much water could consistently be fed into the town's water system.

Estimate is indicate the subterranean spring, which was recently discovered by accident, has a water flow of 1,000,000 gallons a day.

However, commissioners Tuesday were hesitant to spend money for facilities until reliability of the spring's water volume is tested.

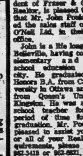
Mains and a pumping station would be required to feed the water into the town's existing system. Such facilities could run as high as $15,000.

Cars Collide

TWEED — Damage totaled $2,100 in a rear end collision between two automobiles cars at the intersection of Moira St. and Highway 37 at the north end of the Village Tuesday evening.

A car driven by Vincent Healey, 70 of 277 St. Joseph's St., Tweed, received an estimated $600 to its rear. Damage to the front of a car driven by Robert Sills, 33, of Tweed, was estimated at $1,500.

Crash Sends Two Women To Hospital



TWEED — A rearend collision just south of the intersection of highways 7 and 37 north of here Tuesday sent two women to hospital.

Clayton Clancy, 53, of RR 1, Arden, was charged by Madoc provincial police with following too closely after his car was in collision with a car driven by Elizabeth Henderson, 65, of Derrynveigh Crt. The Henderson car had $800 damage and the driver and a passenger, Marion Bowes, 61, of Tweed, were taken to hospital with possible neck injuries, said police. Damage to the Clancy car was estimated at $500.

The Belleville-cum-Trenton Citizens' Bureau once again is in the market for funds with the expiry of the LIP grant which has sustained the self-proclaimed ombudsmen for the past six months.

Director Gert Gerling, while noting a lack of support from any local groups approached, is optimistic about a current grant application being reviewed by the secretary of state.

The Citizens' Bureau concept is a sound one, but we too frequently have heard complaints from area residents unsure about the group's makeup, policies, or accomplishments.

Because of the broad community involvement of some of the Bureau's civic-minded members, the public often has trouble deciding for whom they are acting as spokesmen at any given time.

At various times it has been difficult to discern whether views one hears expressed are those of the Citizens' Bureau, the Quinte District Labor Council, the New Democratic Party, People Against A Contaminated Environment, or just plain personal convictions.

The guidelines are garbled. Before any public funds further support the Citizens' Bureau, the community deserves a clear outline of who is doing what for whom and how much it is costing.

Director Gerling says the service the Bureau performs is changing: "There has been a definite shift from people complaining to people inquiring."

We suggest that is not the image the average Quinte resident has of the Citizens' Bureau — one of a humble information office a la Chamber of Commerce.

If the complaining nature of Citizen's Bureau activities is a thing of the past, it is not shown in the actions of the group's more prominent spokesmen.

They have failed miserably in keeping the people who support them adequately informed about the positive aspects of their work — how many people they have helped, who they are, and how much it has cost.

And they have let private crusades against everything from the United Appeal to Moira River pollution become too easily confused with their public roles on the Citizens' Bureau.

Before any further handouts, taxpayers deserve to know what their support of a Citizens' Bureau is in fact supporting.

If the group's work has evolved into the simple job of answering inquiries, as Mr. Gerling indicates, perhaps some money could be saved by letting already-existing groups, like the legal-aid project working, take over.

As for the Citizens' Bureau seeking financial support from the provincial government AND provincially-supported municipal governments, that sounds suspiciously like "double-dipping."

Few Ballots Spoil

Amendments to the Canada Election Act seem to be having their intended effect.

Ballots once, and only once, marked with the traditional X were regarded as legal exercises of franchise, now checks, circles, and "all clearly distinguishable marks" are permissible in the voting process.

The result?

Well, of 66,819 votes cast in Hastings and Prince Edward ridings for the July 8 federal election, a miniscule 249 were rejected as spoiled.

The post-election official count of ballots by provincial ridings yielded another surprise, placing all four Hastings candidate totals higher than election night, and all four Prince Edward figures lower.

Investors Feeling Pinch

Inflation Destroys Theory Common Stocks Give Protection

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The stock market, the wits say, is the only place in town that hasn't been hit by inflationary price increases.

That may be funny if it were not so painful for investors.

Industrial stock prices in Canada have fallen an average of 15.9 per cent during the last year, and 24.3 per cent from their record highs. Some widely held and formerly high-flying issues have fallen much more sharply than the average.

And there is a silver lining, provided that you subscribe to the Truman-Turner theory of comparative inflation, and relate Canada's performance to that of other industrialized countries:

Stock stocks are down 16.1 per cent since last July, 27.5 per cent from their record high.

—British stocks have fallen 41.2 per cent on the year, 53.3 per cent from their peak.

—Australian stocks are off 30.6 per cent since mid-1973, and 42.7 per cent from their highs.

In Germany, the 15.1-per-cent decline during the last year is not as bad as Canada's, but the 47.5-per-cent drop from the record high is almost twice as bad.

Only Japanese stocks have fallen less than Canada—11.7 per cent on the year, 22 per cent from their peak.

The figures only qualify a broad downtrend that began in 1968—as we can see with today's perfect hindsight.

That was a year of recession in the United States and the U.S. Yet it was also a time when banks found themselves short of enough money to meet the heavy demands of would-be borrowers.

Like a cold virus on a crowded bus, the liquidity crisis spread from country to country—helped, by short-sighted U.S. measures requiring American corporations to repatriate their foreign subsidiaries.

At the same time, worldwide inflation began to take off at a rate that had never been witnessed except in the immediate aftermaths of the two world wars.

That destroyed the old and widely held theory that common stocks were a hedge against inflation, and that inflation was therefore bullish for stock prices.

Today's investors—again with perfect hindsight—can see that super-inflation squeezes corporate profits, and that governments' anti-inflation measures (which usually consist solely of a drastic tightening of the money supply) are extremely bearish for the stock market.

What is needed to restore the stock market to some semblance of health?

Obviously, a reduction in interest rates would help. But money is almost certain to get tighter rather than easier if only because governments don't seem to know any other way of trying to cope with inflation.

Failing that, the market probably will have to await a massive return of individual investors.

The small investor has been eased out of the marketplace over the last five years, through a combination of the individual's disillusionment and discouragement, the public's growing tendency to entrust its savings to financial institutions, and the assiduous wooing of those institutional investors by the stockbrokers (many of whom made it clear they don't want to be bothered with the individual investor).

Conventional wisdom says that the institutions alone could support an ever-growing stock market, because of the steady flow of the public's savings into their treasuries.

Instead, the biggest of those institutions—the investment companies—find themselves short of investment funds because the public is borrowing so heavily against insurance policies, at the bargain rate of six per cent.

The oldest joke in the stock market is the one about the typist asking, "Where are the customers' yachts?"

Today it is, "Where are the customers'?"

Writer Denies Ghost

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Allow me to correct the impression of some misinformed people in Belleville.

It has been suggested that I am not the author of letters bearing my signature that have appeared in The Intelligencer — that William C. Hockley's ghost writes them for me.

When I cannot say what I want to say in my own words, it doesn't get said.

With Mr. Hockley's output, I cannot see how he has the time to write his own letters let alone mine.

I was educated under the old-fashioned system, in that I learned to read, write and spell.

This, coupled to an active interest in what goes on around me, makes light work of the hours I spend pouring over a dictionary to write letters.

Britain Has New Bonanza of Oil Reserves

By JOHN D. HAZENDON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The British have a new-found source of what we hide the greatest, logs of pounds, but which is Britain's case they are under the sea, the North Sea.

They are estimated to be so big reserves as High as 68.5 billion barrels, they rival the 30 billion barrel reserves held by the United States under her coastal waters.

And they are big enough to end British reliance on expensive dictable Middle Eastern oil-rich countries and their sometimes slastic, greedy rulers.

Since time after time, if the British develop these under-the-ocean resources properly, there will be no more dangerous British fuel crises from Middle Eastern oil cut-offs which staggered the nation after the 1956 Suez crisis and the 1973 Yom Kippur war.

To get the two million barrels a day by 1980 which would give the British self-sufficiency from their own oil, means getting it out of North Sea and Irish Sea ocean floor areas.

These reserves are known to be very large parts of the bottom of the ocean in the southern part of the Irish Sea, off Wales and the Scottish coasts in the North Sea, beyond and under the mainland, and under the stormy Scottish coasts.

Since the first 1973-74 the British develop these under-the-ocean resources properly, there will be no more dangerous Brit-wide one. You guessed it: The stinky British Labor government of Harold Wilson clamping on from day to day, is already in the act saying a national oil corporation must be formed to be the sole buyer of all North Sea crude.

Given the colossal disasters of most other huge state corporations Britain has formed, governments past and present, the British could be in for trouble before they start with their oil development dreams.

A state oil corporation is bound to charge low a price as it could get away with, and to the United Kingdom, thereby giving the British oil corporation drillers and the independents.

Neither Wilson gang's big idea way or not, the drilling job in the bottom of the ocean is going to be a horrendous one, requiring perhaps 21 production platforms costing hundreds of millions to build and man and to mount the estimated 180 two-million-barrels-a-day underwater production requirement.

Then there are the environmentalists, who are big in Britain as in North America, who are bound to beat about so much about getting drilling equipment dumping green bottoms, pollution, and oil spills and labor are in short supply in Britain, that the whole project of this scope, the same as they are in Canada for our 1,200-mile Mackenzie Valley pipeline, if it is ever built.

Nevertheless the present British government which happens to be a Labor one again, is optimistic even to the point of estimating the huge profits to be made from oil and making sure in early estimates they are siphoned into the British economy to reduce the constant balance-of-payments deficits.

From every angle, Britain as an oil nation rather than petroleum-starved," is looking at itself in a new light. At a time when inflation is mounting, national governments won't cope, the economy lags from one management or union crisis to another, the fates have given the British a bonanza, to tackle the historic hostile of empire.

One only hopes, given the series of industrial and disasters as well as Socialist political-economic blunders that the British steel, the Concorde, jet aircraft sales generally, the "Channel" (Channel Tunnel), railways, that they will handle this extra treat skillfully and wisely.

Quiet Campaign Helped Tories Who Used It

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Two Conservative veterans, one an election winner, the other a loser, agree that their party took a beating — correcting what initially looked like victory into bitterest defeat — because of overconfidence and lack of communication.

Both men are charter members of what Parliament Hill, since the party's definitive remodelation of former Prime Minister Diefenbaker as leader, has known as the Tory "Maritime Mafia."

The Mafia, a term implying admiration more than scurrilous comment in the parliamentarians and the party's backroom strategists, who provided Conservative Leader Stanfield with his Atlantic Provinces power base.

The two veteran Mafiosa are Tom Bell, defeated after a 15-year string of eight election victories in New Brunswick's Saint John-Lancaster riding, and Bob Coates, again a winner, in his eighth campaign through 17 years in Nova Scotia's Central-Nickel-Dartmouth North.

Bell, making it to the Commons from 1962 to leaving Ottawa, a surprising election loser, and Coates is staying the expected winner.

While coming out of the election on differently, both men see eye to eye about the campaign.

The non-communication between Prime Minister Trudeau and Tory Leader Stanfield with the strategic decisions were made, and the candidates' fighting for their political lives out in the constituencies, was the basic ingredient of disaster, Coates and Bell believe.

Majority of the Tory candidates, according to the campaign when they first realized it was going on wrong, were terrified of the damage the party's policies and economic policy was doing.

But the campaign command from Tory headquarters "down to the candidates' cries from the front lines" was that the "Big T.O." so obviously regarded as the Conservative "bonnie," as these sophisticates consider all those uncivilized terrifying areas the beyond from Mighty Metro.

And the non-communication with the campaign control Bell and Coates, for the failure of what they — and every other practising politician — known as "the underground campaign."

The term "underground" is the political code word for "whispering."

It's that casually quietly effective component of the campaign which the national leadership doesn't control.

The leader traditionally prefers to keep his distance at least to know as little as possible about it at high level.

This leaves the rank and file to do the underground campaign, especially the constituency organizations and, expected, in their door-knocking of the riding to raise those not-so-high-and-mighty issues the leader can't afford to touch.

This time there was a dandy — Quebec's hotly controversial Bill 22, restricting English language education rights, and what is to become the one bilingual province in the supposedly bilingual country.

Now that isn't precisely an issue on the doorstep in Nova Scotia's bilingual country, except in the bilingual public service which is not exactly a burning interest of the national community, but it is close enough to both the sensitivities and practical political mark to be useful.

But there wasn't a word about it, especially in Cobalt where the Conservative candidate was killing issue.

Nor was there whisper of "bilingualism" or "French power," which, in the last campaign, Tory Leader Stanfield had literally thrown in Quebec, Tory Quebec Lieutenants were not so prior and proper to use the issue in the areas outside of English Canada.

And what Conservatives did not use in the privacy of definitely made mention of the Prime Minister's personal extravagance in furnishing and decorating his official residence and official residence?

Those who dared in Cobalt — Walker Baker in Ottawa's Grenville-Carleton, Thom Cantelon in Leeds-Grenville, Jim Jarvis in Prince-Lennox-Addington, Bill Mahoney in Toronto's High Park, and a handful of others in the Liberal heartland of Ontario and Quebec and Tories in Central Canada were winners.

But the Conservative Party's famous and non-communication were too politically high-minded to use the issue, and the underground campaign, the Liberal machine, was unopposed.

In Quebec the Prime Minister was a Progressive Conservative and the Conservative Leader an Anglo.

They say Bob Stanfield was too decent a man, too responsible to condone such tactics, but they forgot that nice guys are not necessarily winners.

Liquor Boosts Not Justified

OTTAWA JOURNAL

Here's to a temperance supper
With water in glasses tall,
And coffee and tea to end with—
And not one thing at all.

Well, toast may be observed more often with the increase in liquor prices, effective July 29, announced by the Liquor Control Board of Ontario. Affected are Canadian whisky, rye whisky, gin and other Canadian-distilled liquors, and all Scotches.

Inflation, of course, must affect liquor prices. The domestic distillers have made a case for higher prices to the LCBO: costs of their grain alone have doubled since the last increase allowed them two years ago. This doesn't justify however, the LCBO action in raising the price of Scotch, an imported liquor, standard brands go from $5.85 to $7.25 a bottle. That is done for the purpose of a "hidden tariff" to protect the sales of domestic whiskies.

Nor is it apparent why the LCBO must take, out of a client increase on a low-priced bottle of rye, an added 11 cents in markup. (From that the provincial government also gets an added four cents to sales tax, the federal government two cents.) Other price effects of 29 announced by the Liquor Control Board of Ontario. Affected are Canadian whisky, rye whisky, gin and other Canadian-distilled liquors, and all Scotches.

Ann Landers

Confession May Help You —But Can Shatter Others

Dear Ann Landers: I have a wonderful husband and we have two fine children. About a year ago I made a miserable mistake. I became involved with a married man, the husband of a friend of mine. The "romance" was of short duration and I could kick myself every time I think about it.

I foolishly believed I was entitled to some outside loving because something was lacking at home. My lover gave me the same line. We were "soulmates." Finally I came to see the ridiculousness for what it was, a cheap, back-alley affair. I stopped seeing him after the fifth meeting and have toned down my friendship with his wife. (Guilt, of course.)

Since that many episode, I've tried doubly hard to be a better-than-ever wife, and our marriage has never been stronger.

Yesterday I received a phone call from "Mr. Black Past." He told me he wants to "do the right thing" and confess every thing to his wife. He claims his conscience is bothering him and he can't rest until he comes clean. I assure you, I do.

I begged him not to. I explained that if his wife isn't willing to forgive and forget she might sue for divorce, naming me correspondent, and it could wreck my life. He reads your column every day, and says you're a smart lady. Will you please try to get through to him.—Turnovered in Toledo

Dear Torn: If he reads my column every day, he knows my position on confessing past indiscretions—this goes for extramarital affairs as well as premarital sexual activities. I'll say it one more time, especially for him.

Confession may be good for the soul, but it won't do anything for a marriage except hurt your wife and destroy her faith in you. It is also a very dirty trick to play on the women with whom you were involved.

If you feel you must clear your conscience, please talk to a clergyman, a trusted lawyer or a doctor—some individual who will view your confession as privileged information. But please, mister—spare your wife.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for quite some time, but I never thought I'd have to write to you. When I read that long lecture you gave about how we must outlaw guns in this country I knew I had to speak out.

Do you realize you are stepping on the toes? millions of sportsmen? Did you ever bother to think about why guns are a series of all the wildlife offenses? Big case you don't know it, they are financed through the sale of hunting licenses and taxes on guns and ammunition. If you eliminate these jobs, our wildlife will dwindle.

If someone wants to kill you, he will, and he can do it with a hatpin. I wish you'd see both sides of the story before you take such a strong stand against gun-owning.—Sportsman Not A Killer

Dear Sport: I'm not interested in taking guns away from the sportsmen. I'm well aware that the hunters are not going to be deprived of their fun no matter what.

I am against handguns, those "Saturday Night Specials" sold for only one reason—to kill people.

For your sake, Sport, I hope that if burglars break in, they pop up on a dark street, he has a hatpin instead of a handgun. Your chances of coming through alive will be a lot better.

Successful Living

Downgrades Disabled Daughter

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have a disability, cerebral palsy, only for every step I type ahead my mother pushes me back two. It gets discouraging after a while.

For example, my mother reads about our family tree. She did a poor job of typing so she let me type it up.

When she shows people our story she always says she did all the work. People comment on how well it is printed, so I ask her, Doris, would it hurt my mother any to say that I did the typing?

If someone invites me out she puts them down. I am impossible to manage. You'll get around in your wheel chair and I'll have a great deal with the housework. When our party comes he makes sure both my parents are here so he won't have to visit with me alone. I think people are afraid of my handicap. It might be I make friends with a disabled person.—Deserted Palsy

Dear C.P.: Your mother seems actually jealous of you. Child it is not your fault how gives you attention, or that they disagree about you!

We all know that the way to help the handicapped person is through praise and encouragement. You can accept challenge if those who care about you encourage you to try.

You know within yourself how capable you are; get the help there is towards your own rehabilitation. I am proud you the name of a helpful organization where to write.

Dear Doris: I can get along with girls all right and even guys who are just friends, but if they start to get interested in me I—I freeze up. Then I never know what to say. Then I don't freeze up I get rough.

I am not happy with my personality. I want to change and have a new me by the fall.

Also, am I too young to do Red Cross volunteer work?

No Dates.

Dear No Dates: Shyness is self-consciousness. Self-consciousness means you are thinking about yourself. Deliberately try to think about how the other person is feeling, and then get a little practice at helping that person enjoy himself.

Self - control can overcome this business of being through, whatever that means, in your case. Start working on your new personality. I'm sending you the names of books which will help to build confidence.

Volunteer work might be the very thing to get you out of yourself and finding some satisfactions. Get in touch with your local Red Cross. Teen-age volunteers are often in demand.

Dear Dool: When people are bummed out they usually say the things they think — then they are sorry.

Dear Mrs. M.P.: Some do! Some don't. Be prepared to say what they would never would come out with sober — and it is just as well!

You just can't generalize about the boozers. some people become hostile and slam other people around; while alcohol makes others more and more mellow. Liquor certainly has something to with the removal of inhibitions.

In some cases the loosened tongue is a release pent-up feelings is a helpful way; but I wouldn't count on it.

(To know all is to forgive all. Let Dool help you to understand and live happily with those you care about. Send your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Eat-a-weed Recipe Book

CAMROSE, Alta. (CP) — An illustrated recipe book of some common wild edible plants is the objective of three girls involved in an Opportunities for Youth (OFY) project in the Camrose area of east-central Alberta.

Becky Erickson of Camrose, Cheryl Bartlett of Duchess and Grace Hoberg of Kingman were compiling information on the uses of many plants common to much of Alberta. Not only food recipes are being included, but also medicinal uses and a historical study of wild plants which have been of value to people in the area.

The girls were living in a tent in the Battle River Valley for the summer, preparing wild plants for their meals and research and compiling their book at the Camrose Lutheran College biology laboratory.

Entertain Summer Guests with Unique Greek Food

Although there are no restaurants in the area serving Greek cuisine, Belleville has a Greek community that has provided a number of easy-to-make recipes for lovers of Greek food to make at home.

Diane Zegouras suggested many of the following recipes, all of which can be made with locally - available ingredients.

For a special summer evening party, try this menu: dolmades (grape-leaf rolls), followed by barbecued lamb served with rice and peas, Greek salad, and baklava (honey-soaked pastry) for dessert.

Greek wine can be purchased in Belleville, but if you have not yet tasted Greek "retsina", be forewarned that its piney, resiney flavor needs some getting used to.

Dolmades

1-1½ lbs. ground beef or lamb (optional)
½ cup rice (long grain)
1 chopped onion
1 egg
¼ corn oil or butter
2 tbsps. tomato paste
salt and pepper to taste
½ cup chopped dill

Mix all the ingredients together in a bowl let the mixture sit for a while to let the flavors blend.

If you can get fresh grape leaves for the dolmades, collect 30 full-grown leaves, no bigger than your hand.

Preserved leaves are available in local groceries, in bottles of brine containing 50 leaves.

Wash preserved leaves to remove the brine. Whether using fresh or preserved, boil the grape leaves for one minute in a pot of unsalted water to make them tender.

Drain the leaves and lay them flat on the counter.

Put one teaspoon of the filling in the centre of each leaf. Fold over the top and sides of the leaf like an envelope, and roll over like a miniature football in shape. Arrange in rows on a large, heavy casserole dish suitable for use on top of the stove.

When all the dolmades are completed, put a heavy plate on top of them to hold them down. (Otherwise they will swell up and burst their skins.) Add about two cups of water; enough to barely cover the plate with water, and a little salt.

Bring to a boil, and then simmer gently for 40 minutes.

The dolmades can be served hot or cold. They freeze well, so that you can make a large batch to have on hand. If you serve them hot, try this Greek sauce poured over them.

Greek Lemon Sauce

2 eggs, separated
2 lemons
¼ cup of the dolmades' cooking liquid, or water

Beat the egg whites first, until foamy. Add the yolks and keep beating, and then add the juice from two lemons, still beating. Add the dolmades broth, or water, and continue to beat until smooth. Thicken sauce over low heat. Pour over the dolmades immediately.

Lamb, Greek Style

5 lbs. leg of lamb
3 cloves minced garlic
salt and pepper juice of two lemons
oregano
1 cup water
4 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. corn oil

To roast: mix garlic with salt and pepper. Cut incisions all over the meat and insert this mixture in them. Rub the meat with lemon juice, oregano and more salt and pepper. Let the meat sit like this for at least an hour, preferably longer, before cooking it.

Put the cup of water in a roasting pan, pat the butter and oil on the meat, and cover the pan with foil. Place in a 450 degrees oven and bake an hour, and then turn the oven down to 250 degrees for two hours, and then at 225 degrees until the meat falls off the bones. Just before serving, remove the cover and put the meat under the broiler for five or ten minutes to brown and crisp the outside.

To barbecue: mix all the ingredients in a large pail, and marinate the lamb in this mixture for three to six hours. (Cubes of lamb marinated in this mixture are tasty and easy to barbecue quickly.)

Barbecue the leg of lamb about eight inches above the source of heat. The meat should be turned often, and basted with the marinated sauce, until done.

Greek Salad

In proportions you prefer, mix tomatoes, sliced onion, cucumbers and tomatoes, chopped celery, green pepper, radishes and carrots. Mix together one part olive oil to one part wine vinegar, with one teaspoon salt and one teaspoon oregano. Pour this dressing on the salad and toss. Add crumbled feta cheese and black olives on top of the salad for "real Greek flavor."

Pastiche (Baked Macaroni)

2 lbs. ground beef
4 tbsp. butter
2 onions chopped finely

To make dolmadas, place filling on grape leaf, then roll it up tightly.

1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. tomato paste
½ cup wine
1 cup water
1½ lb. macaroni (large size)
½ cup melted butter
11 eggs
1 quart milk
3-4 cups grated Romano Cheese

1 cup bread crumbs

As you can see, this is a recipe intended to serve at least 20 people. Pastiche freezes well, so that you can make it to have on hand for unexpected guests. If you prefer, the recipe can be halved without any difficulty.

Saute ground beef and onions in four tablespoons of butter. Season with salt and pepper. Add wine, tomato paste and water. Simmer about 45 minutes, until the moisture is absorbed.

While the meat is simmering, cook the macaroni in salted water until almost done, but still firm. Pour into a colander and drain well. Mix with melted butter.

Brush a large baking pan (14 by 11) with butter, sprinkle with bread crumbs and grated cheese. Place half the macaroni in the pan, sprinkle with cheese and cover with the meat mixture, spreading it evenly over the entire surface. Sprinkle more cheese over the meat, and cover with the remaining macaroni. Sprinkle grated cheese and bread crumbs over the top.

Beat eggs till light and fluffy and then mix with the milk. Spoon a little of this mixture over crumbs on top of the macaroni, until thoroughly moistened. Gently pour the remaining mixture over the casserole.

Bake in a 250 degree oven for one hour, or until lightly browned. Let stand for about 15 minutes before you serve it.

(Diane Zegouras says Pastiche is especially good if you make it the day before you intend to serve it, and heat it up just before the meal).

Moussaka

This traditional Greek dish can be made in exactly the same manner as the Pastiche, simply by substituting six large eggplants for the macaroni. Fry ¼-inch slices of eggplant in olive oil, drain them well on paper towels, and layer the eggplant slices in exactly the same way as the macaroni was done.

For the authentic Greek flavor, you may want to substitute ground lamb for the beef.

Pastaspoot (Greek Sponge Cake)

12 eggs, separated
2 cups sugar
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla

This recipe can be halved if you wish.

Beat egg yolks with sugar for 15 minutes. Gradually add sifted flour, baking powder, and vanilla. Mix well. Blend with stiffly-beaten egg whites. Pour batter into a greased baking pan, (11 by 16) and bake in a 350 degree oven for 40 minutes. Cool the cake and pour warm syrup over the cake. Let it stand till the syrup is absorbed. This makes about 16 squares.

Pastaspoot Syrup

2 cups sugar
2 cups water
lemon juice (to taste)

Boil ingredients all together until a thin syrup is formed.

Baklava

2 lbs. walnuts and almonds, mixed
1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 lbs. melted butter (you can use less)
2 lbs. filo pastry

Filo pastry is available at grocery stores in Belleville that carry Greek food. It is a thin paper-like pastry that is packed in layers.

Grind walnuts and almonds finely, and mix with sugar and spices. Brush a pan (11 by 16) with melted butter, and place four sheets of filo in the pan, brushing each with melted butter. Sprinkle with a layer of the nut mixture, and cover with three sheets of filo, brushing each with butter. Continue until you have four filo sheets left for the top. Cut the pastry into small squares before putting on the top, as this aids in the baking.

Bake in a slow oven for an hour and a half, until lightly browned. Remove from oven.

Pour the following syrup over the pastry while it is still warm.

Combine the juice of one lemon with five cups sugar and four cups water and boil until you have a syrup of medium consistency. (You can substitute liquid honey for half the water and sugar.)

Single People Buy Ottawa Condominiums

OTTAWA (CP) — Single people are buying between 40 and 50 per cent of apartment condominiums in the national capital area, construction com...panies says.

A spokesman for the Thomas C. Assaly Corp. said that a few years ago a single person under 30 who bought a home was considered an eccentric.

Now, however, rents are so high that young singles have found they can live as cheaply in a place they've bought and can get a return on their investment if they decide to sell.

Although the number of singles buying apartments has increased, sales of condominium garden homes and detached houses to singles has about the same for several years.

It seems a lot of singles are willing to take on the responsibility of buying an apartment but don't want a house," said a spokesman for Minto Construction Co.

"I would imagine this is because a house requires so much more care than an apartment and also because the price of houses is so high right now."

The increased number of singles wanting to take out mortgages has changed the attitudes of banks and trust companies toward the single purchaser.

"A few years ago, we were reticent about giving a single person a loan," said one bank official. "It was the old attitude that single people were unstable, hadn't really settled down.

"Now all that is different. We have no objection to giving single mortgages as long as they qualify.

"At one point we couldn't give them to a single female but we got that changed pretty fast."

A trust company official said: "We have no discrimination against singles or unmarried couples. As long as they prove they're financially capable we'll give them a mortgage."

For the average single person with no dependents, it is necessary to have an annual income approaching $18,000 to buy a condominium, company spokesmen say.

Under Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. regulations, a house or condominium buyer is allowed to pay only 30 per cent of his or her gross annual income for mortgage principal, interest and taxes.

CMHC has buyer assistance programs for those whose annual income is not high enough to keep their payments at the 30-per-cent level.

"These programs are available only to people who have at least one child, so the majority of single buyers can't use them," said a CMHC official.

Indians Remain In Park

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — A group of about 150 Ojibway Indians is continuing its occupation of a park on the fringe of this northwestern Ontario town of about 10,000 population.

Police Chief Webb Engstrom said there have been no incidents of violence, and no attempt has been made to remove the Indians from Anicinabe Park where they are staying in tents and campers.

"We haven't had any confrontation with these people in the park," Chief Engstrom said Tuesday.

"It is my understanding that they are armed in the park," chief Engstrom said in an interview. "However, I haven't seen it myself."

The chief said he hasn't tried to enter the park.

The occupation began Monday, when a weekend Ojibway conference that drew about 300 Indians to the park was scheduled to end. The Indians who stayed behind have closed the park to the public.

A newspaper photographer who visited the park Tuesday said the Indians are armed with rifles and knives and the area experienced are being instructed in the making of incendiary bombs.

Armed Indian guards are posted at the park entranceways.

The hostile mood apparently began with the arrest Monday of conference chairman Louis Cameron for possessing a dangerous weapon, a fire-bolt knife carried in his belt.

The charges was withdrawn shortly after the arrest. The Indians, however, have formed security patrols and are demanding an end to what they term police harassment of Indians in Kenora.

Oil Firms End 'Free' Service

TORONTO (CP) — The practice of including an annual furnace cleaning and emergency service calls in the price of heating oil is being discontinued by three major heating oil suppliers.

In some cases customers will be receiving a reduction in fuel costs. And most fuel oil users will have to pay for the service they require this winter.

Imperial Oil Ltd. has begun notifying its customers of the change while Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. did so in May, Texaco Canada Ltd. currently is notifying its customers but details of its new policy still are being worked out.

The suppliers said rising service costs and abuse of service calls by some customers had made the change necessary.

Study Eggs

TORONTO (CP) — Proposals designed to rescue the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) are a major item on the agenda of a meeting of the provincial ministers of agriculture this week in Winnipeg.

Provincial ministers are expected to ask federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan at the meeting to have the federal government pay the cost of any rescue operation.

Fine Imposed

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Dill Ltd. of Brampton, a manufacturer of aluminum storm windows and doors, and its president, Mastino della Scala, were fined a total of $2,000 Tuesday for violations of the Ontario Sales Tax Act.

The president and the company each pleaded guilty to a total of nine charges under two sections of the act.

Fasters Warned

OTTAWA (CP) — The doctor for four Ukrainian Canadians in the ninth day of their hunger strike to bring the release of Ukrainian writer Valentyn Moroz said Tuesday the strikers risk permanent liver and kidney damage if they continue much longer.

Dr. John Woychyshyn said the strikers "are getting worse all the time, gradually."

"I have already told them they should end their strike, but I can't force them."

Holidayer Describes Cyprus Experience

David Lancashire, a Canadian native of Truro, N.S., and AP staff in Israel, was on vacation with his wife and two children on the north coast of Cyprus when the Turks invaded the island last Saturday. Here is his account of their experiences.

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
ABOARD HMS OLNA (AP) — The Turkish landing on the north coast of Cyprus caught the Lancashire family camping in a stone barn in the mountains 11 miles west of Kyrenia.

The crash of bombs and the whine of jets woke us at dawn Saturday. We spent the day wondering if the next bombs would blast the barn down.

Between air raids we peered out at smoke pouring from the hills a few miles away.

We showered from a hose to cool off in the hot, and to pass the time my wife perched our two sons—Michael, 11, and Adrian, 10—on a garbage can and gave them haircuts.

That night hundreds of fires blazed in the mountains, and at dawn Sunday we made a run for safety in our rented car.

We reached an abandoned hotel less than a mile from the new Zephyros Hotel. We spent part of the day huddled on the floor from beds as bombing raids shook the building. A warship shelled the hotel restaurant, and we raced to hide on a nearby beach.

The Turks, apparently spotting us and mistaking us for Greek fighters, fired two salvoes. They missed, but sand and rock splinters landed on our heads as we camouflaged ourselves with towels in case planes came in to strafe us.

Sunday night we walked across a field to the Zephyros, and found it blazing like a beacon. About 20 tourists—British, German, French and Canadian—were camped in cave-like crannies in the rocks below the hotel.

They told us Turkish jets spotted a .76-calibre Greek cannon mounted outside the hotel Sunday afternoon, swooped in with half a dozen passes and blasted the building to wreckage.

"I thought the hotel would be my grave," said Barbara Charilaou, a 30-year-old housewife from Manchester, England, who had her nine-year-old son and seven-year-old daughter with her.

When the bombs hit, the roof of the basement corridor collapsed and I thought we were trapped. There was smoke and the smell of explosives and the sounds of the hotel collapsing, but we got out and ran to the rocks.

Miraculously, no one was hurt by the bomb blast or the fire that followed.

All Monday we crouched in the rocks, hiding from the air raids and naval guns bombarding the Kyrenia coast. Air attacks widened overhead and exploded around Greek-Cypriot positions in the mountains, we watched two Turkish troopships and landing-craft arrive five hours before the ceasefire was to take effect.

We had nothing to eat.

A United Nations team driving through the fighting soon to check the survivors found us. Royal Navy helicopters came Tuesday and flew us to the Olna, a navy tanker that was already crowded with refugees. Among them were 41 members of a Ukrainian folk dance troupe rescued from Kyrenia.

Tighter Credit Is Anticipated

TORONTO (CP) — The price charged by the central bank for central bank loans goes higher today, signalling even tighter credit conditions for corporations and individuals.

The Bank of Canada move to a record 9¼ per cent bank rate followed by a few hours a new round of increases by chartered banks in their prime rate.

The one-half of a percentage point increase in the bank rate announced Tuesday evening was the third upward movement since April 16, when the rate was 7¾ per cent.

It was a part of continuing efforts by federal monetary authorities to ease the rate of inflation by clamping down the lid on expansion of credit.

The bank rate is that of interest charged on loans to chartered banks. The retail banks rarely borrow from the central bank but the bank rate is a key policy tool in setting guidelines for the interest rate structure.

Six chartered banks announced Tuesday increases in their prime rate to 11¼ per cent from 11. Two other banks had previously increased the prime rate to 11¼ per cent.

The prime rate is the one charged on large loans to the retail banks' most credit-worthy customers. Rates for higher risk and smaller dollar value loans are scaled upward from this rate and consumer loans, such as mortgages, may go higher.

The Bank of Canada statement cited the "continuing strong demand for credit" and high levels of short-term rates, both here and abroad, as reasons for the latest increase.

A concern that individuals and corporations will spend now to beat price increases is reflected in the Bank of Canada action.

Spending now to beat inflation may mean borrowing to make the purchases.

Mortgage lending is a good example. Urban house prices have jumped sharply—more than double during the last three years in some cities. The prospect of even higher prices probably encouraged some people to take a mortgage loan and buy sooner instead of later.

After a period of relatively small wage increases, hampered with gains in the consumer price index, organized labor appears to be making a concerted effort to catch up. Non-organized employees probably are taking what action they can to get more pay.

'Quality Education' Planning Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A committee studying "the cost of education in Ontario has recommended the addition of a planning unit to the ministry of education in order to develop a comprehensive plan for quality education."

The 177-page report of the government-appointed committee, which includes five businessmen, a banker and a university dean, says that declining enrolments provide the opportunity for "renewed attention to the qualitative aspects of education."

The report suggests that this attention begin with a "clear statement of the accepted goals of education" at the ministry of education, school system and individual school levels.

The report recommends that each school develop an educational program for its own community and each school board then work out a "long-term planning."

The proposed ministry planning unit would then develop a co-ordinated plan, the report says.

The unit would need a "first-rate economist, an outstanding sociologist and representatives from the fields of finance, demography, statistics and research," the report says.

The report concludes that despite the ministry's over-all role in building a plan for education, the planning responsibility will thus remain at the school board level and the boards "can be held responsible for its effectiveness."

Non-ops Nix Company Plan But Endorse General Outline

OTTAWA (CP) — Non-operating railway unions rejected Tuesday two key proposals in a plan proposed by two major railways to ensure employment for workers with eight years or more seniority.

But they held Mr. Justice Emmett Hall at an arbitration hearing that "the general outline of a feasible plan exists" in the document submitted Monday by Canadian National Railways and CP Rail.

However, they rejected the companies' call for a system that would enable protected employees with eight or more years' service to displace junior workers who are members of another non-operating union.

And they also rejected the full transfer of seniority rights which workers are moved into another job because their own is eliminated.

The job security question was one of the major stumbling blocks to settlement of last year's national rail strike and Mr. Justice Hall, called in to settle the strike as arbitrator, sent the parties back to the table to discuss the issue again.

The results of months of negotiations was the proposal submitted by the railways Monday and the unions' reply Tuesday.

The companies proposed that workers whose jobs are eliminated be permitted to take other similar jobs, even if the transfer involves the crossing of union jurisdictions. The proposal would have such workers take their seniority with them.

The unions, which represent 21,000 non-operating railway employees, also suggested that layoff pay—which would be provided to protected workers who could not be given alternative employment—be 85 per cent of their regular basic earnings, instead of 60 per cent as proposed by the companies.

They also proposed an early retirement plan, provided at the employee's option, with full pension as at normal retirement age, for protected workers who can not be provided with jobs.

And they urged that training, in some cases, be provided to fit redundant workers for jobs outside the railway industry.

Norfolk Hospital Strike Continues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

About 250 non-medical workers at Norfolk General Hospital in Simcoe, Ont., rejected an offer Monday which a hospital spokesman said would have given most workers wages higher than those of their Toronto counterparts.

Dorothy Bowden, hospital administrator, said the two-year contract proposal, extendint to December, 1975, would have given workers more than Toronto non-medical employees who recently were awarded a two-year contract with increases of $1.50 an hour in five stages on salaries that ranged between $2.50 and $3.30 an hour.

The 13since workers, members of Local 220, Building and Service Workers Union, continued to picket the hospital although provincial law bans strikes by hospital workers.

Their current contract, which expires Dec. 31, gives them a base pay rate ranging from $2.50 to $3 an hour.

Miss Bowden did not disclose what increases the workers were offered.

Registered nurses and laboratory technicians remained on the job but some registered nurses joined the picket lines in the illegal strike action Monday, a spokesman said.

Miss Bowden said she has no indication when talks will resume.

In Peterborough, nurses at St. Joseph's General Hospital voted unanimously Monday to accept a contract settlement reached last week in Toronto between the provincial nurses association and hospital boards.

The Civic Hospital Nurses Association in Peterborough will meet with the hospital board later this week to discuss the opening of their contract to bring them to parity with the St. Joseph's settlement, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Representatives of the 2,900 Ontario psychiatric nurses, members of the Civil Service Association of Ontario, will meet with officials from the ministry of health today to discuss reopening salary negotiations.

A spokesman for registered nurses in Wolfe Psychiatric Hospital said Tuesday the nurses want slightly higher salaries — about three recently granted general hospital nurses because of extraordinary hazards related to psychiatric nursing.

Psychiatric nurses have been without a contract since June 30.

Canadian Wages Expected To Catch up with Inflation

PARIS (CP) — The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development says wages in Canada are expected to start catching up with inflation this year and personal consumption will accelerate in early 1975.

In its semi-annual economic outlook issued Tuesday night, the 24-country OECD also says Canadian economic growth "is likely to remain relatively strong, perhaps slowing down somewhat during the present year but regaining a rate close to potential in the first half of 1975."

Covering Canada and six other countries, the outlook is based largely on forecasts and figures provided by the governments involved. In Canada sections generally reflect the position taken by the finance department.

"As in the United States," the OECD says, "real wages and salaries have fallen over the recent past, and some catch-up would seem likely in the present year, a tendency confirmed by recent wage settlements."

Statistics Canada said in its most recent report on earnings that average weekly wages rose five-tenths of one per cent in April, seasonally adjusted. The consumer price index rose seven-tenths of one per cent in the same month.

With the catch-up in wages, the advance in nominal disposable income should therefore remain strong, although the rise in employment may slow down," the OECD report says.

"The expansion of real private consumption may remain moderate for the rest of 1974, but could ... accelerate somewhat in the first half of next year."

It says consumption should grow partly because inflation is expected to slow down.

Turbo Trains On Ottawa Run

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian National Railways will introduce its fast Turbo service on the Montreal-Ottawa route, possibly by Aug. 4, a CN spokesman said Wednesday.

He said there are a number of details to iron out before the starting date of the new service can be set firmly.

Two-cent Bread Price Boost Is Predicted by Early Fall

TORONTO (CP) — A two-cent increase in the price of a standard 24-ounce loaf of sliced bread is probable in Ontario by fall, baking industry leaders said Tuesday.

"There's no question bakers are having a cost squeeze and as costs go up, they'll have to raise their prices," said Tony Campbell, secretary of the federal food prices review board.

Some say it may go higher than two cents.

"We're looking at a two-or three-cent adjustment," said Rosaire Dupont, vice-president of Morrison Lamothe Foods Ltd., an Ottawa baking and food processing firm.

Peter Wygant, president of General Bakeries, said his costs are rising so fast that "if we don't get relief until late September, we have a problem."

Two weeks ago, a two-cent increase in bread prices took effect in Quebec and the food prices review board is studying it. The board resisted bakery increases last winter, but has not decided to fight this round so far.

Mr. Campbell said the board is studying bread prices, bakery by bakery, to see whether costs at each justify an increase.

In 1971 a typical loaf of white bread in Toronto cost 34 cents. It increased by 10 cents in 1972, and now costs 57 cents.

Beef Prices Will Rise Before Drop in Fall

TORONTO (CP) — Beef prices will have to rise before they can decrease, a food prices review board spokesman said Monday.

John Morris, board economist, said the reason is farmers' unwillingness to send their cattle to market unless they are paid a price that covers their costs of production.

He said that last month farmers held back their cattle, waiting for a price higher than the average $46 to $48 a hundredweight.

But he said he expects that higher beef prices will cost new supplies of cattle on to the market and result in lower prices to consumers by late summer or early fall.

"From looking at cattle records, we know that greater supplies of cattle are out there," he said. "They're just not being sent to market."

"But by fall they should start coming in, especially since it will be unprofitable for farmers to keep them through the winter," Mr. Morris said.

Six-month Strike Ends

CHATHAM (CP) — About 1,100 operating and clerical workers at Union Gas Ltd. have ratified a tentative contract agreement signed July 20 by company negotiators and international representatives of the two striking unions, it was announced Tuesday.

The ratification, announced in a joint statement from Union Gas and officials of the International Chemical Workers' and Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' unions, brings to an end a strike that lasted nearly six months against the Chatham-based utility.

Energy Board Right to Limit Hearing Participants at Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal Court of Canada was told Tuesday that the National Energy Board (NEB) is not obligated to hear all sides in a current pipeline-export case because it is not a judicial body.

Speaking for Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., Walter Williston defended the NEB's decision last month to hold hearings on Dow's export application on paste-unsuitable clay that could give oral evidence or cross examine Dow witnesses.

Mr. Williston told Mr. Justice A. Alex Caitanach that the NEB's role is not judicial. It did not decide disputes among parties or deprive them of their property or reputations.

He went on to cite about two dozen past court cases to support his view that such administrative tribunals are not required to hear evidence from various sides in making their decisions.

He also contended the board could and function if required to hold full-dress trials in each case, and that a delay caused by a long hearing would have meant the Dow project "would be damned."

The case was brought to the Federal Court by the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia governments and four companies on grounds they should be permitted to take part in the NEB's Dow hearings.

They have already argued that the National Energy Board Act required public hearings on such cases, with the full participation of intervenors.

At stake may be the power of provincial governments, private groups and companies to argue their views before the NEB on such major issues as exports of hydro electricity, natural gas and oil, construction of Arctic pipelines, and exploration of off-shore oil.

The NEB itself has argued that it has the power to choose whether to hold ex parte hearings, or hearings in which all interested parties may join.

The case before Mr. Justice Catinach is expected to continue through most of this week.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

If a large, flying insect enters the car in which you're travelling, try to "keep your cool", says the Ontario Motor League.

Many motorists have followed natural impulses and panicked under similar circumstances. Consequently, some of them wound up in traffic accidents.

Insects — especially of the stinging varieties such as bees and wasps — are known to frighten most people, children in particular. This fright can turn into mindless hysteria should a person find himself suddenly entrapped with a flitting bug in such close quarters as an automobile interior.

Rather than attempting to swat the interloper, which might succeed only in making the bug aggressive, the OML recommends that the driver of the "trapped car" take the first safe opportunity to pull completely off the road and stop. Then, passengers and driver should quickly exit.

The doors should be left open until the insect has found its own way out. This usually doesn't take long, as it is just as horrified by the experience as its accidental travelling companions.

If you carry credit cards with you when travelling, think of them as cash. Report lost or stolen cards immediately, in writing, to the issuing company. Unless you report stolen credit cards, cheques and cards, will hold you, as the card holder, responsible.

Members of the Ontario Motor League can register their credit cards with their local club before departing on a trip.

Be dependable and predictable, says the Ontario Motor League. Always signal your intentions for turning or changing lanes.

Always check your directional lights after driving onto or off a freeway. Because the curves are gentle, your steering wheel may not have turned sharply enough to switch off the turn signals. A blinking turn indicator is misleading to other motorists and could cause an accident.

Lights are often overlooked as a safety device, but at night a brake light or turn signal is the only warning the driver behind you has that you are going to stop or turn. Have all the lights on your car checked regularly.

The Ontario Motor League reminds drivers that following the vehicle ahead too closely leaves too little room for safety. The recommended following distance under ideal conditions is one car length for every 10 miles an hour of speed.

Drivers should allow a car pulling a trailer plenty of room since that driver is handicapped by requiring greater stopping distance. Motorists also should remember that it takes greater distance ahead to pass a car and trailer than it does to pass just a car alone.

Your car should be given a thorough checkup before you start a long drive. The engine's maintained in freeway driving and the distance between service stations requires motorists to have their cars in top condition.

LA DANSE — David Hamilton.

In "La Danse", David Hamilton explores many aspects of the dancer's world. He conveys in his book, the motion and spirit of the ballet itself and reveals the air of atmosphere of the studios. His photographs and text show the hopes and dedication of pupils intent at the barre in cold studios, the reflections of young ballerinas resting between practises, graceful and expressive even in repose, and have too, are their idols of all aspiring dancers: Nureyev, Dowell, Farrell and Fracci.

FONTEYN — Keith Money.

Another book about ballet, particularly, beautiful pictorial biography that traces the career of Margot Fonteyn, the prima ballerina absolute, from her earliest childhood to the present day. She has become a legend in her lifetime. For over thirty years she has enchanted audiences in every continent, she has danced principal roles in twenty-eight different countries, and with thirty-five partners. The author who directed the television film of Margot Fonteyn's career was sitting through material for this volume.

CHALLENGE — Vita Sackville-West.

This scarcely romantic novel, was suppressed in 1923 as being too scandalous for publication. It is set in Greece, the romantic story of a young Englishman who led a group of islanders in revolt against their masters on the mainland. The scene is nicely described and of course the novel is largely biographical in fact, reason for its suppression in 1923.

HANGED MAN'S HOUSE — Elizabeth Ferrars.

Dr. Chales Gair was found hanged, but that was not what killed him. Even more startling was the discovery of a second body — perfectly mummified. The mummy was identified as a foreign soldier who had been missing for more than a year. How was he involved? Unless he had some connection with Dr. Gair's attractive wife? The mystery unfolds.

BREAKHEART PASS — Alistair Mackean.

The crowded troop train was on its way to relieve Fort Humboldt in Nevada. The year was 1873 and the Fort was not beset by an enemy who could be met in battle, but a different and more dangerous enemy. Nor was this an ordinary troop train, for in addition to a contingent of the United States Cavalry it included the Governor of Nevada and his niece. Some of those on board the train had reasons of their own for wishing to reach Fort Humboldt. Some of them never did reach it. In the first three coaches, lone survivors of disaster, were found dead on the top of Breakheart Pass, some unexpected events had taken place.

BLACK AS HE'S PAINTED — Ngaio Marsh.

The President of N'gombwana had been at public school in England, and his best friend had been Chief Superintendent Roderick Alleyn, for when the President proposed to pay a visit. It was natural that Alleyn, should be called in to arrange the usual security. Nevertheless, a murder took place and it seemed clear that it was the President who should have died. Ngaio Marsh has written a dazzling and delightful mystery.

NONSTOP BANKING

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Bankers Association says there are more than 1,300 automated tellers throughout the country that allow customers to perform 90 per cent of their banking business around the clock without entering a bank. Seven million Americans hold magnetically coded "money cards" that activate these robot tellers which can supplement or even replace branch banks.

Muffler May Last For Life

OTTAWA (CP) — Prof. D. J. Gorman of the University of Ottawa has some bad news for muffler repairmen.

He's developed a stainless steel muffler he says will last the life of any car.

The muffler, developed with the help of a fourth-year student at the university, was tested during the winter on a 1968 station wagon and after 25,000 miles driving it looked good as new, Prof. Gorman said.

One drawback, however, is that materials for Prof. Gorman's muffler cost about $7 while conventional muffler parts cost only about $2.50.

But Prof. Gorman says the extra initial expense will be worth it in the long run.

"Even if fabricating costs bring it up to about $10 more than the usual muffler, it would still be a bargain and would save the car owner from spending a lot of money on replacement of mufflers," Prof. Gorman explained.

He also estimates that Canadian spend about $250 million each year on muffler repairs.

Another feature of the stainless steel muffler, Prof. Gorman said, is safety.

The grade of steel now used in mufflers corrodes easily and a worn-out muffler may result in leaks of dangerous carbon monoxide gas into the passenger area.

Prof. Gorman also says he plans to look into the possibility of using other materials such as plastic for production of car parts.

'Workaholic' Affliction Commonplace in Society

TORONTO (CP) — The affliction "workaholic" isn't limited as such in any psychiatric textbook, but a Carleton University psychiatrist-anthropologist, Dr. Jean-Francois Saucier, says it's a characteristic affliction of the 20th century.

A workaholic is a person who is addicted to the work just as an alcoholic is hooked on liquor or a drug addict on heroin.

He's a slave to work and his compulsion takes precedence over his health, family and friends.

Society looks down on alcohol and drug addicts for their weakness and because of the hardships they impose on others.

By contrast, the workaholic is praised for his productivity and his contributions to society. Seldom does one hear about the injurious side effects.

For example, a large proportion of disturbed children and alcoholic and emotionally ill wives come from families where the father or husband is a slave to work.

"A frequent story is that the husband has had no time for his wife," says psychiatrist Sheldon Hecth, director of Toronto's Rosehill Institute of Human Relations.

"It's a kept her emotionally at a distance."

Often the workaholic boss threatens the health and welfare of those unfortunate enough to work for him.

He sets a dizzying pace for others which they are unable to match.

Nelson Bradley, a Chicago psychiatrist who has studied work addiction, said this kind of behavior is characteristic of many workaholics. They like to make themselves feel bigger. They're often reluctant to delegate authority.

The behavior pattern of the work addict conforms to all the established criteria of a full-blown addiction. He has a deep craving for excessive work and suffers psychological withdrawal symptoms if he has no work to do.

At the urging of his wife or doctor, the workaholic might occasionally take up a hobby such as golfing, but this, too, becomes an intensive, competitive do-or-die enterprise.

It's difficult to enjoy a carefree vacation with the workaholic. He schedules where he's going to be and what he'll be doing during the entire holiday.

Retirement for the workaholic is the ultimate horror. His identity and reason for living vanish along with his job. He suffers all the symptoms of withdrawal—restlessness, anxiety, loneliness, depression, fear and irritation.

Dr. John Sawatsky of Toronto, a prominent business consultant, said the work addict's wife and children have to compete with his work for even a modest amount of attention.

"Divorces among work addicts are common," he said.

Like the alcoholic, the workaholic engages in a variety of mental gymnastics to justify his addiction.

Dr. Douglas Warren, a Toronto physician with experience in industrial medicine, said most of the activity which work addicts engage in is often "unnecessary, unproductive, and manufactured work. He has this compulsion to be busy and look busy. He can't help himself."

The workaholic, says Dr. Gordon Bell, of the Donwood Institute in Toronto, is a person who is more aggressive than most people and who feels uncomfortable with warm human ties. He seems incapable of honestly feeling himself.

"Work is used as an escape and distraction. Work addicts are not the kind of people who come to psychiatrists for help. After all, they're usually successful in their work, aside from society's point of view, perfect citizens."

N.S. (CP)—Isaac Murphy is a confirmed bachelor.

He has felt that way since the second day of school when an overzealous girl grabbed him in the schoolyard.

Mr. Murphy not only quit school that day, he vowed to stay single and says there's not much chance he'll change his mind.

Recreation Camp Carries On Through Sunshine and Rain

PLAINFIELD — On sunny summer days the program includes canoeing and swimming.

On a wet summer day like Tuesday — the program also includes canoeing and swimming.

The project currently attracting city teenagers to the R. Frink Conservation Area here, deals with outdoor life, and weather, in all its moods, is an inseparable element from such a program.

The young folk are attending a camp now organized for the second successive year by Belleville's recreation department.

Prompted by popular enthusiasm on conservation and outdoor living in recent years, the program aims at introducing the newcomer to recreation in the environment. For the initiated, it's an opportunity to brush up on skills already acquired and to meet new companions.

One-week camps run until mid-August, involving young people 12-16 years. Cost is $10 for each participant, who also must supply personal food supplies for the week.

For the week, the campers live under canvas in four tents scattered through the area, but close to a portable classroom used during the school year as an outdoor education centre for Hastings County school students.

Nature study, orienteering, camping crafts, archery and hikes are among the programmed experiences. When the weather turns poor indoor crafts and films supplied by the city's public library video unit — are scheduled.

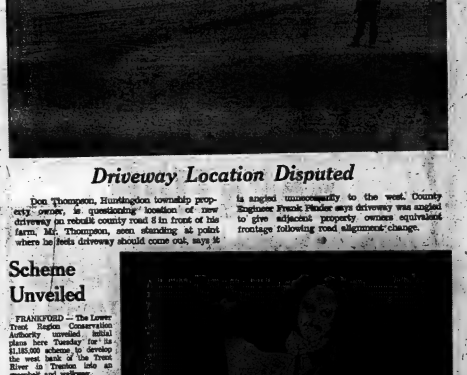
Throughout the activities lies the social intent of encouraging youngsters in group living and personal responsibility, says Rob. Guay, 21-year-old camp director, who heads the staff of five counsellors.

"We try to operate on the premise that they're all maturing young adults requiring little for their own actions," he says. "As long as everything is under control, we try to infringe as little as possible."

Registrations, however, have not been as heavy as first anticipated, admits Clifford Belch, the city's deputy recreation director.

Maximum enrolment is set at 32. At present there are 17 young campers involved in this week's program.

Higher participation in many summer recreation programs appears a general sign of the times, he indicates. It doesn't signify lessening enthusiasm for such undertakings. Rather, it results from proliferation of projects in recent years as private groups, funded by provincial and federal grants, add their presence to traditional leisure services once organized by municipal and long-established community agencies.



"It's getting to youngsters can now pick and choose," says Mr. Belch.

However, registrations should not set the assessment standard.

"The success of any program is not quantity but quality," says the deputy director.

Campfire Construction

No summer camp is complete without its campfire site. Counsellors and participants in outdoor program run by city recreation department Tuesday, were busy constructing outdoor fireplace at Frink Conservation Area near Plainfield. It will be used by successive campers involved in the project which runs until mid-August.

Tenting Out

Testing out is part of the experience in outdoors at summer camp for city youth operated by Belleville recreation department. Among those in program this week are (from bottom) Mike Cote, 14, Bob Brown, 15, John Christopher, 13.

Farmer Protests Road Realignment

A Huntingdon township farmer is at odds with the county of Hastings over the new alignment of his private driveway with the newly rebuilt county road passing his farm.

He is Don Thompson living on County Road 8 a short distance east of Highway 62 at West Huntingdon.

Under a reconstruction program commenced last summer the county has rerouted the road past the Thompson farm to eliminate sharp curves in the Rawdon Creek area.

In doing so the road was angled to provide a more direct approach to the new culvert over Rawdon Creek and this necessitates a lengthy extension to the Thompson driveway which was angled to the west to provide a 90-degree intersection with the new county road alignment.

Mr. Thompson is not objecting to the curve in his driveway extension to comply with the 90-degree intersection requirement, but he does object to the length of the curve, which he says places his driveway culvert too far to the west and in effect deprives him of his share of former road right-of-way.

He claims the driveway curve to meet the 90-degree intersection requirement needs to start only two car lengths from the road, not 100 feet or so back.

County Engineer Frank Pinder says the reason for the extended curve in the Don Thompson driveway is to maintain equivalent roadway frontage for abutting property owners.

Today, the new road alignment which eliminates the former curves, both Mr. Thompson and his neighbor to the east are actually losing some frontage but the county engineer says both neighbors will benefit from the road change.

Included in the roadway reconstruction was the installation of a new arch culvert over Rawdon Creek while this year a new bridge over the CN tracks is planned.

The county is now placing the final layer of granular base on the rebuilt roadway section in preparation for surface treatment.

Driveway Location Disputed

Don Thompson, Huntingdon township property owner, is questioning location of new driveway on rebuilt county road 8 in front of his farm. Mr. Thompson, seen standing at point where he feels driveway should come out, says it is angled unnecessarily to the west. County Engineer Frank Pinder says driveway was angled to give adjacent property owners equivalent frontage following road alignment change.

Scheme Unveiled

FRANKFORD — The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority unveiled initial plans here Tuesday for its $1,185,000 scheme to develop the west bank of the Trent River in Trenton into an greenbelt and walkway.

The scheme, in the works for two years now, will see an area stretching from just south of the Highway 2 bridge north to Lock 1 completely remodelled.

Maps, together with a brief, were presented for viewing by the authority executive by Paul Tripp, conservation area's board chairman, Tuesday.

Mr. Tripp said land is now being acquired in preparation for implementation of what is expected to be a 10-year project.

The major portion of the project's cost — $720,000 is slated for property purchase. In total eight properties, three north of LeCas Island, must still be bought, he said.

"The idea was to let you see it." Mr. Tripp told the executive last night. "We've been talking about it for two years."

Conservation area board members have planned a meeting with engineering consultants Greer, Galloway and Associates Ltd. of Belleville to discuss any final revisions to the plan.

Subsequently, it will be presented to the executive for approval, 60% of costs with the provincial government — the supplier of funds to offset part of the projects costs.

Mr. Tripp said a start on actual construction could begin in 1975 if five properties between the Highway 2 bridge and the CPR bridge are acquired this year.

Considered to be the project's first phase, the area between the water line and Front St. would be developed as a narrow walking park with benches included.

The second phase, roughly north of LeCas Island, would eat up the major portion of the $40,000 slated for actual development. Plans call for picnic areas, a children's playground and extensive sports facilities.

Trillium Awards Nominations Open

It will soon be time again for the Belleville Garden Club Trillium Awards Contest when homeowners, industrial and commercial enterprises vie with each other to the beautification of their properties.

Former city alderman Enos David, public relations man for the competition says that the beautification is the object behind the Trillium Awards program.

"I believe that no greater compliment can be paid to a city than to describe it as beautiful," Mr. David says.

Early in September the Garden Club will run newspaper advertisements inviting residents to make nominations for the program. Private homes, commercial and industrial enterprises may be nominated while even the resident's own home may be suggested.

Judging will be done by experienced judges from the nominations submitted according to the way properties appear from the street.

Judging is done on a point system with regard for harmony of color and design, tidiness of grounds and the size of trees and shrubs in relation to the house and grounds.

Condition of the properties (maintenance), the color and grooming of lawns, are also taken into consideration.

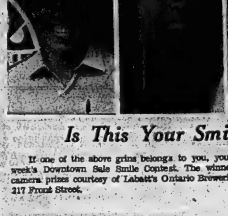
Additional information may be obtained from The Belleville Garden Club, P.O. Box 223.

Tax Auditor At Gunpoint

A Foxboro radio repairman who cleaned an income tax auditor out of his house at gunpoint was yesterday given a suspended sentence after being found guilty of pointing a firearm.

Frederick George Hebden of RR 3, Belleville was placed on 18 months' probation by provincial court Judge J. L. Gendenning and was prohibited from possessing a firearm for four years. The 5 mm. Luger brandished in the incident was ordered forfeited.

Testimony indicated that Mr. Hebden refused to allow Garnet Bird, an income tax auditor, to look at his books when the auditor called at the Hebden residence May 17, Mr. Hebden cleaned Mr. Bird out of the house at gunpoint. When Mr. Bird reached his car Mr. Hebden pointed the gun at him again and opened the car door. The auditor drove off and called Ontario Provincial Police.



Mr. Hebden denied that the pistol was loaded.

Theatre August is Back

An original play, written by the cast, is Smokey the Bear Sutra. Fourth play is Chekhov's Bear. The summer theatre is financed by grants and a city recreation department loan.

Garvey MVP

National League Wins Again

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For some it was a human's holiday. For a human's son, it was a dream come true.

"The seeds were planted when I was four, five and six," said Steve Garvey of Los Angeles Dodgers, who was named the most valuable player in Tuesday night's all-star baseball game after leading the National League to a 7-1 victory over the American League.

"My father drove the team bus for the Dodgers in spring training and I got to know them all—Gil Hodges, Carl Furillo, Roy Campanella, Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax.

Garvey's name didn't even appear on the computer ballot for this 45th all-star game, but fans responded with more than one million write-in votes to make him the starting first baseman.

Garvey responded by delivering two key hits and a sparkling defensive play during a full nine-inning stint as the National League continued its dominance over the Americans, winning its 11th game in the past 12. The NL now leads the series 26-18-1 after being behind 13-6.

Gaylord Perry, starting pitcher for the AL, retired the first five NL batters before Garvey singled in the second. Dodgers team-mate Ron Cey then drove in Garvey with a double.

In the third inning Garvey made a brilliant backhand stab of Bobby Murcer's hot grounder to end the inning.

The AL already had two runs in that inning and two runners on base.

In the fourth, with the Americans leading 2-1, Johnny Bench and Jimmy Wynn, another Dodger, singled. Garvey drove in one run with a double, and Wynn later scored on Cey's groundout.

Garvey played despite an ear infection.

Garvey had looked forward to pre-game batting practice because he had not swung a bat since last Wednesday, when the ear infection sidelined him. But threatening rain cancelled the batting workout.

Marshall pitched the last two innings, following strong performances by Mcsorcumlib, Ken Brett, Jon Matlack and Lynn McGlothen. Brett, the only Pittsburgh Pirate on the squad, was credited with the victory after working the fourth and fifth innings.

Luis Tiant, who allowed two runs in the fourth inning, took the loss. The Nationals added an unearned run in the fifth on Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly, scoring Lou Brock who had singled, stolen second and moved to third on catcher Thurman Munson's error.

Reggie Smith homered in the seventh off Jim Hunter to make it 3-2.

"Coming against my old teammates and being my first all-star hit, it was a great feeling," Smith said. He made it 7-2 in the eighth with Don Kessinger's triple the key blow.

The AL scored twice in the third inning with Dick Allen thought in one of the rare with a single. The Chicago White Sox first baseman arrived less than 45 minutes before game time.

Allen said it little over an hour's work—apparently having every minute of it. But Steve Garvey, the batsman's son who always dreamed of his day in the limelight, was having the time of his life.

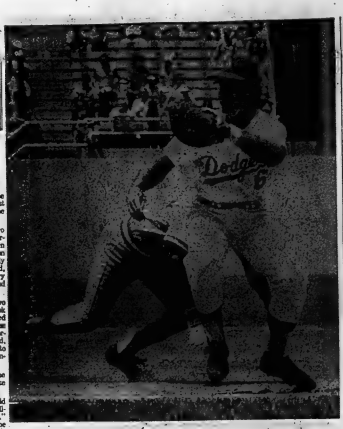
Nedomansky's Only Route Was Defection

TORONTO (CP) — Vaclav Nedomansky, left little behind five Czechoslovakia last week to join Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

Interpreter Mike Bubrovac explained that even a high-rank ing hockey star such as Nedomansky lives from one game to the next in Czechoslovakia and he left no bank account behind.

Nedomansky, signed a five-year contract with the Toros reported to be worth about $500,000.

The 6-foot-1, 210-pound centre let the interpreter do most of the talking.



A former Czech national team captain and Most Valuable Player in the last world amateur hockey championships, Nedomansky said he had been trying for about the last seven or eight years to make the move to North American pro hockey.

He said a number of attempts had been made by National Hockey League and WHA interests to obtain his release from Czechoslovakia through official channels but these were always turned down.

He arrived in Canada as a landed immigrant last Wednesday and, going through Parliamentary Hill. He was accompanied by his wife, Vera, and son, Vaclav Jr.

Asked why he chose the Toros, Nedomansky said: "In the WHA was the coming league." that he knew Toros coach Billy Harris and left wingers Frank Mahovlich and Paul Henderson and the salary also was a big incentive.

Richard Farda, another former Czech national team member, also will be joining the Toros later this year, general manager Buck Houle said.

Greens Shaped at Bayview

Even owner Gary Goyer, (foreground), gets into the act at the new Bayview Golf Center in the laying of the sod for the green. Here, Goyer and his helpers put the grass on the fifth green, working in the rain through yesterday to get the job completed. The entire nine holes should be finished today, according to Goyer, with opening of the course set for about two weeks from now. Most of the greens placed last week and early this week have already taken to the ground, with shaping and trimming now under way.

CFL Opens Tonight

Alloueltes Anticipate Tough One with Ticats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rookie World Football League, plunging into the midst of its third week, will have four teams battling tonight to hang on to their unbeaten records. At least one is likely to fall.

A pair of undefeated teams—Birmingham Americans and Memphis Southmen—are matched in a WFL version of a showdown game. Neither club wants to play in the league's first overtime tie ever.

"They have a fine quarterback and two of the better running backs in the league," said Birmingham head coach Jack Gotta about the Southmen—the WFL scoring leaders with a 25-point-per-game average.

Quarterback John Huarte, who has 22 completions in 37 attempts for 342 yards, leads Memphis. Running back A. J. Jennings has a total of 17 yards rushing for the Southmen and John Harvey has 85 yards.

But quarterback George Mira, the latest WFL Player of the Week, has completed 21 of 44 passes for 329 yards for the Americans. His top receiver is Dennis Homan with six catches for 146 yards.

In other games tonight, unbeaten Chicago Fire hosts Portland Storm, undefeated Florida Blazers meet Houston Texans and Southern California Sun faces Jacksonville Sharks.

Philadelphia Bell is at home to New York Stars Thursday night and Chicago—with three days of rest—plays the Hawaiians in another contest Saturday at Honolulu.

The Fire, tied with Birmingham and Memphis for the Central Division lead, will help winless Portland open its home season.

Chicago features quarterback Virgil Carter—33 of 52 for 371—and receiver James Scott, the WFL leader with 14 catches for 194 yards.

Strong-armed quarterback Greg Barton of Portland and runners Marv Kendricks and Clem Turner will threaten Chicago's perfect mark.

The Hawaiians, waiting in line for the Five, have quarterback Norris Weese's fine passing. But they have the poorest WFL running attack.

The Blazers, atop the Eastern Division as the other unbeaten WFL team, are led by quarterback Bob Davis and runners Jim Sizzag and A. D. Whitfield.

Houston, 1-1, has rookies Jim Nance and Paul Gipson.

Southern California, 1-1, tied with Houston as the Western Division leader, pits its tough rushing defence against Jacksonville's Tommy Durrance, who leads the WFL with 184 yards on 46 carries.

Wireless New York, with the leading WFL offense and the second-leading defence, will try to get untracked against Philadelphia.

Quarterback Tom Sherman of the Stars and Jim (King) Corcoran of the Bell have been preparing for a passing duel.

California Cuties Come to Kaladar

By RACHEL SPENCER
Staff Correspondent

If you want to see softball as DoubleDay never pictured it, catch the game between the men of The Land O'Lakes Streakers, and the "girls" of the touring California Cuties.

You'll see some of the most ridiculous ball playing either side of Mudville.

Don't blame the Land O'Lakes Streakers; it's all the fault of these California Cuties, whose hilarious antics are devastating to the game of softball, but are an awful lot of fun to watch.

The Cuties, led by Trixo Palacios, are actually a team of male softball players who only remotely look like girls, even in their bright wigs and tutus.

The first part of the exhibition they play to win — and they usually do. You'll see first rate pitching by "Lotsa Fanny" — topo-roxanne home run slugging by Dumpy Dora and Betty Heino, and sparkling play all around.

Then the antics start, with quite a few surprises. One of the smallest surprises is known as "Susie".

Ever see a pitcher trying to find the strike zone of a 39-inch batter?

That's Susie, the automatic ball.

And there's Fit-the-Flirt, the team's glamour girl — sort of.

Best known clown of the team is Madam Hilda who doubles as manager under his real name Trino Palacios.

Well, this is actually for fun and entertainment. Say, maybe this is the way the game really should be played.

Proceeds go to the Kaladar Community Club.

Melrose Alone In 1st

Melrose moved into sole possession of first place in the South Hastings Baseball League last night with a win over Carrollton Manor's Crevette, 4-1.

Terry McTaggart fired the win for Melrose, allowing only four hits. He struck out one, while issuing three free passes.

Ken Abrams started for Manor's, going three and two-thirds innings. He gave up all four Melrose runs, on four hits. He whiffed two and walked three. Larry Adams came on in relief, giving up two hits, fanning two and walking one in three and two-third innings.

Scott McLure had a double and single to lead the winners, with Glen McMechan adding two singles. Larry Pascoe had a triple, with John Pepper rounding out the attack with a single.

Larry Adams had a triple and single to pace the losers, with Warren Hay and Garnet Adams adding singles.

Bayview Does It Right in First

Bayview Orchards jumped on the Cozac by two runs in the first inning of their Prince Edward North Shore Softball League game in Amalastorph last night, and went on to defeat the Belleville crew by a 5-3 margin. In the other game, Concecon dumped Reserve 9-8.

Dwayne Dunstor went all the way for Bayview in their win, allowing eight hits. He struck out three and walked six.

Ken Kerik and Sonny Hennessy shared the loss for Belleville, giving up six hits. They combined for nine strikeouts, while issuing four bases on balls.

Doug Adams and Dunstor had a double each to Bayview's attack, with Rodrigue adding a double. Other base hits went to Rob Harrison, and John Allison.

Harvey Wilson had three singles in a losing cause for the Gems, with Reg Bennett connecting a pair. Kerik added a triple, with Tom Beaudin and Carl Yates each stocking a safety to round out the attack.

Gary Eardley gave up six hits and five walks to Reserve, but still managed to come up with win for Concecon. He struck out four.

Pat Maracle Sr. took the loss for Reserve, nicked for 13 hits. He struck out five and did not walk a man.

Bob MacLeod had three triples and a base hits to lead the way for Concecon with George Phillips adding a pair of doubles. Stan Clarke had one triple, with Eardley and Bill Rogers each stocking a double, while Art Kellar had three singles.

Jim McKay had a two hit for the losers, with Lyell Reeves adding two more. Other hits all singles, went to Pat Maracle Jr., Carmen Gelinas, and Murray Maracle.

CANADIANS WIN
WORCESTER, England (Reuter) — A fine innings of 66 not out by Tom Clarke led the Canadian Cricket Association team to a five wickets victory over Worcestershire Second XI in a two-day match which ended Sunday.

Non-smokers Helped In Fight for Air

VANCOUVER (CP) — Smokers beware! Non-smokers are going to challenge your right to puff in public.

A summer project financed by the British Columbia and Vancouver city health departments will help the non smoker fight for clean air.

Research officer Ken Newington said it is aimed at encouraging non-smokers to complain about cigarette smoke in public places and at mobilizing pressure to have the right to clean air backed by law.

"The way things stand right now, non-smokers who complain about smoke being blown in their faces are made to feel like cranks or pests," said Mr. Newington.

"Non-smokers are a suffering, silent majority. They need to have their consciousness raised so they will appreciate they are in the majority and they have the right and the power to demand relief from a dirty, ugly habit."

Cigarettes are more than just irritating smoke, offensive smell and filthy butts. They can also be a hazard to the health of the non-smoker.

"People may think that because they don't inhale a cigarette that they are spared the danger," Mr. Newington said.

"But it's a fact that the side stream, the smoke that comes directly off the end of the cigarette without being filtered through the tobacco, has a higher proportion of poison than inhaled smoke."

WILL DEVELOP PROTEST

"A study done last year for the city health department found that a non-smoker in a smoky beer parlor will inhale as much benzo-a-pyrine—a substance which has been linked to lung cancer as commercial asbestos—in two hours as if he had smoked 10 unfiltered cigarettes."

Project director Marie Tracy said her staff of four will develop and publicize ways for non-smokers to protect themselves on an individual basis and as a group.

"As an individual, it takes nerve to ask a host where are ways you can do it," she said.

"If somebody lights up right near you, you can turn to them and say, 'excuse me, I suffer from asthma, and the smoking irritates my lungs—do you mind smoking somewhere else?'"

Mrs. Tracy, who used to counsel people on how to quit smoking, said the project also will distribute cards which can be given to smokers if the non-smoker is too shy to speak up. The message will be a courteous reminder of the non-smoker's rights.

Mr. Newington said another tactic is to ask to be seated in the non-smokers' section when entering a club or restaurant. Anti-smoking bylaws in theatres, department stores, supermarkets, hospitals and other public places are rarely enforced, he said.

The project will compile a catalogue of areas in the city which are free of smokers. In addition, a campaign will be launched to convince the provincial government that it should require non-smoker areas in all public places.

Peter Newall holds down 14 jobs at one time — all of them government positions. Newall, who lives in Atlin in the northwestern tip of British Columbia, says "if somebody needs to be done and it involved the government, I'm here." Among other things, he is provincial court judge, gold commissioner and coroner.

Police Believe Drug Raid Plans Known at Fort Erie

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The officer in charge of the controversial May 11 drug raid at The Landmark Hotel in Fort Erie said he thought there was a "remote possibility" somebody tipped off the organizers before the searches.

But Insp. Frank Parkhouse told a royal commission investigating Niagara regional police actions during the raid that he was not aware women relatives were subjected to a strip search until there was "a public outcry" after newspaper publicity several weeks later.

Later, Judge John Pringle heard from a veteran Fort Erie policeman that there was reason to believe customers suspected an impending raid before more than 80 Niagara police and RCMP officers entered the hotel.

Solicitor-General George Kerr ordered the royal commission under Judge Pringle of Norfolk County after criticism of the police action.

More than 100 patrons were searched and all of the 36 women found on the premises were forced to strip for examination by two policewomen.

Insp. Parkhouse testified that he left the method of searching to the discretion of individual police officers.

"In drug searches, if you don't do a thorough search, you might as well not do one at all," the 36-year-old inspector said.

When the inquiry opened Monday, evidence indicated that Niagara police believed marijuana was being smoked openly on the premises and known heroin pushers and users were on the hotel premises on a regular basis.

The inspector said Tuesday he began planning the raid May 1, three days before it took place.

He said observations by undercover agents indicated marijuana was openly sold and used. It was "being done throughout the night."

Insp. Parkhouse said none of the police officers who testified Tuesday and participated in the raid made remarks about the searches.

There were 11 charges laid the night of the raid, but the inspector said only three or four were drug charges — possession of marijuana.

On the night of the raid, Edgar John Lane, was charged with permitting drunkenness but the charge was later withdrawn. The other charges all involved liquor offences.

Hydro Staff Plans Altered by Directors

TORONTO (CP) — Staff proposals to overhaul Ontario Hydro's corporate power rates were altered "almost entirely" by the corporation's Board of Directors last spring because of their impact on the province's industry, Hydro Chairman George Gathercole said Tuesday.

Testifying at an Ontario Energy Board hearing into Hydro's proposed 1975 rates, Mr. Gathercole said the directors decided to increase rates higher than 4 mills per kilowatt hour because of "the impact on the large load-factor customers."

A report to the directors from the marketing and finance branches had proposed raising the rate next year to 4.16 mills from the present 3.25.

Mr. Gathercole said there is a general consensus within Ontario Hydro that the four-mill rate is lower than the incremental cost of producing energy, and that it would make the present imbalance between charges for energy use and peak demands.

He said the directors' decision was in recognition that a three quarter-mill adjustment would "have a material impact" on high load-factor customers."

During Tuesday's hearing Mr. Gathercole also defended Ontario Hydro's practice of issuing short-term notes on the grounds that the rate for the notes is almost invariably above that for Hydro bonds.

"I don't think there is any question we have been getting money on the short-term notes," he said.

"We are just trying to minimize the cost of our capital borrowing." Mr. Gathercole told Robert Macaulay, energy board counsel conducting the hearing, whether lending money was part of the role of a public electric utility.

Doctors Want Abortion Kept in Criminal Code

TORONTO (CP) — A group of 18 doctors opposed to abortion urged fellow members of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA) on the public Tuesday to protest any attempt to remove abortion from the Criminal Code.

The doctors, who describe themselves as representatives of a large portion of the 36,000-member CMA, took a news conference removal of abortion as a criminal offence was advocated during the annual meeting of the CMA in June.

In a statement, the group said: "The most sensationalistic aspect of the CMA meeting was a panel on abortion. Four of the panel members perform numerous abortions, while the fifth (CMA President Dr. Irene Stephenson) has long been in the forefront of the abortion movement."

It said "the biased panel . . . turned into a platform for pro-abortionists."

The CMA had passed a resolution in 1971 by a margin of 78 to 74, permitting abortions "on non-medical social grounds."

The statement, read by Saskatoon psychiatrist Dr. Elcish Jones, said:

"During the last few years, the physician has become the most dangerous man in Canada. Can you think of another social group that kills (by abortion) at an estimated rate of 40,000 a year?"

Dr. Jones said that until 1972 she had frequently recommended abortion when consulted on the treatment of a woman suffering emotional problems during pregnancy. But, she said, the abortions themselves caused further depression and difficulties often long-lasting.

"Most women are unable to assume the decision to end their pregnancies when they are an overwrought and depressed," she said.

"The unborn should have the same legal protection as those who have already been born."

Postmen Divided

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations involving about 21,000 postal employees have been referred to conciliation. The question of inside workers to break away from the letter carriers.

The conciliation decision was announced Tuesday when the Canadian Union of Postal Workers — the inside workers — said a majority of its membership voted to disaffiliate from the Council of Postal Unions.

The council, made up of the postal workers and the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, has a contract that expires Dec. 31, 1976. Disaffiliation in effect means that neither union has a contract.

Jos Davidson, president of the postal workers, said 11,227 members voted to disaffiliate and 1,932 voted against the idea. About 13,000 were eligible to vote. There were 106 spoiled ballots.

He said the postal workers probably will meet the letter carriers tonight to discuss what happens next and that the postal workers will apply for certification before the public service staff relations board at a date to be determined.

He said the postal workers executive now must meet to decide policy.

Physical Fitness Expert, Lloyd Percival, Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Lloyd Percival of Toronto, a voice in the wilderness for many years who later became one of Canada's leading authorities on physical fitness, died in hospital Tuesday. He was 78.

Percival, here to discuss a fitness education project he was proposing to set up with an insurance firm, collapsed at a noon meeting and was dead on arrival at Royal Victoria Hospital.

A spokesman at the hospital said an autopsy would be performed to determine the cause of death.

Percival, who until recently operated the Fitness Institute in Toronto, had coached a number of athletes and teams and was the author of several books on fitness.

Jon Taylor, a business associate of Percival's, said in Toronto the fitness expert said his share of the Institute to his partner, Jim Galedcer, about six weeks ago. Percival had been having health problems for the last two years.

Outspoken about his theories on physical conditioning, Percival became one of the most controversial figures in Canadian sports.

"I was in a controversial situation right from the start," he said in 1968, when he announced he was withdrawing from amateur athletics to devote all his time to his Fitness Institute because the Canadian sports "establishment" was not ready to accept his techniques.

"I set out to study conditioning and training methods throughout the world and apply them to Canadians," he said.

"I was involved in controversy when I began training people with weights, and I was in trouble when I announced that putting ice on a charley horse was better than rubbing it."

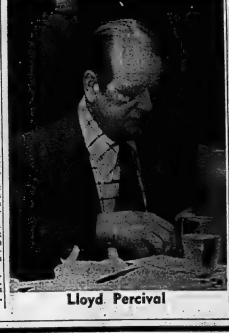
When he was head coach of Don Mills Track Club in 1966, he was charged with giving his athletes stimulants. Almost a year later he was cleared of the charges in court. He resigned his post with the Don Mills club in 1968.

"That's been part of the problem," he said at that time. "People think I have some secret methods and that I'm using them to promote myself. I wanted only to promote Canadians internationally."

"Money doesn't mean much to me and I'm not interested in status," Percival said in a recent interview. "Life to me is involvement, wheeling battles and accomplishing projects."

Although Canadians ignored him, Europeans were receptive to his ideas and the Soviet Union, in particular, made extensive use of his Bicknell Handbook, published in 1958.

When the Soviets offered in 1968 to send two coaches to Canada as "advisers," Percival called it the "supreme insult of all time, especially to me."



"There is not a Russian who knows more about conditioning a team than I do."

Percival played several sports, and during the 1920s attended a number of coaching schools in the United States and Canada.

In 1942 he started a national radio program called Sports College which he used as a means of developing his theories.

He opened his $2.5-million Fitness Institute in 1968 and spent the last six years catering to professionals and amateur athletes and anyone interested in his conditioning program.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothy; his daughter, Janet, women's director of the Fitness Institute; and a brother, Alan, of Toronto.

The Best Are in Action In Four WFL Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger Cats open the Football Conference tonight and both coaches anticipate a tough fight.

Alouette coach and general manager Marv Levy said in an interview he is discounting his team's two pre-season victories over the Ticats as an indication of what they face in the league opener.

"We'll be playing against a much tougher Hamilton defence this time," he said. "Not only that, but they'll be in the game all the way this time."

The two victories, 23-17 and 41-10, should not be considered because "those exhibition scores mean zilch; nothing."

"One of the things we expect is for (Chuck) Ealey to roll out. We are also conscious of (Andy) Kapsalis running. He's one of the quickest runners at finding a hole in the league.

"It's hard to tell anything until you're tested in a game that counts. We feel we have a good football team. And the proof of it is we don't know. After all we haven't played a game yet."

Hamilton coach Jerry Williams said the Ats are "a good team to beat because they have the best balance of any team in the east.

"We're looking for both the pass and run from the Alouettes," he said. "They're going to provide our toughest competition."

Hamilton has eight new faces in the lineup this year, four Canadians and four imports.

"We were weak on the run last year but we hope to be better this season," with Fred Oramboni and Ezil Bibbs manning the defensive ends positions, Williams said.

Alouette quarterback Jimmy Jones said he can extra dimension to their running game with the fast speedsters on the Hamilton defence.

General manager Ralph Sazio said the addition of Joe Critchlow at defensive tackle allowed the Als to stabilize their defence.

"Critchlow is as quick as (Jim) Sullenagon or (Granny) Liggins. He is the biggest plus this team adds year. And in Mike Widger, Carl Crunsel and Chuck Zapiec, they probably have the best linebacking unit in the league."

Despite Montreal's improved defence, Sazio still picked Ottawa Rough Riders as the team to beat because of their stable quarterbacking.

Cornerback John Williams is the only Hamilton regular on the 21-day disabled list while quarterback Sonny Wade and defensive back Tony Proudfoot are on the Alouette injury list.

The game at the Autostade is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. EDT and will be broadcast on the Eastern network of the CBC with Montreal blacked out.

Streit Fires Five Under Par in First

SUDBURY (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit of Forshill, Ont., eight-time winner of the Ontario women's amateur golf championship, was in a familiar position Tuesday after firing a five-under-par 66 for the first-round lead in this year's annual event.

Mrs. Streit, who captured the provincial title in 1951, 1956 through 1958, 1962 through 1970 and again in 1973, was one under par on the front side and four under on the back for 8 six stroke lead over two golfers.

Unranked Ann Hanley of Windsor, Ont., and defending champion Jean Kirkpatrick of Toronto fired first-round 74s. The 15-year-old Miss Hanley, fresh from winning the Essex County junior championship Monday afternoon, fired a par 36 on the first nine holes and was one over on the back nine.

Miss Kirkpatrick, ranked third in the province behind Mrs. Streit and Gayle Borthwick of Mississauga, Ont., was two over on the front nine but recovered for a one-under-par 36 on the final nine holes.

Sue Wickwarers of Toronto is next after shooting a five-over-par 76. Liz Heffman of Toronto is fifth at 77 with Cathy Sherk of Forshill, Ida Morning of Toronto and Maddy Tannahil of Pittsford Ont., all tied for sixth with 78s.

Tied at 79 are Kay Cartwright of Kingston and Pamela Johns of Toronto.

Gray Must Defend Title

LONDON (Reuter) — Clyde Gray of Toronto has been ordered to defend his Commonwealth welterweight boxing title by the end of October or forfeit it.

The order was given by the Commonwealth boxing championship committee in a directive issued here.

It named three official contenders for Gray's crown—British Johnny Singer, Australia's Rocky Mattioli and Ghana's Eddie Blay.

George Chuvalo of Toronto was omitted from the list of contenders for Briton Danny McAlinden's heavyweight title because of inactivity.

Trenchcoated comedian Joey Moore does his Columbo inmitations.

Comedian's Life Not All Funny

It isn't easy being a comedian. There's a lot of travelling and late nights and hecklers. But Joey Moore, currently appearing at the Sun Valley with his revue is used to all this.

After all the 29-year-old entertainer has been a comedian for nine years. He's been in show business since he was 14, appearing with a group in which he played drums in his native Ottawa.

A high point of his life had to be in 1970 when he was voted Comedian of the Year by the Canadian American National Entertainers' Association. This is an award open to all comedians in Canada and the U.S.

Joey's specialty is impressions of all kinds, from Peter Falk's Columbo to Tiny Tim with Johnny and Howard thrown in for good measure.

He sings as well and has appeared on numerous television variety shows both in Canada and the U.S. One of them was the Mike Douglas Show.

As well Joey has performed at the Flamingo in Las Vegas and when he finishes here he travels to Seattle for the World's Fair there.

Joey admits that he had problems with hecklers. "That's one of the first things you learn as a comedian, how to handle the hecklers. "You have to deal with them right away. With the gentle ones you act gentle and a bit harder with the tough ones.

Joey's act at Sun Valley is a combination one. He does two 45-minute shows a night with a 15-minute break between them. His back-up band, the Morning Show entertains with music for listening and dancing.

His says he has to "bend" with his audience. "You have to bend your act with the type of audience you have. Some nights you get a risque, so I use that with a certain audience.

"I don't think people want to see something in a supper club that they can see at home on television, said Joey.

You can't make risque jokes on television so I think people like hearing them when they go out," he said.

Joey will be at the Sun Valley until the end of this week.

Russian Defector Performs Friday

TORONTO (CP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov, the star of Leningrad's Kirov Ballet who defected to the West last month, says he will express his gratitude to Canada for giving him asylum "through my art."

He said in a CBC-TV interview that his only purpose in deciding to stay here at the end of a touring Kirobal Ballet engagement was to seek artistic opportunity not available to him in the Soviet Union.

The interview was conducted by Harry Rasky, television documentary producer, through an interpreter for a CBC-TV special to be shown on the English network Friday night.

"In the hour-long program, the 26-year-old dancer is shown both in rehearsal and in a television studio performance of a scene from La Sylphide with the National Ballet of Canada.

Mr. Baryshnikov will go to New York for a July 31 dancing engagement with the American Ballet Theatre and then return to Toronto to perform with the National Ballet next month.

The CBC banned a news release describing the move and how it was put together. In it, Mr. Baryshnikov is quoted as saying: "Of course, it is not the most pleasant situation" to be a defector.

He was given a six-month visitor's permit by the federal government after he defected June 29. A number of ballet companies, including the National, are reported to be vying for his services and whether he remains in Canada is uncertain.

In the television program Mr. Baryshnikov said:

"I stay (in the West) purely for artistic reasons. I stay to receive artistic information which otherwise would not be available, artistic opportunity."

"I'm here because I want to work with interesting choreographers and new partners and new companies. Otherwise why I feel I wouldn't grow in my artistic life."

He expresses appreciation for the opportunity to stay in the West, saying to the Canadian people: "I will try to 'thank' them through my art."

The CBC-TV show, written as well as produced by Mr. Rasky, is narrated by Lorne Greene, Canadian star of the former Bonanza series.

Renovation Costly

EDMONTON (CP) — The sewer system in this city of almost 350,000 population was designed for a city of 100,000, says Ken Ramsay, manager of the city water and sanitation department. E. E. Monahan said the interconnected storm and sanitary sewers should be separate. He's studying the matter and separating the lines would cost about $180 million.

AGAWAM, Mass. (AP) — Country Western singer Jeannie C. Riley says she would rather sing hymns than Harper Valley PTA, her hit of six years ago.

"It was a monster," the singer said Sunday in an interview between shows at an amusement park.

Miss Riley, 28, said she realized that God did not want her to record any more tunes like the PTA ballad, which satirized small-town hypocrisy.

"I know that God has a mission for me," she said, adding that her next album will be a collection of inspirational songs, many of them about her own life.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thirty-six semi-finalists have been named in a worldwide song-writing contest, vocalist Helen Reddy announced Monday.

The contestants, who submitted entries in the fields of rock, country, popular, jazz, soul and gospel religious, will have their songs performed by professional entertainers at a song festival Aug. 10 in Sarratoga Springs, N.Y.

The winners in the categories of best professional and amateur song will receive $20,000 each.

More than 60,000 songs from composers in the United States and 20 other countries were submitted, said Reddy, speaking for the sponsors, the American Song Festival.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It takes a second and then a third look to recognize Maximilian Schell in his makeup for The Man in the Glass Booth, beginning production at the American Film Theatre's second season.

The actor's luxuriant hair has been shaved to the scalp, and a full beard converts him into the deranged Jewish millionaire of the drama written He the stage for actor Robert Shaw.

Is Arthur Goldberg deranged? Is he Jewish? Or is he, as he sometimes claims, a secret agent colonel who committed atrocities for Nazi Germany? The answers are found only after Goldman is kidnapped and taken to Israel for a trial in a glass booth, in the manner of Adolf Eichmann.

"This is the most difficult and challenging role I have ever undertaken, more difficult than Hamlet," said Schell during a break in filming.

"The sheer length of the speeches, the complications of thought, the switches in attitude, make it an enormous challenge. If I play one scene wrong, the whole thing is lost. It must be absolutely crazy and theatrical, the man is drunk and mad with a method."

For his Glass Booth role, Schell is receiving the minimum of $25,000 paid actors by the American Film Theatre, which produces plays for the screen. This is a fraction of what he was paid for his most recent film, The Odessa File, and it demonstrates why Schell's agent despairs over his client.

Max Schell was established as a film star with his role after his 1961 Academy Award for Judgment at Nuremberg.

New JOHNSON'S® Disposable Diaper is soft, comfortable and so absorbent, it keeps your baby drier than any other. Read about it. Then send for your free sample pack so you can see the difference for yourself.

Every baby is special: from the tip of that turned-up nose down to those little pink heels that splash the bath water clear across the room.

JOHNSON & JOHNSON knows that. Through the many baby products we make, we have a proud and happy relationship with little ones all over the world.

So you can understand why, when we decided to make a disposable diaper, it had to be special. Not only as good as, but superior to its competitors. It had to be soft and extra-absorbent. Thick in the centre, but not at the edges. It had to be designed for comfort, so it would feel dry to your baby even after it was wet. It had to meet the toughest standards of hygiene.

It had to fit neatly and firmly. And it had to be a one-piece unit that didn't need plastic pants or pins.

As with all JOHNSON & JOHNSON products, our disposable diaper wasn't offered for sale until it had been tested and re-tested, and then tested again. The wait was worth it. New JOHNSON'S Disposable Diapers are everything we wanted them to be.

But we don't ask you to believe us sight unseen. Test them yourself. Just clip the coupon, fill it in and mail it. We'll send you six Daytime size JOHNSON'S Disposable Diapers, or eight Newborn size, so you and your baby can try them. There's no better way for you to see that our new diaper is everything we say it is.

Proof of JOHNSON'S special absorbency

To prove the superior absorbency of new JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper, we tested it alongside another leading disposable. First we poured an equal quantity of blue-tinted water into the centre of each diaper. Then we sat twins on the diapers to show what happens when your baby sits.

The twin on the left sits on the new JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper; the twin on the right, on another leading disposable. The more absorbent diaper will keep baby drier, more comfortable.

After a few minutes, we cut out and squeezed sections of the diapers where the babies sat. The difference was startling. The other diaper's inner padding was soaked through. The top layer of the JOHNSON'S Diaper was much drier.

This is the other diaper's inner padding. The blue stain shows it's soaked through, just as most disposables would be soaked.

JOHNSON'S special kind of absorbency draws wetness into the bottom layer of the diaper. The top layer stays drier, so baby stays drier.

A wet diaper irritates tender skin. So just think what a blessing the new JOHNSON'S Diaper is. It keeps your baby drier than any other. How does it happen?

A special inner padding makes the difference

The inner padding of the JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper is unique. It's actually two absorbent layers. The material has been specially designed to draw wetness quickly away from the top layer into the bottom layer. Wetness is also drawn away from what we call the "strike area" and dispersed along the length and width of the diaper.

That's why, although we poured exactly the same amount of water into each diaper, the JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper felt drier on the surface. The water's there, only it's been spread out into the core of the diaper, away from the soft surface that touches your baby's skin.

Feels soft like cloth

The lining on a JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper looks and feels remarkably like cloth. It's this fabric-like lining as well as the extra-absorbent material underneath that make the JOHNSON'S Diaper so comfortable.

Remember, JOHNSON & JOHNSON make dressings and bandages for use in hospitals, where softness is often a must. We know what softness is all about.

If your baby could talk, he'd tell you just how comfortable a JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper is. The soft lining we've used not only increases the speed of absorption, it also provides a thick protective layer between your baby and the irritation of a wet diaper.

No plastic pants

When we first talked to mothers, close to 1000, about disposable diapers we heard a lot of complaints about plastic pants and pins. So we did away with both in our new diaper.

The JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper is backed with a soft, pliable layer of polyethylene.

It's quiet.

Funny as that sounds, we've heard complaints about polyethylene backings that are stiff and crinkly —downright noisy some mothers tell us.

New JOHNSON'S Disposable Diapers feel drier and as soft as cloth. They're the one to use if you want serviceability plus comfort for your baby.

Our wet-proof backing is soft, pliable and quiet.

Another feature worth noting is the way we've finished off the edges of the new JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper.

We've bonded the polyethylene right to the edge of the soft diaper. But we haven't brought the polyethylene up over the top of the diaper.

Some manufacturers of disposable diapers do that. We don't, because we think it can add to skin irritation. Wet plastic is an uncomfortable thing to have next to your skin.

When your baby wears a JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper the wet-proof polyethylene backing doesn't touch the baby's skin.

No pins

We don't pretend to be the first company to make pinless diapers. But we think pinless diapers are the greatest thing since frost-free refrigerators. So we've put a pair of self-stick tabs on each JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper. You just peel off the backing and use the tabs to fasten the diaper firmly in place.

The new JOHNSON'S Disposable Diaper is all in one piece. You don't need plastic pants and you don't need pins.

No more holding the baby with one hand; the diaper with the other and pinning with the third.

Which size or thickness for your baby?

JOHNSON'S Disposable Diapers come in three variations.

There's Newborn for babies up to 12 pounds. Daytime for babies from 12 to 25 pounds. And Overnight with an extra-thick centre panel to take babies through the night and toddlers through the day.

Each package of JOHNSON'S Disposable Diapers is clearly labelled. To find the size or type you want, just check the box.

Thursday, July 25

Aries (March 21-April 19) In your dealings, you will be confronted by one who has more authority or a stronger position than you. Tactfully back off.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) It may prove wiser in the long run to call in experts to perform a service for you rather than try to do it yourself.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Don't buck the odds at this time. If something you are involved in has a poor chance of winning, drop it.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You are likely to open your purse a bit too wide and let most of your household budget escape in one big burst. If you do, you will regret it.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are a little too headstrong and unyielding, you will be hurting yourself more than anyone else. Loosen up a bit.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't buy anything sight unseen. If you are making a major purchase, examine the merchandise in person.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is not your day for club or organizational activities. Someone in the group is apt to rub you the wrong way.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A clever manoeuvre you have devised to further your aims will backfire if you put it to the test. Keep everything out in the open.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't try to sell others on an idea you have heard about. It may not work and could cause complications.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In your business dealings, it would be foolish to let your guard down. An unexpected condition will suddenly give your competitor the upper hand.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A few ill-chosen words may be all it takes to alienate an ally you're having. Be considerate of companions.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extra careful today if working with electrical tools or new gadgets that you are not familiar with.

Opening lead—10♦

By Oswald and James Jacoby

If you can keep your eyes off the East and West cards you will see that you are in the same spade game as yesterday with exactly the same cards and opening lead.

There is one great difference. You are playing in the World's championship against Belladonna and Garozzo of Italy, the best pair in the world.

You win the diamond lead, draw trumps, strip the hand of hearts, play a heart to the ace as yesterday and throw Garozzo in with a diamond.

He takes his two diamond tricks just as East presumably did and shifts to the six of clubs.

Against a good player, you would play low and make your contract if he has made the mistake of leading the six from 10-6-5 or jack-6-4. Against Garozzo this just hasn't happened. He would be sure to lead the eight from either of those holdings. Then what has he led from? He is Garozzo, but you are playing in the World's championship also and you see that he must have led from jack-6-4 six. You play your nine and makes the contract.

Why didn't Garozzo lead the 10? Because he was sure that you would recognize that East's card lead, play low and finesse against his jack on the next turn. Suppose his lead was top of nothing? In that case you were a dead bird in any case.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	2♣	Pass	2♥
Pass	4♠	Pass	7

♠AQJ65♥AQ5♦4♣AK83

What do you do now?

Avoid the Overtrick. You want to make some slam try but you cannot make both. Any spade and kings since obviously he doesn't have the ace of clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid five diamonds. Your partner comes out five hearts. What do you do now?

To Your Good Health

Post-cataract Procedure Varies

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you give some advice on after-care of a cataract operation? I find many elderly people who say their doctor told them nothing. Some have demanded faster which perhaps could have been avoided had they known what not to do.

I believe it takes six to eight weeks for an eye to heal. That is a lot of days. I would like to know how long before one can sleep on the operated side.

How long must one avoid bending or looking down as in washing dishes or ironing or cooking? How long to avoid lifting? Two months? Six? Eight? One lady said her doctor told her not to lift even a baby.

A housewife must, as soon as possible, resume her chores, and she should know what she should or should not do.—Mrs. W.C.B.

You are right that adequate instruction should be given for activity following cataract operation. Some give it; some don't. All should.

Now I'd like to give you a set of rules to follow not I can't; a rigid set of rules just won't fit everyone. It is best to base it on individual matter. The doctor is the only one who can judge how the healing is progressing.

The usual precaution is for the doctor to see the patient within four to six weeks after surgery, and that's the time for the patient to ask what he can do and if there is anything he shouldn't do.

These days restrictions soon after eye surgery are nowhere near as rigid as they used to be. The point is not bending or lifting down is, oddly enough, but there's a risk of bumping your head when you straighten up, and such a bump can be harmful in the early phases.

For sleeping, an eye shield is usually used to protect the eye from an accidental bump or from injury from your own hand while you are asleep.

The eye ordinarily is healed within considerably less than six weeks, but that varies from person to person, and the exact method of surgery can make a difference. So again I have to say that the surgeon is the one who has to decide when enough healing has occurred. Any rigid figure I might give you could be too long for some, too short for others.

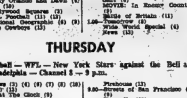
One item needs to be mentioned: a safety razor rather than an electric razor is preferred because hair stubble can be blown into the eye with the latter.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Your article about diabetes and athletes was very good. My brother, 19, has had diabetes since he was six. He was told he could do anything he wanted to as long as he followed the rules and took care of himself.

Since then he has participated in football, track, soccer, and has excelled in basketball and swimming.

If your column could reach just one child deterred and athletics by the thought that he could not participate because of a diabetic condition, you would be helping him more than a handicap.—Dee Lacky Jr.

One letter like yours can do more good than a month of columns by me. Thank you.



Dear Dr. Thosteson: My navel is running a little and it has a bad odor. This has been going on for about two weeks. Is this serious? Should I see a doctor?—Mrs. J.P.

In all likelihood an infection has developed there. Various causes are possible, but in any event yes, you should see a doctor. Perhaps more really is no way you can treat it successfully by yourself. It is not usually a serious condition, but it should be cleared up before it becomes one.

Tapes to Be P...

Disappointed Nixon Will Bow to Court

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Pledging to comply with the United States Supreme Court's Watergate tapes ruling "in all respects," President Nixon has ended weeks of uncertainty with the statement "I respect and accept the court's decision."

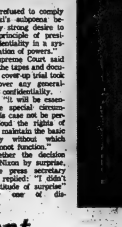
About eight hours after the eight-member court announced Wednesday its unanimous decision that Nixon must surrender 64 additional tapes and documents, the president issued a statement of acceptance through his chief Watergate defence lawyer, James St. Clair.

Drafted after lengthy conferences at Nixon's oceanside home here, the statement ended suspense heightened by weeks of refusal by presidential aides to say whether he would obey an adverse court ruling.

"While I am disappointed as the result, I respect and accept the court's decision, and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects," the president said.

Nixon had challenged in the courts a subpoena for the tapes and documents from special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who said they were needed for the cover-up trial of six former White House and campaign aides, scheduled for Sept. 9. The defendants include H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and John Mitchell.

Weeks may yet pass before the tapes and documents are made available to Jaworski. They must be screened for relevance by U.S. District Judge John Sirica.



In the past, tapes provided to Jaworski have been supplied to the House of Representatives judiciary committee for its impeachment inquiry. It was not immediately known whether the latest subpoenaed material would figure in congressional consideration of impeachment.

Nixon said in his statement that he had refused to comply with Jaworski's subpoena because of "my strong desire to protect the principle of presidential confidentiality in a system of separation of powers."

But the Supreme Court said the need for the tapes and documents in the cover-up trial took precedence over any generalized claim of confidentiality.

Nixon said "it will be essential that the special circumstances of this case not be permitted to cloud the rights of presidents to maintain the basic confidentiality without which the office cannot function."

Asked whether the decision had caught Nixon by surprise, White House press secretary Ron Ziegler replied: "I didn't detect an attitude of surprise but rather one of disappointment.

OTTAWA (CP) — An RCMP officer arriving for duty spotted a white shoe box in a tree planter used to decorate Bank Street. The officer carried the shoe and threw the cylinders into the street.

Cyprus Talks to Start

GENEVA (AP) — The foreign ministers of Britain, Greece and Turkey prepared to meet here tonight to begin international peace talks on Cyprus. James Callaghan of Britain, Turan Gunes of Turkey and George Mavros of the new Greek government are expected to meet for about three days.

Greek Prisoners Set Free

ATHENS (AP) — The new civilian government of Greece has freed all political prisoners and recognized Archbishop Makarios as president of Cyprus. But the new head of the Greek Cypriot regime on the island, President Glafcos Clerides, said he will not bend the office back in the archbishop.

One of Premier Constantine Caramanlis's first acts after ending a five-year cabinet Wednesday was to declare a general amnesty for all those jailed for political dissent during the seven years of military dictatorship.

Citizenship was restored to all who had been stripped of it, including actress Melina Mercouri, artist political leader Andreas Papandreou and composer Mikis Theodorakis. The new government emptied the Yiaros Island concentration camp and shut it down.

Theodorakis flew home from Paris, and said he believes the return of power of Caramanlis was a positive step. But he pointed out that "the political left is excluded" from the government.

The cabinet members are all centrists or rightists, and men of economic and bureaucratic expertise, indicating that Caramanlis plans a speedy assault on inflation and other economic woes.

Foreign Minister George Mavros, also deputy premier, announced the new regime's repudiation of the coup in Cyprus, which is generally believed to have been the work of the dictatorship. He said Greece "has accepted fully the United Nations Security Council decision on Cyprus ..."

"We, therefore, recognize President Makarios as the legal head of Cyprus."

But in Nicosia, the Cypriot capital, President Clerides said the people of Cyprus should decide the presidency, and he will hold an election "not later than within a few months."

Asked whether Makarios could run, he said: "In a free country, every citizen has the right to present himself for election." But he warned that "it would be a very unwise move for Makarios to come back under the present conditions."

Impeachment Appears Sure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Nixon's decision to turn over more Watergate tapes, a Democratic leader in the House of Representatives says only a miracle can save Nixon from impeachment and Republican leaders made no move to delay the impeachment proceedings.

The assessment about the need for a miracle came from Republican Thomas O'Neill (Dem. Mass.), the Democratic leader in the House who predicted the judiciary committee will recommend impeachment. O'Neill said House still votes impeachment by at least 60 votes.

"And it could well be that a trial wave would hit the House and he'd be thrown out by 300 votes," O'Neill said.

Vice-President Gerald Ford said he thinks Nixon's conciliatory action in releasing more tapes "is the right thing to do."

However, Ford conceded that the question of whether the House will vote impeachment "hasn't been answered since the time when Ford first predicted the House would reach impeachment.

Ford also urged Nixon to turn over to the impeachment inquiry all relevant parts of the tapes. The Supreme Court order requires the president to furnish tapes to the Watergate special prosecutor.

Several Republican members of the House judiciary committee spoke of the need to delay the impeachment inquiry in hopes of getting the new tapes. However, they made no formal move to win delay during the committee's opening session of public debate.

The initial reaction to Nixon's decision to comply was almost uniformly favorable, although there were reservations that the White House may take considerable time in preparing the tapes thus drawing out the Watergate saga.

Twenty-seven House of Representatives judiciary committee members are awaiting their turn to debate the impeachment question, although one Republican says a decision against President Nixon already is a foregone conclusion.

Today's session begins at 10 a.m.

The committee opened its debate Wednesday night and heard Representative Charles Sandman, (Rep., N.J.) say there are sufficient votes here for an impeachment resolution.

"Everyone knows that," he said. "There is no use kidding ourselves about it."

Sandman, who lined up against impeachment in the case of 11 committee members who are their views in a formal presentation of the proceedings.

Chairman Peter Rodino's schedule for the 38-member committee calls for considering several debate tonight and moving on to actual consideration of articles of impeachment Friday. That schedule suffered a setback Wednesday night when a bomb scare forced a 45-minute delay.

The threat, telephoned to the Capitol switchboard, forced Rodino (Dem. N.J.) to evacuate a packed room while police searched fruitlessly for a bomb. Later, after Rodino had recessed the proceedings for the night and the hearing room had almost emptied, a second bomb threat was received. Again nothing was found.

Ten Hostages Are Held By Convicts in Texas

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Armed convicts say they will kill the 10 hostages they are holding in the state prison library unless they are given automatic weapons, ammunition and bullet-proof vests.

Negotiations between the rebel convicts and prison authorities were broken off by the prisoners at about 1 a.m. today. They said they would start killing at 4 a.m. (EDT).

The hostages are seven women and three men, said Dr. Don Kirkpatrick, assistant director of the Texas department of corrections. One of the men is a guard and the other two are civilian teachers and librarians.

Kirkpatrick told reporters Wednesday night the apparent leader of the rebels, Fred Gomez Carrasco, has been provided six bullet-proof vests, three bullet-proof helmets and visors, three walkie-talkie radios, three M-16 automatic rifles, five magazines of ammunition, 180 rounds of shotgun shells and "suitable clothing for the three of us."

Kirkpatrick said Carrasco, sentenced to life for assault with attempt to murder a police officer at San Antonio, has threatened to kill the hostages if the demands were not met.

"Mr. Carrasco is not pushing us for any time deadline," Kirkpatrick said. "It is also interesting to note that there are no transportation demands."

He identified the three other convicts in the library as Robert Dominguez, serving a 15-year sentence from San Antonio for assault to murder; Ignacio Cuevas, a Mexican national serving a 46-year sentence for murder; and Ray Ramirez, serving a sentence for rape in Dallas.

Kirkpatrick said, however, that he does not believe Robinson is an active participant.

Prison authorities said Carrasco and his companions took control of the library about 1 p.m. Wednesday. Breathalyzer three hostages, officials said, they do not know where the convicts obtained the weapons. Outside correctional officials at the prison do not carry arms.

The convicts originally took 11 hostages, but one, Glasscock Johnson, 61, suffered an apparent heart attack about 7:30 p.m. and Carrasco freed him.

Johnson was reported in stable condition in hospital.

Asked by reporters Wednesday night if he believed Carrasco would carry out the threat to kill the hostages unless the rebels' demands were met, Kirkpatrick replied: "I shot people before."

Carrasco escaped from a Mexican prison at Guadalajara in late 1972 after his arrest in connection with the abduction of $30 million worth of heroin and cocaine. After his escape, several of his associates were found dead on both sides of the border.

Turks Promise to Avoid Force In Dealing With UN Soldiers

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — A threatened clash between Turkish and United Nations troops over Cyprus at Nicosia airport was averted today with a pledge from Turkey not to use force to try to eject the UN soldiers.

The promise was contained in a letter from Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who summoned the Security Council into an urgent late-night session to head off the threatened crisis.

The council met behind closed doors for about 90 minutes, including a recess while the Turkish UN representative, Osman Olcay, made contact with Ankara.

Waldheim had earlier telephoned Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit about the clash at the airport, taken over Tuesday by units of the 3,300-man UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

But the threat of a clash grew more menacing, and informed sources, prompting Waldheim to summon the council at short notice.

A UN spokesman said the Turkish letter "reaffirms the assurances given by the prime minister of Turkey to the secretary-general that the Turkish forces will fully respect the presence of UN forces at the Nicosia airport."

The Turkish pledge was without prejudice to that country's legal claims concerning the airport, a strategic landmark and site of the UN force's headquarters.

The runways and control tower were badly damaged in recent fighting between the Turkish army and the Cyprus National Guard.

The UN force at the airport includes units from Britain, Canada, and Austria.

UN sources said that Britain, which has its own bases on Cyprus, has offered the UN every facility to fly British members of the UN force from other parts of the island.

In remarks to reporters, Ormond Wilfred, Turkey's legal claims regarding the airport, but added that "it will not render any circumstances use force to have its views prevail."

He said that his foreign minister's pledge was only a confirmation of what Turkey had all along been saying.

The missions attributed to Turkey concerning the fate of the airport of Nicosia are, without foundation," he said.

Canadian troops played a major role in the takeover of the airport, which was a mess after the ceasefire quieted most of the fighting between Greek and Turkish adherents.

A number of airport shops had been looted and all the glass plate windows in the departure and arrival buildings had been broken, apparently by bomb blasts. Baggage lay strewn about the airport, just as travellers left it when they made their haste to flee the fighting.

"This is how we found the place," said Col. S. (Chip) Beattie of Ottawa, the deputy chief of staff of the UN forces in Cyprus. He is the officer directly charged with defending the airport.

The terminal was closed to air traffic during the fighting. It will be several weeks before it can be reopened.

Some of the runways were cratered by bombs, and a few planes sprayed with gunfire.

Day 21 at Quaker Oats

Labor Council Backs Strike

TRENTON — The Quinte District Labor Council has thrown its weight behind 185 striking workers at the Quaker Oats Co. pet division plant in Trenton, it was announced here Wednesday.

In a formal release, president Douglas Sword said the labor council is "in full support of the workers' stand for voluntary overtime, introduction of the cost-of-living allowance, and better vacation benefits."

Company officials could not be reached for comment.

In an interview Mr. Sword said a boycott of Quaker Oats products in support of workers is possible. But, he added, such action would be considered by the labor council only at the request of the striking local. District unions which form the council have a total membership of 7,000.

Company employees, members of Local P1715, Amalgamated Butcher Workers and Meat Cutters, are in the 21st day of the strike today.

Leo LeBlanc, local president, said determination among workers is strong and he does not foresee an immediate settlement. He said the company has not approached the union to restart negotiations since strike action was taken July 4.

"We're prepared to hold out until we get a settlement that we're satisfied with," Mr. LeBlanc said.

Still at issue is the company practice of scheduling overtime Saturdays. The union wants voluntary overtime beginning Friday night during the two-year life of the contract.

The last company offer allowing overtime after 4 p.m. Saturday was rejected by union members by a 25 per cent vote.

Mr. Sword claimed independent contractors are crossing union picket lines on Dufferin St. to work on company property.

"This is clearly a method of aggravating the strikers and in effect the contractor is a "strike breaker"," the labor council release said.

Only one company's trucks are being allowed through picket lines, said the union spokesman.

Mr. LeBlanc said Wednesday Continental Can Co. of Canada Ltd. — located behind Quaker Oats plant — is the one exemption.

"Under normal circumstances they run conveyors into the plant (Quaker Oats), but there are no contracts as well," he said.

"We have not interfered."

No other exemptions have been made, Mr. LeBlanc said. Independent contractors have been told by the company to cease passing through picket lines has been approved by the union, he claimed.

Yacht Club Popularity Grows

Ontario Sailoff for CFB

TRENTON — CFB Trenton Yacht Club popularity and ability to run major sailing competition has spread rapidly. This has prompted increasing requests for the club to hold regattas off Baker's Island in the Bay of Quinte.

"We don't have to beat out our own ton-loss," said club secretary-treasurer Maj. Jack McFadden. "The word has gotten around."

In evidence of that popularity, CFB Trenton Yacht Club will act as host to a second Canada Sailing Association provincial sailoff this weekend.

Competitors from nine areas across the province will participate in the under-14 and under-19 age groups. Recently, Baker's Island saw OSA-sanctioned competition in the under-18 age group as well as Olympic-class fireball sailing.

During this weekend's racing, a provincial champion will be sought in each age group. The sailors under 18 will compete in Olympic-class Albacores provided by the club. Needham dingies will be sailed by the second age group.

With some 50 volunteers working to organize the three-day event starting Friday few difficulties have been encountered. Only one has arisen that has taxed the time of club members.

Sailboats that will be used for the races were damaged by a squall that hit the Baker's Island moorings last Friday.

Club members and youngsters — "for the price of being school's best beer" working to repair the boats in time for the competition. However, it looks as if Baker will be the pitched, tillers replaced and boat hardware repaired in time.

All that remains is the racing, to take place between the Olympic-class events and the eight races planned in each age class. Essentially, explained Maj. McFadden, points are allotted inversely— the closer you are to the winner, the more points you accumulate, the higher your standing.

Each contestement will race in each of the eight dingies supplied by the club.

"By rotating them (the sailors), it equalizes the handicaps that the boats themselves represent," said Maj. McFadden.

Local Consumer Aid May Go Canada-wide

TRENTON — Dollars and Sense, a consumer aid booklet first produced by the Citizens Bureau in Belleville a year ago, is on the verge of cross-Canada distribution.

The third and latest edition, however, departs from the previous booklet-style formula.

Nick Mika, owner of Nick Mika Publishing Co. Ltd., said Wednesday his firm has published the consumer protection tips in a 56-page paperback form.

The books, part of an initial trial run of 1,000 copies, are currently available at Belleville bookstores and variety shops for $2.95.

Another 7,000 copies are planned sometime in autumn this year. These will be delivered across Canada.

The initial 1,000 copies distributed in the Belleville area are meant to gauge public reaction, Mr. Mika said.

The paperback edition is the second updated and revised version. Much source for consumers with various insurance, banking, buying, etc. problems.

Dollars and Sense was first released through the Citizens Bureau funded by federal government Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grants. It has been met enthusiastically across the country.

$306,000 Tender Wins Road Construction

TRENTON — Only Ontario Municipal Board approval is needed before Consecon-Ameliasburg Road construction can proceed that once approval is received work on West St. can begin within two weeks.

The lone tender received was opened two weeks ago.

In addition, Deputy Reeve Orbon Osborne from councillors chose the tender to award bid. A former engineer submitted a tender for $317,000 but Osborne considered the firm's 308-day completion schedule too long. Eavan pledged to complete work in 150 days.

Canning Plant Safe Smashed

CHERRY VALLEY — An undetermined amount of cash was stolen Wednesday night as a burglary at Hyatt Canning Factory here.

Entrance was gained the building by smashing a window, states the general manager, ransacked and a filing cabinet owned by the bank was smashed open, and the cash taken.

Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are investigating.

Education Protest "Aired"

QUEBEC (CP) — The Parti Quebecois took its filibuster and obstruction tactics to the national assembly Wednesday, urging about 1,000 demonstrators there to continue to fight against what they consider the "treason" of the Liberal government's official language bill.

Inside the assembly, the Liberals were preparing their motion that will impose an end to debate on the bill to make French the official language and probably pass the bill through by the middle of next week.

The demonstrators, brought in by bus from many regions of the province, chanted "shame," "treason" and other slogans against the Liberals and listened to speeches from the six PQ members of the assembly, union leaders and other nationalists during the three-hour long demonstration.

They cheered for Claude Charron, the PQ's official critic and pop idol of the nationalist movement, who denounced the Liberals as an "Anglicizing government".

Charron, director of Le Devoir and supported by the English.

The bill, Bill 22, will make French the official language, promote French as a working language and impose limits on the growth of the English school system in Quebec. The PQ opposes the bill because they say it creates a bilingual state that will lead to further assimilation of French-speaking Quebecers.

Mr. Charron, who was carried through the crowd on shoulders after his speech, attacked the government "as cowardly and afraid" for adjourning committee study of the bill Wednesday afternoon and not facing the crowd.

Town Rejects Increase Asked by Contractor

TRENTON — Town council here Wednesday rejected a request from Scaletta Sand and Gravel for a 26 per cent increase in price for gravel now pays the company for various grades of road under-surface and backfill.

In rejecting the offer, councillors agreed that if the action forces the company to pull out of contract commitments with the town, another source for gravel is found.

Council's response came after what was termed a request of "utmost urgency" by Vince Scaletta, head of gravel supplier.

In a letter, Mr. Scaletta said increases in royalties, cost of gravel crushing, higher gas prices and wages have forced him to ask for hikes in materials delivered to the town.

However, councillors felt an increase in prices would set precedent other contractors might follow to win contracts with the municipality.

Booking Came By Long, Long, Long-distance

MARMORA — Phoning ahead to make certain of motel reservations is not exactly new in this modern age. But the Belle Vista Motel here at least has one, a little different.

One day last week the motel received a long-distance call from a Mr. Edgar Ryan of Tall, reserving accommodation for herself and son.

The call had originated in Eldoret, 200 miles north of Nairobi in Kenya, East Africa.

Mrs. Du Toit was planning to come to Canada to renew old acquaintances and thought she should check first for a accommodation before commencing her 7,000 mile trip by air.

The call arrived at 4 p.m. in Marmora — 11 p.m. Kenya time — and took three hours to complete the connection.

Town Council Aids Relief

TRENTON — Town council will contribute $200 to the Grand Bluff Disaster Relief Fund to aid reconstruction of Kitchener - Waterloo area municipalities hit hard by spring flooding.

The decision to offer relief was reached during a special council meeting Wednesday.

Toronto Girl Mistaken For Hearst

TORONTO (CP) — Armed police in Oregon surrounded three Canadian travellers when one of them was mistaken for newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, it was reported in the home of the girl, said Wednesday.

She said her daughter Susan, 18, was reported by police as having a likeness to the kidnapped heiress when she stopped at a roadside restaurant in Oregon.

Mrs. Borisko said that on leaving the restaurant she and her daughter got out of the road by a police cruiser and immediately the officer ordered all occupants out with their hands up or they would shoot.

"They were all shook-up when it happened. They were terrified they were going to be shot but were relieved the police once their identification had been checked."

She said she learned of the incident when her daughter also phoned from San Francisco.

Susan, a Toronto ballet student, David Nadeau, 20, of North Pickering, left home June 6 for Canada where they were joined by Denise's brother, Paul, 21.

Charges Bring Day in Jail, Two Years Probation

TRENTON — Brian Cameron Speck, 19, of 55 Front St. was sentenced to one day in jail and placed on two years probation here Wednesday after pleading guilty to two counts of theft under $200 and possession of marijuana.

In ordering probation in provincial court, Judge T. Ingelig told Speck he must neither consume alcohol nor take drugs other than those prescribed by a doctor during probation.

The one-day jail term, suggested by defence lawyer Robert Temple, was pronounced after the court was told Speck had been in custody since June 24.

The court was told Mr. Speck had stolen a pair of $17 sunglasses June 14.

June 17, town police charged him with theft under $200 following an incident at Cedar Meadows Jewellers in which a three tenant was taken from a broken display window.

Crown Court Attorney John Wood told the court the accused appeared to be intoxicated by drugs at the time of the June 17 incident. Mr. Speck was then remanded Wednesday.

Christopher Howard Gosner of 39 Flint St., Trenton, and Duncan Farrell Brown, of 27 Millbrook St., Ottawa, are charged with break and enter with intent to commit an indictable offense.

Trenton Police Constable Harold Kastner testified before the court here Wednesday.

Groundhog, Car Driver Both Lucky

TWEED — A young Ottawa man, Christopher Lapp, 20, escaped injury early Wednesday when he swerved his car to miss a groundhog, lost control and ended up in a roadside bog after rolling his vehicle.

The accident happened on Highway 7 about four miles east of Marmora. Lapp was alone in his car at the time of the mishap which resulted in approximately $500 damage to his car. Provincial Constable Al Bocger investigated.

Tenants Under Gun

A lot has been said, particularly during the recent federal election campaign, concerning the plight of the poor home-buyer.

But what about the countless thousands who can't afford the $60,000 average price tag for a Toronto house? The Belleville figure for new homes hovers in the $40,000 range.

There are people in our society who just couldn't commit themselves to paying $100,000 or more in mortgage for the next 25 years for a roof over their head.

Among that number are the apartment dwellers who face a dilemma spotted by Belleville realtor Gerald Joyce.

"There's a terrible nothing on the market," Mr. Joyce notes, describing what he termed a "zero vacancy rate" in city rental accommodation.

Adjusting the problem has been a slowdown in city apartment construction. Figures reveal that 308 units went up in Belleville in 1972, less than half that number last year, and only ten in the first six months of 1974.

A factor, explains a city hall spokesman, is recent zoning legislation banning high-rise construction in the area. On that point at this city, Many of those restrictive bylaws came as a response to criticism from citizens' groups wishing to preserve the traditional nature of their neighborhoods.

With existing accommodation at a premium, tenants face the prospect of soaring rents.

Those who rent their dwellings deserve just as much attention from all levels of government as those who own their homes. One effort gets the impression that tenants are lobbied on an average-sized basis while pity governments, even though inflated land investments in recent years are as foolhardy as once-inflatable gold bullion.

The discrimination / problem / stems from the fact that homeowners earn the somewhat dubious privilege of paying municipal taxes, which apparently makes them all the more respectable.

In giving every apartment dwellers can still vote-which makes their plight of some concern to politicians.

City council exercised sound assessment of the accommodation problem last week by announcing Belleville's participation in a rent-subsidy scheme with the Ontario Housing Corporation.

Simply in principle to the successful Home Ownership Made Easy program, the new project will provide apartments and subsidize rents for "moderate-income" families and senior citizens.

In the future, this sort of geared-to-income program will need to be expanded. Because what family DOESN'T have a moderate income today?

An old guideline suggests that a working man spend no more than one week's salary on accommodation per month.

We suggest a great many can't afford to spend that much.

Bay Bridge Big Headache

One wonders if the Ministry of Transportation and Communications has ever thought of giving the Bay Bridge a month-by-month overhaul during the winter months.

Latest chapter in the bridge's continuing saga of breakdowns came Friday with the announcement that there is concern about vibrations that swing the old span for boat traffic.

So, until further notice, Bay of Quinte boaters will only get one chance for passage every three hours instead of the regular twice hourly.

If anyone has to be inconvenienced, perhaps it should be the pleasure-boating minority, instead of the motoring majority who have had their share of bottlenecks, delays, and detours.

Government officials seem to wait until the peak of tourist season to decide that the bridge needs some repairs.

There's nothing wrong with the old bridge a good dose of dynamite wouldn't cure. But with our luck, all the pieces would probably fall back into place!

Only Soviet Union Stands to Gain From Turmoil Shaking Cyprus

By ROD CURRIE
The CANADIAN PRESS

None of the principals involved in the Cyprus catastrophe seems to have much to gain in the long and tedious negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland.

As some commentators are already pointing out, only the Soviet Union may profit from the turmoil and bloodshed that has rocked the strategic Mediterranean island, stretching its wolves through the Atlantic alliance and beyond.

Aside from the pain and suffering of the Cypriot population, the ill-starred adventure has apparently left both the Greek and Turkish governments shaken, given NATO its most spectacular, rift in its 25-year history and quite possibly put an end to the careers of Archbishop Makarios and his unlikely successor, terrorist guerrilla leader Nicos Sampson.

The most devastating long-term result, however, is the revival of traditional hostilities between the Greek-Cypriot majority and the Turkish-Cypriot minority. Any peace plan must have as its main priority, observers suggest, a package aimed at restoring the relative calm between the two communities in the recent years leading up to the July 15 coup against Makarios.

Another side-effect is the damage to the British-United States relationship, which until Cyprus has flourished under the relatively new and certainly pro-American British Labor government. British observers of contemporary events are unanimously outspoken in their criticism of the Americans for not putting greater pressure on the Greek military regime in Athens to back down before it was too late.

The failure to offer any official criticism of Greece's philosophy, particularly in the case of the Greek-Cypriot officers serving in Cyprus lent support to reports from Washington that they were preparing to recognize the Sampson regime.

This served not only to embolden the Greek-Cypriot conservatives suggest, but to force the hand of the Turkish government.

The theory was that while the Americans held back-and the British and NATO leaders were not much more decisive-the Turks saw the new Cyprus regime falling the bold while all most certainly aiming the island toward union with Greece, to the despair of the Turkish minority.

The Soviet will-is too unsettled to permit thorough analysis, but some commentators agree that the Greek Cypriot coup could not soon be threatened by a challenge from the Communist right-wing elements in Athens.

On the Turkish side, the Atlantic alliance will have to overcome under heavy criticism at home for its failure to act in time, but not enough available might into the invasion operation to realize its

Threats Govern Canada

Richard Needham in
The Globe and Mail

Who governs Canada? When I started work as a newspaperman in Toronto some 6 years ago, you'd have been crazy not to grasp for asking the question. King George VI was in charge. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was in charge, Premier Howard Ferguson was in charge, the Mounties were in charge, and so on right down the line. Depression and unemployment, you bet still, as the R.M.W. puts it, peace, order and good government.

Things have changed since then. Reading the papers these days, I find that the real workers have assumed power in the country; the chaps in the railwaymen; or perhaps it is the airport firemen; or perhaps it's the dockworkers. Power, real power, has moved out of Parliament, out of the provincial and municipal debating chambers, into the hands of whatever organized group has the greatest ability to proceed to back up that grievance with force or the show of force, with violence or the threat of violence.

Bible Digest

by M. R. DEAN

"Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit." Psalms 51:12

Who hasn't longed for that same feeling? Who wishes he had when we first released our first grievance, and he yearned to back up that grievance with force or the show of force, with violence or the threat of violence.

When hasn't longed for that same feeling? Who wishes he had when we first released our first grievance, and he yearned to back up that grievance with force or the show of force, with violence or the threat of violence.

Carry Heavy Burden

Canadian Troops Win Glowing Praise

OTTAWA (CP) — Glowing praises for the work of Canadian troops on Cyprus came Wednesday from the Canadian ambassador in a cable to the external affairs department.

Thomas Paul Malone, ambassador to Israel as well as Cyprus, said in a telegram from Tel Aviv that the Canadians in the United Nations Cyprus force are bearing the heaviest burden of all UN troops.

"The number of casualties suffered by Canadians offers grim witness to their contribution," said the cable in reference to the 12 Canadians who have been reported wounded since Turks invaded the island.

"Canadian contingent headquarters in Wolseley barracks in Nicosia is across the street from Ledra Palace Hotel, storm center of fierce fighting.

"The courageous role played by Canadian contingent in assisting evacuation of civilians from Ledra Palace and from Nicosia will never be forgotten by Nicosia population.

"Contingency planning for Canadian contingent in Cyprus foresaw possibility of withdrawal to safe haven in event of major Greek, Turk hostilities, Commandant Col. Clay E. Bentia's decision to maintain Canadian contingent unit in Nicosia in across the street deeply crossfire situation to aid and protect civilians is the best tradition of Canadian armed forces.

"High respect already enjoyed by Canadian military in Cyprus is being enhanced by current developments."

An external affairs department spokesman released the cable, saying that Ambassador Malone evidently got his information from two Canadian consular officials sent to Cyprus to help civilians.

The cable was released shortly after a UN spokesman ended a deadly morning report-ers by saying it took just four shots by Canadian troops to produce a local ceasefire at Camp Kneazy on the outskirts of Nicosia Tuesday. The shots were fired as the Greek-Cypriot National Guard was advancing on the camp.

"The Canadians fired four shots. As a result, there was a ceasefire that lasted three hours. . . . I think they were so astonished that the Canadians would fire on them that they just quit."

Meanwhile, Defence Minister James Richardson told reporters that reports received from Canadian officials in Cyprus indicate the ceasefire is holding but there is a potential threat to the airport which is being held by 200 UN personnel including 100 Canadians.

There are about 488 Canadians, members of the Canadian Airborne Regiment, on Cyprus at present. Besides the 100 at the airport, the defence department said 100 are at Wolseley barracks, in the centre of town, another 20 at Kyrenborg 75 at the city's public works department, 15 at the Ledra Palace, 10 at an observation post called Scarfface and 85 at the Blue Beret UN camp.

Cyprus War Seen of Little Significance

OTTAWA (CP) Two weeks of war on Cyprus have meant tragedy for thousands on the island, but seem to carry little importance beyond that.

Diplomatic sources here suggested Wednesday that the war between Greek and Turkish forces in Cyprus has held virtually no danger of spreading from the Mediterranean island, and posed no peril to the British air base that constitutes NATO's presence there.

The possibility of a mainland border war between Greece and Turkey appears to have been minimized by the reinstallation of a civilian government in Athens.

But officials say that even a border war would have caused, at most, a political split within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, probably not military involvement.

In Cyprus itself, both Turkish and Greek sides are firm supporters of NATO, so the war offered little chance of a change in the balance of power in the western Mediterranean, sources said.

The prospect feared most in Ottawa and Washington and London was seen to be a head-to-head conflict.

But officials in the external affairs department offered two reasons why that was unlikely in the Cyprus case.

First, the Soviets are believed to have limited their objectives to maintaining a Cyprus government neutral in East-West disputes.

The Soviets supported Turkey only to help Cypriots loyal to exiled president Makarios regain control of the island, these sources say, and their interest in a split between two NATO members was not great enough to risk a global confrontatin.

Second, Washington and London were active in both Turkey and Greece to ensure the Cyprus conflict would not get out of hand.

Officials would not draw any connection between U.S. influence in Greek politics and the removal of the military government that apparently launched the overthrow of President Makarios last week. But they noted that State Secretary Henry Kissinger immediately voiced endorsement for the new civilian government in Athens.

At the same time, Britain has been troubled with helping to keep Turkish and Greek leaders out of a mainland war through negotiations in the three countries.

Age Lowered

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city police force has reduced its minimum age requirement to 19 from 21 to try to attract high school graduates as recruits. Chief Constable Don Winterton said the policy also aims at getting potentially good officers who, in the past, have been lost to the RCMP or private industry because of the age restriction.

Drug Plan For Aged May Fail

TORONTO (CP) — Although ministry of health officials say the Ontario government's free drug plan for 250,000 to 300,000 elderly, blind and disabled persons will begin without problems Sept. 1, one Toronto pharmacist says he is not convinced.

Larry Rosen, president of the Ontario Pharmacists Association (OPA) and owner of a Toronto pharmacy, said he expects some pharmacists will reject the plan although the association supports it in principle.

Mr. Rosen said some pharmacists oppose the plan because they say the prescription fee paid under it will not be as high as that under Parcost.

But Dr. Allen Dyer, director of drugs with the ministry, said the Parcost fee is the maximum allowed and "we are not going to offer the maximum to the pharmacists."

He said the Parcost maximum fee is $2.40 while the fee for the free plan will be about $2.

Mr. Rosen said the plan's requirement that doctors sign a prescription for each drug dispensed contradicts legislation allowing pharmacists to take the prescription from the doctor over the telephone and "could mean a delay in getting medication" to patients.

But Dr. Dyer said signed prescriptions are necessary to allow auditors to keep a check on the amount of Ontario patients unnecessarily using the free plan.

Wages of Sin Are Protected

COLOGNE (Reuter) — "Two hundred prostitutes were the only customers who escaped unscathed from last month's crash of West Germany's second-biggest private bank, Herstatt KG of Cologne.

While 67,000 other savers lost their money, the manager of the brothel which employs the girls said Wednesday he would refund the approximately 200,000 they had in the bank.

"We looked after their money and we chose the bank," said manager Rolf Schneider. "So it's really only fair that we should pay the damage."

Leger Better

OTTAWA (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener is said by aides to be making a steady recovery from his stroke six weeks ago, but he hasn't yet indicated whether he will remain in office indefinitely.

"He will make the decision himself," said an aide.

Meanwhile, the Governor-General is taking daily walks around the grounds of Rideau Hall, his official residence, and he is receiving therapy for a partial paralysis of his left arm. His speech, affected by the June 8 stroke, is gradually improving under therapy, the aide said.

"He is making good progress. It's slow but there is improvement every day."

Profits Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil companies in the United States continued to report sharp profit gains Wednesday for the second quarter and first six months of 1974, largely on the strength of higher crude oil prices.

Mobil Oil Corp., the third-largest U.S. oil company, and Continental Oil Corp., eighth largest, both announced earnings for the second quarter nearly double those posted in the like period of 1973. Phillips Petroleum, 10th in size, announced a 167-per-cent rise in the second quarter, while 18th-ranked Occidental Petroleum Corp.'s profits leaped more than 300 per cent over the 1973 period.

Good Crop

VINELAND, Ont. (CP) — An estimated 72,000 tons of grapes will be harvested in the Niagara peninsula this year, officials of the Ontario Grape Growers' Marketing Board said Wednesday.

They said that if would be an average-size crop of good quality compared to the smaller, superior-quality crop harvested in 1973.

Pay Raised

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Brown, Metropolitan Toronto Police Association president, announced a 16-per-cent-pay increase for the force's 5,000 civilian workers Wednesday.

Health Minister Likes Hospital Fee System

TORONTO (CP) — The idea of requiring health insurance premiums with a daily fee for hospital patients "appeals to me as a right-wing person," Frank Miller, provincial health minister, told officials at a meeting of the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario Wednesday.

One official suggested to Mr. Miller that even $18 a day would bring in about $1 million a year at a medium-sized hospital.

Mr. Miller replied that there are many in society who do not pay premiums now and would not be able to pay the $19 a day, such as persons over 65 years old, those on welfare and those with low incomes.

The government collects about $500-million to $525-million a year in premiums, which is only 32 per cent of hospital costs, the minister said.

However, he added that the federal government through cost-sharing contributes another 27 per cent.

Mr. Miller said the idea of a service fee has been considered, but experts have told the government "it would not have a deterrent effect on hospital use.

Reach Accord

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Registered nurses at the Sarnia General Hospital reached an agreement Wednesday with hospital officials, offering them wage increases similar to those of a province-wide agreement settled by the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) last week.

Escapists

TIMMINS (CP) — Indians use alcohol and drugs to escape almost everyday pressures, frustration and hopelessness, Andrew Rickard of Timmins told the Chiefs Conference of Grand Council Treasty Number Nine on Wednesday.

More than 30 chiefs and representatives of Indian people in Northern Ontario attended the conference, which continues to Friday.

180 Die

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — At least 180 people have died of meningitis in the last two weeks in Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest city, the Jornal do Brasil newspaper reported Wednesday. Federal health authorities are maintaining silence on the epidemic but the medical newspapers report new outbreaks of the disease all over the country.

Pat Hearst Not Around

Hoax Leads to Police Raid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman telephoned police and gave them false information which they said led them to believe she might have been fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst. She said she wanted to surrender. The hoax touched off some frantic activity Wednesday night.

More than 100 police surrounded an apartment building, blocked off streets and negotiated by telephone with the hoaxer, who said she wanted to surrender to "Uncle George."

A police spokesman said police raided an apartment but found only a cat, a 22-calibre rifle and an automatic shotgun. Three persons who were in the apartment, including a 13-year-old girl who heard a strong resemblance to Miss Hearst, said they were grabbed by detectives and questioned.

Police said the guns had a legitimate owner with no connection to the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), which kidnapped Miss Hearst at Berkeley, Calif., Feb. 4.

Three persons called police between 4 and 4:30 p.m., and said a woman fitting the description of Miss Hearst, who after her abduction renounced her family and said she was joining her terrorist captors, was seen entering an apartment building.

Police said the three callers said the woman who entered is 5-foot-4 and followed later by a black man carrying a rifle.

Police went to the building, made contact with the manager and showed her photographs of Miss Hearst and SLA members William and Emily Harris, being sought on a variety of state and federal charges. The manager, Marcella Tyler, identified Miss Hearst and Mrs. Harris as being seen in the building, police said.

A woman who said she was a hoax telephoned police later said she wanted to give herself up to "Uncle George." Miss Hearst's cousin, George Hearst Jr., is publisher of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. Her uncle, George Hearst Sr., died in 1972.

Karen Cuneo, 19, her husband, Edward, 22, and 13-year-old Kelly Ravenscroft, were last playing cards in the apartment that police believed was occupied by the newspaper heiress.

"Someone came and began banging on the door," said Cuneo. "It was a neighbor who said to lock the doors and windows because Patty Hearst was in the complex.

"I ran out of the apartment and a couple of detectives grabbed us and said they wanted to talk to us. They took us down the street and into the manager's apartment for questioning and then let us go."

The guns were owned by a friend, Chris Garza, 20, who also lived in the apartment, said Mrs. Cuneo. "They're hunting rifles," she said.

Arsonists Are Jailed

CORNWALL (CP) — Two men charged June 21 with setting fire to Nativity Roman Catholic Church were sentenced in provincial court Wednesday to three years each in penitentiary.

Thomas Fraser, 18, and Andre Boileau, 20, of Cornwall, pleaded guilty to arson July 3, in the June 20 fire which resulted in $136,000 damage to the 93-year-old church.

Fraser, who also pleaded guilty to break, enter and theft July 3, was given a one-year concurrent sentence for stealing three business calculator machines valued at more than $500 from an auction barn in Charlottenburg Township May 15.

Kerr's Son Is Fined For Pot

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Lawrence Kerr, 19, son of Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr, was fined $100 in provincial court Wednesday after pleading guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana.

Kerr was arrested July 3 along with two other youths, William Williamson and Pat Hardgreaves, following a check of a car by a police officer.

The judge dismissed the charges against Williamson and Hardgreaves.

Second Hunger Striker Ends In Hospital

OTTAWA (CP) — Andriy Sverniuk was admitted to Ottawa Civic Hospital Wednesday, ending his part in a hunger strike he and four other Ukrainian Canadians began outside the Soviet embassy July 15.

The Toronto lawyer was the second of the group to go to hospital. Mykola Bichniak, a 45-year-old armless painter, ended his fast Sunday.

Andriy Sanders, Mykola Lysowesky and Lada Hlivny, all of Toronto, continued their vigil to bring the release of dissident Ukrainian writer Valentyn Moroz.

Not a doctor for the group said blood tests taken Tuesday show the health of all the strikers to be in danger.

Dr. John Weyrzykowski said he hopes to start the strikers eating again, by today to prevent them from permanent liver and kidney damage.

Moroz began a hunger strike in Vladimir prison near Moscow July 1. He was jailed in June 1970 for protesting Russian cultural discrimination of the Ukraine.

Phone in Outhouse May Get Little Use

HAMILTON (CP) — Bill Johnstone recently won a long battle with the telephone company—but it may not do him much good.

In his fight to get a listing in the Binbrook, Ont., exchange—which places him in the Hamilton calling area—Mr. Johnstone had to resort to having his phone installed in an outhouse, several hundred yards from his home.

Although his house is in the Cayuga exchange area, the bank of his property is in the Binbrook area.

After a long and fruitless attempt to have the rules bent to give him a Binbrook number, he finally came up with the solution—have the telephone installed in the outhouse—in the Binbrook territory.

Before Bell Canada installed the telephone, however, they extracted a promise that Mr. Johnstone wouldn't ask for an in-house extension.

Robert Davey, Bell's Hamilton district manager, didn't know that the telephone was in an outhouse, but suggested that Mr. Johnstone perhaps wanted a place where he could sit down after his long struggle with the company.

The only problem is, the Johnstones can't hear the telephone ring over the distance between the back door and the outhouse.

Asked whether he planned to set up regular listening sessions in the outhouse or arrange for calls at specific times, Mr. Johnstone shrugged:

"We never thought about that yet."

Lots of Pot, No Heroin

Everybody Waiting for Narcs to Call

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Niagara regional police decided to go ahead with their controversial drug raid at the Landmark Motel in Port Erie last May even though several of their undercover agents apparently were recognized by customers earlier in the evening, a royal commission was told Wednesday.

"I formed the opinion that we missed," Constable Steven MacLeod told Judge John Pringle of Norfolk County.

Constable MacLeod, who participated in the raid at 10:30 p.m. EDT Saturday, May 11, also overheard something said by an employee who police testified earlier was suspected of being a drug pusher.

"Close, but so far away," the policeman quoted the...film, as saying.

Wednesday, Constable Robert Sauder, one of the undercover agents who checked out the hotel on at least three occasions, testified that during the visit he and his partner were given a free beer.

At first he said he thought they had blown their cover, but his partner reassured him that this was not necessarily the case.

During his surveillances, the constable testified he saw people openly smoking marijuana in the lounge area.

But none of the policemen who have testified since the hearing began last Monday could find any evidence that heroin was being pushed or used on the premises—information that had come to them from informants as long ago as last fall.

Constable Sauder testified that he saw one person, who he suspected was a heroin addict, go over and speak to one of the undercover agents, an RCMP officer, and he realized that the agent and two companions had been "burned."

Shirred is a police expression for what happens when an undercover agent has been recognized by someone he has under surveillance.)

"This male person began speaking with different groups of patrons around the lounge," Constable Sauder said. "Stared at the bar, I heard the word cops'."

Later, the officer testified he was standing at the bar when a person passing by turned his head to look at him and said: "I wonder if there are any more (expletive deleted) narcs in here."

The policeman said he couldn't understand why he had picked on him.

"I concluded at this time at 10:45 p.m. that I was burned."

The policeman then left the lounge, sought out Sgt. Andre Millet-Jaure, in command of the raid, and told him to move in.

The raid was 10 minutes ahead of schedule.

Another patron asked what had taken us so long to arrive. He indicated they knew earlier we were coming," Constable Richard Rathwen said.

Constable Michael Riddle also got into a conversation with a patron during the search.

"I knew you were coming, I know that guy at the bar with a beard—he's a narc," the constable quoted the patron as saying.

He said he thought the man might have been referring to Constable Sauder and that when Constable Sauder finished—him later he said he knew him and knew something was up.

"Most of them (patrons) Millet-Jaure, it was quite comical. None of them seemed too upset." Constable Riddle said of the search.

Man Loses Foot

NEWCASTLE, Ont. (CP) — A Brockville man lost his right foot in a boating mishap Wednesday in Newcastle harbor, about 18 miles east of Oshawa. Police said Phillip Jackson, 41, was attempting to jump from one boat to another when the boats came together and cut off his right leg above the ankle.

Feminist Bookmobile Comes to Belleville

Wages for housework.

If the sign doesn't catch your eye, you can hardly miss the bus Cora, the feminist bookmobile, a shiny red school bus brought to Belleville Wednesday by Judy Quinlan, Ellen Labyris and Boo Watson.

The three are part of a project to disseminate women's liberation information and literature to areas outside Ontario's major cities.

The project, an outgrowth of Women's Place, and a feminist bookstore was initiated by Ellen and Judy who bought and refurbished the school bus. An Opportunities for Youth grant allowed them to get extra help from four additional women. Boo travels with them and three others look after routing and correspondence.

Since May the three have travelled to 29 Ontario centres where they offer books for sale, hand out free literature and just make contact.

"We wanted to provide access to information already available in large centres and we wanted to provide a meeting point for local women," Ellen says.

"Most women come in and say 'I'm the only one in this town who believes in liberation.' and then we say 'Well would you like to meet your neighbour who thinks she's the only one?'" Ellen says.

Judy adds that they feel they've left behind core groups of women who will meet together.

Reception has been good wherever they have travelled, but curiously, the smaller the place, the better the reception.

"There's less enthusiasm in a bigger place," Judy says. "I guess because it takes longer for people to find out we're here.

While women who visit are usually interested in women's liberation, men often just walk by "bursting into hysterical laughter" Ellen says. "Boys are openly hostile."

One, she adds, "is just the more sophisticated form of the other."

The women believe that everyone has some concept of women's liberation and that it's usually based on an erroneous image produced by mass media.

The media has promoted the image of women who want everything that men have or women who want to be men, Judy says, but "that's nonsense" because it implies that women have nothing to start with, nothing of their own.

People visit saying they believe in equal pay for equal work or they believe in other basic freedoms and rights but they don't believe in women's liberation.

"We tell them that's just what it is."

Across Ontario they have found that women are interested in information about day care and non-sexist children's books.

In figure, the women add, since women are always thinking of others before themselves.

Ellen, who works for the Femalist newspaper, The Other Woman, says she often hears from women who are "afraid for contact."

But when they ask for the newspaper, they want it sent in a plain brown wrapper.

Social pressure to conform, to be the same, is incredible in a small town, the women add.

They tell the story of a middle-aged woman in Midland who stood at the open door of the bus, never entering and never speaking to the women but who blocked the entrance to most.

"She just told them 'you can't come in; this is for us'."

Judy Quinlan, Ellen Labyris and Boo Watson with Cora

'No Discrimination' In Computer World

VICTORIA (CP) — The new access is in the world of computers, offer a new role to women without prejudices based on sex, says an economist.

Eileen Caner, director of economic policies in the British Columbia industrial, trade and commerce department, predicted it will be easier for Canadian women to become managers, scientists and economists, but they still have some way to go and the mathematical element in the established, older areas of professional skills.

"Where they do have equal pressures, they do have equal pay.

Born in Derbyshire, Mrs. Caner came to Canada in 1952. She worked at the University of Toronto computer centre, the B.C. department of education and the mathematical department of the University of Victoria before moving to her London School of Economics was divided evenly between men and women.

Widow Wants Name Change

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a widow and have a son who is a minor. I tried to change my name officially but I would have to change his name too, according to the Vital Statistics office.

I have been keeping company with a wonderful man and now we are sharing our home as man and wife. He has been like a father to my family. We cannot marry because he is already married. I'm free for a divorce we are afraid she will want alimony — she has made him pay so dearly in the past.

I start a new job soon. Would it be legal for me to use his surname? If we can change everything over he will name me his sole beneficiary in his will and life insurance. A Faithful Reader.

Dear Faithful Reader: You can use his surname for most purposes, but when it comes to inheriting from his insurance policies, or when you apply for a passport, difficulties arise — most of which can be overcome by having affidavits sworn in regard to the nature of your relationship over the years.

Consult a lawyer or county court judge for more complete information.

Dear Doris: I have been going out with a guy for the past few months, but wish to stop. I don't really enjoy being with him.

But how do I do it? I don't want to hurt his feelings. — Wanting Out

Dear Wanting Out: No need to hurt his feelings. Just tell him that you feel you would like to date a variety of people, including him, and hope he will understand if you start accepting other dates. Of course, remind him tactfully that you hope he will do the same thing.

Putting it in paper helps — in a letter to Doris, a Canadian journalist with a master's degree in social work — in care of this newspaper.

DEDICATED TO FISHING

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Emma Hudson, 82, is the grand old angler of this island resort. Known as Nanny to those who fish in surrounding Gulf Coast waters, Mrs. Hudson rows her yellow 12-foot boat an estimated three miles on each fishing excursion. When fishing is good she keeps at it alone for six or seven hours a day.

Holiday Horrors —And Their Cure

Summertime, and the living is easy...

Except for the campers and cottagers who disappear to their everlasting sorrow, that life outside the city can be fraught with perils they never suspected.

Maybe it's a pessimistic approach, expecting the worst, but "just in case" here are a few precautions to observe, and remedies to employ.

Know what poison ivy looks like. It's likely to grow in any woods, you wonder through an early go-barefoot.

A climbing or trailing plant, poison ivy can be distinguished by the three leaflets that make up each leaf. This time of year the leaves are bright, glossy green, and they'll become brightly colored in the fall. The flowers are in small, whitish-green clusters, and the berries, which begin appearing in August, are also small and dull white in color.

If you come in contact with the ivy and are sensitive to the irritating oil it contains, you'll break out in a blistering rash. Wash the area well with soap and water and avoid spreading the rash by scratching. (Like a paper towel that can be discarded after use. A wash cloth may retain some of the poison.)

Remove clothes and wash them, apart from other laundry, before wearing again.

If you are treating someone else for poison ivy rash, wear rubber gloves while washing, or while applying soothing dressings.

A paste of starch and water will relieve itching, and tepid sprinkles taken every four hours will bring some comfort for the victim.

As the irritant is soluble in both fats and alcohols, avoid salves and disinfectants which will only spread the rash.

* * *

Cures for the pain of wasp and bee stings are numerous, ranging from a poultice made of mud (soothing perhaps, but hardly sanitary) to soaking in epsom salts or application of sour onion to draw out the poison.

A paste made of water and meat tenderizer works wonders to relieve pain.

If you can see it, remove the sting and apply hydrogen peroxide. If not, don't further irritate the afflicted area by digging for it.

If you or the stung person show symptoms of faintness or shortness of breath, get to a hospital as quickly as possible. More people die from insect bites every year than from snake bites. If shock, and resulting unconsciousness are not dealt with properly, the results are fatal.

Anyone who thinks he is particularly susceptible to bee stings should check with his doctor for advice and possible antidotes before travelling far from home.

A sensible approach to being out in the sun can prevent bad burns, but if worst comes to worst, and sore and swollen eyes come up as the sun goes down, here's what to do:

A bath is the soothing and healing, because the tannic acid promotes tan.

Apply one of the specially-prepared anesthetic creams that will cool the fiery feeling. Don't use a jelly preparation that will harden to form a crust, or possibly stick to both skin and clothing.

If blisters appear, from sunburn or other sunshine activity, don't break them. The best sterile dressing is the cover of skin nature puts over.

If the blister spills on its own, trim the dead skin away with scissors, apply a little antibiotic cream, and keep the area clean and covered until new skin forms.

Removal of fish hooks is a skill that every member of a fishing family should learn.

If a hook gets imbedded in a person's skin beyond the barb, it is best to push it all the way through, rather than attempt to pull it out. The shank is cut off and the hook pulled back from where it came.

Boating sea-sickness is an illness that particularly afflicts children, but can bring down sturdy adults too.

The usual remedy for dizziness — fixing your eyes on a definite stable object — is of considerable help in allaying the symptoms of nausea and headache.

The sea-sick person should be located in some area where he can lean back with his head in a cool, airy spot, and on no bag should he put his head or forehead or the back of his neck.

A small first-aid kit is taken by every sensible family on vacations. It includes only basic supplies such as adhesive, gauze or facial tissues, bandage strips, scissors, aspirin, an all-purpose antiseptic cream or spray, and soap.

Also to be added are antihistamine tablets which will allow relief to victims of insect stings and poison ivy. But don't overdose your kit for serious emergencies. Anything that looks like trouble should send you to the nearest doctor or hospital emergency department.

People and Events

A bus tour of the Tyendinaga Reserve was enjoyed by members of the Quinte Women's Institute under the direction of convener Helen Spencer. Mohawk Hill Museum and All Saints Church were on the tour as well as the Council House.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hermary, Ardoch, recently celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Pauline Sootsbin and Laurel Simmons received honors in Grade 10 piano examinations held by the Western Ontario Conservatory of Music. Sister Mary Rosaria passed in grade nine history.

Ann Landers

Trans, Pan and Omni— Ann's Sick of Sex

Dear Ann Landers: May I respond to the homosexual's letter in which he suggests there is something missing—or even psychic—about heterosexuality?

I have always believed that the purpose of life is not sex, but rather, the process of which it is a part of. Since homosexuality cannot produce life, it seems to me sterile and nature. It reduces sex to an act of pleasure, with no chance of becoming anything higher.

Since no civilization with pleasure as its goal can survive, I think homosexuality cannot be a part of The Grand Design. I view it as an expression of confusion and frustration when homosexuality appears to be increasing. Perhaps I'm just talking about me because I haven't tried it "that way." Censored, please.—S.F.

Dear S.F.: I, for one, am fed up to the teeth with articles on sexual confusion, sterility, transsexual, homosexual and bisexual confessions sticking out me from the pages of every newspaper and magazine I pick up these days. I'm beginning to feel like a closet heterosexual.

I respect the right of the aforementioned groups to do their own thing, but now it appears that they want to bring the label "normal" or "chicken" on those of us who aren't homosexual. I am protesting in order that we might "speak intelligently" on the subject.

The next person who says to me, "If you haven't tried it, don't knock it," is going to get a knock in the head with the heaviest object I can lay my hands on.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old school student with a sort of rosseau up. I know darn well I've never had a straight-out thing. I've made of me, so you? Because I don't have to look you in the eye. Also, you won't look it around because you don't care, and you don't know anyone who does.

Well, you please tell me how a 15-year-old kid can get professional help without telling his parents? They'll want to know what's bugging me and I'm not about to play true confession. Besides, getting professional help is an admission that you're weak, or nutty, or that you can't handle your own life.

If I were a child, would I just wait up to the hard deal and say, "I'm wigged out!" Please tell me, Ann, how do I know I need professional help, and then tell me how do I go about finding it?—H.E.M.

Dear H.E.: Seeking professional help is not an admission that you are nuts. On the contrary. The real dingbats think they are fine and dandy, and everybody else is nuts.

There are various degrees of mental illness and a person needn't be a basket case before he decides he should talk things over with a professional. If you are very much unloved, terribly nobody likes you, you feel like a nut, then anxiety is the time to get it. Simply tell your parents you are depressed, and need outside help. No other details are necessary. There's not a person in this world who couldn't profit from counselling at some time during his life.

Peas Aplenty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's pea crop this year is estimated to be the largest since 1966, according more for consumer shelves, says the agriculture department. The harvest of green peas is expected to be 356,230 tons, a 13-per-cent increase over last year's figure and nine per cent more than the 1973 crop.

Optician As Technician

I overheard a conversation at Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E., the other day. A lady came in and it was obvious that she was confused about the functions of those people who work with eyes and glasses. Owner Mr. Brisebois explained: "I'm a so-called optician and I can't sell you a thing. I'm a technician who examines eyes and can perform eye surgery. An optometrist is not a medical doctor, but can examine eyes, prescribe and dispense glasses. Now you know. Anything else you want to know about glasses, call 962-2511.

Real Estate Personality

Aylmer Marsden works for Good Riddle Real Estate, 117 North Front St. He's been there for two years. What makes him of particular value to his company is his graduation from the two-year Assessment, Appraisal and Real Estate program of Loyalist College. Not all real estate salesmen are also appraisers. Aylmer thinks he can also be of special service to this area because of his former Air Force career. He realizes the problems Canadian forces personnel have finding a suitable place to live. For help with this problem or any other in real estate, call 968-6671.

Extra Room in the House

I'll bet about right now, you're wishing you had another room in your house to accommodate those summer guests you're delighted to have. But then, I didn't think your sister would bring the neighbor children too, did you? You can't build an extra room, but you can have an extra bed that's not an extra room, and you can buy it day from Wrays Home Furnishers, 2666 Front St. Their selection of sofa beds is impressive and because of their buying power, can't help but be priced right. A couple of brand names such as Simmons and Kroehler, in a variety of durable fabrics, are available. Delivery can usually be arranged in the highest season of the world. There are 39 inch and 54 inch sizes. Get ready for guests, even the unexpected ones, at Wrays.

Small Car Specialists

You don't have to be a Datsun owner to take advantage of the range of parts and service possibilities at Datsun of the Sales, 162 North Front St. All small cars are their babies and they'll give your car royal treatment — even if it isn't a Datsun. And if you are a Datsun owner, you'll be glad to know that they stock covers, parts, including body parts. If the work doesn't have to wait for the parts. All "pars" of the service at Yake's, 962-1949.

Water Refiner Happenings

When you phone 962-4586 to have an Aquathin water refiner installed in your home, what happens? One of the Kitchen Kraft people will come to your home to see what you have and what's needed. The hardening components in water are calcium and magnesium, and there's a recommended amount per gallon in your water governs the operating balance of your refiner. Then once a piece of equipment has been chosen a house is fitted to the inside of which these components were exercised, taking much like coffee or carpet. A water softener can probably dissolve such obstructions in your pipes as well as giving you soft, soft water.

Neighborly Niceness

You can tell a lot about the customers of Stacey Inn, 265 Dundas St. E., by talking to the staff. Take Mrs. Whitney for instance. Mr. Whitney describes his store as the "neighborhood convenience" and that's what you have in mind when you go in. And "at it", refers to buying groceries, bread from and cigarettes, greeting cards and gifts and even your clothing items. Al doesn't deliver as a rule, but if you're a senior citizen, he's a neighbor and delivers. Just call him at 962-2121.

A Chilling Note

But a good one even in the middle of July. If you're going to have outdoor entertaining, cocktail or your family, now is the time to buy advice from's Sports owner, Bob Blakely. Most of the things now in the store will be on sale if you don't think hockey equipment manufacturers are having shortages, but Bob and his staff have a head start. If you're eager to fortify at your house this winter, you'd better go and see Bob now at 46 South Front St.

Decorating Basics

Paul Bernard isn't just an interior designer; he's also a teacher and head of Environmental Design in the Extension Department at Loyalist College. And some of the things he tells his students are good to know for those who are considering making changes should keep in mind. For example, color. Color is derived from the light that falls on walls, windows, ceiling, floor as well as the furniture. Color needn't mean a total change, but a range of colors for the whole room family such as cream, beige, chocolate and charcoal, using the contrast as your decorating theme. For help with paint decorating, call Bernard Interiors, 613 Campbell St., 962-9776.

Sewing Service

The people at the Quinte Sewing Centre in the Mall aren't satisfied just to sell you a sewing machine; they want you to learn how to use it properly. Mrs. Ellis has been involved with this company for nine years, not knowing how to sew at a machine properly. She is also responsible for the brief sewing and a common sense of fashion to would be designers. Drop in and see Mrs. Ellis with all your sewing purchases and the advice of Mrs. Ellis is always available for any sewing or knitting problem. Just call or visit her at the Quinte Sewing Centre, 968-1366.

Ideas With Glass

At Belleview Glass and Mirror, 264 Pinnacle St., they do about 50 sash and screen door repairs a day. And they know how. But if you have an idea for a glass table, you can make your idea a reality by talking to Bob McGhee. He also designs his own glass tables, so if you're looking for something unique, he can help you there too. Can you imagine what material your table is made of. It should be protected by a glass top, although. And one of the people at Belleview Glass will be glad to take measurements for you. Just call 962-5732.

An English Touch

The new Henry VIII room at the Belvedere Hotel, 260 Front St., has an interesting decor. There are large coats of arms in recessed, lighted areas and floor paintings by local artist representing old English scenes. And of course, like in any English style pub, there is the hearth. And you can get a "hot plate" from noon to 2 p.m. for $1.25. That's the new Henry VIII room at the Belvedere Hotel. It's only been opened a few months. Go down and see what's new.

Travel Trends

The energy crisis may have restricted the travel plans of some would be European vacationers, but it hasn't kept people at home, according to Tony Watton of Davison and Davison Travel, 151 Front St. "Still increased air travel, charter fares and the dollar devaluation have discouraged some people," says Tony. But people are still travelling, and more where? Hawaii, the Yukon and down to the Islands. There are special week-end Island vacations which are popular for their offerings and their prices. Call 962-3466, and get going!

Missile Base Radar Reports 'Ghost Ships'

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (Reuter) — Experts at a missile base here say they are puzzled about strange "ghost ships" picked up by powerful radar scanners in the Pacific during a tracking exercise last year.

There has been little official comment on what the scientists found. But Major Dallas van Hoose, the army's base spokesman, confirmed that "some unexplained aerial phenomena" were observed last August.

Scientists, many of whom are reluctant to be named in television interviews because of their public scepticism concerning unidentified flying objects, say privately they have been unable to find an explanation for the "ghost ships."

"We have never seen anything precisely like this before," said one ballistic missile defence expert who works for an army agency here and is familiar with the advanced radar used to test missiles and warheads.

Huntsville hosts the army's ballistic missile defence systems command, which analyses the results of missile test in the Kwajalein Atoll region of the Marshall Island Trust Territory held by the United States.

Last August, the air force launched a Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) from Vandenburg Air Force Base aimed for the Kwajalein missile range, used by the army, air force and navy.

When the ICBM was screaming toward the Pacific test site, they also were tracking an unidentified flying object near the ICBMs nose cone.

It began its descent on a normal ballistic trajectory, scientists said.

The nose cone had separated from the third stage of the missile and was entering the atmosphere at 22,000 feet a second.

Radar scanners at Kwajalein and Meck Islands were tracking the nose cone routinely.

At about 400,000 feet, the radar experts in the Pacific found they also were tracking an unidentified flying object next to the ICBMs nose cone.

Radar picked up an inverted saucer-shaped object to the right and above the descending nose cone and watched it cross the warhead's trajectory to a point which was below and to the left of it before the phantom disappeared.

The ghost ship was described as being 10 feet high and 40 feet long.

So far, none of the experts believe the ghost ship was a natural phenomenon caused by freak weather conditions, or echoes commonly seen on radar screens.

Want to Ruin Farmers? Listen to Editors

WINNIPEG (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan Wednesday attacked "big city press" editorial writers and said he can add them to a list of agriculture problem-solvers that includes economists who weird and wonderful ideas and eat a vine on how farmers think and operate.

"If you want a short course on how to ruin Canada's agriculture industry and how to put every farmer into bankruptcy, then pick up any dozen of the editorials that have appeared in the big city papers about food prices over the past two weeks," he said.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the youth convention of the National Farmers Union, the minister said:

"I think a bunch of these editorial writers must have been working on the conservative platform for the last election. And you remember where it said their (Conservative) price freeze would end up—in the narrow pits."

Miller Will Discuss Hospitals With Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller said Wednesday he will discuss the financial positions of the province's hospitals with Premier William Davis.

The health minister made no further comment after a meeting with officials of the Ontario Hospital Association.

The association is concerned about health ministry budget restrictions when hospitals are faced with wage and operation cost increases.

Clark Wright, executive director of the Hospital Council of Metropolitan Toronto, has predicted that recent salary agreements may cost Ontario hospitals between one million and $600 million. Wages represent 75 t o 80 per cent of a hospital's operating budget.

Agriculture Ministers Wary of Big Farms

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's agricultural ministers of agriculture expressed concern Wednesday about the possible long-term effects of unrestricted growth in the size of farm enterprises.

The ministers also said they are worried about the amount of land held by persons interested in controlling farm land for reasons other than making a living from farming.

A statement issued at the end of the first day of the meeting of ministers and their deputies said it was decided that the question of agriculture in any deliberations on how to ratify Canada's constitution should be considered.

Ratify Convention

KINGSTON (CP) — Registered nurses at Kingston General Hospital ratified Tuesday night an 18-month contract recently reached on a provincial basis that will raise salaries by up to 39 per cent. The contract was negotiated by the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario with the administrators of 39 hospitals in the province, including the one in Kingston. It raises starting salaries to 1900 a month from about $825, retroactive to Jan. 1, and to $945 by next April 1.

Hydro Has Made No Study Of Impact of Rate Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro has not studied the inflationary impact of a proposed 1975 wholesale rate increase of 15 per cent on Ontario and Canada as a whole, Hydro Chairman George Gathercole said Wednesday.

Testifying as an Ontario Energy Board hearing into the proposed rate increase, Mr. Gathercole said that although the corporation had not specifically studied the inflationary impact, "it is self-evident that the increases will contribute to the rise in the consumer price index and the cost of living."

Cross-examined by Alan Schwartz, counsel for the Consumers Association of Canada, Mr. Gathercole also said there had been no studies done on the inflationary impact of different cost allocations among the corporation's three classes of customers—the municipalities, large industries and rural users.

When Mr. Schwartz asked why the matter had not been studied in depth, Mr. Gathercole said he assumed the lawyer was suggesting that power-intensive industries should be paying more.

But Hydro was proposing 18 to 17 per cent increases for its industrial customers compared with an over-all average of 15.3 per cent, Mr. Gathercole said.

Asked whether he thought Hydro had a responsibility to help in the fight against inflation, Mr. Gathercole said he believed inflation might be aggravated if the corporation curbed its planned rate of expansion.

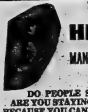
Nixon Didn't Want Shultz To Be 'Sort of Candy Ass'

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Dean says President Nixon told him in 1972 that George Shultz has not made treasury secretary "to be some sort of candy ass" and would have to help get tax audits on Senator George McGovern's campaign contributors.

Dean's testimony, released today by the House of representatives judiciary committee, shows the former White House counsel also said Nixon did not order an alleged $75,000 hush-money payment, but "the president felt it was desirable."

Dean testified July 11 that Nixon made the comment about Shultz when Dean reported to the president Sept. 15, 1972, that the then Internal-Revenue Service commissioner, Johnnie Walters, had refused Dean's request to audit a list of then Democratic presidential candidate McGovern's contributors.

"He (Nixon) said something to the effect, well, if Shultz thinks he's been put over there to be some sort of candy ass, he is mistaken, and if you have got any problems, you just come tell me and I will get it straightened out," Dean quoted the president.



Shultz had become head of the treasury department, which also includes IRS, three months earlier, June 13.

Dean said that when he went back to IRS with Nixon's backing, Walters still refused to audit the McGovern contributors. Dean said he did not know whether Nixon told Shultz to have the audits made.

On the alleged hush money, Dean testified he did not feel after the now-famous March 21, 1973, meeting that Nixon had told him to arrange the $75,000 payment—but that Nixon felt it was desirable to pay the money.

Pool Will Aid Hydro Save Many Kilowatts

TORONTO (CP) — A water heat the size of 80 home swimming pools will save Ontario Hydro an estimated 3½ million kilowatt hours of its own electricity a year.

Waste heat from office lighting, air conditioning chillers and the body heat of office workers will be directed to the tank, stored and directed. In the summer, the heat will warm the chilling will be done at night when Hydro has an abundance of generating capacity with nothing to do.

Developer Gerhard Moog, the builder, says his Canada Square Corp. will absorb "substantially over" $1 million on the extra costs of developing the water tank.

Canada Square architect Kenneth Cooper said there are still bugs to be worked out and the computer system is not done yet. The computer will do the real tuning of for making it 35 per cent efficient or 95 per cent efficient, he said.

So far, Hydro is enthusiastic. "One of the obvious things everyone's known about for a long time is the waste heat from both lights and human bodies in buildings," said Assistant General Manager, H. J. Stanes. "Now, we'll use it."

Costs $20 Million Annually To Control Grain Quality

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Grain Commission spends $20 million annually on a monitoring system designed to maintain quality control of grains.

The system extends from the country elevator to the hold of ocean-going vessels. Grain is weighed and inspected, graded, cleaned and treated with the aim of selling it on the world market to the maximum benefit of Canadian producers.

The commission's quality control begins before a farmer seeds his crop.

Extensive tests of quality of new varieties of spring wheat, durum wheat and malting barley developed by plant breeders are conducted by the commission research staff.

It also decides how 5,000 to 6,000 new varieties would be judged in the grading system and whether a new cross would qualify for top grade or feed grade on the basis of kernel characteristics.

The inspection division is responsible for setting and maintaining grades and standards and does so by sampling each year's crop to make sure grade requirements such as basket weight, purity of variety and cleanliness are maintained.

Grain may be inspected as many as five times as it moves through the grain-handling system. It first is inspected when the farmer delivers it to the country elevator for grade and dockage (weed content). If there is any disagreement between the agent and the farmer the grain may be inspected again by a commission official.

When the grain is shipped, a sample of the carlot is sent to either Winnipeg or Calgary to be graded and tested for protein for blending information at the terminal.

En route to the terminal, the grain may be inspected and graded at major centres, but the first official grade is determined when the car is unloaded at the terminal elevator.

If the grain company is not satisfied, it can appeal through as many as four inspections.

In 1971-72, of 472,831 carlots shipped, 24,714 were reinspected, of which 22,991 where left unchanged.

When the grain is loaded on the ship it is again sampled and inspected before a final certificate is issued.

The inspection methods still remain basically visual. C. W. Hammond, director of the inspection division, said visual judgment is not only the easiest but the most efficient and quickest method.

That, however, may change. While mechanical and chemical testing requires more time as it becomes more complex, the inspection division now is studying a rapid protein analysis method. This will provide accurate protein tests on unload samples in the terminal elevator and is based on infra-red reflectance, requiring two seconds for each sample.

This system will be able to analyse more samples in a year at one-third of the present cost.

While the inspection division has a number of other major duties, it is the inspection and grading of grain that dominates.

And, says Mr. Hammond, if it were not for the division, Canada would have to use an entirely different system to market its grain, possibly by taking samples.

Canada now is the only country which can sell grain over the final certificate without any qualification other than its grade.

Fire-weakened St. Michael's Restoration Cost Is $152,000

B elleville's oldest Catholic congregation has moved to perpetuate one of the city's most imposing and lingering landmarks.

Wracked for more than a century, St. Michael's church with its soaring tower and spire, is in need of restoration.

Cause of the cause is built into the history of the church. which left it a shell in the early 1800s, weakened the cement masonry binding the solid, limestone structure.

Over the years this caused the tower to shift. The movement was imperceptible, but sufficient in recent years to warrant supporting reconstruction — or removal.

The proportions of the dignified edifice — the spire touches 150 feet — makes restoration a major and expensive project.

Msgr. J. P. Sullivan, parish priest, says cost of restoring the tower and rebinding the rest of the structure with modern, long-lasting techniques, is estimated at $152,000.

By contrast, when the church was first built in 1904, total construction costs were $80,000.

Discussion in whether the steeple should be removed and replaced with a free-standing tower went on for a year, says Msgr. Sullivan.

But sentiment and community pride apparently settled the choice.

"The people regard it as a landmark and didn't want to see it removed. A majority of parishioners wanted it restored," said the parish priest.

The church is the last of several built for the St. Michael's congregation founded in 1824. The building on the Church St. hillside site, remained distinctive and dominant on the cityscape, despite modern expansion and highrise architecture.

The original structure, begun in 1890 was gutted by fire in 1904 and the shell rebuilt almost immediately to its present commanding design.

Evidences of the 69-year-old fire were uncovered this week as restoration crews found charred planking imbedded in the stones as they stripped the interior of its spire.

But the ultimate effects of be 1904 blaze could have been worse, says Eric Jonas, foreman directing restoration for Mid Air Construction of Toronto, which won the work contract.

The fire, apparently, was allowed to burn itself out. Had water been poured on the blaze the result could have cracked the stones of the entire structure. Eventually this might have meant building a new church, said Mr. Jonas.

Restoration of the church will reach about halfway up the tower. The whole project will take about three months, estimates the foreman.

New techniques include cleaning out the old cement binding with air tool under high pressure, then bleeding new cement into the crevices.

In the tower a new cement wall and floors reinforced with steel also will be built. Later, the exterior of St. Michael's will be cleaned by sandblasting.

Mr. Jonas is tackling the task with relish since he admits to being a firm believer in restoration of buildings with long community history.

A native of Essen, Germany, he has been working on restoration projects for 15 years.

"This is a beautiful church, in my opinion — and you haven't got too many left like it," he says. "Now, it's only in the smaller towns you mostly find them."

Raising the Dust

Its dusty work in tower of St. Michael's as cement is chipped and pressured from between stones before new binding is blasted in. Work crew of Toronto contractor includes Mike Trahan, Ray Halpin.

Fire Relic

A fire in 1904 gutted St. Michael's and current reconstruction work has uncovered reminders of the blaze. Eric Jonas, project foreman, examines charred planking found in walls of church tower.

Team Checking Car Fitness In Operation at Fairgrounds

There are fewer cars that don't meet official mechanical fitness tests on Belleville streets this week.

The annual safety check run by a mobile unit from the Ontario transportation ministry, is back in town testing scores of vehicles daily.

Rud in co-operation with city police, the check has lifted taxi cabs, police cruisers and private vehicles whose owners readily voluntarily take advantage of the free mechanical fitness test.

But for a handful it's been compulsory. These are the drivers operating vehicles police have spotted and teh may not match official safety standards.

The tests to date, have confirmed some of the suspicions.

After three days of testing at the Quinte Exhibition Grounds about 39 cars have been deemed unfit. The vehicles are impounded, the license plates removed and filed away with the ministry.

The owners must have the vehicles towed away.

To get the cars mobile again they must make good all repairs specified by ministry examiners and obtain a licensed mechanic's certificate.

After that, they can apply for a free set of plates, explains Constable Jack O'Donnell, who is liaison city police officer with the ministry team.

Some 75-100 cars have been run through the testing lanes daily since Monday, he says.

Thursday, provincial police cruisers were scheduled for testing while the check ends early Friday.

The End - - for Now

Cars deemed unsafe in transportation ministry check are taken off road - - - until owner has necessary repairs made. - - Summer ministry employee Lael Perks, 19, Ajax, removes licence plate on the spot, at Quinte Exhibition Grounds.

Child's Abilities Given Full Rein

A child accomplishes 90 per cent of his lifetime learning between the ages of 3 and 5.

To capitalize on this fact, Belleville Family Y has been running an experimental summer program for youngsters from 4 to 7, with activities designed to tap the abilities of every child.

Called movement, and exploration, the program develops co-ordination, endurance, balance, agility, strength and creativity. The children are offered a wide variety of activities so that no facet of their developmengt is overlooked. Last period of the day is spent in the pool, where the timid learn to overcome their fear of the water and the adventurous learn to swim.

Crafts are part of the program, used to develop fine muscle and hand and eye coordination. The youngsters are taken to fields around the Y to give them a chance to explore their environment and satisfy their sense of wonderment.

Susan Brodie is in charge of the program, with three counsellors working with her. About 22 children are registered in the program.

The Y is running six one-week courses this summer, with a provincial sports and recreation grant. The classes begin at 9.30 every morning and last until 3.30 p.m. Cost is $12 a week for a child and $10 for each additional child in a family.

ALEX PEARSE

City Man Plays Lead In Play

A young Belleville actor is playing his first, leading role with a professional company as Victor in Noel Coward's Private Lives.

Alec Pearse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pearse of 13 Woodland Acres, has been an apprentice at Huron Country Playhouse in Grand Bend. Last week he played Frank, the elderly housman in the Huron Country Playhouse production of Bridge Deal.

In both of his first major roles, Alec played men much older than his 23-years. While living here, he played Preacher Hagler in Dark of the Moon in 1969 and Mak in The Melancholy in 1970 at The Fireside Playhouse.

Alec attended Moira Secondary School and went on to Loyalist College in communications arts. He later attended Ryerson Polytechnical Institute to study theatre arts.

Plays Start Tonight

Tonight at 8:30 the curtain goes up for the first of three productions by Theatre August.

Four one-act plays form the basis of the productions to be presented at the Pinnacle Playhouse tonight, Friday night and Saturday night.

The plays are: Death Knocks by Woody Allen, Sez, Odd Case and a Coffin, by Chris Johnson, Chekhov's Jubilee; and an original play written by the cast called Smokey the Bear Sutra.

The presentation is produced by John McNair.

Testing, Testing

Automobile testing is a day-long job at Quinte Exhibition Grounds all this week as transportation ministry mobile unit makes annual safety-check visit to Belleville. Robert Palmer, transportation team member from Oshawa, runs headlight test equipment.

Test Check Turns Up Fugitive

The annual safety check being run in Belleville this week by the Ontario transportation ministry, has had some unexpected results for police.

Because of the availability of the test, police have been extra vigilant about cars in suspicious mechanical condition.

After an officer stopped one automobile near the Belleville General Hospital, he also became suspicious of the driver.

A check showed the man was wanted in Toronto for burglary, say police. Donald E. Forget, 30, RR 2 Phelpston, Ont. was turned over the Toronto detectives.

Since they had the car anyway, police decided to run it through the safety check at Quinte Exhibition Grounds. It was judged mechanically unfit and impounded.

It could be an embarrassing complication for the owner, admit police. They say the car was stolen.

Public School Broken Into

Hillcrest School was entered Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, but it has not been determined if anything was taken. Entry to the school was gained by breaking two plateglass windows on the south side of the building and prying open a screen. The supply room was ransacked and the recreational supply box broken into. City police are still investigating.

A Towering Assignment

Tower and spire of St. Michael's church has long been a Belleville landmark. Now reconstruction is underway to stabilize structure which soars 150 feet and after more than a half-century still remains a dominant feature of city skyline.

Earnings on One Hand, Losses on the Other

The city of Belleville will reap an unexpected bonus from short-term investments as the result of soaring interest rates during the past few months.

City Treasurer Frank Morrell said today that the municipality in 1974 will have earned close to $150,000 on its short-term investments by the end of the year.

By way of comparison, interest earnings for budget purposes this year were estimated at $80,000.

"So far this year we have earned almost $75,000" said the treasurer. "It will look great in the current budget."

The bulk of the money the city has out in short-term investments was received from the June 30 tax instalment collections — approximately $1 million.

Of this the city has advanced about one half million dollars to the county school board against future board requisitions. By agreement with the city the school board pays the municipality the prime bank rate of 12.5 per cent.

Also, the city has another half million in term deposits with interest rates varying from 10.25 per cent to 10.75 per cent, and also has short-term investment with Ontario Hydro returning about 10¾ per cent.

But it is not a completely one-way street.

Although the city is receiving a bonus return on surplus current funds, at the same time it is costing the municipality more money to finance its capital works program. Bank borrowing for capital projects now costs the city 11.5 per cent prime rate.

"It works both ways," said the city treasurer in commenting on the high interest rates.

The city is receiving an unexpected interest boom on any surplus funds but is paying an even higher rate for capital borrowing.

"Actually we are losing money — its always that way."

Two Dead

"LONDON, Ont., (CP) — The bodies of a man and a woman were found in a car early Wednesday last east of here.

Provincial police said a preliminary investigation indicated a murder-suicide.

Dead are Carol Stelnbeck, 24, and Peter Freeman, both believed to be from the London area.

A police source said a stabbing and carbon-monoxide poisoning were involved in the deaths.

Argonauts Face Only Two Problems Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts embark on their 1974 Eastern Football Conference schedule tonight with two major problems.

One drawback is the lack of a proven quarterback. The other lies in the fact that the opposition is Ottawa Rough Riders, Canadian Football League defending champions.

Holdover Mike Rae will start at quarterback against the Rough Riders, with Jim Lindsey in back-up role. Lindsey previously played for Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference.

MIKE RAE

Rae, who was second-stringer to Joe Theismann last season, prefers to stay in the pocket, but says this year he'll do some running.

"Coach John Rauch likes me to run, so whenever it seems like the best thing to do I'll do it."

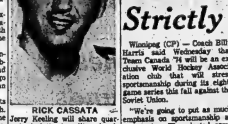
Toronto will have 17 newcomers while Ottawa has only three new faces.

Among the newcomers to the Argos is linebacker Sam Cvijanovich, in the middle with George Anderson, former B.C. Lion, and Dick Konopka flanking him.

Cvijanovich was a final cut from San Francisco 49ers in 1972, and had planned to stay at the National Football League last season with Houston Oilers.

However, while playing rugger at California Lotheran in the off season he tore the ligaments in a leg.

Considering his rugby experience and leg injury, Cvijanovich elected to try for a berth in the CFL, rather than the World Football League.



"The WFL is a new organization and I'm not an established player. So if I had bad luck I don't think I could go from the WFL to the Canadian league."

"The Canadian game suits my style," said Cvijanovich. "The big surprise has been the calibre of running backs here, like Ed Shuttleworth and Doyle Orange.

The addition of Shuttleworth and Orange is expected to give the Argonauts a formidable running game. Emory Blake, a newcomer, will be in the mix with Eric Allen as wide receiver, Mike Eben as flanker and Pete Muller as tight end.

The Riders will have just one new face in the defensive front four, the best in Canada last year. He is Carl Taylor from Memphis State, who will take Tom Lapuka's spot at tackle.

On offence, Rick Cassata and

RICK CASSATA

Jerry Keeling will share quarterback duties in calling signals for such team-mates as Jim Evenson, Art Green, Hugh Oldham and Rhone Nixon.

Two Flyers To Meet King

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billie Jean King, star of Philadelphia Freedoms of World Team Tennis, will play two members of Philadelphia Flyers, the National Hockey League Stanley Cup champions, next Tuesday.

Last fall, Ms. King carried the banner of women's tennis when she beat self-proclaimed hustler Bobby Riggs in the highly-publicized battle-of-the-sexes match. But Tuesday, the player-coach of the Freedoms will be looking only for an increased gate when she takes on Flyers' centre Rick MacLeish and winger Gary Dornhoefer.

It may work. A lengthy line formed at the Spectrum ticket window after the match was announced. The Flyers' darlings of the city since they won the Stanley Cup, are a magic name here. They drew 14,500 persons to Veterans Stadium for a charity softball game Tuesday night.

MacLeish claimed his team would win.

"There's two of us," MacLeish reasoned simply.

Dornhoefer, however, was more realistic.

"I sure don't expect to win," he said, adding that Billie Jean should play with one hand tied behind her back.

BOYCOTT SOUGHT

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Union workers throughout Ohio were asked Wednesday to boycott Saturday's Football Hall of Fame game in an effort to aid the striking National Football League Players Association.

The request came from the United Auto Workers Community Action Program Council in Ohio.

'Ordinary' Superstars Lead Als' Opening Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence said of Montreal's two pass interwins championships, says coach Marv Levy of Montreal Alouettes, but it doesn't help to have one or two "ordinary" superstars.

"Our defence played a super game," Levy told reporters following the Alouettes' 35-13 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the opening game of the Eastern Football Conference Wednesday night.

But the game also showed that second-year quarterback Jimmy Jones is a team leader, he said.

The former University of Southern California star teamed with "ordinary" superstar Johnny Rodgers as an electrifying first-quarter 70-yard touchdown, one of five passes caught by Rodgers for a total of 138 yards.

"Our execution on defence forced them into errors," Levy said.

Keon Stays in Toronto

Team Canada '74 To Be Strictly WHA Based

Winnipeg (CP) — Coach Billy Harris said Wednesday that Team Canada '74 will be an exclusive World Hockey Association club that will stress sportsmanship during its eight-game series this fall against the Soviet Union.

"We're going to put as much emphasis on sportsmanship as winning. We selected some guys with class and maturity."

Harris, named coach of the year in the WHA last season while directing Toronto Toros, said there won't be many young players on the team "because I don't think it will take real mature men to play the Europeans."

The full Team Canada roster will be announced July 31 in Toronto, but Harris said there will be no National Hockey League players on the team.

"Dave Keon gave it a lot of serious thought, but he was the only one who did," Harris said. "His first responsibility, however, is to Toronto Maple Leafs and our final game in Prague would be too near the NHL opening.

"Besides, Dave and I agreed that one man alone should not stop out. He would be isolating himself too much."

Harris said he personally wanted Keon, Henri Richard of Montreal and Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers because they did not have the opportunity to play in 1972."

However, he and assistant coach Boby Hull both confirmed that while at least four WHLers — including Bruce Brimsek, Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito—said they would play, "they decided, or someone decided for them, that they wouldn't play."

Harris, former coach of the Swedish national team, said an "ice training" program has been set up for the 25 players with seven alternates to follow during the month of August.

"But three-quarters of the players I've talked to are already on some sort of program. They've done things . . . this summer that they've never done before. I'm extremely confident the guys will be ready to stage Sept. 1."

The full training camp opens in Edmonton and Harris said he will have his lines and defensive pairings ready for the first day "so the guys will have 16 days to get used to playing with each other."

Harris plans to use six defencemen and four lines starting with the opening game Sept. 17 in Quebec City.

"I believe it's possible to contain the Russian forwards for 60 minutes, but what we want to do is develop a sound system of defence in our end of the rink.

Team Canada '72 made a mistake when they tried to overpower the Russians from the start . . . you simply can't overpower them."

Harris will be assisted by Hull and Chicago Cougars' playing coach Pat Stapleton—both of whom will play—and Lars Eric Sjoberg, one of Europe's top defencemen until he left Sweden this spring to join Winnipeg.

Stapleton will definitely play the four games in Canada, Harris said.

TEAM CHANGES NAME

MEMPHIS (AP) — The Memphis team in the American Basketball Association now will be called the Sounds; owner Mike Storen said Wednesday. The team was known as the Tams for the last two seasons when it was owned by Charles Finley.

Two Flyers To Meet King

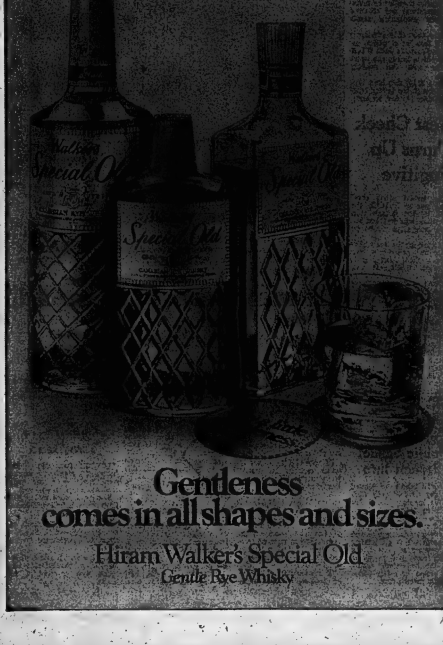
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Billie Jean King, star of Philadelphia Freedoms of World Team Tennis, will play two members of Philadelphia Flyers, the National Hockey League Stanley Cup champions, next Tuesday.

Last fall, Ms. King carried the banner of women's tennis when she beat self-proclaimed hustler Bobby Riggs in the highly-publicized battle-of-the-sexes match. But Tuesday, the player-coach of the Freedoms will be looking only for an increased gate when she takes on Flyers' centre Rick MacLeish and winger Gary Dornhoefer.

It may work. A lengthy line formed at the Spectrum ticket window after the match was announced. The Flyers' darlings of the city since they won the Stanley Cup, are a magic name here. They drew 14,500 persons to Veterans Stadium for a charity softball game Tuesday night.

MacLeish claimed his team would win.

"There's two of us," MacLeish reasoned simply.



Dornhoefer, however, was more realistic.

"I sure don't expect to win," he said, adding that Billie Jean should play with one hand tied behind her back.

Simpsons Pick Up Fifth

Simpsons —Sears picked up their fifth win of the season by Belleville and District Ladies Softball League play Wednesday night as they managed a 17-11 win over Quinte Antenna, in a game played at the Airport.

Simpsons collected 20 hits to the Antenna's 23, with pitcher Joanne Darvin leading the way with a home run and three singles. Brenda Wood had a pair of doubles and a single, with Genevieve Coughlin striking a home run and a double. Lynn Wood and Deb Barnes each had a four bagger and single, with Debbie Johnson collecting two singles. Geri Dorlaw had a double, with Bernice Ryan rounding out the attack with a base blow.

Heather Maracle had a home run, two doubles, and a single to lead the Quinte attack, with Audrey Cassibo striking a home run and two doubles. Sharon Lemmins had a pair of doubles and four singles in at strips to the plate, with Carol Merrill adding two doubles and two singles. Nora Flieger had a double and two singles, while Debbie Wood had three base hits, Liz Reid had earlier, with Linda Forster rounding out the attack with one single.

Joanne Gravin went the distance for Simpsons — Sears, allowing all 23 hits. She fanned two, but walked none.

Nora Flieger started for the Antenna crew, lasting four innings. She gave up 8 runs on 12 hits, striking out five and walking the same total. Liz Reid came on in relief, allowing six runs on six hits. She let three Simpsons' batters wriching their strikes, while walking the same total.

Vitalios' Three Paces Olympics

Playing only his third game as a forward, Petros Vitalios scored three goals for the Golden Mile Junior Olympics last night, as his team whitewashed Belleville United 8-0.

Vitalios scored the winners' third, fourth, and eighth goals, and, along with two each by Darie Danna and one by Brian Stephenson, rolled up the impressive score. The Olympics were simply too fast for the well-outplayed United.

Stephenson scored the first, and winning marker, with only eight minutes elapsed in the game, scoring on a re-bound after a shot by Vitalios. Danna made it 2-0 with a goal after taking a pass from Robbie Foster.

Vitalios then took over with a goal after sustained pressure by the Juniors, going on to score another in leading the romp.

Robbie Foster played an excellent game for the Juniors, as did Lawless, who picked up three assists.

Goalkeeper Warren Rushlow, although not facing many shots, picked up his third shutout in as many starts, in readiness for the Olympics. Robin Ryan in the United cage put up an admirable effort, although not getting much support from his mates.

Whitney Insurance of Trenton picked up a valuable point in Upper Canada play, one that tied them for the league lead, with Cobourg Tony's.

Parsons opened the scoring at the 18 minute point of the first half, with a goal by Ralph Kolkers. After a corner kick, a scramble in front of the Whitney net saw defender Harry Tiers, in attempting to clear the ball, put it right on Kolkers' foot. Kolkers made no mistake in driving a shot home.

Henry Somerveld tied the game for Whitney's, also at the 18 minute mark, but in the second half, after heading in a pass from Len Tait.

Whitney backs Rob Arsenault, Terry Blight, and Lemmers all played a strong game, stopping many attacks, especially by Parsons' Mark Motica, who played a good game from his centre forward spot.

Parsons Billy Lucas and Reid Mallory played well in their defensive positions for Parsons.

King Named, But Aaron Would Have Managed Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Clyde King was named Wednesday to manage the faltering Atlanta Braves, but Henry Aaron's rejection that he would have taken the job if asked turned a routine announcement into a simmering controversy.

Aaron, the 40-year-old all-time baseball home-run king who had said he never wanted to manage, changed his stand Tuesday night at the all-star game in Pittsburgh.

"If the Braves offered me the job . . ." said Aaron. "I'd feel compelled to take it simply because there are no black managers in the major leagues.

"I have said previously that I wasn't interested in managing the Braves or any other team. But since my name was injected into the conversation by (Atlanta) vice-president Eddie Robinson, I've changed my mind."

Robinson, who expressed surprise at Aaron's statement, said:

"In all of our talks with Hank, he has said that he wanted a front office job after he retired and not a position on the field. I don't think there's anything to straighten out. I'll talk to Henry about it."

Meanwhile, King, a special assistant to Robinson for the last two years and a former manager with San Francisco Giants, was named interim manager. He had been the leading candidate since Eddie Mathews was fired Sunday.

"I certainly don't expect any problem with Hank," said King, 48, after Robinson read a prepared statement, naming King to head the Braves. Contract terms were not revealed.

"I have gotten to know Hank very well and know that Hank Aaron would not do anything to harm the Atlanta Braves.

King was dismissed as manager of San Francisco Giants early in the 1970 season. He had previously coached and managed in the minors after pitching for Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn Dodgers from 1944-53, compiling a 22-23 record, mainly as a reliever.

Robinson, who stressed that King was taking over only for the remainder of the year, said King possibly would be rehired for next year if the Braves showed improvement.

He also left the door open for Aaron, saying that if a change in managers had to be made next year, "Aaron would be considered."

Georgian Bay Reports To Fishing Reputation

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Georgian Bay, once known for its trophy-size lake trout, may be regaining its former appeal with Ontario's anglers if a Kitchener man's prize catch is any indication.

The ministry of natural resources reported today that the 20-pound lake trout bore only one very old scar from the lamprey eel—the snake-like fish that nearly annihilated the species a couple of decades ago.

Last week's catch is evidence that the lamprey-control program being conducted by the federal department of the environment is working.

Lake perch and bass continued to provide northern Ontario fishermen with their best catches with lakes Huron, Simcoe and the eastern portion of Lake Erie all reporting good to very good conditions.

Northern Ontario anglers had good success with lake trout and northern pike. The Terrace Bay district of Lake Superior reported good to excellent catches of both species.

Ministry reports by district:

Charlton-Perch good in both the St. Clair River and the southern portion of Lake Huron. Pickerel fair to good in Lake St. Clair.

Simcoe—Smallmouth bass and perch good near Long Bay Point in Lake Erie.

Brockville—All species reported only fair in all districts with lake trout the best bet, particularly in Charleston Lake.

Lake Simcoe—Bass reported consistently good with lake trout and perch good. Pickerel and whitefish only fair.

Wrayton—Fishing upstream to the Maitland River continues to produce good catches of bass with crayfish and worms the preferred baits. An oil spill downstream at Goderich continues to stall most bass activity, last weekend.

Perry Sound—In addition to the success with trout in Georgian Bay, still Lake produced a 15-pound pickerel plus a few of medium size. Pike continue to supply action where they can be found.

Bracebridge—Bass generally good throughout the district with pickerel fair in Muskoka and Armour lakes. Rainbow and lake trout generally poor.

Pembroke—Pike fair to good in the Ottawa River and tributaries. Pickerel fair in the Madawaska River and Golden and Round Lakes. Lake trout good in Kamaniskeg and Diamond lakes.

White River—All species reported poor to fair. Most northern pike catches reported between two and three pounds.

Sudbury—Pickerel good in the Bad and Pickerel rivers and lower portion of the French River, Bass fair throughout the district.

Sault Ste. Marie—Lake and speckle trout poor in the Hanger Lake area. Some pickerel and yellow perch being caught in Lake Island area.

Terrace Bay—Lake trout, pike and pickerel good to excellent. Rainbow trout the only poor species reported.

Chapleau—Fishing for all species fair. Fly-spoon, two-ounce speckled trout caught in Post Lake and an eight-pound pickerel in Ivanhoe Lake. Worms providing best bait.

Thunder Bay—Northern pike fair to good in Frenzel and Cox lakes. Pickerel fishing spotty but generally fair. Stream fishing poor in most areas because of the hot weather.

Wawa—Excellent catches of walleye, pickerel and northern pike in Magpie and Obabika lakes. Lake trout moderate to catches being taken in other areas on minnows, night crawlers, jigs, pick-lures and yellow JIGS.

Canadian Open Starts Today

Favorites Defend Course Shape

TORONTO (CP) — Defending champion Tom Weiskopf and Jack Nicklaus took exception Wednesday to accusations that Mississaugua Golf Club is not in championship form.

Much of the 6,788-yard layout was under water in the spring when the Credit River flooded.

"I don't think a lot of you writers, go to the par-4 on the 18th green," said Nicklaus before he and Weiskopf embarked on their second practice round for the Canadian Open, a 72-hole list for $200,000 in prize money that began today.

Like the complaints of slow play in the initial two days of practice rounds, Weiskopf had this answer:

"Those guys that do all the complaining don't play at the right time of day. I play either very early in the day or very late.

The two Columbus, Ohio, natives paired both Tuesday and Wednesday for late starts and really did have damaged spoils. "I think this (Mississaugua) is in excellent condition."

The 1965, which underwent alterations last year, is not quite settled and could pose a problem with how shots react—as they hit the surface.

But neither player was of the opinion the green would be a factor in deciding a winner.

"In fact, I'd go so far to say the course is really in exceptional condition," said Nicklaus who lost here by a stroke in the 1965 Canadian Open to Gene Littler. Nicklaus had played in three Canadian Opens, finishing second on two occasions and third once—one stroke off the pace.

It remains the only national title that he has competed for and never won.

Lee Trevino, the 1971 champion, named Weiskopf and Nicklaus as the men to beat in the 62th challenge for the Canadian Open that has been won by a Canadian only once—by Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon in 1954—since 1914.

Nicklaus, perennial leader in the money-winning list until this year, has won only the Heinken Open in 1974. He has 119,982 in winnings.

He trails Johnny Miller ($204,759), Robert Green ($188,460), Hale Irwin ($145,611) and Jerry Heard ($136,427)—one of whom any competing

Miller withdrew because his wife is expecting a baby; Lee Elder, Tom Kichelberger and Dave Hill withdrew for unspecified reasons.

Marson Signs With Capitols, Becomes Second Black in NHL

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Mike Marson celebrated his 19th birthday Wednesday by signing with the expansion Washington Capitals, becoming the second black player to join the National Hockey League this year.

Marson, a second-round pick in the amateur draft, signed a multi-year contract, terms of which were not disclosed.

Marson, a 5-foot-9, 200-pounder, played left wing last season with Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Hockey Association and was the team's leading scorer with 32 goals and 59 assists for 91 points.

Milt Schmidt, Capitals' general manager, described Marson as a conservative player who does his job but also a strong skater who "impressed me with both his defensive and offensive play."

Montreal Canadiens, also signed a black player, Mike McEachnie.

Sharks Boot Four in 1st

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jacksonville Sharks set a World Football League record Wednesday night when they kicked four field goals in the first half of their game against Southern California Sun.

Grant Guthrie booted three-pointers of 23, 29, 27 and 42 yards.

On the last play of the game, quarterback Tony Adams of Utah State threw a 40-yard touchdown pass to Jim Williams and the Sun came up with a 22-19 victory before 6,700 fans.

In Wednesday night's other WFL games, Birmingham Americans bombed Memphis 38-21, Chicago Fire turned back Portland 23-22 and Florida Blazers beat Detroit 28-15.

New York Stars are in Philadelphia tonight for the WFL's national televised game against the Bell.

Jacksonville had taken a 16-13 lead on the first play of the fourth quarter on Carl Sanger's season fired a 16-yard pass to Tony Lenzo.

Jim Adams, who had connected with Williams on a 52-yard scoring pass in the first half, got the Sun going in the final 7½ minutes, hitting with short passes to James McAllister and Williams and on fourth down and six yards to go at midfield, drilling Kermit Johnson at the 40 with seven seconds to play.

After the Sun took its last time out, Adams threw to Williams deep in the left corner of the end zone.

As a WFL record 31,319 fans shrieked their approval, veteran George Blair and rookie Matthew Reed of Grambling fleeted talented secondary with 378 aerial yards and five touchdown passes—three to Al-fred Jenkins—to keep the Americans unbeaten.

Miss threw 26 and 24-yard scoring strikes to Jenkins and one to Dennis Homan for 12 yards.

John Harvey ran for 126 yards and two touchdowns for Memphis. But, as Coach Jack McVay explained: "It all started when we gave them a cheap touchdown early and had to play catch-up from there . . . We just started behind and failed behind."

Virgil Carter of the Fire had a hot night in the air, too. He threw touchdown passes of 50 yards to Mark Keller, one yard to Cyril Pinder and 42 yards to James Scott to as Chicago took advantage of Storm mistakes to stay tied with Birmingham atop the Central Division.

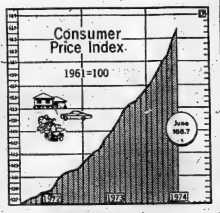
Crab Ships Now Banned

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's floating crab cannery ships, once described as notorious floaterors of the sea and condemned in Japanese proletarian literature as slave ships, have ended's half-century of activity.

The ships, of which there once were 19 ranging from 500 to 3,000 tons, made Japan one of the world's leading producers of canned crabs before and after the Second World War.

The curtain fell on the Kaikanen after the conclusion in Moscow last spring of the annual Japan-Soviet fishery agreement. This year's pact banned Japanese cannery ships from northern waters.

The ships began operating in the North Pacific in 1921, between the territorial offshore limits of Siberia and North America. There were charges of poaching by the United States, Canada and the Soviet Union.



With hundreds of small catcher boats bringing in crabs, each factory ship processed and canned up to 40,000 cartons of crabs at sea.

The Kanikmen factory ships decreased in post-war years with the conclusion of Japan-Soviet fishery agreements which continued to set lower crab catch quotas annually to prevent crabs from becoming extinct.

Many Japanese were shocked to learn in the mid-1920s that fishermen aboard the ships were leading wretched lives. The exposure was made by the proletarian writer Takiji Kobayashi in a novel which became a best-seller and was later made into a play.

Kobayashi told of the hard ships and forced labor the fishermen endured including long hours sleep at night in gloomy holds that were washed by the sea during crab-harvesting season and of being beaten up by club-wielding bullies who stood guard.

Kobayashi was tortured to death in 1933 by police who tried to force him to admit that he was a Communist.

Index Jumps

A 1.2 per cent jump in the consumer price index rose the index up to 168.7 in June from 164.8 in May, Statistics Canada reports. The June index was 11.4 per cent higher than a year ago and the largest increase in 23 years. (CP Newsmap)

Hunt is Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A controlled waterfowl hunt will be held this fall in the Cap Tourmente National Wildlife Area near Quebec City, the Canadian Wildlife Service has announced. The object is to ensure a uniform distribution of birds, especially the greater snow goose, throughout the region where the birds stop over. Closing the National Wildlife Area throughout the season would encourage the birds to congregate there, possibly causing excessive damage to the plants on which they feed, a service spokesman said.

Only Canadian residents may apply for the hunt, which will run from Sept. 30 to Nov. 2. Hunters will be selected by lot during the first week of August. Applications must mailed to the Wildlife Service, Box 138, Beauport, Charlevoix County, Que., by July 31.

Big Tipper

While working as a waiter at the Laurentian Mountain summer resort, wealthy guest Mr. Farber (Joe Silver, right) offers to give the eager Daddy Kravitz (Richard Dreyfuss) a $200 tip on the condition that he gives them excellent service. The critically-acclaimed film opens Friday night at the Quinte Mall's Cinema 2.

Duddy Opens Tomorrow

Hailed as a motion picture that could put Canada on the film industry's map, The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz comes to Belleville Friday night.

The Quinte Mall's Cinema 2 will open its curtains for 7 and 9.10 showings of the Canadian-produced film that earlier this month won the coveted Golden Bear Award at the Berlin International Festival.

An adaptation of Montreal novelist Mordecai Richler's 1959 novel, Duddy (pronounced dowdy) is the story of an 18-year-old Jewish con-man whose over-riding ambition governs all his actions.

Starring Richard Dreyfuss, this white-kid of the nostalgic hit, American Graffiti, Duddy was shot on location in the Montreal streets where Richler's original plot was conceived. The film is set in the late-50's and is directed by Canadian-born Ted Kotcheff.

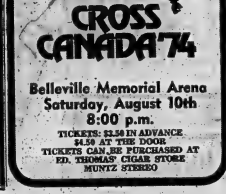
Opera Tour To Involve Community

TORONTO - Jan Rubes, Director of Touring and Program Development for the Canadian Opera Company, has announced that next January, the Company will explore a new approach to touring.

This involves opera performances, concerts, educational programs and other projects designed to serve the musical needs of Ontario communities — including Belleville.

The pilot project has been made possible through the generous assistance of the Ontario Arts Council and the Touring Office of the Canada Council.



Jan. 6, the Canadian Opera Touring Company and Chamber Orchestra will take up residency in Niagara-on-the-Lake for a period of ten days to prepare a number of programs to be presented in eight Ontario cities: Waterloo, Belleville, Guelph, Windsor, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Kingston, Deep River and London. The main attraction will be the Company's new turn-of-the-century production of Puccini's La Boheme, directed by Mr. Rubes, which tours western Canada October 25 to November 30, 1974.

The residency at Niagara-on-the-Lake will involve a Canadian Opera artists at the Shaw Festival Theatre (January 11) and a public dress rehearsal of Lakmeer in addition to local workshops. The Company then travels to Waterloo.

"By dividing the Company into 'building blocks'," says Mr. Rubes, "we can offer a community a diversity of musical programs, involving the community at different levels — choral groups, church groups, local symphonies, schools and universities - and at the same time create interest in the Canadian Opera Company. The singers themselves will benefit from the pilot project by performing not only a complete opera but various other chamber-scale programs. Equally important, the new project will mark a significant departure from the traditional, incredibly taxing 'one-night stand' method of touring."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, July 26

Aries (March 21-April 19) An earnest discussion with a non-nonsense approach will help correct a condition at home that has been causing you some frustration lately.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) There's a difference between looking at things realistically or just seeing the dark side. Reckon your perspective a bit.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Be sure you square away in advance what you think you should be getting for work or services you perform for someone.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Today, in your social activities remember you're here to have fun and relax. Let your hair down and enjoy yourself.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have little peace of mind if you give outside interests priority over family responsibilities. First things first.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're neglecting someone you used to be quite chummy with. It would please this person very much if you called occasionally.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something is coming up that is going to be profitable to you...It won't come on a silver platter, though—you have to work for it.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you set your mind to it, you can get quite a bit accomplished where your self-interests are concerned. Get going!

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something is going to be said to you in confidence. You'll want to tell others but it's best you keep it to yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're going to have an opportunity to reinforce a friendship that needs a little shoring up. It will please this person to know you're loyal.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your best efforts will not go unnoticed or unrewarded at this time. Don't be afraid to put out a little extra.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) If you take a philosophical view, it will help you make molehills out of mountains. Your problems will be handled in stride.

Opening lead—♠Q

By Oswald and James Jacoby

"Well," said West philosophically, "anyone can chuck a trick when he has just one loser. It takes a real genius to throw one away when you hold a bust."

East had shown no interest at all in the bidding or in the early play. Maybe he had been happy when North and South failed to reach a slam, but we'll never know.

West started out by leading out his three top clubs. South didn't bother to ruff the third lead. He was afraid that trumps might break 4-1, against him and in any event the drops or hearts that he discarded would have been an eventual loser.

West decided to lead a fourth club. South ruffed in dummy and East couldn't wait to overruff. South overruffed in turn, cashed his ace and king of diamonds and ruffed a third diamond in dummy.

The suit broke and it was a simple matter for South to take the rest of the tricks.

Do you see why West was unhappy? East could have beaten the contract by just discarding a diamond on the fourth club. South would still have to ruff a diamond in dummy whereupon West would have been able to overruff.

The Card Series 44

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1♠	Pass	2♠	3♠
Pass	4♠	Pass	4NT
Pass	5♦	Pass	6♠
Pass	6NT	Pass	?

What do you do now?

A—Bid six spades. Your partner is showing second round heart control.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding four spades over your three hearts. What do you do now?

Low Blood Sugar Often Vanishes

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am wondering if hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) can be cured. Our grandson is 21 and has been told by doctors that she has it. Does the ailment cause convulsions?—M.D.

Let's be cautious about using the word "cure." Hypoglycemia usually can be controlled by proper meals, sometimes medication, and quite often, in addition, by the passage of time.

The last many be more important than you think because, in a good many cases, these unpleasant periods of low blood sugar bother people who are of the tense type. As time passes, they learn to roll with the punches, to take things easier emotionally, and that helps a lot.

With such folks, it is probably more accurate to say that their disorder disappears, or stops bothering them, rather than to say they are cured. You might compare it to persistent nervous stomach who, while not really being cured of the irritable stomach, still learns how to live with it so it isn't both-ersome. (I don't mean that low blood sugar is nervous stomach, such have anything in common, however.)

A severe drop in the blood sugar level can cause convulsions, but this is not usual in such cases. Rather, there are spells of sudden weakness, super, semi-blackouts or visual disturbances, and that sort of thing. But if there are episodes of convulsions, I would recommend a thorough examination looking for other possible causes, for which treatment might be quite different than for the hypoglycemia.

Another tip is that sometimes hypoglycemia can be a forerunner of diabetes, so if there is any history of diabetes on either side of the family, your grand-daughter should be tested periodically for that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been bothered with a sun rash when I go in direct sunlight and wonder if it is a lack of a vita-min or something. If so what vitamin should I take? Or would a sunlamp tan help?—J.F.

There's no vitamin deficiency which causes that. You probably have developed a sensitivity to the ultra-violet rays. A problem shared by quite a few others. A better hint, if it is one that contains a "sun screen" ingredient which filters out some ultra-violet, can help within limits, but your best course is to avoid the amount of sun that brings on the rash.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have fallen on a glass only three times but the pain in my ears progressed each time when coming in for a landing. Is this a problem a lot of people have or do you think a visit to an ear specialist would be worthwhile? I do not have a hearing problem although I did have a number of ear infections as a child.—E.

It used to be a very much commoner problem before the time of pressurized cabins, which means most of the commercial planes now. But some folks still have trouble.

The explanation is that the Eustachian tubes (tiny tubes running between the middle ear and throat) do not let air through rapidly enough to equalize pressure on other side of the drums. It could be that your ear infections as a child caused some scarring of those tubes.

If your discomfort is severe, consult an ear specialist to see if he can't open up the tubes a bit.

If the trouble is mild, then rely on the things people used to do before planes were pressurized, such as use iced-or ice-swallower, or go through the procedure of holding an imaginary but hard yawn. Sometimes often pop the Eustachian tubes open enough to take the pressure off your ear drums and stop the hurting.

George the Third Exhibition Staged

LONDON (Reuter) — George III was porky but abstemious, found public appearances irksome though he opened his court to scholars and had a skilful appreciation of matters scientific but was doomed to suffer his last years violently insane.

He had an insatiable passion for collecting things.

In his decades on the British throne from 1760 to 1820, the king lost the American colonies and acquired new territory in Canada, India, Australia and South Africa.

He collected paintings, books, musical manuscripts, clocks, scientific and musical instruments, furniture, porcelain and all kinds of minor and major objects d'art.

Some of the king's treasures are being shown at Buckingham Palace, which George bought in 1762. The exhibition, George the Third: Collector and Patron, will continue into 1975 at the Queen's Gallery.

His accession to the throne was welcomed by artists, craftsmen, writers, musicians and scientists starved of royal patronage during the previous reign.

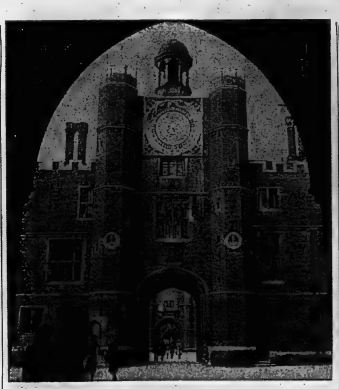
The king was trained in the sciences and became a competent draftsman, capable of supervising the design of newly constructed works. He was an accomplished musician.

Within a week, Sir Horace Walpole confided to another courtier:

"I will tell you something; the king loves medals. . . . I imagine his taste goes to antiques too, perhaps to pictures, but that I have not heard. If you learn of any purchases that may be made in either kind and that are beyond your own purse, you may acquaint him through the secretary of state."

Soon the king's agents were scouring the world for treasures.

As the foreign throughout the empire, George thought about acquiring a wife.



In 1761 he asked for a review of all eligible German Protestant princesses "to save a great deal of trouble" as "marriage must sooner or later come to pass."

He chose Charlotte Sophia and married her a few months later, loving both her and their many children passionately.

There was no royal library on George's accession. Books collected by Henry VIII and all succeeding monarchs had been presented to the British Museum there years previously.

So George set about acquiring books and within eight years had four rooms full. On his death, the library totalled 67,000 volumes.

Perhaps the most important acquisition was the art collection of Joseph Smith, former British consul in Venice.

Better Weapons on Way

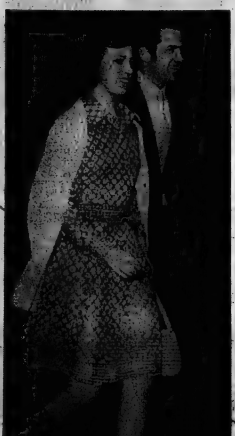
Canada to Double Force on Cyprus

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian forces in Cyprus will be increase d to 950 from 486 men, with the first of the additional men flying from Edmonton during the weekend, the government announced Thursday.

Meanwhile, improved weaponry already is being sent from West Germany to allow the Canadian members of the United Nations force in Cyprus to defend themselves properly in case of attack.

The announcement of the increase was made at a news conference by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Defence Minister James Richardson. Gen. J. A. Dextraze, chief of defence staff, provided additional details later.

Mr. Richardson said most of the men will come from the Canadian Airborne Regiment in Edmonton, meaning almost the entire regiment will be stationed in Cyprus for a time. Most of the 486 men now there are from the Airborne.



Mr. Sharp released a letter addressed to UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim saying he is "pleased" to say Canada will augment its force.

The minister added at the news conference, however, that this augmentation is not permanent and will be reviewed in December.

He reiterated a Canadian and UN view that the Cyprus force as a whole cannot be considered permanent and that a solution to the Turkish-Greek-Cypriot troubles needs to be found.

Mr. Richardson said the reinforcements will start leaving this weekend and the full component could be in place next week.

Added equipment will include Lynx armoured scout cars, armored personnel carriers and anti-tank weapons.

Renewed Fighting Possible

From AP-REUTER

NICOSIA (CP) — President Glafkos Clerides of Cyprus charged today that Turkey is violating the Cyprus cease-fire with huge land grabs. He threatened to resume fighting on the troubled island unless the alleged violations stop.

"Time is running out," Clerides said a news conference.

"It will be with the greatest reluctance that I will appear before the Greek people of Cyprus to invite them to fight to the last man and to the end.

"I can no longer restrain the National Guard and our forces in the republic from taking countermeasures" against Turkish advances, he said.

"We are trying for restraint," he said. "But this cannot go on. Responsibility for what might happen in the next few hours will rest solely on the shoulders of the Turkish government."

UN and Greek sources said Turkish troops, in an apparent effort to seize territory in violation of the ceasefire, are pushing westwards from their positions north of Kyrenia.

Today's reported renewed earlier statements from military and diplomatic sources that Turkey was building up its invasion force on Cyprus and grabbing new territory.

The UN and Greek sources said today the Turks appear to be trying to extend their hold on the area north of Nicosia to take in the only remaining road links between Nicosia and Kyrenia on the northern coast.

The sources said the Turks have captured two suburbs of Nicosia from which 5,000 Turkish Cypriots were driven out when communal fighting began 10 years ago.

Armed and Ready

A group of Indians, some armed, confer at the entrance to Anicinabe Park near Kenora, Ont., Tuesday. SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A tentative contract agreement was reached today between The Star and representatives of three unions which have stopped publication of the daily newspaper since April 17. Nixon Asks Budget Cut And Savings Increased

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Nixon has outlined an economic policy calling for budget cuts, a federal payroll slash of 49,000 persons and an appeal that all United States citizens sail away 15 cents for every $10 spent.

Nixon made what aides termed a major-league-baseball analogy Thursday. He was well received by more than 1,400 businessmen and manufacturers and their wives who gathered to hear him in a ballroom at the Century Plaza Hotel.

The president did not see some 300 pickets who marched outside the hotel. These included impeachment advocates and representatives of the United Farm Workers of America.

In Washington, Arch Booth, U.S. Chamber of Commerce president, commented: "The policies President Nixon enunciated are admirable and reasonable. We need more all, as he stated, an anti-inflation lobby. We need a national will to stop inflation."

But Representative Wright Patman (Dem., Texas), chairman of the House of Representatives banking and currency committee, said: "It is good that the president at long last is speaking out on the economy but he still fails to spell out the specific steps to be taken to wrest more production but he does not recognize how this is to be accomplished."

Basically, the president advocated a continuation of current federal economic programs and rejection of the shock treatment of a sudden drastic "wringing out" of inflation, the cost of which in terms of increased unemployment he called "unconscionable" and unacceptable."

No Sign of Accord In Kenora Dispute

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — The armed occupation by Indians of a park in this northwestern Ontario town entered its fourth day today with no signs of a breakthrough in talks aimed at settling the problems highlighted by the occupation.

The talks, between Indian representatives and officials of the local, provincial and federal governments, were to resume today behind closed doors. The parties were guarded in their comments about any progress they have made to date.

The discussions lasted for about four hours Thursday for a second day of talks, and Mayor Jim Davidson said later the two sides are still "negotiating about what we are going to negotiate, and not much else."

"There is no way we can prepare to negotiate anything in this climate," Mr. Davidson said. "We can't be blackmailed like this into making decisions."

Mr. Davidson said he is prepared to allow the Indians to park to "sit there all summer if that's what they want to do."

Several of those who are behind the barricades the Indians built at the park entrance are veterans of siege of 3 months ago at Wounded Knee in South Dakota.

Harvey Major, security director for the occupation and a member of the American Indian Movement who took part in the affair at Wounded Knee, said, "Some people out there still believe this is just a picnic. But this is war."

"Now you've got to say before you're impeached"

Impeachment Seems Certain

Only Agreement on Charge Stands Between Nixon and Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vote most members of the House of Representatives committee regard as the most important they will ever cast faces them today as they consider articles for the impeachment of President Nixon.

Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem.N.J.) had advised the members of the committee they face, "the terrible, tremendous burden of trying to reach a decision that will last for all time."

On the basis of their previously announced positions it appeared certain a majority of the committee is prepared to recommend impeachment if a satisfactory article can be drafted.

It takes only a majority of the judiciary committee's 38 members to recommend impeachment and a majority of the House to impeach. It would require a two-thirds vote in the Senate to find the president guilty and remove him from office.

Representative Delbert Latta (Rep.Ohio), a committee member opposed to impeachment, sees a 27 to 11 vote in favor of a recommendation that the House impeach Nixon and that a Senate trial be held to determine whether he should be removed from office.

The task of writing an article charging Nixon with obstruction of justice in connection with the Watergate cover-up will occupy the committee today for the third day of its televised deliberations.

The meeting will begin at 11 a.m. EDT.

In related developments:

—Vice-President Gerald Ford said conviction and impeachment of Nixon would be "very, very bad" for the U.S. both on domestic and foreign fronts. He added: "I can say from the bottom of my heart the president of the United States is innocent . . . He is right."

—Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski urged U.S. District Judge John Sirica to order Nixon to surrender within ten to 19 days the tapes and documents of 64 Watergate conversations.

—The defence rested in Ed Reinecke's perjury trial after asking to cast doubt on the accuracy of the transcript of Senate testimony on which the California Republican governor was indicted.

Rodino plans to continue the judiciary committee meeting into the night, if necessary, to complete the drafting of an article and bring it to a vote.

Other articles charging Nixon with abuse of power and refusal to comply with committee subpoenas are to be offered, but as soon as one is approved a formal recommendation for impeachment will have been made.

The certainty that the committee will recommend impeachment was sealed Thursday when every Democratic member either came out for impeachment or expressed such deep concern over Nixon's conduct of his office that it left little doubt as to how they will vote.

In a long round of speeches in which 23 members unburdened themselves on their struggle with the evidence, the Constitution and their consciences, only eight came down solidly against impeachment.

Nixon's hopes of holding the committee Republicans together vanished during the debate when Caldwell Butler (Rep.Va.), became the first of the uncommitted members to take the side of impeachment.

Nixon was dealt perhaps an even sharper blow shortly afterward when one of the committee's most conservative members, Harold Froehlich (Rep.Wis.), said he is ready to vote for impeachment if the final wording of the articles meets with his approval.

Provincial Government Grants To Summer Recreation Programs

Provincial government grants have been received by several community summer recreation projects in Hastings County.

The funds were disbursed by the community and social services ministry under its Ontario Youth In Action program.

Grants were received by two projects sponsored by the Thurlow township recreation committee.

Fun and Fitness, a program for youngsters up to 16, was granted $2,000. Some 36 students were hired for the project.

Nature's Play Things, employing three students in constructing simple recreation equipment, received $800.

A swimming instruction program at Madoc involving about 70 children was given $1,000.

Cheques for the various projects were presented by Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

Gauge Stolen

A Stirling area man, Ted Clark, lost a $66 tachometer from his car, parked overnight on Elliott Motors parking lot. City police said the instrument was stolen from a car owned by Ted Clark of RR 4 Stirling.

Van Rolls, Youth Injured Near Hillier

PICTON — A Hillier area youth in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital to Picton with a broken left leg suffered in a road accident early today.

Stephen Wilson, 17, of RR 1 Hillier went off County Road 2 near Ameliasburgh, entered the east ditch and hit a tree stump.

The van rolled over and pinned the youth underneath. The vehicle was a writeoff.

Red Cross Increases Aid

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross Society has given another $5,000 to victims of the typhoon which struck Wrinch, national commissioner of the society, said Thursday. The gift brings the society's contribution to $10,000 in the last two days. The committee has spent nearly $350,000 since July 22 to fly in food, medicine and 28 tons of emergency supplies as well as dispatch a team of 18 which includes three doctors.

New Poster In Peking

PEKING (Reuter) — Peking's faltering wall poster campaign, now in its seventh week, enjoyed a modest revival today with the appearance of a poster criticizing some factory managers for "following the revisionist line."

The lengthy poster, written by two veteran workers at Peking's fine arts and handicrafts factory, was pasted up in Workers' Revolution Street.

It repeated charges made by the same men in a previous set of posters that the handicrafts factory leaders were trying to revive the production of figures reminiscent of pre-Communist society, such as "emperors, generals, ministers, scholars and beauties."

Small groups of people gathered to read the new posters today, but in general the Chinese capital's brief eruption of "street democracy" appeared to be coming to an end. Only sheets of tattered paper were left clinging to the wall opposite the city council offices.

Nightingales Flee

LONDON (CP) — The famous nightingales of Berkeley Square are being forced to flee their perches recently by the sudden appearance of hordes of noisy starlings. Whole areas of trees and statues were covered with the orange and green droppings, crowflies, whose numbers had spectacularly increased after a long dry spell.

Lock 'Em Out

Proper procedure to take when leaving a bicycle unattended is pointed out by Lisa Walker, 19, of Queen St., Trenton illustrates. A sturdy lock and chain wrapped around a post and bicycle, is simple discouragement to most joyriding thieves police say. The chain should be wrapped tightly around the post and through the bike frame and at least one wheel.

Police Warn Youngsters

Beware the Bicycle Thieves

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Provincial police here are advising both youngsters and teenagers to take simple precautions to safeguard bicycles from people not adverse to stealing for a bit of joyriding.

OPP Constable Allen Tremeer says, those "who are taking the bicycles are joyriding — using them for transportation."

Although the problem is not as great as in big-city centres, three or four bicycles are reported stolen here each week.

"It seems that boys and girls are leaving them out overnight," he said.

There are simple precautions that can be taken to keep bikes safe.

Constable Tremeer suggested bicycles be locked inside the closed doors of a garage. If a garage is unavailable, take them out of sight behind the house, he said.

He offers another persuasive argument: "Locks cost about $2 or $3. Bikes cost about $100."

When a bicycle is left unattended, it should be padlocked to a post or fence, he advised. Ten-speed bicycles are of prime value for thieves because of their high dollar value.

He said it does not appear that there is a ring of bicycle thieves operating in the Brighton area.

Police in Trenton also discount the possibility of a ring in the town siphe bicycles. Last year, however, juveniles were stealing machines and changing parts and selling them.

Since January town police said 74 bicycles were reported stolen. Of these, 46 have been recovered — a 62 per cent rate of return to rightful owners.

Most have been stolen between May and October. June appears the heaviest month for bicycle thefts, police say.

Despite the recovery rate, Sgt. Herb Chaisson said, police "always have more thins here than owners."

Police store recovered bicycles until they are claimed.

"At the end of the year, we end up with a raft of bikes that no one has reported stolen," said the sergeant.

Halton Region Seeks $1.6 million Start-up

TORONTO (CP) — Halton region officials requested $1.6 million in start-up costs at a meeting with Treasurer John White on Thursday but was no answer before council's final budget session Tuesday.

The region asked for the money from provincial funds Ontario has made available to new regional governments.

Tuesday's council meeting will set the region's first budget, tentatively set at $9.2 million in the 200,000 made by communities east of this week area code.

The amount of provincial assistance is crucial to the final municipal levies and the budget figure.

"They're definitely going to be there," said Regional Chairman Dan Farmer, Halton treasurer, said of the province's promised aid. "I went to secure the start-up costs for the region. "There's some hope we'll know before Tuesday in time for the meeting."

Gerry Lawton, manager of the treasury department's municipal section, said he never once "would try to come up with a firm commitment if it was humanly possible."

"But today's session was the first presentation and we're working under some pressure," he said.

The Scots Are Coming

AYR, Scotland (CP) — William H. Dunlop, secretary of the trustees of the Burns monument to Scotland's most famous poet, left here today with four Scottish entertainers to take part in 150th anniversary celebrations in the Canadian village of Ayr, 66 miles west of Toronto.

The Scots are all from the Scottish Ayr at places nearby. Thousands of Scots emigrated from the area of Ontario around Ayr, whose 1,300 residents start celebrations Monday marking the founding of the village in 1824.

The entertainers—soprano Patti Duncan, pianist Ronnie Rintoul, actor James McClure and Jim McCallum, official piper at Prestwick airport—will be presenting a show of songs and poems by Robert Burns, who was born in Ayrshire.

The party also carried a set of crystal glasses from the Scottish Ayr town council to its Canadian namesake.

He's Cheesed Off

WIGAN, England (CP) — Police said Gerry Robinson's truck loaded with cheese was stolen from a garage here but was found by the police. However, when Robinson went to collect it the vehicle had disappeared again. He said about 12,000 ($4,800) would "go off" quickly if no refrigerated and thus cause trouble for the thieves' senses of smell.

She Has A Nest Of Trouble

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto nurse who says she is "full for motherhood" is having her troubles with one little on 115 acres — and a child-minded on her apartment balcony sometimes during her present vacation.

Margaret Newbold said she discovered the nest the week when the angry bird chased away two men who were there to lay a carpet on the balcony.

"Then I asked the men to move the nest, they said pigeons weren't in their contract," Miss Newbold said. "That was after one of them nearly had his thumb bitten off."

The Toronto Humane Society has been no help either.

When she phoned them, Miss Newbold was told the society has no facilities for hatching birds. But when she said she planned to take a broom to the peevish pigeon, they told her that if she harmed the bird, they would call the police.

The society referred her to a private service for birds, which recommended removing and relocating the nest.

Before that however, Miss Newbold must wait four weeks for the eggs to hatch and four more weeks before the chicks learn to fly.

"There goes my balcony for the rest of the summer," she sighed.

Troops on UN Duty Are "Glamor" Regiment

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Airborne Regiment, now on United Nations duty in Cyprus, is the glamor regiment of the Canadian forces.

The Edmonton-based unit is a regiment of about 1,000 volunteers from the all-volunteer Canadian Forces. The quick-reaction, mobile unit attracts men who are prepared to drop out of a plane anywhere the world for parachuting or to fight a brush-fire war.

The regiment's First Commando — a French speaking—is part of the United Nations force in Cyprus. It was announced Thursday that the Second Commando—basically English speaking—will join it in answer to a request from United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim for more troops. That will make a total of about 950 Canadians on Cyprus.

The airlift of men and equipment from Lahr, West Germany, and Cosse Bay, Nfld., is scheduled to start this weekend and last about eight days.

The unit was formed in 1968 in answer to a need for a regiment of paratroopers. Because it was made up of volunteers already in the forces, it quickly became operational.

It trained in all climatic conditions—with U.S. forces in the Arctic and in the steaming jungles of Jamaica. Given a defensive role in the northwest, it is made up of the two infantry commando, one artillery battery, one engineer field squadron, a service company and a field service support unit.

The First Commando has won praise for its work in Cyprus during the recent hostilities. Defence Minister James Richardson said Thursday that when the full story is told it will be seen that the Canadians conducted themselves honorably.

The enlarged Canadian force is going to be better protected.

Province Will Assist In Tweed Cleanup Cost

TWEED — The transportation and communications ministry has moved to financially assist this village in cleanup costs following a windstorm July 9.

Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, said Thursday the ministry had approved supplementary expenses which match clearance costs dollar for dollar up to a maximum $7,000.

Cleanup of fallen tree limbs and other debris around the village, along with repairs to village public utilities services were the most expensive result of the storm to local government.

The provincial aid is extended under a village supplementary bylaw approved by the ministry.

Woman Will Celebrate 100th Year

TWEED —Mrs. Alice Slush is preparing to celebrate the most momentous birthday of her life here.

She will soon be 100 years old. To mark the event a celebration is being planned by her daughter Mrs. Gladys Bateman.

An open invitation has gone out to friends, neighbors and relatives to attend the event — bringing only best wishes — at the Bateman home at 7 Victoria St., Aug. 6 at 2-4 p.m.

Bigger Peach Harvest Predicted

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The annual statistical report on agriculture has forecast this year's harvest of peaches will be between 10 and 15 per cent higher than the 35,000 tons harvested in 1973. Growers in the Niagara Peninsula say the harvest should be at its peak in the next week and continue through to September.

Times Are Good

While political second-guessers were searching high and low the morning of July 9 for reasons to explain events of the previous day, they never really had to look any further than their wallets.

The Canadian people felt justified in sending the Liberals back to Ottawa, this time with a majority government.

The very morning final tabulations showed the Liberals had fooled the forecasters by filling 141 seats in the Commons, Statistics Canada announced that June's national unemployment figures had dipped to 4.9 per cent of the labor force, the lowest level in over four years.

Doesn't it seem like only yesterday that the experts were using 8 per cent unemployment figures to forecast the imminent collapse of our economy?

More numbers from a July 12 Statistics Canada bulletin reinforce the observation that, if not booming, we're also a long way from starving.

April's average weekly Canadian wage was $172.21, up nine per cent from a year ago.

In foreign trade, Canada's exports show a 24 per cent rise over those 12 months earlier.

Department store sales are running nearly 19 per cent ahead of 1973 figures, and Canadians are purchasing 10 per cent more motor vehicles.

Nobody likes paying 55 cents for a cucumber, but farmers' cash receipts are up a phenomenal 66 per cent over the corresponding period last year!

Bellevillians, who have a longstanding inferiority complex about their fiscal status in relation to other parts of the province, could find reason for optimism in another set of federal statistics.

Based on 1971 figures, this city's annual average family income of $10,147 placed it ahead of or level with 27 other provincial capital cities in that regard: Winnipeg ($9,989), Victoria ($9,921), Regina ($9,837), Charlottetown ($9,267), Saint John ($8,821), and St. John's ($8,468).

We were also within respectable range of Edmonton ($10,660), Halifax ($10,178), and Quebec City ($10,159).

Granted, Belleville ranked below the provincial average family income of $10,661, but that figure is the highest in the nation, a hefty $600 more than Prince George, British Columbia. Even within our own province, Belleville family income outstrips that of Barrie ($10,404), St. Catharines ($9,997), and Brantford ($9,515), to name but three.

There is, of course, a black lining to every silver cloud. Canada's is an 11 per cent increase in our cost of living in the past 12 months.

All of which information would indicate we're spending more but enjoying it less.

Lucky Bounce

A young window cleaner fell twelve floors from a Vancouver apartment building, bounced off a car, and would have gone back to the job if the woman manager of the building had not insisted he go home for the day. Either Norm Lawrence, 23, is a genuine hero or he is some kind of nut — perhaps one of those workaholics we have been reading about. He is worried about the dent he made in the car, but does he realize the advertising possibilities that might accrue? If he doesn't, he ain't much of a salesman of his car-doos. In which case Lawrence, who says he is just starting out in the job, should have no difficulty paying for the damage.

Bomb Victims

The long arm of Irish extremism has spread its odious tentacles to include among its latest victims — in a bomb blast at the Tower of London — Canadians and people from other lands. Many of the casualties were children. If this kind of thing is to be stopped it will take, not so much a return of the death penalty, for the perpetrators are seldom caught anyway, but vastly speed-up security.

Duties Last Decade

Cyprus Service Established Canada as Peacekeeper

By JOHN D. HARKINS
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In April, 1964, about 1,200 Canadian troops departed for our first peacekeeping duties in Cyprus. This was a result of the agreements between that new but stormy island republic and the three great powers involved—Britain, Greece and Turkey—all working through the United Nations.

A decade later and in the midst of the Greco-Turkish civil war which had been forestalled for the past decade, Canadian troops are still there, about 480 of them, giving our armed forces the reputation as the world's most successful and competent peacekeepers.

In that by-and-large quiet decade in Cyprus about 18,000 men in our armed forces, many of them serving there for a second tour, have had a hand in keeping the peace in the island.

Visit any Canadian Armed Forces base and you are bound to see a sprinkling of officers and men wearing the white blue-white ribbon of the Cyprus peacekeeping mission, those being the national colors of that unsettled country.

The Canadian peacekeeping contribution to Cyprus has become the best-known activity of our post-war armed forces. Ask any thinking and reading Canadian how he identifies the Canadian military these days, and he is likely to say as peacekeepers around the world.

In the history of this former Gaza Strip), India, the Congo in 1966, the Yemen, even the Korean War which is properly styled a "peacekeeping operation" though it was a full-scale war, Canadians have been involved largely in the military role of keeping would-be combatants at bay.

Canada has not been the only peacekeeper to these on-going world crises but has shared the role with other smaller military powers, joining the Irish and Ghanians in the 1960 Congo crisis, the Brazilians in the Gaza Strip and currently with the Danes in Cyprus.

But the style of military operations, the quiet procedures when threats of war and civil war are semi-present, have been set mainly by the Canadians.

In Cyprus, for example, not a single shooting incident took place between Greek or Turkish Cypriots and the Canadian peacekeeping troops in the past decade, even though they were policing the most thinly place for confrontation.

This was and is the famous Green Line which separates the Greek and Turkish Cypriot sections of Nicosia, still being policed by the Canadians as the new ceasefire takes effect.

Over the years, there have been dramatic criticisms of Canada's on-going role as a peacekeeping nation. Retired Admiral William Landymore, the cause celebre over armed forces unification in 1964, once observed that third world military should be left to their own world peacekeeping needs as set down by the United Nations.

When the Canadian commitment to the Gaza Strip was agreed to after the 1956 Arab-Israeli war, there was a momentary crisis in defence ministers at home because we did not have the proper kind of mixed landing craft and troop ships, what today is called the command ship, to land our peacekeeping troops properly.

Instead, equipment had to be lashed to an aircraft carrier's deck on short notice and shipped the long sea route in the Middle East.

These small crises are forgotten. What the Canadian success over a decade of peacekeeping has also done in the world, is to give more credibility to the UN where crisis said it could not resolve crises like Cyprus.

Junkets One Way for Government To Reward MPs for July 8 Success

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Well, now, with the government by its comfortable majority having confirmed the basic Liberal belief in the divine right to rule, there could be less inclination than ever in high places to curb spending.

Especially where public visibility is low and political profit is high.

The deserving must be rewarded, and who is more deserving than those who won seats for the government in the July 8 election?

But the number of cabinet posts is limited, so, too, are appointments as parliamentary secretaries for the younger and ambitious MP on his way up.

Sure, he can be rewarded with public works goodies and job favors for constituents.

But what can they do for him personally to show their appreciation?

Expense-paid journeys to Faraway Places as Canadian representatives at scores of intergovernmental conferences is one handy, dandy way.

Now with all those places in Parliament, the Liberals will have more spaces — and fewer for the cutback Opposition groups — on those flips abroad.

It helps the political way it is, this, then, is the time to remember with a taxpayer's gratitude, the shocking words of William Winters Hamilton, MP, former deputy chairman of Britain's ruling Labor Party.

Shedding his role as politician, that is, but gratifying to the taxpayer.

He was the first politician in Ottawa's recorded parliamentary history to call a government junket — of all deadly earnest things — a junket.

He was speaking the last time the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association convened in Ottawa, and his words still haunt these marble halls.

He wasn't talking, either, with the mouthful of cotton wool for he was a key participant in the conference.

He saw it for what it was, and so called it.

"A junket," he said right out loud in public, "is a political racket to get a free global hopping tour at the taxpayers' expense."

You should have heard the wounded wails of other Commonwealth MPs — including the Canadians — over this scurrilous candor.

They were so outraged by Hamilton's honesty they didn't know how to handle this most unpolson Brit, so in their fuming speaker in his ranks) in Canada, and few that gan match his quickness with the "in" parliament.

But with Stephen K's a case to thank you.

He has a comfortable home with a cook and maid.

And he can scent blood in the wind, even at this distance.

It was notable in the recent federal vote that though the NDP lost seats in Ontario it pretty well maintained its popularity.

* * *

A piece of good news is that forecasters now are saying that Ontario is a decent shape shortage in Canada in 1980.

Good news but also bad news.

For labor shortages also mean inflationary pressure and wages rise with them. And if, by labor shortages also means a further test on government.

Will they look to the future and see that most and women are trained in the proper skills?

Or will they follow their normal course of being content with the here in the past to make existing programs until the day dawns a overwhelming?

Car Shipped for Repairs

If you or any member of your family own a car, you'll know all about repair costs. Usually they're more than you expect and you always fear the worst. BBC World Service reported on one man, who obviously takes the question of car repairs seriously. He is a Norwegian, who recently shipped his car 400 miles across the North Sea to be repaired at a garage in north-east England!

The cost is a 1961 Ford (worth not more than £50) but clearly sentimentally dearer, All in the same way how the large shipping costs to, get his car repaired!

According to this owner, the garage charges are so high in Norway that, he says, it's less expensive to pay for the car to be shipped to Britain and back and have it repaired here.

Double-deckers No Longer Funny

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Better late than never!

The government is trying out double-deck coaches on GO trains out of Toronto.

The CPR uses double-deckers on its commuter service out of Montreal and GO is borrowing some of its coaches for a "try, week trial."

Half a dozen years ago Liberal Donald Deacon, who had surveyed commuter services in Chicago and other centres, suggested GO should use double-deckers.

He was laughed at.

But now GO, which has been a Liberal proposition from the start, has turned out to be so successful that the government is faced with emergency measures.

It has occurred to some people that Stephen Lewis might be logical to succeed fellow David as national NDP leader.

As Ontario leader Stephen has shown he is one of the most able men in the party. He can debate.

"Who when they were come down, prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost. ...Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost." Acts 8:15,17.

The ministry involved in the laying on of hands a very interesting and enlightening. It is true that God has ordained a ministry of power to bring in the fulfillment of His promises. Over and again Jesus said this marked. He said, "... as my father hath sent me even so send I you". ... "Thou shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover."

Banking Business Booms While Others Flounder

Nice business, banking. Other businesses may be facing recession, but things were never better at the banks.

As you may have noticed, the minimum interest rate for business loans is shifting in record 11.5 per cent—for the time being.

And even at that rate (which could have seemed usurious any time before 1974) the banks are turning away would-be borrowers in droves.

Here are some of the reasons for the heavy demand for bank credit:

—Today's super-inflation has sharply boosted businessmen's cost of maintaining physical inventories, so corporations must borrow more working capital. Since the current two-figure rate of inflation is roughly the same as today's interest rates, the corporation breaks even.

—The stock market is so sick that it is virtually impossible for a company to raise capital by selling shares. So it goes to the banks become the alternative source.

—Bond-market rates are so high that corporations hold off committing themselves for a term of 20 years or more. Besides, lenders of any kind are willing to put their money into bonds because the apparently high yields are too low after taxes. And they have given the banks as the last resort.

Latest 12-month figures show that the assets of Canadian banks increased by an average of about 27 per cent in the year ended May 31.

Deposits—up 27.6 per cent—was in loans to customers in the form of acceptances and the like. The latter, up a hefty 34 per cent—including day, call and short-term loans—by 24.5 per cent on the year.

On the basis of the banks' own figures, there is little evidence that the banks are not attempting to restrict credit—as they would be required to do if they or the government were serious about curtailing inflation.

Nor is there much validity in the argument that, in increasing their lending charges, the banks are helping to fight inflation. Repeated increases since early 1973 have done nothing any more than incur to limit the extension of credit.

Rather than using their enormous leverage to curb inflation, the banks generally have continued to employ all the tactics—and technological methods to promote the sale of more and more credit.

It costs the banks more, of course, to raise their own capital material—the public's savings deposits, chiefly.

But any increase in the interest rate paid by the banks immediately becomes a corresponding increase in the rate they charge on loans. Since bank loans are much greater than banks' deposit liabilities, the bankers' advantage is spread even when the "spread" between what they pay and what they charge remains steady.

The banks may indeed be earning a greater risk of loss on loans in today's precarious economic climate, but the risk that borrowers will default is down, even today, especially since the heavy demand for loans allows credit-grantors to be more selective than usual.

Almost the only dark cloud on the banks' horizon is the federal budget proposal—yet to be enacted—for a one-year 10 per cent surtax on corporate income and a reduction in tax-free reserves that banks may claim against potential losses (to one per cent from 1.5 per cent on eligible assets over $2 billion).

But any negative effect on earnings will probably be offset by another budget proposal—the tax deductibility of the first $1,000 of individuals' interest income.

A young Havana lawyer, Fidel Castro, led a group of revolutionaries 21 years ago today—in 1953—in an attack on a fortress held by army and police supporters of Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista. The attack failed miserably, including Castro, were captured and imprisoned. Castro was released and disappeared, returning to Cuba two years later with another group of revolutionaries which finally overthrew the Batista regime in 1959.

AIM Role In Kenora Deplored

SASKATOON (CP) — Involvement by the American Indian Movement (A.I.M.) in the dispute at Kenora, Ont., is only against an already-established situation, David Ahenakew, chief of the Federation of Saskatchewan Indians, said Thursday.

A group of armed Indians continued to occupy a small park in the northwestern Ontario community as talks aimed at settling ownership of the land proceeded. The contingent of about 150 people—including women and children—were barring white people from entering Anicinabe Park, land the Indians claim is theirs by a 1929 agreement with the department of Indian affairs.

The Saskatchewan federation does not support the actions of the armed band, Chief Ahenakew said. "There are proper channels to follow in land rights disputes and they should be used."

He said the representatives of A.I.M. should be deported.

If the Indians at Kenora "are to settle their grievances with the town and the federal government, they certainly don't need outside help" Chief Ahenakew said.

Still Fast

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Ukrainian Canadians fasted steadfastly continued Thursday the hunger strike they began 11 days ago outside the Soviet embassy.

The group's doctor said he had expected the strikers to start eating again by noon as he had ordered.

But the strikers were not satisfied yet with the government's response to their demand that an appeal be made to the Soviet Union to release dissident Ukrainian writer Valentyn Moroz from a Soviet jail.

Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury visited the strikers Thursday morning and signed a standard declaring support for Moroz.

Neutralize Gas

SUFFIELD, Alta. (CP) — The 700 tons of deadly mustard gas stored in lead-lined concrete vaults here since 1941 are expected to be neutralized completely by next summer, officials at the Defence Research Establishment Suffield (DRES) say.

The gas, a chemical containing chlorine, sulphur and carbon-hydrogen molecules, can be destroyed by adding water and alkaline lime and stirring, reporters were told Wednesday at a briefing on the research-training base, about 20 miles northwest of Medicine Hat.

Mustard gas was introduced to warfare in July, 1917, by the German army. During the Second World War, 727 tons of the chemical was manufactured in Cornwall, Ont., and shipped to Suffield for storage.

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — Richard MacKendrick, a 7-to-note hockey coach, was prohibited from coaching for two years after he pleaded guilty in provincial court Thursday to a charge of common assault.

Ronald Parkinson, 19, of Toronto told the charge against MacKendrick.

Court was told MacKendrick grabbed Parkinson, a time keeper, by the throat during a hockey game played by 13-year-old boys. In the scuffle Parkinson's glasses were damaged.

Judge Ian Munro ruled MacKendrick be given a two-year conditional discharge and during that time "refrain from taking part in these sporting events."

Costly Job

BROCKVILLE (CP) — The cost to clean up 2,500 gallons of oil spilled in the St. Lawrence River near here April 15 was more than $1 million, an Imperial Oil Ltd. spokesman said Thursday.

The oil was released when the Imperial Sarnia struck a shoal about five miles west of Brockville.

Will Continue Farming Land Corp. Purchases

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Ontario government has introduced a type of farm apprentice plan to keep farmland destined for future development in food production as long as possible.

Agricultural colleges graduates without enough money to start their own farms will be offered leases of five, 10 and 20 years on land bought well in advance of future development by the proposed Ontario Land Corp., the newspaper says.

Proposed in the government's April budget, the Ontario Land Corp. will be used to assemble and resell for farming all new towns expected to partially accommodate the next quarter-century's population growth.

But until the land to be acquired by the corporation is serviced and eventually re-sold to private buyers for public investment, it may be used for food production, the newspaper says.

One of the new towns will be built on more than 11,000 acres, much of it class two farmland, near the industrial complex at Nanticoke about 10 miles east of Simcoe on Lake Erie, the newspaper says.

John White as saying.

But until that land is needed, the newspaper says, it will be leased back first to the farmers who originally sold it and then to the apprentice farmers.

Dearer Butter Likely

TORONTO (CP) — An increase in the price of milk requested by the Dairy Farmers of Canada would mean an 18-cent increase in the wholesale cost of butter if taken from the marketplace, says a spokesman for the group.

But such a sharp increase in the price of butter is not likely, says a government spokesman, although Canadians can expect a gradual increase in butter prices.

David Kirk, executive secretary of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, says the $1.30-a-hundredweight increase in the price of milk requested by the group would, if taken from the marketplace, increase wholesale butter prices to 95 cents from 77 and mean a retail price of about $1 a pound.

Gets $5,000

OTTAWA (CP) — A carpenter who says he was told by one of his employers' foremen not to tell police he had been assaulted by a fellow worker has been awarded $2,000 by the criminal injuries compensation board.

Alban Langevin of Bourget, Que., now unable to work because of head injuries, appeared before the board Wednesday.

He told the board that he was attacked by the hammer-wielding worker on a L'Abbe Construction Ontario Ltd. project in Ottawa Feb. 16, 1972. But he said a foreman on the job, whose name he could not remember, advised him to tell police the injuries were accidental because he would be unable to collect workmen's compensation if he took criminal action against his assailant. He followed the instructions.

Mr. Langevin recently was awarded a $16,000 retroact fee settlement by the workmen's compensation board.

No Name

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Owners of vans and light trucks under gross vehicle weight of 18,000 pounds no longer need put their names and addresses on the sides of their vehicles.

Transportation Minister John Rhodes said Thursday that the government, although it has not advertised the switch, has made effective the legislation covering identification on light trucks. The law was changed last year.

Some people who use their half-tons for campers have complained of the necessity of painting their vehicles, Mr. Rhodes said.

Nixon's Back Taxes Unpaid by June 30

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon still had not paid by the end of June all of the delinquent taxes he promised a pay, congressional impeachment investigators said today.

The House of Representatives Judiciary committee said Nixon pledged April 3 to pay $432,787 in delinquent taxes. But by June 19, he had given the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) only $264,164, leaving a balance of $148,081.

The committee disclosed the status of Nixon's back-tax payments in the 185-volume of material it released in connection with its impeachment inquiry.

The committee also confirmed earlier reports that the IRS assessed Nixon a five-per-cent negligence penalty amounting to $13,557 for his tax years 1970, 1971 and 1972.

The agency told Nixon he owed the back taxes because a $576,000 tax deduction for a gift to the U.S. of his vice-presidential papers in 1969 was disallowed, partly because the donation did not meet a legal deadline for such gifts.

The committee noted Nixon was under no obligation to pay $148,080 in back taxes for 1969 because the legal time limit for paying deficient taxes has expired. But it was noted that he White House had announced he would pay them.

The IRS stated June 19 that Nixon had paid $264,766 in delinquent taxes for 1970-1972, but still had not made the 1969 payment.

The committee noted, however, that IRS had made contact with agents of the president and reported that "it is the impression of the IRS that the president is considering the payment of the 1969 deficiency."

The committee also confirmed other reports that fiscal papers in 1969 was disallowed, partly because the donation did not meet a legal deadline for such gifts.

Students Had Narrow Escape

LONDON (CP) — Clive Card, jr. leader of a party of Canadian archeological - students, told Thursday of how they "danced near got it" during a Turkish bombing and machine-gun raid in Cyprus as they were trying to make their way to the safety of a British base.

"That was the worst experience of the whole summer," he said of the harrowing four days in which they first outdoor dweller in the middle of the day, country schoolhouse ,and then embarked on a desperate journey to the base at Dhekelia, about 20 miles away, on the southern coast.

The party, all Ontario residents of Brock University in St. Catharines, finally was flown to Britain Wednesday night by the Royal Air Force. They are awaiting the peace and return of a friend's home in the English countryside for a few days before they go to their own homes.

Aside from Card, 25, of Toronto, the party includes Raymond Carroll, 21, Port Colborne; Catherine Rose, 21, Thunder Bay; John Gray, 20, Toronto; and Constantine (Gus) Lagakos, 23, of Toronto.

They were working with a party that also included eight Americans and a French and German student at "digs" in the ancient Roman town of Salamis on the southern coast when the trouble started Saturday near.

With the Saturday invasion, things warmed up and the students took shelter in the basement of the schoolhouse where they were billeted although Card and others went out a couple of times to get food and water.

"The Cyprus national guard," made up of Greek-Cypriots, were really great—they said they took after us and made sure we had water and things."

The first bombs Saturday morning "the whole place exploded."

The area had long been designated as Turkish-Cypriot and the fighting grew worse "the Greeks gave the Turks 'every thing they had'".

From then, with the Canadians watching, the first of three terrifying Turkish air raids threw everyone into panic.

Would Boost Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boosting up to $15,000 a year is needed to attract doctors, dentists, veterinarians and osteopaths into the United States armed services here, been asked by a House of Representatives committee.

Big Firms Claim Power Costs High

TORONTO (CP) — Officials representing major industrial power users complained to the Ontario Energy Board Thursday that they are being overcharged by Ontario Hydro.

The board, considering an application by Hydro for increases averaging 15 per cent in its wholesale power rates, was told Hydro would not make possible contracts with industries similar to those allowed by most other public utilities.

W. K. Voss, a vice-president of Ontario Paper Co., Thorold, Ont., and the Quebec North Shore Paper Co., Baie Comeau, Que., said the power cost of a ton of newsprint produced at Thorold is $5 compared with the $3.39 paid Hydro-Quebec for service to the Baie Comeau mill.

Mr. Voss was one of a four-member panel from the Association of Direct Customers of Ontario Hydro presenting the board's hearings.

Outlook Bright

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States commerce department shares an optimistic view of Canada's economic prospects this year.

"The Canadians appear to have ample justification for their belief that their real growth will exceed that of any other developed nation in 1974," the department's monthly Commerce Today reports.

Immigration Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration to Canada rose by 72 per cent in the first quarter of 1974 when 45,302 newcomers arrived in this country compared with 26,286 during the same period in 1973, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

During the first quarter of 1973, immigration was 12 per cent higher than the corresponding period of 1972 when there were 23,567 newcomers.

The United States again led the countries as a source of immigrants-6,178 newcomers, up from 4,091 during the corresponding 1973 period. England was second with 4,651, or 1,534 during the earlier period.

Portugal, 3,247 from Hong Kong, 2,763 from India, 2,321 from Jamaica, 1,729 from the Philippines and 1,543 from Greece.

We make one in your size.

At a time when huge cars don't make sense, huge station wagons make even less sense.

What does make sense is the smaller station wagon. And Toyota has one that's just your size. Your Size No. 1: Corolla

This is the wagon version of the Corolla that's made Toyota synonymous with quality and economy.

It's powered by a 1600 cc, 88 hp (net) engine that posted over 25 mpg (imp.) in the latest EPA gas mileage study.*

And while it's deceptively small on the outside, it's surprisingly big on the inside. In fact, unless you're crazy about lugging 4 x 8 ft. sheets of plywood everywhere you go, it could have all the room you need.

Plenty, anyway, for lots of groceries, suitcases, sleeping bags, water-ski equipment and all the stuff you take to the cottage.

Your Size No. 2: Corona

To our way of thinking, the all new Corona wagon meets the big car owner half way.

It has been re-designed and re-engineered to give you more room, more power and more comfort. Heavier construction, a longer wheelbase and radial ply tires give you better handling and stability under a variety of conditions and loads.

And Corona's reliable 2000 cc overhead cam engine packs that extra punch you may need for the long haul.

And to help you take the long haul in comfort, fully reclining front bucket seats, power front disc brakes and a rear window defroster are standard. Plus a choice of 4-speed manual transmission or the new, optional 3-speed bendiess automatic.

Your Size No. 3: Mark II

If there's such a thing as a big little wagon, this is it. The Toyota Mark II.

It's big enough to sleep two people in the wide, roomy cargo area. It's big enough to carry all the camping gear for a family of four needed to still leave room for the family.

And it's big enough to carry a family around in style and comfort. Standard comforts, for example, include fully reclining bucket seats, a rear window defroster, power front disc brakes, power steering and AM/FM multiplex radio.

And a six cylinder, overhead cam engine to make sure that, even when you're overloaded, you won't be under-powered.

One-Day Trip

Peacocks to Pantaloons, Lots to See West of Belleville

You can fill a summer's day with a variety of things to do if you travel west from Belleville.

How to arrange your schedule depends on your family's preferences and the amount of time you want to spend. Here are a few of the points of interest you can visit on your trip, not necessarily in order.

If you feel like a swim first thing, head for Presqu'ile Provincial Park, south off Highway 2, west of Brighton.

The stretch of white sand beach is the cleanest it has been for years, and the water pure and pollution-free, as a result of efforts by the Ministry of Natural Resources to restore the good name of the park.

Uncrowded and perfect for picnicking, Presqu'ile Park also offers daily hikes conducted by naturalists who describe the flora and fauna of the area. The times these walks are given is posted at the main gate.

Another feature of the park is the Natural History Museum, open every day from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Displays of wildlife and the aquarium are on exhibit for children and parents to enjoy.

The cost of visiting the park in the same as it is for any provincial park: $1.50 per car.

$15.00 per week is charged for trailers and 75 cents for children.

Along with an afternoon tea of dainty homemade cakes, you'll take a tour of the stately old mansion which is now a hotel and restaurant. Built in 1862, the house is an impressive example of Georgian-type architecture, featuring rooms furnished with antiques and a high terrace reached by a winding stair.

The spacious lawns and orchards would be suitable play areas for children too young to benefit from this kind of "history on the spot."

The Codrington Fish Hatchery and Game Bird Farm is located about ten miles north of Brighton, just off Highway 30.

Well worth a visit any time of year, the hatchery is especially pleasant during the summer months when picnicking facilities can be used.

There's plenty to see and a well-informed staff under manager Arnold Hames can tell you all you want to know about the fish and pheasants that are raised here.

In the long outdoor building tanks you can watch some of the 200,000 trout that are bred for stocking local lakes and streams. Rainbow, speckled and lake trout thrive in the cool, fed and cared for in continuously oxygenated water, eventually find their way to the tables of successful anglers.

If you're lucky you'll be there when Mr. Draves throws food to full-grown trout who inhabit a stream at the hatchery. So tame that they never swim away although the stream is unfenced, the fish jump and vie with each other for the food in a lively show of flashing color.

In the fenced areas you'll see some 15,000 ring-necked pheasants reared at Codrington before they are shipped to provincial hunting areas such as Sibbald Point and Gananoque.

There are several other varieties of wild and domestic birds, among them golden and Lady Amherst pheasants, and ducks in cages, and Canada geese whose wings are clipped and who strut majestically around the grounds.

But none of the birds can compete for attention with the male peacock, strutting in his cage with an outspread tail. (Be sure you have color film in your camera!)

Visiting hours are from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Right across from the entrance to the Codrington Fish Hatchery is an old school house now known as the "Chalk Board Antiques" shop.

There are two antique stores in this area, and another one can be found down the Old Wooler Road, which runs to the east of Highway 30 about a mile south of Codrington. This well-paved and pretty road takes you to the shop belonging to Charlie and Alice Nelson, who have a unique antique business seven years ago.

They specialize in glassware and china of all kinds, but are well-stocked with old books, furniture and "any sort of junk," knacks collectors love — which pours into their kitchen equipment and bottles.

Since the shop is on the Nelson's farm, they are most often home and available to open the door whenever you stop by. Mrs. Nelson will be glad to have a chat with you about antiques, for she likes talking to people is one of the nicest things about having a shop.

Coming back to Belleville along this route, you'll arrive at the village of Wooler, at which point you should turn south on the Trenton-Scharbot Highway 14. Opposite the Murray Township Offices, turn left (east) on Belleville and Crewes Road. It will give you a spectacular view of the northern hills, and then after winding under the railway tracks you reach Highway 33. From this point, keep the Trent River you along the Trent River you can make up your mind how you're going to get home — via McDonald Corners, Hastings County Road 22, or by remembering the snow gravel road of your own finding, leaving the asses behind you.

Among the treasures at Nelson's Antique Shop are these lacy undergarments of another era, being held up here by Alice Nelson, who has a remarkably large collection of glassware and china as well as clothes, books and f urniture. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davis

Davis — Lohnes

The June 22 wedding of Desiree Dianne Lohnes and Gordon Carl Davis took place in Frankford United Church in a ceremony performed by Rev. R.C. Brown.

SHARON ELIZABETH CAMERON, (nee: Anderson) graduated from Trent University in Peterborough with a Bachelor of Art Degree, with honours in Psychology and Sociology. Mrs. Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield J. W. Anderson, is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School and Algonquin College of Applied Arts and Technology.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohnes of Frankford and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Davis of Tweed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Elizabethan style organza gown, trimmed with lace at the ruffled neckline and with leg-o-mutton lace sleeves and a chapel - length train caught at the waist by a butterfly bow. Her four - tier veil fell from a rhinestone-studded tiara and her bouquet was of pink roses, carnations daisies and baby's breath. She wore a brooch belonging to her great-grandmother.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister Carla Lohnes, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister Virginia Burley and Elizabeth Finkle. They all wore mauve and pink flowered Scottie gowns and carried mauve parasols with satin trim and wore white roses in their hair.

Flower girl Debbie Scott wore a mauve dress and carried a nosegay of mauve roses and pink roses.

The groom's brothers were his attendants. Robert David was best man, David Davis was usher and John Davis was ring bearer.

After a reception at the Glen Miller Club House, the newly-married couple travelled to the west coast on their honeymoon. They now live in Belleville.

Proud as a...

Probably the vainest and most d isdainful bird in the Codrington Game Bird Farm collection, the male peacock refused to spread his magnificent tail feathers for the camera, and instead perched on a branch and called for his mate with ear-shattering squawks. In nearby cages there are families of pheasants, ducks and geese.

(... an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

Business news is most often called advertising . . . but not always. "Around Town", a new Intelligencer feature will offer a different slant on the local business world, taking readers behind the scenes . . . and sales . . . of city retailers

"Around Town" will appear on our women's pages Thursdays and Fridays, and will emphasize a variety of firms. Lana Robinson, former Montreal Gazette women's editor and now Loyalist College's public relations instructor, will report on what's new in Belleville business.

Buyer Protection That's Real

Ainsworth's Kar-Mart at 326 North Front St., is an American Motors dealer. They sell Gremlins, Hornets, Matadors, Javelins, Ambassadors and of course - Jeeps. And when you buy one, Ainsworth says George Booth. And a free booklet from the Canadian Carpet Institute, which is available at Booth's, advises the following cleaning tips: remove loose materials to prevent spotting and staining; pick up surface dirt and lint daily and thoroughly; vacuum weekly with a powerful-adjusted vacuum cleaner designed for the kind of carpet you have; steam restore seasonally or more often if your carpets are so required. And if you're in the market for carpet, two years are required. And if you're in the market for carpet, go see the people at Booth's.

This week we'll continue with more carpet care tips from the people at Booth's, "on the market square". Many people overclean, says George Booth. Local Pride

The Four Seasons Hotel has definitely been an asset to our town — and not in just the fine dining, relaxing and accommodating sense it provides. It has also provided a stage for some excellent local talent in Doug Bennett and his group, appearing nightly, except Monday, in the lounge and dining areas. Doug played his first professional engagement when he was 22. He was a member of the Canadian Brass for five years. The Air Transport Command Band for seven years, and now the Four Seasons. He sings at Lions Secondary School. In fact, the two other members of his group, drummer Bob Perry and bassist Graham Lind, are former students of Doug's who graduated this year. That's pretty high praise from one who's taught, and also says why he likes to when you're treating yourself and your friends to the Bay Buffet, or the Terrine Lounge or Sidney Bacon, remember that the music as Doug says is "definitely home-grown". And now you can hear the trio Sunday nights too. From 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

A Customer Testimony

I asked a customer of Jean Smith's West Wind Boutique in Actinolite for a description of Jean and her craft and fashion business. She came through as 'Jean' who likes people and wants to make sure things are pleasing and fit properly. "She has excellent taste which is reflected in her collection of imported clothes and is truly charming", states the customer. Well, that's how one satisfied customer finds Jean Smith. Why not take yourself and your summer guests on a beautiful drive through Hastings County and introduce them to Jean and her boutique. It's on the West Wind Boutique at the West Wind Motel on the banks of the Skootamatta River in Actinolite, Take Hwys. 37 or 62 to Hwy. 1.

Gourmet Gossip

"Canadians are bread and butter people. But new Canadians show us tastes we never dreamed of." This is one of the theories of food wisdom spoken by gourmet Murray Lender of Murray's Foodmaster, Front St. As evidence to his conclusion, he offers the following fact: This year he reserved, on an experimental basis, Eat Garmin cakes which are rated as a bad for diabetics. Just he and Miss Elsie Rhinehart alone have recently installed a new spice rack in his store which offers over 60 varieties, which as Murray says, "puts taste - and color - in your food." Put a little pizzaz into your eating - and your budget. Shop Murray's.

Ann Landers

Loveless Marriage Ruins His Health

Dear Ann Landers: I am a successful businessman in my mid-40s, married to a woman I have not loved for a long time. Our children know it. I have offered a generous settlement, beyond what the law requires, but my wife will not let me go. The last time I packed and left, she attempted suicide and was put in hospital. Her stubborn insistence that she keep me locked into this loveless marriage is ruining my health. Rate can make a person ill and I really despise her for hanging on this way.

I've sent my wife to a psychiatrist. He says he can't reach her. The children are married and live nearby. They have invited me to come live with them because they see what their mother is doing to me. Whenever I tell her I'm leaving, she says, "If you go, I'll kill myself."

Do you see any way out of this? I don't want the guilt of this woman's suicide on my head, yet I am going to leave her one day, regardless. Advise me, please.—D.J.K.

Dear D.: You say nothing about having seen a psychiatrist. Perhaps he has discovered to you that perhaps you are in some way contributing to this woman's imbalance? What have you done to make her so passitive? And why do the children open their homes to you and not to her? Have you unwittingly fostered them against their mother?

By your own admission you are frustrated, angry and filled with hate. Please seek professional help and learn what (and on with you. Then perhaps you will find your wife more reasonable and easier to deal with.

Dear Ann Landers: I travel frequently by buses. Smoke makes me deathly ill. I've been caught so often between people who smoke in the rear that last week, I decided to play it safe and sit directly behind the driver when I boarded the bus at Hancock, Mich.—destination Ishpeming.

I observed several no smoking signs and selected the seat directly behind the driver because I was sure no one would have the nerve to smoke near him.

No sooner did we leave Hancock, when the driver lit a cigarette! I couldn't believe my eyes. He coughed and hacked all the way to Marquette. At that stop, a fellow got on, sat himself next to me, and started to smoke immediately.

I knew I would lose my breakfast if I didn't get some clean air soon. I swallowed hard, tapped my assistant on the shoulder and said, "Forgive me if I suddenly puke all over you, because your cigarette smoke is making me sick."

He gave me a peculiar look and leaped into the seat across the aisle.

I pushed my nose against the window like a bloodhound, looking for a tiny patch of fresh air. The passenger and driver both coughed and hacked all the way to Escanaba, where I got off and changed buses. But I will never forget that driver's name. It made a most appropriate monogram: B.S.

Why don't the bus companies post signs that do some good? No smoking means nothing. The signs should read: Smokers sit in the rear of the bus.—Nauseated in Michigan.

Dear N: I hope every bus company executive who sees your letter will act on your suggestion at once. It within two weeks after this appears in print, the signs are not up, I urge all readers who ride buses to write to the presidents of the bus companies and raise Cain.

Doctors Plan Rural Clinic

BOMBAY (CP) — A 26-year-old Canadian woman and her Indian husband hope to set up a modern medical centre in rural India for their expatriment.

Alice and Niranjan Gupta, both doctors, are currently visiting several provinces to select suitable village for their ex-

Mrs. Gupta, formerly Alice L. Thomas of Toronto and San Francisco, met and married her husband during a trip to New York two years ago. They worked for 18 months in several cities in the United States and Canada but finally chose to settle in India.

"Most probably we will settle in the Nilgiri Mountains in south India," said Mrs. Gupta. "The town of Ooty there has a fine climate and we hope to select a village not far from it."

The Guptas' decision to work in India was prompted by reports that what has come to be known as the back-to-the-village movement has gained momentum in recent months. They were told by the Indian embassy in Washington that more and more qualified Indians now are keen on going to rural jobs.

The Guptas found during visits to rural centres in Tamil Nadu, Orissa, West Bengal, then Punjab and other provinces that an increasing number of Indian teachers, engineers and nurses are applying for jobs in smaller towns and even in remote villages.

"Perhaps this has something to do with the high cost of living in Indian cities," commented Mrs. Gupta, who describes herself as an Indo-Canadian.

She said she is also surprised to find that many of the smaller towns have well-equipped medical centres, though this is not the case in most villages.

The Guptas already have persuaded two Indian doctors and half a dozen nurses to join them.

Widow Wants Reassurance

Any youngster needs the feeling of belonging — the feeling of being wanted by the group. This is part of security.

One way — for her — is him — to feel as if he belongs to Kanasaka, where I got off and changed buses. But I will never forget that driver's name. It made a most appropriate monogram: B.S.

I met a man nine years my junior and he became a regular visitor, enjoying my son, and the three of us have developed a close, family-like relationship.

It finally got to the point where we decided because of the difference in our age we should not see each other. We separated twice at my insistence, but it didn't take long for us to begin seeing each other again.

He and I and my son went on holiday together last summer and had what everyone of us agreed was the happiest time of our lives.

Do you think the difference in our ages would make a difficult marriage?

Gratefully.

Dear Gratefully: Love is a many-splendoured thing! Nine years is a big difference, and you have done a lot of living. But if you can't recognize real love now, when will you?

Much depends on the maturity of this good friend. Marriage built on the basis of a solid friendship can be wonderful, and you are not deceived this time by a physical attraction I'm hopeful of that.

If your heart is giving you a harder push than you've ever known before, if your interests and philosophies of life are similar, you have a good chance for happiness.

At Home

Mr. and Mrs. Bureise Wannamaker will be at home Sunday, Aug. 4, 1974 to relatives, friends and neighbors on the occasion of their 6th wedding anniversary at their summer home, Beaver Lake, from 3-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. (Best wishes only).

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, July 27

Aries (March 21 - April 19) Bold measures will win points for you. Don't be afraid to bluff a little without going overboard.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You'll find you and your special someone are in accord on most major issues. Now put your collective ideas to work.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) The type of tasks you should involve yourself with today are those that you look upon as a labor of love. You'll really produce if you do.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You've made a much better impression on someone important than you're given yourself credit for. Later you'll hear this from another.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) If you seek from the real "inner you," listeners whose attention you desire will sit up and take notice of what you have to say.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Bargaining, bartering, trading or selling is your cup of tea today. Hold firm to your position and sway your prospect with salesmanship.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Not through your own efforts but because of the help of someone close, this will eventually turn out to be a profitable day.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Rather than let a situation flounder that another has muddled on, take charge of things yourself and handle it your way.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're not too sure of yourself! In a few ventures with people you don't know too well. Take a back seat and listen and learn.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A short while ago, you wouldn't have been able to get a certain person to do you a special favor. Surprisingly, if you were to ask now he would.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're still in a cycle where the good you do is more readily noted and appreciated by your contemporaries. Keep your best foot forward.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You have some resources to draw upon that you're not fully aware of at present. Through another you will find a profitable channel.

What do you do now?

A—Bid six spades. Your partner is showing the ace of clubs. You don't try for seven because his first bid was only a single raise.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding two spades your partner has jumped to three spades every time you speak. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

By Oswald and James Jacoby
"Hasty makes waste" is a fine old maxim that bridge players should keep in mind at all times.

South couldn't wait to put dummy's ace on the queen of West's king. This gave him the first trick, but lost him the contract because he had to lose three diamonds and a club later.

A little thought before playing to the first trick would have told South that he had a sure club loser and that if anything he wanted to keep East from ever gaining the lead. After that thought he could have let West hold the first trick.

West would continue hearts. South would win the second heart and discard a club. Then he'd start play two rounds of trumps and stop so as to leave a trump entry to dummy. Three rounds of clubs would come next. He would ruff the third; go to dummy with dummy's last trump; discard a diamond on the 13th club and finally lead a diamond toward his king.

This would give him an overtrick if East held the ace, but with that card working comfortably in the West hand, South couldn't but make his contract. That is certainly a lot better than going down.

Neuralgia's Root Is Outside Nerve

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you explain just what neuralgia is? What is the treatment? How long does it last? Can it cause insanity? Does it happen mostly to the elderly?—Mrs. A.M.S.

I've gathered that a good many folks don't know what neuralgia is, and don't know why it is not the same as neuritis.

Both, of course, are painful, both have to do with nerve pain. The difference is this: Neuritis is infection of a nerve; the nerve itself is diseased.

Neuralgia differs in that the nerve itself is not diseased, but is affected from some condition outside the nerve. One common form is sciatica, in which the sciatic nerve is painful because of pressure on the root of the nerve. Although the pain of sciatica is felt mostly in the backs of the upper legs, and sometimes in the buttocks or lower hip region, the trouble originates at the spine where the sciatic nerve exits from the spinal column.

Other forms of neuralgia are tic douloureux, in which a facial nerve is affected, and intercostal neuralgia, in which nerves in the region of the ribs. This can follow an attack of shingles.

Neuralgia does not cause insanity; neither does it happen mostly with the elderly. It can develop at any age. Treatment involves correcting the cause. And, sad to say, the cause in some instances is very hard to track down and to correct. The way in which the treatment is primarily devoted to controlling the pain by drugs or by relieving the nerve, or by powerful medication.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was away but a friend said she read about sugar being used in cave bed sores. My partner has several very stubborn bed sores on her leg but she is very short for her years. If. This seems to be her only failing. I would like very much to help her.—Mrs. J.S.

Granulated sugar is an old-fashioned treatment for skin infections (bed sores being a form of ulcer). It is sprinkled on the ulcer, then covered with a tight sterile bandage. It should, if used, be applied daily.

The sugar is an irritant but apparently causes healing changes that help to heal up in some cases. I cannot guarantee it, but have seen it work, so it is worth trying.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote to Mrs. J.C.L., "No, Kleenex is not 'an amphetamine pep pill.'" Well, what is it?—Mrs. H.R.S.R.

Chemically, it is methylphenidate hydrochloride, which I imagine tells you nothing—except that it is entirely different chemically from amphetamines. It's a "psychic energizer."

Amphetamines are a medical classification known as "anorexiants" that get their name from their fruit of being appetite suppressants.

Incidentally, that's why amphetamines have been used as "diet pills," but the accompanying nervousness is one of the big reasons (although not the only one) that they are dangerous for that purpose.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am an elderly woman with a mild case of hemorrhoids, and being a little constipated I found that my taking a teaspoon of milk of magnesia mixed with five ounces of prune juice every morning before breakfast keeps the stool soft and moving comfortably.

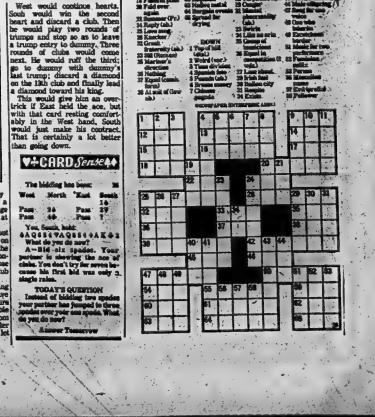
I have been taking this for more than a year now and feel good but would like to know if it is harmful.—I.D.

No, it is not harmful. And I want to add that avoiding constipation is about the most important rule there is for preventing hemorrhoids from becoming worse.

It Was A Record

COLCHESTER, England (CP) — Shackleton Labrador de Lara walked out of a supermarket here with 187 different items and a trolley. "This is the largest number of items ever recorded," said a spokesman for the supermarket," said proprietor Jean Dutton in Leeds. The goods were worth a total of £24 ($56) and Mrs. de Lara was fined £12 ($28) plus costs.

He'd Change Tactics



SHEFFIELD, England (CP) — The Bishop of Sheffield says he now suggests that women who have difficulty in bed with partners may be adopting a wrong tactic. Prof. Francis Kilvag, a zoologist, says that many perfumes are based on materials from male animals and actually make a rapes powerful impression on women than on men.

Young Musicians are Learning At Roblin Lake Camp Setting

AMELIASBURGH — Close to 100 young people have spent the last week in harmony on the shores of Roblin Lake here.

The harmony is audible. So is much else that makes for the sounds of music.

The youthful gathering is the class of '74 at the annual music camp the Salvation Army has been operating here for the past 11 summers.

Music is inseparable from the Army's image. And, if this camp is any indication, it's a tradition that's not about to diminish in freshness.

To all, 95 students have registered at the week-long study session — the heaviest enrolment on Camp records.

It's a heartening turnout for the Army, since it signifies an ongoing interest that will help people fill musicians of the future.

The students — from children to teenagers — come from Salvationist families around east-central Ontario, a Salvation Army territorial division reaching from Oshawa to Kingston and north of Peterborough.

All have enrolled voluntarily, not because of family pressure, believes Jim Ferris, the Parry Sound bandsman who is camp music director. This means they have a natural incentive to learn and take readily to the camp's intensive music curriculum.

It's one reason why some youngsters can show up with newly-purchased instruments, without any knowledge of music and leave a week later practised in musical scales and playing some basic band parts.

"It's quite an accomplishment for these youngsters. But they're keenly interested — which means they have all that's necessary."

But the core secret of such achievement lies with the camp's training staff. Mr. Ferris heads a team of 20 instructors who work throughout the day with the budding musicians.

Drawn from the Army's band units in various communities, they head classes that range from musical basics to advanced theory for the older students.

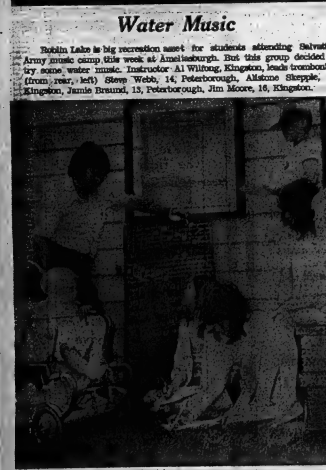
This year too, there's an added emphasis on vocal training. For the first time, choral students outnumber those involved with band music.

One reason for such sudden upsurge, surmises Mr. Ferris, could be the recent turn of the Army's music to more contemporary sounds with the production of stage shows involving young people.

The public already has had a chance to hear some of the results of this year's camp. Wednesday night the students staged a concert at Zwick's Island.

There'll be another chance this weekend before the camp concludes.

Saturday a final concert will be staged at Roblin Lake at 2.30 p.m. The public is invited.



A Sound of Raised Voices

Heavy enrolment in Roblin Lake music camp this year also includes biggest turnout on record of young people interested in vocal music. Some 50 students here massed into single choir by director Norm Kitney — are taking voice lessons this week at Ameliasburgh.

Water Music

Roblin Lake is big recreation asset for students attending Salvation Army music camp this week at Ameliasburgh. But this group decided to try some water music. Instructor Al Wilford, Kingston, leads trombonists (from rear, left) Steve Webb, 14, Peterborough, Alistone Skepple, 13, Kingston, Jamie Braund, 13, Peterborough, Jim Moore, 16, Kingston.

Babysitting on the Side

Informal family note is struck during one study session at Roblin Lake camp. Phil Routly, instructor from Kingston, babysits eight-month-old son, David, while giving youngsters music lesson.

Music in the Air

With spacious grounds music lessons at Salvation Army camp in Ameliasburgh are not always confined indoors. Groups, like these young brass players, often continue instruction in fresh air on shores of Roblin Lake.

Province Rules City Must Pay For Land Use

From the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — The Land Compensation Board has awarded the Belleville Livestock Sales Company $45,500 in an easement claim against the city of Belleville.

The corporation compensated the Livestock Sales Company with $11,400 when the property was expropriated in September, 1971 for a storm sewer project.

In the 25-page statement released by the board today, the Belleville Livestock Sales Company will receive $38,300 for the market value and an additional $9,700 for disturbance damages.

The hearing was held in April before board vice-chairman R.M. Grant, L. A. Lalonde, and E. H. Reed.

The property which was expropriated by Belleville is on the east side of North Front Street at North Park Street.

The board's award is close to a precautionary budget estimate made earlier by city treasurer Frank Morrell.

Mr. Morrell said today an allowance of $50,000 was placed in the city's capital budget to offset the cost of the award.

Motorcycle Hits Main

Road construction on Victoria Ave. took its toll last night when two people were sent to Belleville General Hospital after the motorcycle they were riding struck a watermain protruding in the street.

Robert Wayne Pattison, 18, of 25 Joyce Cres. and Patricia John, 18, of 29 Smith Cres. were southbound on Victoria Ave. about 11.45 p.m. when they struck the watermain at William St. They were treated at the hospital and released. The motorcycle was a write-off.

Theatre August Passes Pleasant Evening

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

The subject matter ranged from Smellies the Bear to life and sex in a senior citizens' home. This potpourri of theatrical fare was available to theatre goers last night as Theatre August presented the first of three productions at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

Four one-act plays made up the package produced by John McNair which premiered last night to receptive audiences. It runs tonight and tomorrow night.

The first of the four plays, Death Knocks by Woody Allen, was a comedy directed by Brian Duffy. From the start where the black-caped figure representing Death comes in through the theatre window to the end, the laughs are fast and well-paced.

But then again anything by Woody Allen would have to have more than a few laughs. Death, as played by Stewart Arnott and the dress merchant he is to bring back with him, played by Steve Dean, worked well with each other, rebounding lines and playing the laughs for all they were worth. The exaggerated Yiddish accents of both complemented the humor.

The story line is a simple one, dealing with the fantasy of an inept black-caped night visitor who unexpectedly pops into the room of a dress merchant to take him with him and winds up getting beaten at his own game.

To give away any more about the plot would spoil the fun for those yet to see it but the subject matter isn't that deadly earnest as one might expect from the title.

A word should be mentioned about the costumes by Ann Roy and Debbie Callahan as well as the makeup by Sheila McCrystal. The figure of Death garbed in black tights, cape and even black finger nail polish made for quite an impressive sight, adding to the comedic effect of the piece.

And now to the second of the four plays, with the title of Sir, Cold Cans and Coffin which pretty well tells it all.

The play, by Canadian playwright Chris Johnson takes place in a room in a senior citizens' home.

One of the residents, John, played excellently by Greg Hunter, tells his companion, Albert, played quite well by John Steadman, that he wants to run away. A physical immobility both because of his age and confinement to a wheelchair.

He says to Albert, "It's light outside and I shouldn't be in the dark. I want to go in the light." But Albert is secure where he is and determined to become young again, dropping a year off his age every time he mentions it.

John is told by Albert that he can't run away. "You're locked in," he tells him. But it seems both are locked in. John to his wheelchair and Albert in a mind that sees him as a young man, with the same sexual prowess.

A chance to prove his youthfulness is provided but the ultimate outcome makes for some bittersweet moments with a tinge of sadness. John Steadman ably handles his role at this point, which could easily be overplayed and produce quite maudlin results.

The third piece of the four-sided presentation was The Lonely the Bear Solve, adapted by Linsey Hallam from a short story by Gary Snyder.

Miss Hallam calls her adaptation a new slant on the ecology problem and agrees with one of the cast members in it, Ann McDonell in calling it a "neo-classical pseudo farce."

The impact of this experimental piece is in its visual presentation, with suitable lighting backdrops by Lewis Jourard and Richard Hanley. The message is an ecological one.

The final production is Children's Hour, in hospital with the light, sarcastic type presentation of Theatre August, this too is comedic with dramatic overtones.

However, the subject matter may be a bit heavier than the rest of the program and the actors' expressions seem a bit broader and expansive than necessary.

The story concerns itself with a fastidious bank manager and his short-tempered but diligent clerk. Steve Rose plays the long suffering clerk ably, while John Wennemuis is the obsessive, obsessed and seedy manager who is eager to impress the shareholders about to make a "deputation" to his bank for it's 125th anniversary, but eventually finds things aren't going his way.

All in all, a fine afternoon for a summer night. The humor is mostly light, the mood ranges from the surrealistic to the poignant and the acting is generally handled quite well.

The production runs tonight and tomorrow night starting at 8:30 at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

17 Rookies in Opening Lineup

Off-season Rebuilding Pays Off For Argos as They Dump Riders

TORONTO (CP) — An off-season rebuilding job paid quick dividends for head coach John Rauch of Toronto Argonauts Thursday night.

With 17 newcomers in the lineup, the Argos surprised Ottawa Rough Riders, the defending Grey Cup champions, 19-3 in the Eastern Football Conference opener for both teams.

The Argos won with rookies at such key positions as running back (Doyle Orange and Ed Shuttleworth) and middle linebacker (Sam Cvijanovich) and quarterback (Mike Rae) who started only one game at a CFL rookie last year.

But Dave Ralmey, a player Rauch said he didn't want on his team a little earlier this month took a major share of the glory in the opening upset before a CNE Stadium crowd of 21,482.

Ralmey intercepted three Ottawa passes, running one of them back 37 yards, and started at centre.

The Argos got touchdown from Orange and Mike Strofolino, a 20-yard field goal, two singles and two converts. Gerry Organ's first-quarter field goal gave Ottawa its only points.

"It wasn't me, it was the defensive team," said Ralmey.

During the Argos' preseason schedule, Ralmey was suspended after being passed on waivers by the rest of the league and having a brief tryout with team-mate Eric Allen.

Rauch said the CFL veteran was through as an Argo, and Ralmey tried in switch to the Toronto Football League before a series of meetings with general manager John Barrow and Rauch brought him back to a Toronto uniform.

Toronto's rebuilt defence was most effective in nullifying the passing game of Ottawa quarterbacks Rick Cassata and Jerry Keeling, limiting them to 65 yards in the air.

The Argos early started getting the ball in the receivers, they couldn't hold it anyway," Rider coach George Brancato.

Zenon Andruszyhov kicked a 30-yard field goal, two singles and a touchdown pass by Orange after Rae, sacking him eight times, but couldn't stop him from completing 11 of 23 passes for 204 yards.

"Rae did a good job," said Rauch. "He needs work and he'll get better and better as the season wears on.

"His first touchdown (to Orange) was a designed scramble. The other to Eben was a short-yardage situation. They (the Riders) had the line stacked.

Toronto took an 8-3 lead in the first quarter and nursed it until they added 10 decisive points in the last 14 minutes.

A key play was the recovery of a fumble by Ottawa's Tom Pukes by Toronto linebacker Rick Konopka. It set up the touchdown pass to Eben that gave the Argos a 16-3 lead.

Rae rolled right and dodged tacklers to throw a 24-yard touchdown pass to Orange in the first quarter after a run by Shuttleworth, a pass to Eben and a run by Orange set up the score.

In the first half, the Riders even had trouble lining up for plays. They were called offside six times.

"When I asked the official about it, he said we were lining up offside," said Brancato. "The whole line.

The Ottawa defence kept the season wears on.

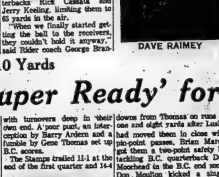
Runs Kickoff 110 Yards

Eley 'Super Ready' for Stamps

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lanky Monroe Eley of British Columbia Lions said he was "super ready for the football game" Thursday night, which was unfortunate for visiting Stampeders.



Eley ran over, through, but mainly around the Stamps as the Lions recorded a 23-20 victory in the opening game in the Western Football Conference.

Eley ran a kickoff back for 110 yards and a touchdown, got the only other B.C. major on a six-yard sport around right end in the opening quarter and destroyed the Stampeders with 112 yards along the ground on 20 carries.

The game featured the ground-bound tactics of Eley against the deft aerial attack of Calgary quarterback Dick Liske.

Liske was operating behind a line ravaged during the game by Calgary coach Jim Wood, but Wood proved himself a master psychologist as the blockers gave the veteran Liske protection and the canny quarterback took some of the steam out of the B.C. defensive rush with some well-executed screen passes that confused the rushers out of position.

The Stamps were the authors of their own misfortune, giving the Lions early in the game at the half. The Lions led 21-20 with 10 minutes remaining.

Besides Eley's 12 points, the Lions got 11 points from kicker Dave Cutler, a converted halfback and a safety touch for Mike Siegle on a snap of wide field goals.

The Stamps got two touchdowns from Thomas on runs of one and eight yards after Lanky had moved them in close with pin-point passes, Brian Marcel got them a two-point safety by tackling B.C. quarterback Don Moorhead in the B.C. end zone, Don Moulton kicked a single and Larry Robinson got a field goal and four converts.

Robinson's five points gave him 1,002 career points, the first Canadian Football League player to pass the 1,000 mark.

Liske, who finished with 26 completitions on 35 attempts moved the Stamps downfield twice in the third quarter on marches that ended with Thomas' touchdown plunge.

The Lions hurt themselves with pass interference penalties that kept Calgary drives alive, with assistant coach Cal Murphy of the Lions taking umbrage at the officiating.

"That's the worst officiating I've ever seen," Murphy said. "It could have cost us the game."

Eley broke the Stamps' comeback with his kickoff return after Calgary had made the score 14-13 for B.C. in the third quarter.

In contrast to Liske, B.C. quarterback Moorhead had problems finding receivers, hitting on just nine of 23 passes for 116 yards.

Eley, who tosses compliments about with all the expansiveness of a miser bestowing a dime upon a panhandler, said that Liske "threw the ball very well" for the Stamps, while Moorhead, said the B.C. coach "was a little tight."

Still Gets Penalty Removed, Leads Open After One Round

TORONTO (CP) — Ken Still had good reason to be happy about a two-stroke penalty he drawn'from his score Thursday, but he didn't want to talk about it.

Removal of the penalty left Still with a four-under-par 67 and a one-stroke lead going into today's second round of the $200,000 Canadian open golf championship.

In second spot were Lee Trevino and Rik Massengale, both with 69s on the 6,700-yard Mississauga Golf Club course.

Still, 39, from Tacoma, Wash., was reluctant to discuss the penalty he received at the 14th hole.

He marched the ball, thinking it was on the green. But it was about 12 feet outside the boundary, marked by a blue line.

Bob Menne of the United States and Phil Grauer of Montreal suffered the same penalty.

After completing their rounds, all three appealed to the rules committee and won. Menne finished with a 73 and Grauer with a 77.

The rules committee said that since the blue lines were "not consistently placed" the portions of the green outside the line were moved which was confusing to the players, the penalties were rescinded "in keeping with the fairness of the game."

LEE TREVINO

When asked lateer to give more details on the action at the 14th hole, Still replied "the less said about this the better."

Still was playing about 50 feet for a par three, not counting the penalty. Elsewhere, he had six birdies and one bogey.

Massengale, 27, younger brother of tour veteran Jim Massengale, had five birdies against one bogey for his share of second place with Trevino who had four birdies.

None of the Canadians in the field managaged to break par. The lowest were Bob Borcesky of Winnipeg, Ben Kern of London, Ont., and Dan Halldorson of Brandon, all at 71.

Trevino's prediction of low scores came true with 51 players at or below par 70.

A group of nine, including 1973 Canadian Open winner Gay Brewer, were two strokes off the pace. Another six, including Bruce Crampton, were at 68. The group at 69 included Arnold Palmer and 1973 Canadian Open champ Kermit Zarley.

Jack Nicklaus was among the 21 players at even par.

Defending champion Tom Weiskopf had a 75.

A number of golfers, including Weiskopf, drove their first shots off the fairway into the Credit River which runs through the layout.

Nine players including Wells-kopf and Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., who finished at 76, had triple bogeys on the ninth hole. Panasiuk had four over par.

The 18th green, rebuilt last year, has a hard surface "like a table top" said Lahren Harris, who had 69.

He said it was difficult to know what club to play on the hole because the surface was so much different than any of the other 17.

Cowan 'Sleeping' on Course

TORONTO (CP) — Gary Cowan, the former Canadian and United States amateur champion who curtailed his golfing activities two years ago, is finding it difficult to get back his mind to playing 18 holes.

"I found myself sleeping out on the back nine," Cowan, 27, said into trouble," said the 33-year-old Kitchener, Ont., insurance executive of his two-over par 73 that left him a few rounds off the Canadian Open golf championship.

Cowan finished two double-bogey sixes in his front nine to go with two birdies before recovering for an even-par 35 on the outgoing half.

"I haven't been playing much," Cowan said, "and this course is difficult to get concentration isn't there."

Cowan, who won the Ontario amateur crown for the fourth time two weeks ago at Ancaster, is one of three amateurs who had exemptions from the Royal Canadian Golf Association to compete here, with 147 professionals.

The others were veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., competing in his 24th Open, and 1973 Canadian amateur king George Burns III of Fort Washington, N.Y.

Weslock, coming off major hip surgery, stumbled to a 40 on the front nine but finished strong to wind up with a 75.

Burns, who has played four practice rounds over the lush 6,-700-yard Mississauga Golf Club layout in the last two weeks, says the key to beating the par-72 course is to know the greens.

"It's not just a matter of hitting the greens. You've got to

Marlene Streit Cruises To Win

SUDBURY (CP) — Marlene Stewart Streit cruised to a 15-stroke victory Thursday in the Ontario women's amateur golf championship with a two-day total of 154.

Mrs. Streit fired her first over-par round of the tournament Thursday, a 78, but she didn't have to worry much about since she started the final 18 with a 12-stroke lead over Susan Wickware of Toronto.

Miss Wickware had a final-round 77 and finished second with a 169 total, one shot ahead of Sandy Easto of Penhill, Ont., who had a final-round 77 and a 54-hole total of 229.

The win for Mrs. Streit was her third in the provincial amateur and she did it with rounds of 68-75-75 over the par-73, 5,545-yard Idylwilde Golf and Country Club course.

Mrs. Streit, a 13-time Canadian amateur champion, broke the course record on all her rounds. The previous record was 74 set by Phyllis Creag of the Idylwylde club in 1972.

Defending champion June Kirkpatrick of Toronto finished fourth with a 233 after a final-round 78.

Best round of the day was a 71 by Jane Hicks of London, Ont., who finished fifth with a 235, tying her with Lis Hoffman of Toronto.

Mrs. Hicks, Mrs. Hicks, Mrs. Wickware and Mrs. Sherk were chosen as the four-member team which will compete Aug. 9-10 in the Canadian amateur women's champions at Edmonton.

Wells Should Help — Payne

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan coach John Payne says opposing coaches Ron Lancaster and George Wells should help the pass rush when the Roughriders meet Edmonton Eskimos tonight in the first Western Football Conference of the season for both teams.

Wells and his defensive mates probably won't know who they will be attempting to stop until game time because Edmonton coach Ray Jauch is keeping the identity of his starting quarterback secret.

Jauch says "It's really not important" whether Tom Wilkinson or Bruce Lemmerman, both veterans, call the signals. Both are "first-string quarterbacks."

Wells, a four-year veteran, was acquired in a trade with Toronto Argonauts and didn't arrive in Regina until Tuesday.

"Most of the teams in the CFL are utilizing two big backs and we wanted to be a little more massive along the defensive wall to counter this," said Payne. "Wells is a physical player who will also help our pass rush."

Wilkinson and Lemmerman also shared the quarterbacking last season when Edmonton downed Saskatchewan in a sudden-death playoff for the WFC title, says they are prepared to continue sharing the duties.

"The big advantage of going this way is that the other team doesn't really know who they are going to face," says Wilkinson. "With our different styles, that can't do anything but help."

Both Edmonton and Saskatchewan have injury problems.

Split end George McGowan, most outstanding player in the CFL last season, will miss at least the first two games for the Eskimos with a pulled hamstring muscle. His replacement will be Canadian rookie Stuart Lang.

Saskatchewan will be without veteran kicker Jack Abendschan, on the sidelines with knee problems. Ralph Galloway and Brian Berg will share the field goal and convert attempts.

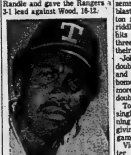
Fergy Doesn't Worry About His Opponents

When Ferguson Jenkins of Texas Rangers is pitching, he doesn't worry about who is pitching against him.

The Chatham, Ont., native didn't worry about facing Wilbur Wood, who leads pitchers in baseball's American League in wins, batted he beat Chicago White Sox 4-1 with a seven-hitter.



"I don't think much about matchups," Jenkins said. "All I want is win. I have written the more money I make."

Jenkins got his 12th victory with Infielder Jim Fregosi's two-run homer.

"My curve was excellent and that was the pitch that got me out of a lot of jams," Jenkins said. "It was a strange game for me in a way. Normally I throw at least 20 sliders a game.

"But I threw almost all curves and fastballs. I threw only a couple of changeups and sliders tonight."

In other AL games Thursday, New York Yankees beat Milwaukee Brewers 3-2, Boston Red Sox routed Detroit Tigers 13-4, Cleveland Indians beat Baltimore Orioles 6-7 and 5-4 in 13 innings, Oakland A's trimmed Minnesota Twins 5-1, and Kansas City Royals nipped California Angels 2-1.

FERGY JENKINS

Fregosi's fourth-inning homer followed a walk to Lenny Randle and gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead against Wood, 16-12.

Jenkins, 13-9 and winner of six of his last seven decisions, walked none and struck out four in posting his 17th complete game in 25 starts.

Bobby Murcer singled home a run in the first inning and George Medich protected it with a five-hitter for his fifth consecutive complete-game win for the Yankees.

Rico Petrocelli, Carl Yastrzemski and Tommy Harper blasted home runs, helping Boston rout Detroit. The Red Sox added Mickey Lolich for 11 hits and eight runs in the first three innings to hand the Tigers their 10th loss in 18 games.

John Lowenstein's two-run double in a four-run fifth inning and Dave Duncan's two-run homer led Cleveland over Baltimore in the first game of their doubleheader.

Tom McCraw's bases-loaded single in the last of the 12th inning capped a two-run rally, giving Cleveland the second game.

Vida Blue pitched a three-hitter and Sal Bando drove in three runs with a pair of homers, leading Oakland over Minnesota.

Jim Wohlford's run-scoring single in the eighth inning gave Kansas City Ka victory over California.

TO JOHN SHARKS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Otto Stowe of Dallas Cowboys agreed Thursday to play for Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League in 1975-76. He will play out his National Football League option at Dallas this year.

Overseas Challenge to Canada

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canada has won the Overseas Challenge Cup in the annual short-range match at Bisley for the sixth successive year, leading the stage for an exciting return match against the crack Australian team at the meeting in Ottawa next month.

The Match here is between overseas teams of 12, firing seven shots each at 200, 500 and 600 yards. The Canadians scored 1,172 out of a possible 1,400 to win by a four-point margin over the Australians.

The two teams clash again at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet in August.

Jersey was third with 1,142.

Stars of the Canadian team were Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., who scored 104, dropping only a single point, and Kim Sorensen of Calgary, who had a 101.

The other individual Canadian scorers were:

J. Marshall 99; R. Best, E. Andrew, F. Laye and J. Cramer, all 98; D. Daines 97; G. Barker and J. Ghesnell 96; T. Dugas 94, and C. Tremblay 93.

The Canadian cadet force was not to be fortunate in its team event, with the United Kingdom cadets beating them by four points to take the Alexander Graham Bell Trophy.

The two teams of eight fired the same conditions as the overseas match, with the United Kingdom scoring 762 and the Canadian boys 758.

Individual Canadian scores: G. D. P. Vampiew and L. Whitnack 98; S. B. Tweedie 96, A. G. Clarke 95; D. P. Butler and C. M. Tutte 94; K. D. Drader 92, and M. J. Hibbert 91.

The military Forces won the cadets for next best at 385, equal with the Royal Navy, Air Command, and two points ahead of the Royal Air Force, Army Training Command.

New NL Managers Split In Debuts, Met Drop Pair

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was one small step for Jim Marshall, one giant step for Clyde King, and two steps backwards for New York Mets.

Marshall took his first step as Chicago's new manager Thursday and fell flat on his face as Philadelphia Phillies bombed the Cubs 10-2 in a National League baseball game.

King took his first step as Atlanta's new manager and remained upright as his Braves edged San Diego 1-0 in 10 innings.

And the Mets started their drive toward the top of the East Division just as they did after last year's all-star break, losing a doubleheader to St. Louis Cardinals, this time 4-3 and 4-1 with the first game going 10 innings.

In other NL games, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Houston Astros 11-3 and 2-0, Cincinnati Reds defeated San Francisco Giants 14-13 and 5-0, and Montreal Expos beat Pittsburgh Pirates 10-3 before losing the second game 3-2.

Led by Willie Montanez and Mike Schmidt, the Phillies collected 13 hits. But Marshall was unperturbed by the shellacking.

"I got beat worse than that first job as a manager in the minor leagues," he said, "I think the score was 18-4."

Montanez hit a two-run homer and Schmidt drove in three runs with a triple and a double.

Rowland Office's 10th-inning single gave the Braves their victory over San Diego. Darrell Evans walked and was sacrificed to second by Dusty Baker before Office slapped his game-winning hit to right.

Jack Aker, in relief of Jerry Koosman, hit Jerry Davanon with a 10th-inning bases-loaded pitch to give the Cards the first-game victory and St. Louis beat Jon Matlack in finale on the strength of Ken Frazier's three-hitter.

Jim Wynn hit a home run and three singles and Tom Paciorek had a three-run triple to lead Los Angeles' first-game romp and Doug Rau's seven-hitter made it a sweep of the Astros.

Tony Perez' two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning capped a winning five-run rally for the Reds in the first game after Fred Norman pitched a five-hitter and Ken Griffey blasted a homer that made it a double dumping for the Giants.

Cincinnati stayed within 5½ games of first-place Los Angeles in the West Division.

Homers by Manny Sanguillen and Willie Stargell led Pittsburgh Pirates past Montreal in the nightcap after Ron Hunt reached base safely five straight times, scored twice and drove in three runs in the six Expos' first-game victory.

Two Records Fall At Canadian Archery Meet

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Two records were set at the Canadian outdoor archery championships Thursday both in the men's division.

Morris Elliott of Vancouver set a record in the field round and the men's professional unlimited division with 590 of a possible 600. His performance eclipsed the old mark of 580 set last year by Stewart Bowman of Cambridge, Ont.

In this division, competitors are allowed to use any artificial shooting device of their choice.

Mona Lippert of Kitchener set the other mark with 548 points out of 560 in the field round of the junior boys' freestyle event. The old record of 546 was set by Dave Mann of Vancouver in 1972.

Elliott finished ahead of Alan Wills of Victoria, who had 570 — three points better than third-place Peter Craig of Toronto.

Two Quebec archers finished second and third behind Lippert in the junior boys freestyle.

Don Warren of Maple Ridge, B.C., won the men's freestyle with 560. Trevor Pullen of Dorchester, Ont., was second with 553. Aggregate totals in men's freestyle placed Roger LeMay of Bobcaygeon, Ont., in the lead with 2,761. Don Warren of Maple Ridge, second with 2,728, and John Horvath, of Taber, Alta., third with 2,718.

MacDonald's Attracts 16 Teams

Bantam Tourney Goes Saturday

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

Tomorrow's first Annual McDonald's OASA Bantam Softball Tournament is shaping up to be one of the biggest and best softball tournaments ever held in Belleville.

A total of 16 teams are entered, with more still on the waiting list, for the one day tourney, which will be played at four diamonds around the city. The fields to be put into use are the Alemlite, Queen Elizabeth and Queen Victoria Schools, and CNRA Park.

As far as volunteer help for the tourney is concerned, there is once again plenty. Don Smith heads the organizing committee, while Garry Millar, Al Vandelet, Lou Desjardins and Pete Hunt will all help out at the various diamonds during the day.

The Quinte Umpires Association, as they did in the squirt tourney, will help out.

The tournament will be split into an A and B division, rather than the unconventional system that was used in the Squirt tournament two weeks back, which saw the losers meeting the winners after the first round play.

In Saturday action, losers of the first game will be relegated to the Consolation, while the winners will shoot for the A championship. Each team is guaranteed at least two games in the tourney, with the finalist in each side playing four.

The number of tournament entries prevented the unique style which was presented two weeks back.

Teams will be drawing in from as far away as Brantford and Woodbridge from the west, and Kingston from the east.

Last year's champs in the tourney, Willowdale, are not in the tournament, but are on the waiting list, should a last minute cancellation arise. Two other teams from Willowdale are entered.

The Consolation winner last year, Picton, is not entered either, with all of that team having moved into the midget age bracket. No Bantam team is operating out of the County this year.

In the officiating of the game, Pre-tournament favorites for the day long event are Oshawa and Toronto Beaches. Oshawa is reported to have an outstanding batter, with that team already having captured three tournament titles this season.

But Belleville Downtown Merchants, the local entry, will have different ideas about that, winning. They want the title badly.

In one of the three coaches on the team, Al Trent, says his team will win the tournament, and the A side, at that.

His team will depend mostly on the strong pitching arm of Danny Vance for the team's strength. Vance, a stocky right-hander, struck out 36 batters in three games at the North Tornto tournament a couple of weeks back, and should be in top form for Saturday.

Second his arm fail, Ward Morrison will be an able backup. Morrison also plays a strong left field.

On the hitting side of the team, catcher Tim Duvall is the leader. Currently hitting a strong .6m average, the brother of Rollins Construction's Dal Duvall, can connect regularly for the long ball.

Bradley Rose is the other power at the plate. He connected for a pair of home runs in three games in the Toronto tournament.

The team has proven it can score runs. They have rolled up 31 in six games this season in winning four of their six games. They have beaten a strong Springbrook team, who are also entered in the tourney, by score of 10-2, 9-2, and 5-1, along with their tournament games.

In the Toronto tourney, they dropped their first game to Guelph, 5-4, bounced back to edge Pickering 8-7, and then bowed out to Peterborough, 3-1.

"If we get some breaks, we should be able to win the whole thing," says Trent.

The Merchants get their chance first thing Saturday morning in the opening game of the tournament, when they meet one of the favorites, Oshawa, at the Alemlite. Game time for the opener, at four different locations, is 9 a.m.

In other first round action, Kingston meets Port Perry at Queen Victoria, Picton takes on West Hill, at CNRA Park, and Willowdale United plays Norwood at Queen Elizabeth. Those games are at 9 a.m. In the 10:5 games, Etobicoke meets Etobicoke at the Alemlite, Richmond Hill meets Bramalea at Queen Vic, Toronto Beaches takes on Willowdale A.N., at CNRA, while Springbrook meets Woodbridge at Queen Elizabeth field in the last game in the first draw.

Games will continue all day at the four fields, with the B championship set for 6.30 at the Alemlite. The A championship will follow at 8:15.

Danny Vance of the Belleville Downtown Merchants Bantams shows his pitching form, getting tuned up for tomorrow's first annual MacDonald's OASA Tournament. The Belleville team is counting on the arm of Vance to help them take the A division of the 16 team tourney. Games start at four diamonds around the city at 9 a.m., with championship games slated for the Alemlite at 6.30 p.m. and 8.15 p.m.

BYBF Hands Purinaettes Second Loss

The Belleville Yardmen handed the Purina-ettes their second loss of the season in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League last night, an 8-6 shading in a game played in Madoc.

The loss dropped the Purina-ettes into a tie with the Yardmen, while the Madoc team has defeated BYBF twice, as well. The teams will meet again this weekend, in the opening two games of the Provincial Women's Softball Union playoffs.

The Yardmen scored seven of their eight runs in the top of the second frame, adding another in the fifth.

Sue Morton gave up 11 hits in taking the win, striking out five, walking none. Sandra Fleming on the Purina-ettes rubber gave up only eight hits, but walked five, and failed to strike out a batter.

Sheila Smith led the way for the Yardmen with a triple and single, while Penny Hughes also added a triple and base hit. The other hits, all singles, went to Judy Grant, Joyce McFarlane, Sharon Alexander, Shirley Gulliver, and Judy Woodley.

Mari Bateman, Jan Bailey, and Roseanne Chapman each had two singles for the Purina-etes, with Sharon Leonard contributing a double. Sue Wright, Jane Bailey and Brenda Hay each had a single to round out the attack.

Printers Shut Out Auger's

Devolin Powers to Win

Devolin Motors used sheer power in their hitting last night in the Quinte Fastball League, collecting 14 hits, including six of them for extra bases, as they rolled to a 7-3 decision over Rawdon 4-Seasons in the other game in the league. Howard and Robert Printing got past Auger-Mee's West, 5-4.

Devolin got four runs in the first inning to get off to their quick lead, adding one to add two more in the third, and one in the sixth.

Eric Hatcher and Jim Horwood opened the game with back to back blasts for Devolin, followed by three doubles, by Terry Staughter, Rick Rombaut, and John Burnside, scoring the first four batters.

Dave Third, a single by Horwood, a triple by Staughter, another base hit by Rombaut, and a double by Burnside tallied the others.

Three base hits and a double accounted for the sixth inning insurance marker.

Metzler finished the game as the top hitter for the Motormen, with a triple, single, and double in two other trips to the plate. Burnside also double while Rombaut had a double to add to his first inning base hit. Hatcher had a double and single, with Horwood adding a pair of singles. Other hits went to Darryl Brown, Rick Hart, and Don Holoway.

Barden managed seven off winning pitcher Ron Hill, but they were well enough spaced as to produce only three runs.

Ted Walkwork had a double and single, with Lionel Gorsline adding a pair of singles. Wayne McConnell had a two for two day, with Ken Hart rounding out the attack with a single.

Hill let ten batters watching third strikes sail past him, while Barden was picking up Devolin's tenth win of the season. Hart finished on the Barden mound struck out only two batters, issued no free ptss.

Thus ends the Supplymen's 18th loss of the season, leaving them in the basement with 2 points. To make the playoffs, they would have to win all of their five remaining games, and the Ellis Hall Harriers would have to lose all of theirs.

The win moved Devolin into a two point tie with Rawdon for the two points on top of Auger's, who took a 3-0 loss in the second game of the doubleheader.

Black Diamond Upsets CNR

The Public Utilities had to score three runs in the top of the seventh inning to edge the Independents last night in the Industrial Softball League, last standing 6 cores up with a 5-4 tie. In the other games in the loop last night, Black Diamond upset CNR, 5-1, while Brooks Bond trounced UIC 16-1.

The Utilities trailed 12 hits to 6s the Independents, although only two of them were for extra bases. Jack Barrette had a triple, while Wilson Bulpit connected for a double, also adding a single. Jay Miller and Dave Middleton contributed a pair of base hits each, while Bob Bogle, Bob Hayward, Murray Smith, Don Bowen, Jim Scuth, Randy Hayward, and Dave Brooks each had one apiece.

Earl Odion had a three hit knock for the Independents, with Dave Skelly striking a double and two singles. Paul Trumpour and Bob Carman each had two singles, with Doug Boomhower adding a double.

Bulpit struck out five and walked only one, while Barrette put in the top of the final frame with none out. He was sticked for all 12 hits, allowing five runs. He struck out three and issued five bases on balls. Odion came on to clean up, not allowing a run, hit, or recording a strikeout or walk.

Black Diamond got seven hit pitching from Ron Hatcman in the win over CNR. Hatcman struck out three and walked only one.

Brian Plumbe fired the opening three frames for CNR, touched for four runs, on six hits. He fanned one and walked none. Wayne Calderwood came in in the fourth, allowing only one run on three hits. He whiffed three and walked one.

Myles McConnell led the way for the Diamond men with a home run and single, with Bob Nell adding a double and single. Bob Henderson and Ralph Francis each stroked a double, while Gene Francis, Jack Francis, and Bob Jones each had a safety.

Jerry Hill had two singles and the only RBI for CNR, while Brian Plumbe, Zane Plumbe, Jim Revell, and Steve Hay all had one base hits.

At Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Tom St. Jules held UIC to only four hits, striking out one. He did not walk a man. Rick Sullivan went all the way for UIC, nicked for nine hits. He fanned six and walked two.

Jack McDonald connected for a solo single for the winners, while Al Odden also had a three bagger. Doubles went to Don Goodfellow, and Larry Bilham, with Lou Bowerman, Jack Ashley, Jim Sales, and Gary Cameron adding base hits.

Larry Potter, of Howard and Robert Printing has to stretch to get back to first base, with Auger Mobile Wear about to lay the tag on him. Potter was safe on the play, and two pitches later scored with the winning run. He was forced home when Terry Pope crashed a shot off the fence in centre field, for the first two runs in the 3-0 win by the Quinte Fastball League. The win was the 13th of the season for the Printers, leaving them only four points back of first place Rollins Construction.

Stratford's John Plays to Bravos

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Life and Death of King John, a Shakespeare play that plays bob with history, opened to shouts of bravo and standing applause in the Stratford Festival Theatre Tuesday night, starring versatile Edward Atienza in the title role.

Shakespeare never let history stand in his way of writing a good historical drama and King John has blood and thunder, battles and intrigues, murder and tender love. Director Peter Dews of England, in his first Stratford assignment, directed it in the tradition of the Stratford Festival.

Stage props were simple and spare, a throne here, a stool there, and a bracier or two for irons for the inevitable torture scene. It was left to Brian Jackson's costumes to set the scenes—blue and silver for France, red and white for Austria, browns and russets with golden lions for England.

Mr. Atienza, playing his ninth role in three years at Stratford, is a versatile actor of slight build and mobile features. The first half-hour of the play seemed to wander, but once he came to the scene in which he denounces the Pope's intervention in English affairs his characterization was set.

It is a play like a great opera, which gives each of its stars a solo arie in which to display the heights of acting skills. Mr. Atienza did it repeatedly, in his grief over the death of young Prince Arthur, and in his own death scene at the end.

Douglas Rain was Philip the bastard, King John's half-brother—though in fact, King Henry II had no bastard son by that name. Mr. Rain livened the first part of the play with his comedy lines, making it clear that bastards were not uncommon in King John's day.

William Needles played King Philip of France with state-liness; Martha Henry as a proper scold and distracted mother of the unfortunate young Prince Arthur and Jennifer Hall was Queen Elinor of Aquitaine.

Young Ian MacDonald, 13, gave another one of his starring roles as Prince Arthur. This young man also has a starring role in the current run of Love's Labor's Lost, as Moth.

Urjo Kareda of the Toronto Star wrote critically of Mr. Dews' direction of the play, but most other critics were enthusiastic in their praise.

"It is a remarkably uninteresting production which the British director . . . has fashioned from this engrossing material," Kareda wrote. "In fact, in terms of inspiration, invention or even simple staging skill, his contribution is hardly worth the air fare from England."

Herbert Whittaker of the Globe and Mail wrote that Mr. Dews' production was in a fashion worthy of the first guest director to ever be born. Tyrone Guthrie at the festival's founding 22 years ago.

"He has the touch which evokes the flavors of history on a bare stage, and turns its high figures into people, its causes into comprehensible conflicts."

Harvey Chaiid, writing for the Vancouver Sun, praised it a powerful and riveting production but Audrey M. Ashley of the Ottawa Citizen said Mr. Dews showed only varying success in bringing the play to life.

David Billington of the Montreal Gazette, commenting that the last few Stratford seasons have seemed wearysome at times, wrote that King John was a truly epic and regal production.

"The play rang with clarions of majesty at every turn," he wrote. "The acting rose to every height demanded by the difficult and intricate text, while the production values were flawless right down to the last fading light over the prostrate corpse of the dead king."

NEW YORK (AP) — Australian singer and songwriter Peter Allen has been granted an uncontested divorce from actress Liza Minnelli, their lawyers said Wednesday.

They said Supreme Court Justice Arnon Bowman granted the divorce after a brief hearing Tuesday. Allen testified, but Miss Minnelli did not attend. She is appearing at Las Vegas.

Allen, 30, told the judge he and Miss Minelli, 28, have been separated for more than a year, which is grounds for divorce in New York.

They were married in 1967, but have lived apart since 1970.

Niagara Peninsula Called Drug Depot

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The Niagara Peninsula was called as a drug depot for some Americans by a narcotics officer testifying Thursday before the royal commission inquiry into the Shamrock Hotel drug raid May 11.

Sgt. Robert Sherman of the Niagara regional police told Judge John Pringle that those involved in the drug culture were "Puerto Ricans and black Americans of a ghetto extraction."

The officer said that Canadian immigration authorities had been told of the problem but he did not know whether action had been taken.

"People are coming into the country and buying drugs here," the officer said.

"The flow of drugs is going from Canada to the United States," he said.

He was testifying during the fourth day of the inquiry ordered by Solicitor-General George Kerr after a public outcry on police methods used during the raid on Fort Erie hotel.

More than 50 regional police and RCMP participated in the raid and at least 100 persons were searched. All female persons were forced to strip and submit to an examination by policewomen. Seven male customers were also detained.

The landmark, in earlier testimony, was described as being 7.2 miles from the New York-Ontario border at Fort Erie and 13.8 miles from the border at Niagara Falls.

Sgt. Sherman said there was no discernible drug problem involving Americans in the Niagara region before New York state tightened up its drug laws in 1973 making possession of some drugs a mandatory life sentence.

The policeman described his part in the raid—he wore a wig and dark glasses and went in early as an undercover man.

Later, it appeared that some of the customers had found out about the planned raid.

Constable Brian Chambers, also an undercover agent, testified he had observed marijuana being smoked openly on the premises on a few earlier occasions. He said a customer approached him and one of the undercover agents on May 11. He quoted one girl as saying: "The word is that the narcs are here."

Gradually the crowd began to dwindle," he said.

The policeman testified, in response to a question by commission counsel Burton Kolbuck, that at no time did he think the situation warranted cancelling the raid.

In his opinion it was a marijuana raid, he said.

Earlier police testimony was that known heroin traffickers and users frequented the hotel and were on staff.

Constable Sandra MacDonald, 23, testified she was one of the policewomen on duty who conducted a skin search of female persons.

She described the attitude of some of the patrons as "excellent . . . they realized we didn't like doing this any more than they did."

Turkish Proposal Brightens Leads

By The Associated Press

A Turkish peace plan was under consideration today at the Cyprus peace talks in Geneva, and Turkey was expected to be slowing its buildup of armed forces on the Mediterranean island.

Military sources on Cyprus said Turkish armed forces there had reached more than 25,000 men and 200 tanks, but United Nations officials said a Turkish troop advance that they said violated last Monday's ceasefire had stopped.

In Ankara, informed sources said Turkey is winding down its Cyprus operation. Resupply and maintenance shipments will continue, the source said, but reinforcements have been completed.

Premier Bulent Ecevit met today with the Greek ambassador to Turkey, Dimitri Costadopoulos, and said afterward the meeting was "friendly." Turkish diplomats returned from major domestic service.

In Geneva, Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros said after meeting privately today with Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes that a "final agreement" might be reached before Sunday.

Turkey's semi-official Anatolia news agency reported from Geneva that the agreement was expected to be signed today.

Today's developments appeared to restore some optimism to the talks which seemed close to ending in failure Friday.

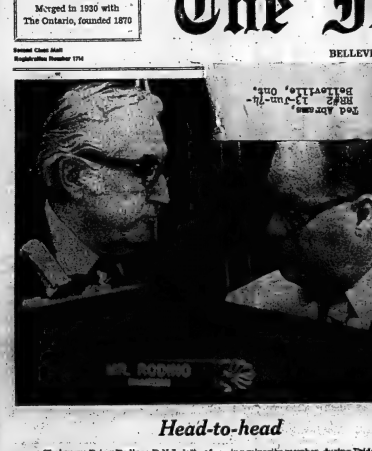
The agreement Friday night by Mavros and Gunes to meet privately today was described by a British spokesman as "the only progress" made so far in tripartite talks designed to end the crisis in Cyprus.

Britain, Greece and Turkey are guarantors of Cypriot independence under the 1960 treaty that established the eastern Representatives of the three Mediterranean island republic countries started peace negotiations Thursday.

In New York, the United Nations Security Council scheduled a meeting today on charges by Cyprus of Turkish ceasefire violations. The session was postponed Friday to await the outcome of the Geneva meeting.

UN sources reported fresh fighting Friday as Turks tried to expand their beachhead on the northern coast.

The Cyprus UN ambassador, Zenon Rossides, told the council of "the grave deterioration of the situation in Cyprus through the continued and flagrant violation of the ceasefire by Turkey."



Military experts and eyewitnesses said Turkey was landing fresh supplies and reinforcements on the northern coast and has doubled the invasion force of 8,000 that landed a week ago.

Today's developments appeared to restore some optimism to the talks which seemed close to ending in failure Friday.

The agreement Friday night by Mavros and Gunes to meet privately today was described by a British spokesman as "the only progress" made so far in tripartite talks designed to end the crisis in Cyprus.

But British Foreign Minister James Callaghan, assisted by the U.S. observer at the talks, told Undersecretary William Buffum, persuaded Mavros to consider the Turkish plan.

Callaghan's delegation sources called one part of the Turkish package acceptable and much of the rest "blackmail." But they said it provided a basis for

President's 1969 Taxes Examined

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the last five weeks a federal grand jury here has been investigating preparation of President Nixon's 1969 tax returns, sources reported Friday.

The jury now has progressed to the calling of witnesses, presumably including former Nixon aides and associates, the sources said.

The disclosure by the sources came after the House of Representatives judiciary committee released documents revealing that the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) last April requested a grand jury investigation of Nixon's tax returns. The president's taxes were not mentioned in proposed articles of impeachment before the committee.

Although the special prosecutor's office and IRS comment, it was disclosed in another document filed this week that some form of investigation is under way.

Republican counsel Sam Garrison said in a brief filed with the committee that willful tax violations by the president could not be covered by immunity by his aides. Without elaboration, Garrison said, "The special prosecutor has reported steps to expand jury investigations."

The IRS request for an investigation was disclosed in documentary material collected by the judiciary committee on Nixon's finances. The daily recitation of pre-presidential papers to the U.S. National Archives.

Nixon's Stock Drops Lower

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon has suffered a significant defeat in the first voting test of the House of Representatives judiciary committee's debate on his impeachment.

Six Republicans defected late Friday night to vote with Democrats as delaying tactics by Nixon loyalists poisoned an expected recommendation to the full House that the president be impeached.

This vote is now likely late today or Sunday.

In its first substantive roll-call vote of its debate, the committee killed 28 to 21 a Republican effort to strike out the first key section of a pending impeachment article accusing the president of obstruction of justice in the Watergate cover-up.

The committee then considered a forerunner of the final vote on the obstruction of justice charge, the first of three pending impeachment articles being considered by the committee.

Committee leaders had hoped to hold a final vote Friday night on the obstruction-of-justice impeachment article and then move on today to the second article charging the president with abuse of power by using government agencies for political purposes. A third article accuses Nixon of contempt of Congress.

But Republican supporters of President Nixon launched a sharp attack on the obstruction-of-justice article, saying it was not specific enough.

After a wearing 12-hour committee session Friday, Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem., N.J.) said he will meet Sunday, 2 p.m. It appears possible the committee could wind up its proceedings in one more day.

Today's session begins at noon.

On the strength of the 27-to-11 last vote, it seems certain the committee will recommend Nixon's impeachment when it gets opportunity.

A simple majority vote on any article of impeachment by the committee would send the matter to the House floor. A simple majority vote in the House then would forward the bill to the Senate, where a two-thirds vote is needed to remove the president from office.

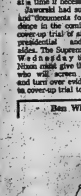
The committee was stymied Friday by Representative Charles Sandman (Rep. N.J.) who said the article was too vague. He tried without success to delete one of its provisions charging Nixon with making false or misleading statements to federal investigators.

The defeat of Sandman's motion came after a full day of argument over whether articles of impeachment need spell out the charges being brought against Nixon.

Turnover To Begin Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential lawyer James St. Clair says he'll probably need a turnover tapes and documents of Watergate conversations sought by the Watergate special prosecutor.

St. Clair, in federal court Friday, lost his arguments against the setting of Aug. 5 as the deadline for the surrender of the material and agreed to begin the process Tuesday.



"I think you're making this thing more complicated than it should be," U.S. District Judge John Sirica said after St. Clair urged the court to reject special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's request for the deadline.

He then sent St. Clair and Jaworski into a backroom to work out a timetable, making clear he would set his own if they failed.

An hour and 10 minutes later, they were back. St. Clair said the first 36 conversations will be supplied by Tuesday and that he will be back with a progress report Friday on the remaining 64.

Associate special prosecutor James Neal said it is his understanding that St. Clair will try to provide 13 additional conversations by Friday and will provide the others when ready, one at a time if necessary.

Jaworski had sought the tapes and documents for use as evidence in the coming Watergate cover-up trial of six former top presidential and campaign aides. The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that President Nixon must give them to Sirica, who will screen the material and turn over evidence relevant to cover-up trial to Jaworski.

Bomb Warnings Alert Britons

LONDON (CP) — A country-wide security test was thrown at police, military and oil refineries in Britain today following warnings of bomb attacks during the weekend.

An anonymous telephone caller is understood to have told the defence ministry: "We are going to hit various bases this weekend—especially where open days are being held."

The alert followed a bomb attack Friday on Luton's Heathrow airport attributed to he Irish Republican Army.

Security precautions included cancellation of an open day scheduled for today at the Royal Air Force base at Alconbury, 40 miles north of London.

The airport explosion came 25 minutes after a caller with an Irish accent telephoned a warning to the Press Association, British news agency. Police cleared the area and no casualties were reported. The bomb exploded in a car.

Th caller used a codeword known to police to establish the warning as genuine. Police sealed off the entire airport and later said they were questioning a suspect.

The wider security alert followed another warning telephoned to Belfast Oil Co. Th threatened a "massive explosion" during the weekend, police sources said.

Scotland Yard ordered extra guards at oil refineries, railway stations, airports and Irish ferry terminals.

The IRA campaign has cost more than 1,000 lives in Northern Ireland in the last five years. It has claimed 11 lives this ain two years ago, and the toll so far is 20 dead and hundreds injured.

Recent targets included the Tower of London, where a woman was killed and 37 other persons injured, and Mastic Westminster Hall, part of the British Parliament where eight persons were hurt.

VD Rate Climbing

OTTAWA (CP) — Government infection climbed close to an all-time high in Canada last year, the federal health department reported Friday.

The infection rate during 1973 was 305.3 cases for every 100,000 persons, up substantially from 1972's 289.8 cases per 100,000. The rate was 308.3 for every 100,000 in 1971, the year of the Second World War when venereal disease was considered rampant.

The department's annual report also said the increase in the number of syphilis cases reported, to 17 for every 100,000 persons from 14 the previous year, was significant.

"Unfortunately, the true incidence is probably much greater as both diseases remain vastly under-reported," said the report.

There were 43,330 reported cases of gonorrhea during 1972, and 46,667 during 1973.

The total number of reported syphilis cases in 1971 increased with 3,065 the previous year.

The report says a vast upswing in holiday and business travel, a more permissive attitude toward sex and new contraceptives such as the birth-control pill and intrauterine devices are reasons for the increase in venereal disease.

Pills and devices used by females may be more effective against disease and may provide protection by permitting more sexual contact, said the report.

He'd Love to Meet Vampires

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Raymond McNally is a professor with a somewhat unusual hobby — he's a vampirologist, a connoisseur of vampires. "If you hear of any vampires I'd love to know about it," Dr. McNally said to me straight-faced, when we met recently.

He explained that by living vampires he didn't mean reanimated corpses rising from their graves at night to plunder the blood of red-cheeked maidens. He meant human beings who because of some biochemical abnormality have literal craving for blood. Many have been such exist-ent," the vampirologist assured me. "I know a doctor who's collected cases for an article in one of the medical journals."

Raymond McNally has a Ph.D. in Russian history, the subject he teaches at Boston College. He looks, acts, and is the professor type, accustomed to look, act and talk with dignity and a discussing passion for the living dead. How did an academic come to be an amateur professional on vampirology?

Raymond McNally has a Ph.D. in Russian history, the subject he teaches at Boston College. He looks, acts, and is the professor type, accustomed to look, act and talk with dignity and a discussing passion for the living dead. How did an academic come to be an amateur professional on vampirology?

"I was a boy," McNally confessed. "I loved monster movies and stories."

His case became acute when he discovered that a colleague at Boston College, Radu Florescu, teaches the Rumanian language and Balkan history, shared his passion for vampires and such. Being of Rumanian descent, Florescu had a particular interest in his legendary vampire-it-all countryman, Count Dracula.

McNally and Florescu found that there was a real Dracula (not Count) Dracula who ruled a part of Rumania in the 15th century and appears to have been, among other things, a bonafide vampire. He is reputed to have put to death some 100,000 people, many of them impaled on sharpened wooden spikes (hence, his grisly nickname, "Impaler").

Transylvania, Dracula's homeland in novels and movies, is not (as Hollywood-fans may have supposed) a mythical country but a real place, a province of Rumania. There is also Dracula, an ancient Castle Dracula, preserved atop a precipice in the Transylvanian Alps.

In their on-the-spot research, McNally and Florescu found this castle. And they also encountered the Dracula curse.

The people around the castle are very superstitious," McNally said. "When we asked for directions they said we must not go there, that the devil lived there guarding a treasure."

His first attempt to reach the castle, Florescu's uncle, who was accompanying the two men, slipped and fell into a ravine, breaking his hip. The next time they made it to the castle, but—true to form—Florescu's uncle violently ill. This he put down to nerves. McNally says he had a curious experience. At one point he too suddenly became ill and fainted—not as Castle Dracula but when he found the evil prince's portrait in a gallery of monsters collected by a 19th century Rumanian nobleman.

Those researchers found that Dracula had been buried in the chapel of a monastery near Bucharest. From time to time he was interred there, the monastery experiencing a series of misfortunes, such as a fresh crop of grain destroyed. McNally and Florescu opened Dracula's grave, saw the altar in the monastery chapel but it was empty, except for a few old bones which appeared to be of ancient origin.

The vampirologists don't think the empty grave means Dracula is out looking for red-blooded victims, merely that his reputation was so sinister, the monks quietly moved his body elsewhere.

Raymond McNally told me that even today in parts of Rumania, the vampire cult is very much alive. In 1969," he said, "I was driving through the village of Rodna, near the Borgo Pass. I stopped to watch a burial taking place in the village graveyard. The bystanders told me that the deceased was a girl from the village who had died by suicide. The villagers were afraid that she would become a vampire after death. So they did what had to be done — and what I had read about for so many years. They plunged a stake through the heart of the corpse."

McNally is the author of a new book called A Clutch of Vampires (published by the New York Graphic Society) which he describes as "the most diversified collection of vampire lore ever put between two covers." It contains a mixture of historical documents, excerpts from fiction, and a discussion of the most famous cases of living dead.

The historical narratives include accounts by a first century Roman historian, a 12th century bishop, a Cambridge Philosopher in the 17th century, a description of a vampire-hunt in a letter written in 1732 by an officer of the Austrian Imperial Army stationed in Southeastern Thurgary.

In the letter, the officer gives this account of the witness account of the opening of the grave of a suspected vampire; "They found a sleek, fat corpse, as healthily colored as though the man were quietly and happily sleeping in his last repose. With a single blow from a sharp spade they cut off the head, whereupon there gushed forth a warm stream of blood filling the whole grave."

But all vampires fall from exotic places like Transylvania. Even Dr. McNally's book is an English representative of the blood-sucking breed fondly known to aficionados of the subject as the Croglin Grange Vampire.

In this charming tale (committed to paper by Augustus Hare in his Story Of My Life) a family named Fisher moved into a lonely, deserted their manor house, Croglin Grange, the two brothers and their sister Augustus Hare in his Story Of My Life) a family named Fisher moved into a lonely, deserted their manor house, Croglin Grange, the two brothers and their sister adjoining bedroom. The first few months in the house passed uneventfully for the trio. Then, one night in the spring, the sister was alone in her room when she saw something move on the lawn outside her window.

Gradually she became aware of two lights." Here says in his sacred account, "which flickered in and out in the belt of trees which separated the lawn from an adjacent churchyard, and, as her gaze became fixed upon them, she saw them emerge, fitful in the dark shadows, a definite ghastly something which seemed every moment to become more, increasing in size and substance as it approached. Every now and then it was lost for a moment in the long shadows which stretched across the lawn from the trees, and then it emerged larger than ever, and still coming on."

The woman, terrified in horror, was unable to utter a cry as the hideous creature glided up to her window until a pane fell out, and then a bony hand reached in and lifted up the latch.

The window opened and the creature came in, and it came across the room and the woman's terror was so great that she could not scream. It came up to the bed, and it twisted its long bony fingers into her hair, and it dragged her head over the side of the bed and — it bit her violently in the throat.

The woman then screamed. The creature fled into the grave with the two brothers in pursuit. One shot Fisher before he died. The other was seen to dart into a burial vault on the Croglin Grange property.

The next day, the brothers summoned the peasants of Croglin Grange and the vault was opened. In one of the coffins within were in dispute. The one was intact, but his lid was slightly ajar, they raised the lid and there — brown, withered, but quite entire — was the same

Dairy Princess Life Is Not All Glamor

The life of a dairy princess isn't all glamor as 12 Eastern Ontario representatives found out at the annual workshop at Kemptville College.

In a work packed day,the girls attended lectures on polic, color co-ordination, and choice of clothes as well as giving speeches and being judged on their poise during a circuit television.

According to Mrs. Diane Spencer of Tweed, supervisor of the Ontario dairy princess program, the object of the dairy princess competition is to "promote a better understanding of the industry".

Chosen at the Toronto Exhibition in the fall, the Ontario winner becomes a full time goodwill ambassador for the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

The workshop has been sponsored by the Rideau Kiwanis for the past 10 years as one of their volunteer community projects.

The workshop was conducted by Diane Spencer and members of the Kemptville College staff: Linda Stagecoll, Basil Wren, Garth Doody and Terrence Meagher. Bees Need Winter Help

BEAVERLODGE, Alta. (CP) — Honey bees don't fly south in the fall and that, in addition to economics has spurred research in ways to keep them alive during harsh winter months.

Beekeeping is expanding rapidly across Western Canada, particularly in the Peace River region of Alberta, aided by increased sugar and honey prices.

But the expansion has brought problems—basically the cost of transporting bees from the southern United States each spring.

In 1972, Canada imported 822,000 packages—each containing about 3 pounds of bees and a queen—while 303,000 packages were brought in last year. U.S. suppliers were not able to fill the demand because the price for each package this year rose to about $18 compared with $14 a year.

Faced with this increase in costs, Canadian beekeepers started to investigate ways to keep their hives functioning and federal agriculturalists continued their research into survival by possible and economical.

Dr. Tibor Szabo, a bee researcher at the federal agriculture research station here who has been involved with bees since he was 12, considered its his native Hungary, said most literature on bees available in Canada says it is not important to pack and protect the bees during the winter.

"This was right for the U.S., but here in the northern area it is extremely important," he said in an interview.

To provide proper winter accommodation, including food and ventilation, for a hive in northern Alberta or Saskatchewan costs about $30.

"But at the end of April the following year, the colony will be as strong as approximately four packages of imported bees costing about $60 without the queen.

Increased Prairie production has created much of the industry's expansion in Canada.

Some 200,000 hives in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta produced 72 per cent of the total 81.4 million pounds of honey and it was estimated that by next year the Prairie provinces produced 90 per cent of the crop of 114 million pounds.

While beekeeping is prevalent in most of Alberta, the main concentration is in the huge Peace River area of the northwest. From an estimated 5,000 colonies in 1950, the industry had grown to almost 70,000 by 1972 and now produces about 25 per cent of Canada's total production.

Dr. Szabo said many more people are attending short courses on beekeeping and his research now is concentrating on rearing queen bees, their introduction to a hive and why as many as 25 per cent are lost when they are introduced.

"This is a great loss percentage to beekeepers considering each queen costs $5 to $6."

The problem of queen loss is complicated and, in many cases, is the result of not being properly mated or reared. He says the breeding season during the development stage is extremely important to produce a fertile, good queen, the better.

While the lease to pesticides in the United States has been cut back 80 per cent, Dr. Szabo said the problem is not as acute in Canada.

"There is extremely good co-operation between the farmer and the beekeepers and we use few compounds. When a farmer intends to spray, he informs the local beekeeper who then just has to move his hives."

Basically, most research now proceeding into bee survival and diseases is leading to the concept of self-sufficiency in Canada's honey-producing industry.

Wheat Sales Near Complete

The Ontario Wheat Producers' Marketing Board's present stocks of 1973 crop wheat will all be sold by the end of September, according to chairman Fergus Young, R.R1, Hensall.

Mr. Young said the board's marketing manager, Bruce McGregor, reported sales have been very brisk since the days totalling well over three million bushels for deliveries spread over the September period.

He emphasized that delivery will not be completed until the end of October and payment to the board will not be completed until that time.

In addition to the 1973 crop wheat, the board sales also include some new crop (1974) wheat and the total of the sales are for export.

Mr. Young said it is hoped the board will be in a position by the end of October and

Ideas Tailor-Made

The steering committee for celebration of Belleville's 1978 centennial has not been what one would call dynamic in its project suggestions.

Perhaps it is just too early for citizens to get excited about the event. But there seems to be a lack of leadership in mustering public enthusiasm for the occasion.

This being a civic election year, maybe no-one wants to risk sticking his neck out and suggest a project that ratepayers would consider unbecoming of an alderman they would want to keep in office.

But time is of the essence.

We lean toward a utilitarian project for two reasons.

Firstly, something like a Centennial Senior Citizens Complex or Yardmen's Centennial Sports Centre is of lasting value to the community, not merely a birthday present that gathers rust and dust and is forgotten after the last glass is toasted.

But equally important, a specific community-designed concept stands a good chance of qualifying for hefty senior government grants, which would make possible a much more substantial project than if only local funds could be tapped.

That is also a reason for city fathers and centennial committee members to be drumming up public response NOW. The early bird gets federal and provincial worms at grant handout time.

One group of city students currently operating under a Co-ordek Opportunities for Youth grant might be able to provide centennial planners with some tailor-made ideas.

Calling their program "Priorities of People", five Centennial Secondary School graduates are polling city residents for their views on community needs.

Response have brought suggestions for everything from Sunday bus service to better hospital parking.

Somewhere in the thousands of answers to be collected is the seed of a centennial project.

The students have set up quarters right in the Front Street offices of the Chamber of Commerce, whose president, George Thompson, just happens to be acting chairman of the city's centennial committee.

The Chamber will publish the results of the Priorities of People study, which should be made compulsory reading for centennial committee members.

Just about any project would be better than a giant cake with 1,978 candles on it, which may be what we're stuck with if we don't get our thinking caps on.

Watch Your Step

When is a crosswalk not a crosswalk?

Apparently, when it's in Belleville.

That pesky problem of "pedestrian walks" has been raised again, with city council reminding the public that the routes are unofficial.

"They are merely guides," points out Mayor Robin Jeffrey, which came as news to Alderman George Zegouras: "I thought they were legal until about a month ago."

So would a visitor to Belleville, who could not help but notice all those white paint across city streets was for more than decoration. If a tourist walked across one of those Front Street alleys and were mowed down by a motorist, what would be the city's legal position?

City manager Wilbur Purcell says that the expense involved in sign posting has been a factor in previous city rejections of the official crosswalk concept.

He also wondered if there has been a proven need for proper crosswalks.

Mr. Purcell, presumably, walks all the way down to either the corner of Dundas or Bridge Street when he wants to cross Pinnacle to get a loaf of bread at Loblaws.

If he doesn't, he's jay-walking.

Bell Blames Control Platform

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There had to be something quite special about Tom Bell, for 21 years Conservative MP for Saint John, now leaving the wreckage of his political life in Ottawa to return to New Brunswick to pick up the pieces, after all this time, of a law career.

It was not just that he has been both Conservative Whip and House Leader, and has been certain of appointment to the cabinet had Tory Leader Robert Stanfield made it to power.

It was not either that after Prince Edward Island's Angus MacLean, MP for Malpeque; Manitoba's Walter Dinsdale of Brandon-Souris; and of course, John Diefenbaker of Saskatchewan's Prince Albert, Tom Bell was the senior Conservative in the Commons.

What was special about Tom Bell, and Saint John, too, was that, while almost everywhere else the New Democratic Party was slashed, there in New Brunswick it surged to overturn the Tories.

The Liberal vote was up only by less than 190, but it was enough to win.

The NDP vote, the way Tom Bell pontificates it, was the big, surprisingly sensible one: less than 1,000 last time to well over 3,000.

If just half of it had gone to Tom Bell, it would have made him a winner for the ninth time.

The irony to Tom Bell was that those 3,000-plus difference-making votes were not really sociable, but conservative, switching to protest against:

1. Robert Stanfield's recognition of Leonard Jones, originally by the Conservatives' choice of his nomination in Moncton on grounds of his opposition to the Official Languages Act being unacceptable to the party. ("It was seen all over the province, New Brunswick," says Tom Bell, "as the appeasement of Jones, and it cut our vote in four ridings.")

2. "The party's "incompre hensible" prices and incomes policy.

Personally, the beaten Conservative House Leader takes the controls program hurt the most.

"But my own riding organization and the Liberals tell it it was 'The Jones Affair' that did the damage.

"I suspect it cost us votes in ridings all across English Canada, but in Southern, English-speaking New Brunswick the price was highest. The average amount runs deep — some people may call it backlash — and will be enduring enough to still be a serious problem when Progressive Stanfield and his provincial Conservatives again go to the polls."

Now about prices and h comes policy — Tom Bell means he personally lost over 12,000 labor people individually, trying to explain the control program ... but of course without success ... and all his pleas to the Tory campaign headquarters in Ottawa that Robert Stanfield make "firm and simple pledge that low wage-earners would not suffer, but on deal ears, and he says he hasn't a hundred times as more and nothing happened."

He feels the problem is that comes policy was as bac as the fatal "two nations thing" in the calamitous 1958 election.

"It can only be," he laments, "that the Grits are sure wrong enough to exploit openings like 'two nations' and 'prices and incomes control' and we're dumb enough to provide them."

So what's the future for Progressive Conservative in Parliament for when, if his ninth time around is the victim of circumstances beyond his control created by the party's campaign headquarters, he is for the surprising and unprized loser?

All those years, 21 of them spent in Ottawa between the time he arrived, age 36, in Parliament as the then "boy wonder," and now at 51, when as people in Saint John tell him, "your luck ran out when a big gaping hole in any man's life.

"Well," says Tom Bell, "I was planning on moving my family (wife, four children) back to New Brunswick if we had won, power, and spending less time, myself, in Ottawa.

"I don't own a home in Ottawa. I have no ties here. I don't like the place — never did, in fact.

"I'll return to Saint John hopefully with my family, cut from under the pressure and the crazy hours of Parliament and into law again."

But after those 21 years — usually those of upward mobility, of achievement and consolidation between 30 and 50 — is it not going to be strange?

Well, there is the next section he grins, and who knows, he might give it another whirl in four years.

Adult Education Program May be Wasteful Luxury

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Dr. Charles McDrown's select committee on the use of school buildings and has come up with another report, its third, and next to final one.

In this particular report it roams pretty far afield getting into education itself rather than the use of school buildings and other facilities.

Specifically it deals with the need for more out-of-school education for adults and others unable to attend in-school classes.

This is laudable. To talk against education these days is a much the same as publicly being in favor of sin. But even that I suspect, in the principle of extending education to adults and of course Dolda is a praiseworthy one.

But it is also a principle fraught with the danger of getting out of hand and becoming a wasteful luxury.

The committee's proposals are vague but essentially it would have a central organization which would make use of universities, community colleges, radio and television and every other possible facility to provide courses ranging from elementary to university level.

In saying that in the program there is the danger of waste, particularly in mind is the history of the development of community colleges.

These were a brain-wave of Premier Davis when he was minister of education.

And the program turned into a wildfire idea.

Within a few years there were c o m m u n i t y colleges right across the province, more than 20 of them, and they were spending money at an astonishing rate.

The government had taken the position that there could be no favoritism, if one area had a community college then all areas must have one. And further it placed the development of the colleges in the hands of local boards, with few restraints.

The result was a boom-boom affair. Everybody rushed ahead. As today we have some ludicrously expensive plants plus a surplus and over-riding of courses which is practically beyond untangling, though some effort is being made to do so.

This could happen with out-of-school education if the committee's thoughts were followed holes-bohm.

As it is now, of course, there is a correspondence program under the department of education which serves some 70,000 people.

But the committee, it would appear, didn't even seem to know this exists.

Canadian Business Investment Keeps Economy on Right Track

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Editor

Thomson News Service

In gauging the health of a country's economy, everybody is relative.

Canada's economic performance so far this year has been less than satisfactory. But it has been stronger than the U.S. economy—and it is the comparison that really matters, according to our government leaders.

As for the U.S., the economy lost ground again in the second quarter. But the April-June decline was less severe than that of the first quarter, paving the way for Nixon administration's economists feel confident that they have put the worst behind them.

(No doubt such comparisons must be of great comfort to people on fixed incomes, or to the unemployed (which is the).

Gross National Product—the value of all goods and services produced—fell by 1.3 per cent in the U.S. in second quarter. That extended the seven-per-cent drop in the first quarter.

While Washington bureaucrats look at the reduction in the rate of decline in economic activity, the First National City Bank of New York says the U.S. is gripped in a "pervasive recession."

The failure of the economy to recover after Arab oil embargo was lifted is viewed by the bank as a serious omen.

The Toronto-Dominion Bank, in its latest quarterly assessment of Canada's business climate, predicts a slower growth in the second half of 1974.

The GNP—personal real growth of 6.8 per cent in the first quarter, considerably less than the improvement that had been forecast by Finance Minister John Turner and many experts.

For the year as a whole, real growth of "at least three per cent" is anticipated by the Toronto-Dominion Department of economic research.

The rate of Canadian economic growth needed to be slowed by such factors as a more modest expansion of consumer spending and an unfavorable trade balance. Doubtless some of Canada's exports have become over-priced, in the view of the bank economists.

But the source of strength that could keep the Canadian economy expanding and outperforming the U.S. is the continued growth of business investment.

Canada will invest nearly $20 billion in new plants and equipment this year, an increase of more than 25 per cent over 1973—despite an anticipated rise of 10 per cent in the cost of capital goods, the bank's economists predict.

What do these trends say?Ty in terms of the world's worst economic problem—inflation?

Some progress may be possible. But inflation will remain a serious intervisional and domestic problem for the foreseeable future.

In Canada, the annual rate of inflation was 10.3 per cent in second-quarter 1974, down from 14.2 per cent in the preceding quarter. But labor increases continue to be imposed daily on a wide variety of commodities and producers—and this fall's price hikes on cars are likely to be the largest in history.

In Canada, inflationary pressures now are coming more from labor-cost increases and less from excess demand and supply shortages.

"A host of indirect costs resulting from recent oil-price increases is also contributing substantially to inflation in 1974," say the Toronto - Dominion economists.

Continuing shortages of many goods for several years have added to the world's quickening of price pressures."

Denture Wearers See Breakthrough

Peterborough Examiner

For years, denture wearers of the world have suffered a debilitating social disadvantage. They couldn't chew gum.

The reasons are obvious enough. Chewing gum gets a grip on upper and lower plates. Then it pulls. Unless the denture wearer is using contact cement to keep his plates in place, stuck gum can be a source of embarrassing fazz pas.

Needless to say, few denture wearers were encouraged to play professional baseball, or attend 1950s-style rock-and-roll concerts or indulge in activities where the chewing of gum is considered obligatory.

In North America, where these activities are legion, denture wearers face a highly restricted social life.

There's now hope for denture wearers who wish more fulfilling lives.

The American chewing gum manufacture has finally come up with a non-sticky gum. Contest the effectiveness and acceptability of the new product, the company has started marketing it in Britain.

The British people are such confirmed denture wearers that they represent a good guine for successful manufacturers of non-sticky gum.

Even with 53 per cent of the British population over the age of 16 wearing dentures, chewing gum sales still run at 17 million pounds a year. If the manufacturers can entice the denture wearers to take up the habit, sales will almost certainly soar.

Scotland seems to be the richest ground for non-sticky gum. The same research as 39 per cent of Scots over 16 have taken to wearing dentures. Perhaps it is the haggis.

Greece's Leader Offers Relief From Harsh Rule

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Constantine Karamanlis is the best prime minister Greece has produced since the Second World War and this could be his prime minister again.

For a man equipped with seven years of military governments, and with world disenchantment of exiled Greek politicians vigorously seeking their return to power, Prime Minister Karamanlis, who has been military silent in exile, offers much new hope.

His reported huge reception at the Athens airport, along the way and in the city, is some measure of the relief of Greeks to be free of the colonels' harsh rule and of respect for a Greek politician who has maintained imblemished his personal and political integrity.

At this time of writing, it's not clear how the new prime minister would handle the toughest problem of all, the future of Cyprus especially with the Turkish government now asking for the partition of the island.

The Greek economy is in good shape, almost always the case with the economies of the military governments around the world, who clamp down on inflationary tendencies and consumer preferences and woo foreign investment.

But then Mr. Karamanlis as a conservative leader of Greece in 1956 and 1963, when Greece was in much worse shape than it is today, also did these things without resorting to the military or dictatorship.

In fact, he has been outspoken against militarism in his country beginning in 1935 when he opposed Premier Metaxas in Greek parliament during the pre-war dictatorship of the pro-German Greek monarchy.

Mr. Karamanlis was chosen by King Paul to form the new government after the death of Premier Sarafis and by the time Greek wartime hero and long-time post-war premier.

Paul, who ruled his own party, the National Radical Union, conservative in spite of its name, won a majority in parliament and ruled during the bitte of the pyrotechnics Greeks seem to like in their domestic politics.

He resigned in 1963 over differences with Queen Frederika, was persuaded to remain to Athens, but resigned again in protest and left for exile again when he was defeated.

The victors were the late Premier George Papandreou and his controversial son Andreas, now an economic professor at the University of Toronto, and leader of a self-styled socialist movement against the Greek army junta which overthrew the elected government in April, 1967.

Prof. Papandreou, who gets a lot of free time on the CBC program As It Happens, has spent much of his time as a Canadian university professor politicking around the world for a return to Greece.

This columnist remembers a late night talk with Papandreou at the CBC called The Don Time Show where he was pitted against the eager professor and lively panel of commentators that Karamanlis was the best Greek prime minister of the 20th century. Papandreou returned in lieu of the colonels' junta.

Crime Count On Rise

The Brantford Expositor

In a world awash with statistics, a rapid climb in permissence in recent years has been achieved in statistics about crime.

The box score, an American invention once confined largely to baseball and other sports, now extends to handily recording and comparing the criminal and types of crime and between countries and cities. At a glance it is apparent which has the greatest amount of lawlessness, safety of the violent sort and, depending where the statistics live, he may be left smug or thankful that his country or community is not as some others are.

Usually it is in the press that such grim information appears. Surprisingly, the newsletter issued from Ottawa by the Canada Japan Trade Council prints a productive list of crime statistics in Tokyo and New York headed Largest city Lowest crime rate. Tokyo, it states, has a population exceeding 11,800,000 — perhaps the world's largest for a city, had 196 murders last year, whereas New York, with eight million people, had 1,680. Tokyo had 981 robberies against New York's 72,761; rapes, 426 to 2,739; assaults, 17,172 to 36,146; auto thefts, 18,000 to 96,240 — and so on.

It would have been technically more accurate to refer to Tokyo's relatively homicides rather than "murders," since not every unlawful killing is a murder in the eyes of the law. Anyway, the comparison clearly established Tokyo as a more likely place than New York for the individual to survive a violently death, and, equally clear, assaulted or having a car stolen.

In last report, Detroit, with about 1,000 homicides in 12 months, claimed the highest figure in its claim to be, in terms of murder, the murder capital of the world.

But some news this week suggests that it is in danger of losing its bloodstained laurels. Detroit had 24 largest cities in Texas, Waco has carried off the title of murder capital of the state for the second time in five years with a 1973 rate of 34.58 per 100,000, double that of Dallas which was in second place. Dallas's rate is put at 15.5 per 100,000. Incidentally, last year 25,000 Americans settled in Canada, more than came from Britain.

Sitting Bull on Stratford Bill

By JAMES NELSON

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) The story of Chief Sitting Bull of the Hunkpapa Sioux Indians and Maj. James Walsh of the Northwest Mounted Police has opened as the only work on a Canadian theme at this year's Stratford Festival.

Walsh, by Vancouver playwright Sharon Pollock, saw color Michael Ball costumes in little role, first produced by Theatre Calgary and veteran they migrated back to the U.S.

Derek Ralston as the Indian chief, Jonathan Welsh was Metis scout, Louis, and J. Kenneth Campbell was Harry, a wagon master.

The story is about the arrival of the Sioux in southern Saskatchewan after Custer's last stand at the battle of the Little Big Horn, and the chilly welcome they were accorded by Canadian officials and British authorities. Facing starvation, where Sitting Bull was immobilized captured and executed.

Miss Pollock's play is a collection of episodes gathered from their four-year stay in Canada between 1877 and 1881. In the telling of the story there are moments of high drama, and the performance had a rapt audience.

But opening night was weakened by the performance of one of the leading players, John Stewart as Clarence, the new recruit. It was beclouded opening-night nerves combined with inexperience, but young Clarence seemed to have it the end of four years in the Mounties as the day he joined boot camp.

It is Mr. Stewart's first role at Stratford, and perhaps his first professional acting assignment. He was a prospector and bartender in the Yukon before he met director John Wood, who asked him to come here.

Mr. Wood directed the collected works of Billy the Kid here last summer, and since then has been appointed artistic director of Neptune Theatre in Halifax. He made good use of the rambling open stairs and platforms of the Stratford Festival Third Stage, the arena theatre which seats only 250.

Music and sound effects added great dimensions to Miss Pollock's play. The march of the Sioux north from the American border was portrayed powerfully offstage, and Indian chants and drums lent atmosphere. Music and sound were by Alan Laing, who has been music director for Stratford drama since 1971.

The theatre critics generally treated the performances kindly and Miss Pollock's play warmly.

David Billington of the Montreal Gazette praised the author for rescuing the obscure Maj. Walsh from oblivion in Canadian history, but said she might have been more imaginative in telling a good tale.

Urjo Kareda of the Toronto Star said the play is a fully professional piece of work, but "its lack of ambiguity or mystery or emotional richness also means it doesn't engage us much on the level of feeling or intellect."

Audrey M. Ashley of the Ottawa Citizen wrote that the play and the production was "a delicious blending of extraordinary talents—all of them Canadian."

Jan Clements of the Hamilton Spectator said Miss Pollock captured the tragic confrontation and some of the emotions, but the audience sees the characters without seeing into them, into their souls and the heart of the conflict.

Rheumatic Fever Could Return

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Over a year ago our son had rheumatic fever. A cardiology doctor said the fever had not damaged his heart. He kept him in the hospital for a week. Then he had to have complete bed rest for about two months.

The only medication he got was aspirin, about 15 a day. After he came home the doctor kept him on aspirin and penicillin and said he would have to take penicillin for the next 10 or 12 years.

Recently I took him back for a checkup. The doctor said he is in perfect condition. My son said the penicillin was causing sore throat. The doctor changes to an antibiotic every a day.

Our son is almost 15. My question is: do you agree with this form of medication? If he is in perfect health, why should he have to take medication for so long? We are worried about the amount he is taking. When we got his medication last time the druggist said we must have a really sick boy, which we haven't. So naturally, that alarmed me. — Mrs. P.M.O.

I hope you realize that your boy was lucky not to have heart damage, because rheumatic fever is notorious for inflaming the valves of the heart and causing permanent damage.

Rheumatic fever is caused by a streptococcus infection. Why it causes rheumatic fever in some patients and not others is not understood, but it is so. Once a person has rheumatic fever, he is likely to get it again whenever he encounters the strep germ—any strep. That is probably the commonest form of it.

And that's why rheumatic fever patients are kept on penicillin for years after the original attack—to make sure that the strep germ won't attack them again. For, you see, repeated attacks of rheumatic fever will cause progressive heart damage.

Your druggist unquestionably knows this—but when your son wanted to change from penicillin, which led the doctor to substitute another antibiotic, that misled the druggist. He is used to continuing prescriptions of penicillin for rheumatic fever but not used to other antibiotics which are used for that only when a change is required.

So by all means continue the medication. Otherwise you risk more attacks of rheumatic fever and perhaps a badly damaged heart.

I have this one thought. Quite often penicillin is given in a long-lasting form, an injection once a month or thereabouts. In such cases. You might discuss that with your doctor. Your son may be ready for it.

But I have one reservation. Why the tablets made his throat sore raises a question. Could he be developing a sensitivity to penicillin? If so, he will have to use some substitute.

Should shoe whether he is indeed sensitive to it, or whether he could switch to best-a-round injections.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother who is 69 loves chocolates to such an extent that we are afraid they will do her some harm. Can they?

She is slim and it doesn't seem to add any weight at all. She also loves eggnog and we are wondering if that would be bad for her. — Mrs. S.

If she were getting fat my answer would be different. But under the circumstances, my advice is to stop fretting about how much chocolate she eats or how many eggnogs.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When a man is 74 would an ulcer on the ankle, caused by varicose veins, be likely to heal if the veins were removed? Would the presence of the ulcer make the surgery difficult?—L.E.

Yes, the ulcer would be likely to heal, and that may be virtually the only way to get it to heal. Presence of the ulcer should not interfere with the surgery.

Watch Out For 'Bargains'

Some fluid-filled baby teething rings are unsafe and are being removed from store shelves now. The rings are unsafe because the fluid they contain is often contaminated. Families owning one of the rings are advised to boil it for 15 minutes. If it falls apart during sterilization, throw it away.

The department found these models to be contaminated: Bedford Industries 3300, 3302, 3311, 3321; Chesapeake 138 and Westland Plastics Model Rod Duck W.P. 156 distributed by Chanjez Inc. Drug Distributing Co. and Norman Wholesale.

Every time you lift a can of beer, that can is costing more than six cents. In fact it's packaging that is driving up the cost of food along with other factors.

Silver lining dept: Pepsi Cola and other firms are promoting returnable bottles again in the interests of offsetting increasing packaging costs. When it was a mere matter of trying to preserve the environment — keeping it clean and cutting down on garbage and trying to reduce the drain on resources! — you couldn't convince these firms to promote returnable bottles or even distribute them in some areas. But mention the magic word "cost" and everybody is back on the bring-it-back bandwagon. And then they say consumers are too cynical!

The department of consumer and corporate affairs of the federal government has announced grants to two Quebec-based consumer counselling agencies.

In addition, the Canadian Toy Testing Council has received a grant of $4,000.

The three agencies counsel and research on credit, food and toy safety.

Canadians consume from 95 to 105 pounds of sugar per year each (although recently per capita consumption has dropped) and only about 12 per cent of our needs are filled by Alberta-grown sugar beets. The balance is imported from Australia, South Africa, Mauritius, Fiji and Swaziland. Under current trade arrangements it enters free under British Preferential tariff.

Increasing world demand, however, may make it necessary for Canadian sugar policy to be reviewed so that adequate supplies at lowest possible prices can be ensured.

* * *

The Food Prices Review Board recommends that a broader multilateral task must be established and says we must not be "confined by traditional attitudes or arrangements."

Brazil, the world's leading producer of sugar cane, which is developing its industry quickly with production expected to increase tenfold within two years, may be the country to benefit.

Australia and South Africa may lose their preferential sugar trade agreements with Canada in favor of countries like Brazil and Cuba if the Food Prices Review Board has its way.

In its report on the sharp increase of sugar prices—up from 13 cents per pound in January 1972 to 33 cents a pound in March 1974 — the board says increasing demand from developing countries (higher sugar consumption accompanies industrialization, apparently) will continue to exert "upward pressure on prices."

Chronic Care Wing Gets Summer Bonus

Marie Joyce, a nursing assistant and student sociologist, has been hired by Belleville General Hospital to work with chronic care patients.

Labelling her work as diversional activity and reality activity, Miss Joyce co-ordinates community resources with hospital needs to bring entertainment and education to the patients.

"I think some of the patients are happier since I've been here although you can't count new accomplishments in concrete terms," Miss Joyce says.

She takes patients for walks, visit some daily to help them relate to their environment and organizes a program of activities.

The brainchild of unit co-ordinator Margaret Cooke, Miss Joyce will be assisting with the program only through the summer. She's getting help from several Opportunities for Youth grants and a band that plays weekly - and a dedicated volunteer worker, Janet Loynes, who puts in an eight hour day nearly every day.

One highlight of the program will be the variety show they've planned for the hospital quadrangle August 4 which will offer live entertainment not only for chronic care patients but for the whole hospital.

Kid Hobbyists Sought for TV

Children between the ages of five and nine will have a chance to star in "Cucumber", a new children's series to be produced by the Ontario Educational Communications Authority.

"Cucumber" originator Clive Vanderburgh is looking for children between five and nine who have an interesting hobby. Each week a child from the province will be invited to be guest star of a "Cucumber" segment to talk about their hobby or special interest. Children selected will appear on television when the series is shown this fall on Channel 19, Toronto and the provincial broadcast network.

The series, designed to be entertaining and educational for children in junior grades, will have a magazine format and feature Moose and Beaver, "Cucumber's" two animals hosts.

Children watching the "Cucumber" series will also be invited to join the "Cucumber Club" — others were known as the "Children's Underground Club" of United Moose and Beavers for Enthusiastic Reporters."

Children who have an interesting hobby and would like to appear in "Cucumber" program are invited to write: Cucumber CIO OECA 2180 Yonge Street M4S2E8, Ontario.

Ann Landers

Dad's Personality Changes

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old with a problem that is wrecking our family life.

Dad had a stroke when he was 19. It left him with a paralyzed arm and he drags his leg when he walks. Mom married him this way, so she is used to it. But the kids never gave his handicap a thought because we grew up with it.

There are seven children in our family and he always used to take us to the park and tell us stories. He was a real great pal. Lately he changed completely. He refuses to climb stairs and mom had to fix a bed for him on the first floor. He is afraid of dogs, loud noises and won't leave the house for fear he might get hit by a car. When my brothers start he threatens to kill them both although I don't think he really means it.

We have stopped inviting our friends to the house because Dad insults them—or us. Mom has begged him to go see a psychologist, but he refuses any kind of help. Is there anything we, as a family, can do to bring Dad back to his old self? He is 58 years old.—Love Him, But

Dear Love: Your dad may have suffered a small stroke. This can change a person's behavior completely. Your mom should insist that he have a complete physical check-up and she should be sure and tell the doctor about the radical changes in his personality.

Medication might help your dad, but he must go to a doctor in order to get it. In the meantime, I think you AR'e a wonderful child to be so sympathetic and understanding.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't get a certain letter out of my mind, although it appeared quite a while ago. It was from a husband who signed himself, "Love Her But Wish She'd Shape Up."

He said, "Yesterday I invited my wife to lunch so we could discuss some financial matters. I'm in the process of getting my wife to hanch just to enjoy her company? Isn't he at home enough so they can discuss financial matters there?

Then he said, "The woman (what a way to refer to a wife!) had on galoshes with buckles. I haven't seen those things in years."

If she wears them, it's obvious that he hasn't been outside with her in quite some time. Or did she drag them out of the attic and put on her old coat and head scarf in order to present a living picture of the way he thinks of her?

That signature at his really got to me—"Love Her But Wish She'd Shape Up." I didn't see any indication of love in that man's letter. Maybe he's the one who should shape up.—One Who Reads Between The Lines

Dear One Who Reads: In my opinion you hit that man's letter square on the head. Thanks for writing. I hope he sees it.

Dear Ann Landers: I need a fast answer. And no lectures or sermons, please. Here is the question: If a woman finds out (from a very reliable source) that her husband is having an affair, does she have the right to go out and do the same?—Sauce For The Goose

Dear Goose: What do you mean by "the right?" Who gave him the right? The answer is no. When married people start to play those games, it just gets messier and messier and usually the marriage ends up on the garbage heap.

Successful Living

Help for Deaf Youngsters

By DORIS CLARK

A. Canadian army to help the deaf is on the move!

A certain attractive young lady is engaged to be married. She is profoundly deaf — and supremely happy. It wasn't always that way. As little girl she was put in the Ontario School For The Deaf by her family and left there. More or less deserted by them.

Then when she grew up and graduated, having learned to read, write and speak, impressed, she was put out into a hearing world — a terrifying experience for a girl who had lived a sheltered institutional life.

Warren-hearted Ron Armstrong, director of the Canadian Hearing Society, with the cooperation of his wife, June, took her into his home. The Armstrong teenagers took her on.

Soon she had to enter the work world. Ron linked her up with the Jewish Vocational School in Toronto, where she learned to type. Her intelligence was high and she quickly mastered the requirements for a typist. They communicated enough to

After the job was settled and she was on her own, she met a man! Well, it seemed they communicated enough to discover their liking for each other. He has a physical handicap (not deafness) but this did not prevent them from falling in love; which they proceeded to do. Now the date is set for wedding bells.

While explaining this whole movement, I met another couple. Both of these young people were profoundly deaf. She girl having learned to use a hearing aid to form and sound out words. The young man was a bit behind her because of a lapse in using his hearing aid during his school years — when he didn't want the other boys to tease him. But he is catching up; and these two will make it.

I could tell you more stories. The story of a woman who drove her tiny, profoundly deaf daughter 17 miles and back every day, to a special school for the deaf, then to a class for the deaf in public school, for several years, until a special bus service was organized from her community.

That mother said to me, "I told myself that if Mary-Ann got to the point where she could speak one word, I would never tell her to be quiet. Now she talks all the time!"

Episcopalians Resist Women's Ordination

NEW YORK (AP)— The presiding bishop of the Episcopal (Anglican) Church in the United States appealed Tuesday to participants in a planned rebel ordination of women not to go through with it.

Rt. Rev. John Allin sent telegrams to the three bishops and 11 women involved, urging them to abandon the intended service in Philadelphia next Monday.

Bishop Allin told the three bishops he was "compelled to beg you to reconsider your decision" to ordain the women.

The three are Bishop Robert Dewitt, resigned bishop of Philadelphia, and two retired bishops, Daniel Corrigan, now of Denver, and Edward Welles, now of Manset, Me.

The women are from eight different dioceses in six states. They are already deacons, the first step toward becoming a priest.

Checks with bishops of the women's home dioceses showed that while most favored changes allowing ordination of women, they would prohibit the women from functioning as priests under the circumstances.

Buddhist Burial Plots Full

TOKYO (AP) — Like almost everything else in Japan, the cost of being buried is rising.

Inflation coupled with this island country's shortage of land, has boosted the cost of cemetery plots 30 per cent and more in the last year, said Shigeo Uchida, who operates a burial consulting service in a Tokyo department store.

"The large, Japanese-style graves, with a tall headstone and surrounding wall, can no longer be afforded by most people," Uchida said.

Japanese-style graves cost the equivalent of $3,000 to $17,-700, depending on size and how close they are to a major city. The so-called Western-style graves in Japanese cemeteries, with smaller tombstones and no walls, cost roughly half. Prices do not include funeral ceremonies themselves, which often run into thousands of dollars.

The traditional small family plots of old Japan, with wooden markers clustered together on land attached to Buddhist temples, are nearly filled. Temples usually reserve them for long-time members or parishioners living large donations.

The city-run cemetery, a 2½-hour drive from central Tokyo, uses a lottery to thin out applicants. Families with unlucky numbers store the bodies in locker-like burial vaults and try again the next year.

Cemeteries have become big business in Japan. Some firms advertise plots on television, others on subway walls. The ads feature the scenery and natural surroundings or other attributes, such as being three minutes from a golf course or amusement park.

To help overcome the shortage of graveyards and to offer a less expensive alternative, urban Buddhist temples are selling columbaria — apartment-like cabinets to hold funeral urns, small cabinets, called reliquiae, are like crematoria because the Japanese traditionally cremate their dead and gather the ashes and bone fragments in a white cloth.

Part of the cost for grave sites and funerals is offset by customary donations from friends and relatives — sophisticatedly called incense money or koden. Grieving families are obliged by custom to give a gift in return, however.

Youngest Bishop

Bishop Sotirios of Constantia (England) becomes a priest presented to Kingston by the Greek Ambassador to Canada with Kingston mayor George Speal. Since being appointed head of the Greek Orthodox Church in Canada in January, Bishop Sotirios has visited almost every parish in Canada. The 39-year-old church head is the youngest bishop of the church in North and South America. (CP Photo)

Greek Orthodox Bishop Getting Around Canada

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The new head of the Greek Orthodox Church in Canada, is not wasting time getting around his widespread large diocese.

Since being appointed in January, Bishop Sotirios of Constantia has visited 33 of the 35 parishes in Canada.

At 39, he is the youngest bishop of the church in either North or South America.

After training in his homeland, Bishop Sotirios was ordained as a deacon in 1962. The next day he became a priest.

Within three years he had filled a pastorate in Edmonton and was moved to Montreal with its Greek population of 35,000—more than a quarter of the 200,000 Greeks now in Canada.

"After 8½ years in Montreal, I was looking for a change," Bishop Sotirios said in an interview. "But I had no idea I would be named bishop for Canada."

He also hopes to encourage more Greeks to take an active part in the church.

"Between 4,000 and 5,000 Greeks come to Canada each year," he said. "In 1968 there were 35,000 in the country, now there are about 200,000 and 97 per cent are out of faith."

The ordination of women has not become a problem in his church, Bishop Sotirios said. The admission of women to local parish councils had helped lessen their desire to serve in the church's upper echelons immediately.

The archdiocese of North and South America is divided into 11 dioceses—eight in the United States and one each in Canada, Mexico and South America.

He intends to introduce Canadians to programs being started in this fall for the spiritual benefit of the churches under his care.

"Much will be placed on the family nucleus—"the only longlasting solution to youth problems."

Mrs. Grant Alford will sing.

Nobody Ever Has Weakness Somebody Has Not Conquered

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

Katherine Mansfield was a gifted author who died young. She was only thirty-four. Her body had ravaged by disease, but she proved a victor over her body.

She wrote in her journal, "There is no limit to human suffering. But I do not want to die without leaving a record of my belief that suffering can be overcome. For I do believe it. What must one do? Take it. Everything in the world really accepts, undergoes a change. I must pass from personal love to greater love."

Some time later, Katherine Mansfield wrote, "Lord, make my crystal clear for thy light to shine through." Her life shone so brightly that her husband, John Middleton Murray long an agnostic, became a clergyman in the Church of England.

Katherine Mansfield came to face life's struggles alone. This is the first secret. The way is clear, blazed for us by generations of strong men and whose experiences should be our inspiration.

Moreover, let us lay hold upon the invisible means of support that are ours for the taking. This is the second point.

"Another King's coming on the scene", Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. recently told the congregation of Ebenezer Baptist Church, Atlanta, Georgia; he meant Christ King, twenty, who helped subdue the Indian who shot his grandmother, June 30, as she played the organ. King is the son of Rev. A.D. King who drowned in 1969, and is a nephew of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., civil right leader who was slain in 1968.

Mr. King Sr. moved to Ce Dabbit and said, "Another King's coming on the scene, going into the ministry. God is good, isn't he? I was weak, but now I'm strong. You see, I'm living in two worlds", he told the congregation. "Have you ever done that? I'm living on earth and in heaven." What a remarkable man, amazing family!

And yet his testimony was the testimony of St. Paul, at the beginning of the Christian era. He was plagued by a mysterious affliction. Some scholars think he was an epileptic. Others think he had malaria, or arthritis.

Paul wrote, "To keep me from being too exalted, a thorn was given me in the flesh. Three times I besought the Lord about this, that it should leave me; but he said to me, 'My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness'. For the sake of Christ, then, I am content with weaknesses, insults, persecutions, and calamities; for when I am weak, then I am strong" (2 Cor. 12:7 —10).

You will never have to contend with a situation that others have not transformed for good. Take heart. Flow with the current of this truth: don't fight it!

Chaplain Says Young Tougher

TORONTO (CP) — Ryan Hall, a policeman who became an Anglican priest and prison chaplain, says young persons he talks to in jail are tougher than their counterparts of a few years ago.

"It has been three or four years now since I sat in the cells and listened to a kid crying," Mr. Hall said.

"The people are tougher and harder. They have more contempt for the system. There used to be a breaking number who were frightened and crying.

Mr. Hall, who has a degree in criminology, has spent the last eight years talking to prisoners.

Counselling prisoners is becoming complicated, he said.

No only have attitudes changed, but their origins.

Mr. Hall said prisoners used to come from the downtown core, but now "they come from all parts of the city, all backgrounds."

Much Fuel Wasted

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — The amount of fuel used to produce compressed air wasted by 1.2 million industrial and service establishments in the United States would heat a community of 200,000 persons for a year, a survey shows. The annual preventable fuel wastage is estimated at about 3.5 million gallons of oil, or 600,000 tons of coal or 16 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

Taking The Bait

Moira River has various attractions for young people on summer vacation. For Bradley Dano, 11, (left) and David Dagley, 12, it's a source of bait. They're seeking young crayfish — which resemble mini-lobsters — beneath riverbed rocks on Cannifton Road.

Nurses' Raise Adds $1.2 Million To Budget

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville General Hospital's board of governors Friday formally ratified the new pay settlement with its nursing staff — a two-year agreement estimated to add $1.2 million to operating costs.

Site of the settlement and a signal of pay adjustments to bring other salary schedules in line — means BGH must seek more provincial government funds.

It's evident the hospital must now submit yet another supplementary budget to the Ontario health ministry to cover its increased operating estimates for the year, said board chairman Carl Bateman.

If will be the second request for supplementary ministry funds this year with pay increases as the root cause.

Last month the board backed it needed another $290,000 added to its $10.5 operating budget for the year, based on boosts and some with new wage awards — following a province-wide hospital settlement which caused BGH to reopen its contract with service and maintenance workers.

The new pay schedule for nurses was struck at province-wide negotiating in Toronto last week and awarded increases of up to 50 per cent.

After ratifying the new pay rates for its 260 nurses, the board also adjusted salary scales for heads of various hospital departments.

The adjustments were not disclosed but did not "by any stretch of the imagination" equal the rate of increase won by the nurses, said Mr. Bateman.

That the agreement with the nurses had placed some salaries out of line and these had to be revised, said chairman.

Administrator Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, estimated the pay increase won by the nurses will cost about $700,000 this year and $200,000 in 1975.

The agreement ratified by the board increases a nurses starting salary from 1645 to $850, $715 next January and $845 April 1 1975. Maximum salaries for experienced nurses rise from $736 to $1,020, $2,115, and $1,145 in the same period.

The resulting boost in operating costs has hospital public's tax money that's involved in the final analysis," he said.

Concern over costs sent Ontario Hospital Association representatives to Health Minister Frank Miller earlier this week.

The OHA delegation requested faster release of government money to meet the cost of pay increase.

About 40 hospitals reached the collective Toronto agreement with the nurses in time to prevent a threatened strike The hospitals now strike. The hospitals now set a pattern costing $400 million in the next two years.

Superintendent Defends Outlet Park's Reputation

OUTLET PARK — Outlet Provincial Park is no worse than any other park, says Park Assistant Park Superintendent, James Ives.

"Since we started our own enforcement program there is more security here than in any other park."

Ives charges that local newspapers are responsible for the park's current bad reputation.

As far as a newspaper is concerned, the only good news is bad news," continues Mr. Ives. "Everything is accurate that is reported here, but there are some things that seem unnecessary to publish in a newspaper."

Mr. Ives made reference to a story that was written about one of the park's staff who was hit in the face with a beer bottle. "This minor incident took place in only one of some 530 camp sites!"

Recently a reporter from a daily newspaper published a photo taken at the park of the dead fish washed up on shore. The accompanying caption referred to the beach as a "horrible mess".

Mr. Ives, in commenting on the incident, said it takes only an afternoon and an evening if the conditions are right for large quantities of dead shad to pile up on the beach. The accumulations are always cleaned up every morning and in the particular case, the reporter arrived on the scene before the work crew had had a chance to remove the dead fish.

The assistant park superintendent feels that an educational program would be a wise move. Outlet is the same as any place else. To prevent theft, you must lock up your possessions. We are living in a society now where you can't leave anything lying around."

Currently Outlet Park has on its enforcement program one or two men on night shift, one during the day and three or four during the weekend, plus the assistance of the OPP when needed. These comprise - Robert Ferrier, Park Superintendent. James Ives, Assistant Park Superintendent, and four others who have the authority to lay charges.

"We make our own liquor seizures, lay our own charges, give our own evidence, says Mr. Ives.

"We charges a good educational program would be a wise move. Outlet is the same as any place else. To

Cypriots Start Fund

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

For most of us the Cyprus situation is something we read about in a newspaper. But for a small group of local residents, it means awaiting anxiously word about the safety of family and friends living on the war-torn island.

For this reason as well as to offer aid to those affected by the recent fighting there, a committee made up of seven Quinte residents has been set up to offer economic assistance to people in the homeland of Cyprus.

Chris Theokalas is heading a committee called the Cyprus Crisis Committee which so far has raised about $2,000 to buy medicine, blood and food for those on the island.

Mr. Theokas himself has his mother, and other close relatives living on the island in an area which has been hit by recent fighting.

He outlined the role of the committee which is attempting to raise a total of $10,000 to help ease the economic assistance to the Cyprus people. We aren't concerned about two years from now but right now. There are people in the hospitals, children who don't know where their parents are and people who need our help.

"We are concerned about those people who are hurt, those killed and those who need our assistance, " said Mr. Theokalas.

The only link the committee as well as the 15 to 20 people of Cypriot origin living in the Quinte area have with Cyprus is through the Greek embassy in Ottawa and the Cypriot embassy in New York City. All other lines of communication to Cyprus are severed.

"Not knowing (what is happening in Cyprus) is killing us," said Mr. Theokalas. "I've been trying every three hours to get through on the phone to Cyprus but haven't been able to."

All money raised will be handled through the Cyprus Relief Fund in New York City through the First National Bank there.

"This is the best way we can do. We would like to send the money directly to Cyprus but can't communicate directly with anyone there."

There would be no administrative expenses if we dealt directly with Cyprus, but the only route is through the Cypriot embassy in New York," he said.

Mr. Theokalas abies away from taking any political stand on the situation. He says he is representative of most Cypriots everywhere when he says all they believe in is "independence and joy." Cyprus with no interference from anyone.

"We'll go along with anyone who goes" along with the cause, being, independence without any fighting."

The Cypriots in this area are appreciative of the help received from the Greek community to aid the situation on the island.

"There's no conflict between the two embassies (Greek and Cypriot). They are both contributing to the same fund."

"And there's no separation from the Greeks living on the mainland and those on Cyprus. When a Greek Cypriot gets killed, it is felt by someone in Greece the same as in Cyprus"

Mr. Theokalas an account-ant has lived in Belleville for six years. He came to Canada. In 1964 but returned to Cyprus for awhile after that serving in the country's National Guard before settling here.

Anyone desiring further information or wishing to help may contact him at 962-0319 or contact Philip Pandza at 962-5967.

Canadians Held in Greece

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Tom Cossitt, member of Parliament for Leeds, said Friday that under the new Greek government's conscription law, several Canadians are being held in prisons in Athens.

The Progressive Conservative member said Canadian authorities are attempting to secure the release of a Scotts Falls, Ont., man.

Mr. Cossit said he had asked officials of the external affairs department to intercede with the Greek government on behalf of Angelo Mavragands, 29, who, he said, was taken off a plane in Athens Wednesday and now faces two years' service in the Greek army.

Mr. Cossit said the Greek government considers Mr. Mavragands a Greek because he was born in Athens and his Canadian citizenship papers do not give him the right to avoid service in the army.

The man told relatives in Smiths Falls by telephone that the new Greek regime will not let him leave the country. He was ending a holiday to Greece when arrested.

Mr. Cossit said he had been assured by the external affairs department that the Canadian embassy in Athens will make representations to the new Greek government on behalf of Mr. Mavragands.

Mr. Cossit said the external affairs department also is trying to secure the freedom of other naturalized Canadians in the same predicament.

Forest Risk Eases

TWEED — Wet weather has eased the fire threat in Quinte district bushland following a number of sharply depleted provincial emergency personnel.

Steady rain in recent days has reduced the hazard rating to low in the Tweed forestry district of the natural resources ministry. Earlier in the week the threat had still been rated high. It sustained warm spell created the dangerously dry conditions and eight small bushland fires were reported earlier in the week.

The rain brought relief to provincial firewatchers here already in action, and reduced as reinforcements were needed to combat conflagrations still raging in northwestern Ontario.

The district's two firefighting teams were sent north several weeks ago and replaced by personnel from other forestry departments Herein. But manpower has been cut further this week and more staff was called into action now on standby.

Lighthouse Coming To Town

One of the top forerunners in the Canadian rock music scene, Lighthouse comes to Belleville August 10.

The eight-member group headed by Skip Prokop on drums and vocals will appear at the Memorial Arena for a performance starting at 8 p.m.

The group has made an impressionable dent in the history of rock music in Canada, with such hits as One Fine Morning, Take It Slow and Sunny Days.

Sales of their last four albums were rated Canadian Gold Awards with Lighthouse Live designated platinum. Their reception on the U.S. has been similarly favorable.

The group has appeared at the Atlantic City Pop Festival, the Isle of Wight, Carnegie Hall and Fillmore East in New York City.

Tickets are $3.50 in advance or $4.50 at the door and are available at Munts Stereo Centre, Ed Thomas Tobacco Store and Memorial Arena.

Riverside Salvage

Vandals have the sometimes habit of dumping picnic tables from city parks into nearby waterways. Work crews Friday reported five tables were thrown in Moira River from West Riverside Park. One table was retrieved by these youngsters below Laster's dam.

Vandals Remove Tables

City parks department workers were back at a familiar sadness Jod Friday - retrieving picnic tables.

Parks employees said they fished five tables out of the Moira River after the furniture had been carried from both riverside parks in north Belleville by vandals and pitched in the water.

City parks gang its "share of vandalism" says park director Lloyd Syer and picnic tables have ended up in some unexpected places.

Only about 10 tables a year become targets for vandals and are usually recovered. However, tables in parks along the Bay of Quinte shoreline have been discovered in some unexpected places.

Parks workers have recovered tables washed up on Cow Island, between Belleville and the Prince Edward county shore, at Rossmore and Massassaga.

Downright thievery also has played a role in losses, says Mr. Syer. Once, eight tables were stolen in one night from a city park.

The sturdy wood tables are made by the parks department and have been costing about $30 for material.

Ald. Meeks Wants Highrise Bridge

Alderman Stu Meeks, self-appointed guardian of Belleville's waterfront, has taken the present worn-out state of the bay bridge under his wing.

He served notice of motion at Friday's special council meeting of his intention to demand removal of the present "hazardous condition" at the bridge.

Because rollers on the swing bridge are worn, and can't be replaced for some time, the bridge will be swung for yachts only once every three hours. Pleasure boats coming from the west, faced with standing to for up to three hours while prevailing westerlies drive them against the bridge and its stone causeway, are in danger of capsizing or worse as they await the bridge's opening.

The bridge is an antique among transportation relics, and its equipment is not readily replaceable. The worn rollers, for instance, are not stock, and will have to be made to order.

Alderman Meeks, in his notice of motion, called for a meeting between Ontario minister of correctional institutions and Quinte MPP, Dr. R. T. Potter, and minister of transport, John Rhodes, with a delegation of city council in attendance to "petition" the motion calls for construction of a high-level bridge between Belleville and Ameliasburgh to replace the antiquated swing bridge.

Council Approves Land Transfers

Belleville city council met in special session Friday afternoon to approve a reshuffle of land in the northeast industrial park.

The city bought back 3.7 acres in the park from Nelson Thomson Realty Ltd. and sold part of the parcel to Ryder Products, a firm that plans to build an industrial machinery company on the site.

Walton Properties has planned an industrial park on its property, but economic conditions cancelled the ambitions. Its property was resold to the city and then sold to Ryder properties, a company that had previously bought a less desirable site for its industrial machinery equipment outlet.

The 3.37 acres was purchased by the company for $4,500 an acre, a higher sum than charged for its first site, because the new site is in a prime location fronting Highway 401.

Ryder industry has submitted an offer to purchase land in the Dundas Street industrial area, council learned. "Client X", whose identity will be revealed Monday or Tuesday has bought 13 acres at $5,000 an acre, Mayor Robin Jeffrey said it was a "great" industry, a subsidiary of a large American company.

Stolen Car Recovered

Belleville OPP were right on the spot last evening when 18 came to the recovering a stolen vehicle.

About 8:10 p.m. Friday evening a van belonging to Elana Valves of Hoyleton was reported stolen. Then about 650 that same evening, Constable Dan Doucette of the Belleville detachment of the OPP observed a car answering the description of the stolen vehicle travelling west on highway 401 just east of Highway 37.

Charged with possession of a stolen vehicle is John Andrew Wesley, 17, of no fixed address.

Truck Rolls

MADOC — The young driver of a pickup truck was injured near here early Saturday when his vehicle went out of control and rolled on the Eldorado Road a mile north of Highway 7 near here.

Fred Stewart, 18, Marmora, was taken to Belleville General Hospital with a broken ankle and body cuts.

The vehicle hit five guideposts, rolled, and landed on its side between two trees in a cornfield on the farm of Ron Dowdall.

Wilkinson's Precision Passing Gives John Payne Nightmares

EDMONTON (CP) — The precision passing of Tom Wilkinson and a tenacious Edmonton Eskimo defence made it difficult for coach John Payne of Saskatchewan Roughriders Friday night.

"It was a nightmare," a dejected Payne said after Edmonton bombed the Roughriders 31-7 in the Western Football Conference opener for both teams.

"I've never seen us play that poorly," said Payne. "They forced us to make most of our mistakes."

Wilkinson, a veteran quarterback slated to share the signal-calling with Bruce Lemmerman this season, was nearly perfect. He threw four touchdown passes, completed 13 of 14 pass attempts for 178 yards and masterfully mixed his play selection.

The Edmonton defensive front line — Jones, Ernest Smith, John LaGrone and Ron Estay — created nothing but trouble for Saskatchewan.

"We're going to give a lot of trouble to a lot of teams before the season is over," said Estay, from the beginning.

"We've got 15 more games and we hope to be up for them like we were tonight."

Edmonton, which defeated Saskatchewan last year to win the WFC title, was in command

TOM WILKINSON

Wilkinson notched his first touchdown pass in the opening quarter on a 3-yard toss to Garry Lefebvre. He threw scoring passes of seven and 10 yards to Don Warrington in the second quarter and a 15-yarder to Larry Highbaugh in the third.

Dave Cutler took care of the converts and added a 30-yard field goal.

The Roughriders were held scoreless until 14:21 of the final quarter, when rookie quarterback Randy Mattingly lobbed a seven-yard scoring pass to Steve Maznuk. Brian Berg converted.

Mattingly took over for veteran Ron Lancaster in the fourth quarter after Lancaster had no success moving the Roughriders. The sturdy Edmonton defence had the advantage of going against an offensive line weakened by the retirement of Clyde Brock and the loss of injured Jack Abendschan.

"Most games are won up front," Payne said, referring to the line play. "They (Edmonton) did the job."

Saskatchewan quarterbacks were thrown for 26 yards in losses, and rugged fullback George Reed only managed 19 yards in 11 carries. Lancaster completed nine of 19 attempts for 125 yards, three passes that were intercepted by John Farlinger and Highbaugh.

Edmonton had 96 yards in net offence, compared to 306 for Saskatchewan.

Most of the game was played in a steady downpour that left a gaping hole in the second quarter. Many of the 21,436 fans left early.

George Suspended

MONTREAL (CP) — Ed George, an all-star offensive lineman with Montreal Alouettes, was suspended Friday by general-manager Marv Levy.

George did not practise with the club Friday and Levy said in a one-sentence statement that George has been suspended "for conduct destructive to the welfare of our team."

Levy said the suspension was indefinite and held for the re-

Alouettes' next Canadian Football Conference game.

Robert Leclerc, George's lawyer, said his client, who signed a two-year contract with the club last season, was seeking additional pay for the Alouettes' games each of the four EFC games he will play this year.

"But I would hate to reduce it to that," the lawyer said, indicating there were more points in dispute than the salary.

Wings Move Into NLL First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Wings took over first place in the National Lacrosse League by downing Toronto Tomahawks 9-8 Friday night before a home crowd of 8,861.

The win gave the Wings a one-point lead over Rochester Griffins in the Eastern Conference first place, but Rochester has two games in hand.

Syracuse Stingers trounced Maryland Arrows 14-4 before 5,462 spectators at Syracuse in Friday's other game.

Terry Lloyd had three goals and two assists and Jim Richardson acquired in a trade with Toronto last week, two goals for the Wings.

Tim O'Grady, Larry Ferguson, Glen Ferguson, Zeny Lisiecki, John Crash, Jim Hickey, Terry Rowland, Doug Favel and Doug Collins had a goal each for Philadelphia.

Brian Thompson and Jim Quigg scored three times each for Toronto, with single goals going to Terry Davis, Dan Cox, Jim Richardson and Charlie Marlowe.

At Syracuse, Paul Cicci brought his goal total for the season to 47 by scoring four times. Pat Differ and Jim Higgs had two goals each. Other Syracuse scorers were Jim Miller, Gerry Kustasil, Bruce Gordon, Dave Sanderson, Robbie Patten and Ken Dougher.

League scoring leader Paul Suggate had two goals and two assists, bringing his totals to 77 goals and 81 assists for the season.

Gord Kasle, Bill Coghil, Pat Ryan and Bob Smith were the other Maryland scorers.

Tonight's schedule has Montreal Quebecois at Rochester and Toronto at Maryland.

In Hamilton, Murray Greenhow and Stan Cockerton each scored two goals for Oshawa. Bill Vann, Dean Spence, John MacDonald, Claude Diodel and Tim Woodside added single goals.

No Nerves at Nine

TORONTO (CP) — "When you're nine, what are nerves?" asks Dick Rhyan.

The object of his question was nine-year-old Ted Rhyan, who Dick feels is as deadly with a putter from 10 feet as any pro on the tour.

Dick is having one of his best tournaments in nine years on the Professional Golfers' Association tour after 1964 with two years off—19-67—to work as an assistant pro. He's 38.

With the exception of these two years dad was an assistant pro, Ted's been a regular on the tour since he was eight weeks old and has been playing regularly for seven years while maintaining a straight G (for good) academic average.

Dick Rhyan's not a big money winner on the tour. He plays for an unchanging, base salary of golfers remained by Lincoln University and earned about $15,000 last year.

But he's willing to challenge any of the pros on the putting green against Ted.

"I would like to get the recognition due him," says the proud father who Friday fired three par 70s on the round to tie round at the Canadian open golf championship—a 66 for a 36-hole score of 133.

"He's a great putter," says Dick of his son. "Most of the guys (pros) out here want to get a putter like him from inside 10 feet."

Ted edges on diplomacy as he discusses his prowess around the cup.

"I usually play the caddies and take them," he says. A little additional prodding reveals he's beaten pro Ron Carrado "ten of five of the way" guys, but I don't think I can remember their names."

Ted travels with his father by car to the various tournaments. "And I've been to Hawaii twice, and that was

Ziegler Matches Round of 63

Rodriguez Fires Course Record Leads Open by Single Stroke

TORONTO (CP) — A better attitude, a secret formula and three less bogies gave Chi Chi Rodriguez the lead after Friday's second round of the $200,000 Canadian open golf championship.

The wiry Puerto Rican shot a competitive course record 63 for a 131 total and a one-stroke lead over Larry Ziegler of the United States.

Ziegler matched Rodriguez' rough of 63 Friday, bettering the mark of 64 set by Pete Thompson in a playoff for the 1962 Canadian Professional Golfers Association (PGA) title with Stan Leonard and Al Balding.

His 131 was the lowest 36-hole score on the PGA tour this year. He gave a better attitude and a secret formula credit for his score.

"But I'm not going to tell you guys (newsmen) the secret and write about it and I don't want those guys (the fellow pros) to know about it," he said. "I'm working on something that's going to make me a great golfer."

He said he started to make it Thursday morning when he fired a 68 at the Mississauga Golf Club where the tour is based and board that Ziegler was eight under par.

Rodriguez birdied the 15th and 16th, then parred the finishers on the 17th and sunk a 15-foot birdie putt on the 18th.

"I was six under when I saw Larry's score, so I just said to myself I've got to get three birdies," Rodriguez said. "So I got them."

The tees on the 6,788-yar course were moved up Friday because of complaints of slow play Thursday and fear that rain might force postponement of the tournament for the day.

It was nearly par took a beating. Fifty-nine golfers were under par Friday and the 141 total it took to qualify for the final 36 holes is the lowest cutoff score Royal Canadian Golf Association officials could recall.

Defending champion Tom Weiskopf, who had a 68 for a 137 total, said moving the tees up "belittled the course."

Jack Nicklaus, winner of more than $1 million on the PGA tour, also objected, but not

When you're playing a national championship like the Canadian Open, and it's one of the top five tournaments in the world today, the players should play on the same length courses all four days. It's a shame this should happen on a really good golf course.

Lee Trevino, whose 69 Friday after a 65 in 70s, said the tees "were set up too easy for a caddie."

Nicklaus also had a 135 total after a 67 in 70s Friday, round. Gary McCord, Mike Hill, Dale Douglass, Tommy Aaron and Don Biggs also had 68s Friday.

Dick Rhyan had a 66 for a 135 total to hold third place behind Rodriguez and Ziegler and Bobby Nichols another stroke back with his second straight 68.

Grouped at 135 with Trevino, Nicklaus, Hill and McCord were John Schlee, Ben Crenshaw, Lionel Hebert, Gene Littler, Sanders and Rik Massengale.

First-round leader Ken Still slipped to a 73 and 142 total and other big group at 137 as 39 golfers finished the 36 holes under par.

Only casualties to survive the cut were Gary Cowan of Kitchener, who had a 69 for a 149 total, and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, whose 79 gave him a 141.

Among those missing the cut were Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., former United States and Canadian amateur champion, tour veteran George Knudson of Toronto, and Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., appearing in his 24th Canadian Open.

Belleville Girl Second in Country

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Lucille Lessard, 17, of Lorettaville, Que., set one of 12 records Friday in the Canadian outdoor archery championships.

She went on to become the grand champion in the women's freestyle competition—base on an aggregate total of field scores—events in the two-day national final, which concludes today.

Lessard had a score of 1 971 out of 2,000 in the women's freestyle, bettering the old record of 1,959 set last year by Denise Parker of Vancouver.

The Tribbles from Ottawa set the other new record Friday. Dennis Tribble set a record in the men's freestyle round of the men's barebow with 512 of a possible 600.

The old record was 510, set in 1973 by Peter Thaubergor of Penticton, B.C., the defending champion in the men's barebow competition this year.

Barbara Tribble had 519 of 1,200 to set a record in the women's barebow. The old mark of 513 was set by Terry Popp of Lethbridge, Alta.

Les Anderson, a member of the Timber Hikers Archery Club, tied a record in the men's freestyle hunter round in 588 out of 600.

Curve Doesn't Elude Nettles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reggie Cleveland's curve ball didn't fool Jim Nettles Friday night.

Cleveland, a native of Swift Current, Sask., was pitching a no-hitter for Boston Red Sox when he tried a curve on Nettles with two out in the sixth inning against Detroit Tigers.

The ball ended up in centre field, a solid double.

Four innings later a single by Jim Northrup, only the third hit off Cleveland, gave the Tigers an 11-inning 1-0 victory.

Rico Petrocelli fumbled Gary Sutherland's leadoff grounder to third, preceding a sacrifice bunt and Northrup's single to right.

In Friday's other American League baseball games, Baltimore Orioles downed Cleveland Indians 9-5, New York Yankees beat Milwaukee Brewers 5-1, Texas Rangers topped Chicago White Sox 10-6, Oakland A's defeated Minnesota Twins 5-3, and Kansas City Royals turned back California Angels 3-2.

Baltimore's Paul Blair hit a two-run homer into the left-field seats in the ninth inning to send game goers into extra innings, then hit a sacrifice fly during a 10-run rally in the 11th against Cleveland ace Gaylord Perry that gave the Orioles the win.

It was the third straight setback for Perry, as the Orioles'ace tied off on this year's starter in the all-star game for 13 hits.

Jim Mason had three hits, including his fourth homer of the year, Felipe Alou singled home two runs and Lou Piniella and Chris Chambliss homered in one run splurge in New York's victory over the Brewers.

The Rangers banged out 16 hits and were helped by five Chicago errors en route to their fourth straight victory. Carlos May hit two homers for the White Sox.

Bert Campaneris drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single to highlight a four-run sixth inning rally by the A's.

George Brett's two-run single highlighted the Royals' three-run rally in the ninth inning that handed the Angels their fifth straight loss at home, keeping Angel manager Dick Williams winless at Anaheim.

Hockey Player Turned Tennis Upsets No. 1

SASKATOON (CP) — Dale Power of Toronto, who doesn't know whether he would rather play hockey or tennis, revealed he may be forced to make a choice.

Power, a former hockey player who turned to tennis, upset second seeded Jeff Borowiak of Toronto 6-2, 7-6 to win the men's singles quarter-finals of the Prairie Open.

Despite his victory, Power, a 165-pound centre, has no immediate plans to stand in line for the right to join Canada in the bid for a Davis Cup some victory this fall against Mexico.

"I know what I can do in tennis," said Power. "I know what Canada thinks about that.

"Expansion makes it easy, at least easier, for a hockey player to make a good living. That's where I'll go."

Power, a former Toronto, Ont., junior star, recorded 29 goals for Port Arthur Bruins of the International Hockey League last season.

Power's victory advanced him to the semi-finals with Tony Bardsley of Vancouver who defeated Ramsey, Eric Deslauriers and Francois Cayolle.

Debilcher beat Rejean Genois of Quebec City 2-6, 7-5, 7-6, while Cayolle downed Chris Dahr of Toronto 6-4, 6-1.

Bardsley reached the semi-finals by defeating Cam Dalgleish of Edmonton 6-4, 7-6.

In women's quarter-finals, Susan Shaw of Vancouver bounced Tuffy Savard of Vancouver 6-1, 6-4, Jaroslila Hersky of Calgary won over Kathy Morton of Cambridge, Ont., 6-4, 6-2, 6-4, and O'Hara, whipped Stephanie Bardsley of Vancouver, Tony's wife, 6-4, 6-1.

Seaver Returns After Two Months With Back to Fire Four Hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Tom Seaver returned to New York Mets Friday night, after a prolonged absence with a bad back, and showed flashes of old-time brilliance by beating St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 with a four-hitter.

While overpowering the Cardinals with a stunning fastball, the two-time Cy Young award winner was more impressed with his physical condition.

"The big thing," said Seaver, "was that I was able to pitch and not have anything hurt.

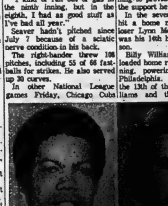
"I kind of ran out of gas in the ninth inning, but in the eighth, I had as good stuff as I've had all year."

Seaver hadn't pitched since July 7 because of a sciatic nerve condition in his back.

The right-hander threw 100 pitches, including 63 of fastballs for strikes. He also served up 30 curves.

In other National League games Friday, Chicago Cubs blanked Philadelphia Phillies 10-7, San Francisco Giants stopped Cincinnati Reds 5-4, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Montreal Expos 8-3, and Houston Astros stopped Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7 in 11 innings. The San Diego-Atlanta game was rained out.

Seaver struck out five walked one and only permitted Mike Tyson's leadoff triple in the third inning and singles by Lou Brock in the sixth, Joe Torre in the seventh and Bake McBride in the ninth.



Ed Kranepool delivered a two-run single in the third inning to provide Seaver with all the support he needed.

In the seventh, John Milner hit a home run off Cardinal loser Lynn McGlothen. 13-7. It was his 16th homer of the season.

Billy Williams hit a bases-loaded home run in the sixth inning, powering Chicago over Philadelphia. The homer was the 13th of the season for Williams and the eighth grand slam of his career.

Steve Ontiveros and Ken Reitz each collected two-run singles to highlight a five-run third inning that carried San Francisco over Cincinnati.

Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk drove in first-inning runs and Dock Ellis and Ramon Hernandez combined on a five-hit pitching performance as Pittsburgh beat Montreal. Al Oliver extended his hitting streak to 28 games with a single in the first by the Pirates.

Ellis Five-hits Expos as Bucs Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk drove in first-inning runs and Dock Ellis fired five hits as Pittsburgh Pirates scored a 3-0 National League win over Montreal Expos Friday night.

With two out in the first, Al Oliver pushed his current hitting streak to 28 consecutive games with a single and Stargell followed with a line drive to right.

The ball handcuffed Montreal outfielder Ken Singleton and Stargell steamed into third with Oliver on second.

Zisk then delivered Stargell with a single to right.

Bob Robertson added another run in the seventh with his 16th homer of the year.

Pirate centerfielder had little trouble up to the eighth inning giving up only singles up the middle by Willie Davis and Larry Lintz as he signaled the Pirates' 3-0 win with an assortment of fastballs, curves and changeups.

In the eighth inning Fidi allowed a single to Tim Foli who was later erased in a double play.

However, he Pittsburgh pitcher was foiled in his attempt to notch his second complete game when, after striking out pinch-hitter Bob Bailey to lead off the ninth, he walked a single to Don Hahn and Larry Lintz.

Reliever Ramon Hernandez came on to relieve Willie Davis and Singleton to pick up his third save of the season.

Ellis, 8-8, struck out four as route to the win.

Montreal rookie Dennis Blair, who gave up all three Pirate runs with wide scattering seven hits, took the loss, his fifth against five decisions.

He walked one and struck out three.

Aaron Smashes Strawberries

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves' slugger Hank Aaron ended a spirited discussion with an Atlanta sports writer Friday night by smashing a carton of strawberries in the writer's face.

The incident occurred in the Braves' locker room after the team waited out a rain delay of scheduled game with San Diego Padres. The game was rained out after a one inning.

The writer, Frank Hyland of the Atlanta Journal, said Aaron was miffed over a column Hyland had written in the newspaper's afternoon edition.

502 Entries for This Year's OASA Playoffs

By ALAN TEEWORTH
Staff Sportswriter

With the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoffs just around the corner, it's time to take a look at this year's action and local entries.

The Association has received a record number of entries for this year's edition of the annual event, 502, a rise over last season of 46 teams, when 453, also a record last year, were in.

In the adult classes, which includes Senior A and B, Intermediate A, AA, B, C, and Industrial, Slowpitch and Junior A, B, and C, there are 190 entries.

In the minors, from the Juvenile ages right down through Squirt, in three divisions, A,B, and C, in each, a massive total of 312 teams are ready to start their two out of three sets, along the long road, to the Ontario championship.

One new category has been added to the 23 existing ones overtaxed to 1976 the Squirt C division, which now completes the full cycle of A, B, and C divisions from Juvenile to Squirt.

Among local entries, nine are from Belleville, their with many entries from the surrounding district.

Trenton Motors of the Quinte Fastball head the list, from the top down, entered in the Senior B section. They meet Peterborough in the first round, in the same section, two years back, Belleville Motors bowed out in the first round of competition.

Moving on to the Intermediate A section, Hollins Construction also of the QFL, take on Oshawa in their first series in the bout to that crown. They made it to the all-Ontario semi-finals in the series two years back, losing to Barrie in the best of three sets, two games to one.

In an all city first round, the QFL's Steward and Robert-Printing takes on the Industrial League's Leaders, in the Intermediate AA series that the Printers won an all-Ontario crown in, two years back. The Leaders are currently in first place in the Industrial League's west division.

In Intermediate C, Bardon Supplies, the fourth QFL entry, will play out of Demorestville, as they meet Picton in their first set. Bardon dropped out in the first round of the same series last year to Kingston Township. Other area teams in the largest of the OASA categories this year, with 49 across the province, are Brighton and Campbellford, who meet in the first round also.

On the other end of the scale, the Junior A series is one of the smaller ones, with only 15 entries recieved for the province. In the Zone Four championship, the Bellevue Elks Printing Juniors take on Ottawa. Last year, the locals won the title after the Ottawa team forfeited after two games, bowed out in the semi-finals, losing to Barrie in three games.

In Junior B, Trenton will take on Dorsville, while Cobourg take on Lindsay.

Two teams out of the East Central Ontario Juniors Campbellford, Picton, and Napanee, will clash in the first round of the Junior C series.

For the first time in several seasons, Belleville will have an entry in the Midget series, with the Belleville Yardmen entered in the A division of that category, They take on Oshawa in the first round.

In Midget B, Trenton plays Cobourg in the opening series

Midget C, also one of the heaviest divisions in the Association's registrations, with 28 teams in, sees Picton meeting Odessa in the first round, while Sterling will play Hastings.

In Bantam A, the Belleville Downtown Merchants meet Peterborough in the first round. In C division, Brighton meets Marmora, while Campbellford takes on Norwood.

The Belleville SACO Peewees meet Oshawa in their initial series, and stand a good chance to bring an all-Ontario crown to the city. As the Head Johnson squirts two years ago, virtually the same team they won the Squirt title, defeating Sarnia in three games.

In the Peewee C division, Napanee takes on Amherstview.

Belleville Kinsmen Squirts meet Peterborough in their first round of action in the A division of the youngest series, the fourth minor entry from Belleville.

In the newest division of the OASA this being the first year for it, sees Napanee meeting Sharbot lake in the first round of the Squirt C category. The Napanee entry looks very strong, having taken the Grand Trenton Squirt of the MacDonald's Tournament here in Belleville two weeks back, defeating a top contender in the A division, Richmond Hill, in the final game, 3-1. Campbellford also takes on Port Perry in other action in the division.

Dates and times for most of the series have been only tentatively set, with many changes expected to be made before finalization, although some of the minor sets will be getting under way shortly. Watch the Sports Calendar for dates of all the series. They will be published as soon as they become available.

Hockey Season Is Here — Already

It might only be nearing the end of July, the seventh month of the year, but the hockey season is already upon us, Here, Dave Smith, a former Belleville Bobcat and now with Carlton University team, closes in on Cadets Lane, former Belleville Juveniles and Frankford Huskie Junior goaltender, for a scoring chance that could have been taken right out of mid-season play. The action is all in the Summer Hockey League, being held at the Trenton Community Garden under the direction of long time area hockey personality Floyd Crawford, in conjunction with the Trenton Collegiate Hockey School. Games are played Wednesday and Friday nights at the Trenton rink.

Bowmanville Edges Tykes

The Belleville Elliott Motors Tykes took a 13-11 loss last night, at the hands of the Bowmanville Tykes, in an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association game played in Bowmanville.

Four pitchers worked in defeat for Belleville, with Brian Cronkwright starting. He was followed by Ray McLeod, Mike Lanier, and Steve Taylor. Together the four struck out 14, walked 12, and allowed only five hits. Six errors by their teammates didn't help matters.

Paul Dadson and Henry Rossina paced the win for Bowmanville, striking out seven. The pair walked five, sticked for eight hits.

Steve Taylor had a pair of two base hits for the losers, with Stu Emerson adding a triple and Dave Congdin one double. Singles went to Scott Dafoe, Lanier, Matt Whitley, and Rory McLeod.

Robbie Rodgers had a triple and single for the winners, with Dwayne Major contributing a double.

The Belleville crew travel to Dorchester today to compete in the Downeybrook Tournament there. In their first game, today at 11 a.m. they meet Birchmont. Their second game sees them play at 5 p.m. tonight, while a third game, if they win the second, would be Sunday morning, at either 9 or 11 a.m.

TIP NO. 12 CHIPPING

The chipping stroke is not much different from the putting stroke. Swing from the shoulder, grass, take advantage of the keeping hand and wrist movement to a minimum. Swing is somewhat more follow-through is required for a chip than for a putt.

There are two basic situations: shorter putts, You will likely wear When chipping over a distance of fairway to a small green, use a nine iron or wedge to explore on the green. A chip shot that lands and staying on the green. lands on the apron, is a wasted shot.

The natural backlash from a short lofted club will tend to hold the ball where it lands.

POSITIVE KEY — Chip and roll wherever possible.

Vance Takes Second Feature

By MARK BRETT

Allen Vance won his second feature race in as many weeks last night as he guided Tar Magic to the victor in the ninth race of the ten race card.

Allen last year was the Derby's Invitational driving Johnny Command.

Last night's race was run in a time of 2:11, a personal record for Tar Magic. The horse is owned by Cecil Hutchinson of Bath, Ontario.

Tar Magic got off to a slow start, but managed to move from ninth place to fifth by the quarter mile mark and never looked back. Second place went to Gallant Mir, owned by Malcolm Bragg of Uxbridge, Ontario and driven by Larry Zebedee, with third place going to Kiss McLaine's owned by Graham Irwin of Eightberry, Ontario. McLaine was guided by Hugh Wemp.

The winning horse paid $4.10 to win, $2.70 to place, and $2.80 to show.

In the seventh race of the evening a dead heat was recorded between Black Duchess, owned by Art Riley of Grafton, Ontario and Tops Tobby, owned by Leo Cahill of Whitby.

Topes Tobby, driven by Doug Brown was declared the winner however as the judges ruled that Black Duchess, driven by Tom Riley had broken stride, thus the victory to the number 7 horse, with Black Duchess second.

The time of 2:11 besides being a personal feat for Tar Magic in the ninth race was also the fastest time of the night on the somewhat heavy track.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, July 28

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your present attitude is very appealing to those you come in contact with either on a formal basis or just socially.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) This is one of those unusual times when others are willing to give you more in return for kindness or service.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Compromise is a very effective tool in your hands now. It will surprise you how much can be gained if you give up a little.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll have good luck if your deal in things that have glamorous or creative aspects shows them.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Your popularity is rising and this will put some heavier demands on you socially. Cupid also thinks you're pretty nifty.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A situation whose outcome you aren't too sure about looks like it will work out as you hope. Sit tight and be patient.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Keep open all avenues of communication to channels that lead to a big hope. Good news is coming.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Things will begin brightening up for you in the material sense. There's profit to be made over the next few days.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's been a change in overall conditions. You're looking now for yourself and others to put the accent on fun. Get up front.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Doing something creative without cut too many around will give you the greatest pleasure and satisfaction today.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) I hope you have some sort of group activity planned. That's where you can be most helpful for yourself through helpful contacts.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) All signs point to start coming together now and this will make something you've wanted to achieve much easier.

If your birthday is today, you are generous and kind to a fault, and you're a natural for a career in the arts. Gemini (May 21-June 20) will be your listeners if you boast about one you think is a big wheel when you know only casually. Pretend to know better.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) is won't be as easy as you think to find willing hands to do a chore for you that you should be doing, but seek to pawn off on another.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be the one to reach for the tab today, while your companions sit on their closed purses.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're doing any decorating in your house than your charges carefully. Otherwise, you may saddle yourself with a mess that won't wear well.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Something that should be taken care of today will be brushed aside until later. Eventually it's going to foul-up your entire schedule.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though material conditions are improving, this is not a time to be wasteful. Tactful stores will still have merchandise next week.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 21) Allow yourself ample time to think through all your important moves. Poor judgment and impulsiveness are your biggest threats at present.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Loose talk on your part is ill-advised. Use cat out of the bag regarding something that's supposed to be kept confidential.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be on guard or some sort of thinking that has only a halfwit through a friend or group you're involved with.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're apt to be somewhat slack today where self-discipline is concerned. Much resistance will be lost if you continue this attitude.

Town Célebrates

Fast Homes

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

A man who runs may fall down, but if he doesn't fall he will get somewhere. A man who sits quietly on a bench won't ever fall down, but he is never going to get anywhere.

Most bridge players would be park bench sitters with the West hand. They would confront with the ace of hearts after holding the first trick with the king. The play is very simple and will force declarer to use one of his trumps.

The man who wants to get somewhere will think ahead before leading to the second trick.

He will ask himself the question, "How can I beat this contract?" He will see that a second heart lead can't help him at all. Declarer will ruff and go right about his business.

He will also see that his king of clubs is not going to do him a bit of good if left in his hand. If South holds the queen he will finesse successfully for that king; if South doesn't, he will take two finesses. He will lead the first to East's queen, but will pick up West's king on the next lead of the suit.

Then, West will lead his king of clubs right out and South won't be able to do anything better at trick 3 than ruff dummy's ace and lead a trump. East will win and cash four trump lead; cash his queen of clubs and give West a ruff for the setting trick.

Turkey Balks At Cypriot Truce Terms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Britain agreed early today on a "provisional solution" to end the military confrontation on Cyprus. But the Turkish government balked, apparently at provisions concerning the Turkish invasion forces on the Mediterranean island.

The Turkish cabinet met at dawn and discussed the proposal telephoned from Geneva for nearly three hours. Premier Bulent Ecevit said the Geneva negotiations "are in the final stage" and "if there is going to be an agreement, we will know today."

But he said his cabinet decided it will not even discuss the presence of Turkish armed forces on Cyprus and their right to reinforcement and supply.

He said certain other problems which have arisen during the Geneva talks can be taken up at a later date.

Ecevit said he relayed the results of the cabinet meeting to Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes in Geneva. Gunes immediately went into session with Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros.

Reuters news agency quoted Mavros as saying he will return to Athens tonight unless Turkey accepts the proposal. "I am not prepared to continue this business of talk and talk and talk," Mavros told a reporter. "I am fed up with it."

Mavros announced the agreement of the three ministers and a call for an all-night negotiation session at the Palace of Nations in Geneva. His spokesman would not make public immediately what he said Turkish approval would clear the way for a second round of talks in Athens next week.

Turkey submitted a stiff set of new demands earlier Sunday, and threat ened to quit the negotiations unless they were accepted by midnight. But Gunes did not carry out the threat after Premier Ecevit met for two hours in Ankara with Greek Ambassador Dimitrios Constandopoulos.

The Turkish demands included maintenance and reinforcement, if necessary, of its invasion force on Cyprus until the peaceful future of the Turkish-Cypriot minority is assured; autonomy for the Turkish-Cypriots until a political solution for the island is reached; acceptance of Turkish-Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash as a negotiating representative equal in status to President Glafcos Clerides of the Greek-Cypriot majority, and acceptance of Turkey as the guarantor of the rights of the Turkish-Cypriots.

Ecevit said the Turkish demands were "unacceptable and non-negotiable," demanding an occupation of Cyprus that might last for years and partition of the island between the two ethnic communities.

Athens announced that Ecevit had proposed that Premier Constantine Karamanlis of Greece meet with him. The United States was said to be urging the conference, but Mavros told reporters in Geneva that it was too soon to say whether the meeting would be held.

Greece and Turkey traded charges of new ceasefire violations on Cyprus.

The Turkish embassy in London said the Greek Cypriot National Guard has killed at least 231 Turkish-Cypriot villagers since the guard's Greek officers overthrew Archbishop Makarios two weeks ago, and the toll was expected to be much higher when all villages were heard from.

The Greek government accused the Turks of committing ceasefire violations but gave no details.

Shotgun Drops Pistol-wielder

TORONTO (CP) — A 26-year-old man was shot and killed by police early Sunday after allegedly holding hostages and threatening a policeman with a gun.

Richard Lindsay, alias Richard Case, was dead on arrival at hospital.

Police said they received a call late Saturday night to a house where, they were told, a man had fired a .45-calibre pistol and had left the house armed.

Police received a second call to another address where an armed man was said to be holding hostages. As police arrived some of the hostages escaped through the back door.

Constable Douglas Diplock met a man armed with a .45-calibre pistol at the front door and the man pointed the gun at the officer's chest.

The man refused to drop his gun when ordered by police and threatened to kill the policeman. Constable Diplock, who was armed with a shotgun, fired.

Police said the man's gun was loaded and cocked to fire.

Hostage Escapes

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — One of 15 hostages held by three armed convicts leaped through a glass door in a state prison building and escaped today, officials reported.

They identified the escapee as Henry Escamilla, 40, one of four fellow convicts held captive since the hostages were taken nearly five days ago in the Texas state prison.

Authorities said Escamilla suffered severe cuts around his head and shoulders. He was taken to a hospital semi-conscious and bleeding heavily.

Gunman Bluffs Banker

TORONTO (CP) — Police are discussing corporate security measures with large firms, hoping to prevent repetition of a successful extortion attempt that netted a bank executive only $09 from a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Police said they are worried about more possible extortion attempts planned after the incident in which a gunman bluffed a bank executive into thinking his wife and children, out of town on vacation, would be tortured if he did not turn over the money.

The gunman originally demanded $1 million.

The bank executive, who has not been named by police, urged the extortionist that $50,000 was as much as he could get without arousing suspicion.

The executive's family was never in danger, police said.

Police are also investigating links between Friday's extortion and a similar, unsolved incident in 1972, in which a Royal Bank manager in Waterloo, Ont., turned over $1 million in bank drafts to a man who held the bank official's wife and three-year-old daughter hostage.

U.S. Dam Opposed

B.C. Cabinet Ministers Join Environmental Canoe Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three British Columbia cabinet ministers and members of a number of environmental groups canoed down the Skagit River Sunday to protest an American proposal to flood the river's valley.

Recreation Minister Jack Radford, Resources Minister Bob Williams and Public Works Minister Bill Hartley joined what was called the First Annual International Skagit River Canoe-in and Picnic, sponsored by Canoe Sports B.C. and other environmental groups.

Forty-three canoeists traversed six miles of the fast-flowing river which, along with 4,300 acres of surrounding wilderness, would be flooded if Seattle City Light was permitted to raise the High Ross dam.

At the beginning of the day's events, Mr. Radford dedicated 93,000 acres of land as recreational area and announced the start of construction on a 46-space campsite.

The valley is located about 100 miles east of here along the Canada-United States border.

Mr. Radford said after his trip that he hopes to see the Skagit area dedicated as a provincial park in the future.

Although U.S. politicians were invited, none attended. But Lowell White, supervisor of the U.S. North Cascades National Park Service branch, said the U.S. interior department was on record as opposing the proposed dam, which would also flood recreational area and announced the start of construction on a 46-space campsite.

The valley is located about 100 miles east of here along the Canada-United States border.

Mr. Radford said after his trip that he hopes to see the Skagit area dedicated as a provincial park in the future.

Under an agreement made in 1942 and renewed by B.C. in 1967, Seattle City Light wants to add 125 feet to the height of its Ross dam, flooding B.C. land.

Officials at the project said Sunday they believe the dam will never be raised, but negotiations now are being conducted under the International Joint Commission.

Any settlement would involve compensation to Seattle City Light for some expenses plus an annual $26,000 rent paid to B.C.

Mr. Williams said B.C. is willing to pay compensation and "we're ready to take a more cooperative look at the question of compensation."

Impeachment Approved

New Charge Is Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives judiciary committee opened debate today on a second article of impeachment to add to the one it has already approved holding President Nixon responsible for the Watergate cover-up.

The committee may be asked to add at least two more articles of impeachment in the one approved and the one under consideration today.

The second article of impeachment charging Nixon with broad constitutional violations was expected to win bipartisan approval today in the House judiciary committee.

At a party caucus Sunday, committee Democrats were unable to reach a decision on whether to press for additional articles charging Nixon with contempt of Congress, for refusing to comply with committee subpoenas and with tax evasion.

Chairman Peter Rodino (Dem. N.J.), striving to finish the committee's proceedings, plans to keep it in session today and tonight in order to get a vote on Article II. If additional articles are offered, a Tuesday session is expected.

No matter how the remaining articles fare, a House vote on whether Nixon should stand trial in the Senate was assured by Saturday's 26-11 vote by a reconstituted impeachment.

Six of the committee's 17 Republicans joined all 21 Democrats in voting for Article I, and Democrats working for bipartisan support of Article II think as many as seven Republicans may support it.

Representative Caldwell Butler (Rep., Va.), one of the six, sees the 35-per-cent support for impeachment among committee Republicans building up on the House floor, which would mean about 65 Republican votes when

Connally Indicted

WASHINGTON (CP) — Former United States treasury secretary John Connally was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of bribery, perjury and obstructing justice.

He was charged with accepting $15,000 in bribes to influence the action of dairy industry price support decisions.

Connally, 57, was indicted by the House acts on the committee's recommendation about Aug. 20.

With Southern Democrats in the House expected to be lukewarm by the votes for Article I cast by their three colleagues on the committee, a substantial majority of the House appears likely to support impeachment. If a House majority impeaches Nixon, a Senate trial would then determine whether he should be removed from office.

Impeachment by the House requires a majority vote. Conviction in the Senate would require a two-thirds vote.

White House chief of staff Alexander Haig acknowledged that if a vote were to be held now on the House floor, "it would be very close." Haig said Nixon has suffered some losses this week and some very severe ones, and, obviously, he Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said chances are "growing daily" that the Senate would convict Nixon in an impeachment trial.

And Newsweek magazine said it has learned that one of Nixon's best congressional pulse-takers now counts only 26 senators for the president in an impeachment showdown.

That is only two more than he would need to sustain a veto, and Newsweek said that six of those 26 must be considered "soft." The pulse-taker was not identified.

Although no final draft of Article II was approved at Saturday's meeting, members reported that it will accuse Nixon of violating his oath to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, and his constitutional duty to see that the laws are faithfully executed. The alleged violations include:

—Authorizing or permitting the use of wiretapping and the dissemination of information from such surveillance without any justification of national security.

—Interfering unlawfully with the administration of the Internal Revenue Service, the FBI and the CIA.

—Authorizing and allowing to be maintained a secret investigating unit (the plumbers) that engaged in unlawful activities.

—Impeding investigations of the Watergate break-in.

—Failing to strive to obtain information from the Justice department in order to help his aides who were under investigation for possible criminal prosecution in the Watergate cover-up.

—Failing to see that the laws were faithfully executed after he learned of the Watergate break-in and the involvement of his subordinates in the cover-up.

Four Die In French Jail Riots

PARIS (Reuter) — The death toll in days of rioting in French prisons stood at four today, as a prison guards' trade union leader appealed to the convicts for calm.

The latest death occurred Sunday night when a guard at a prison near Nimes in the south-central France shot a 22-year-old prisoner reported trying to escape during rioting.

Two prisoners were killed by fellow convicts at Clairvaux, where the wave of prison rebellion started on July 22, and another died in a fire started by prisoners at Nimes the next day.

Connally Indicted

WASHINGTON (CP) — Former United States treasury secretary John Connally was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of bribery, perjury and obstructing justice.

He was charged with accepting $15,000 in bribes to influence the action of dairy industry price support decisions.

Connally, 57, was indicted by the House acts on the committee's recommendation about Aug. 20.

With Southern Democrats in the House expected to be lukewarm by the votes for Article I cast by their three colleagues on the committee, a substantial majority of the House appears likely to support impeachment. If a House majority impeaches Nixon, a Senate trial would then determine whether he should be removed from office.

Impeachment by the House requires a majority vote. Conviction in the Senate would require a two-thirds vote.

White House chief of staff Alexander Haig acknowledged that if a vote were to be held now on the House floor, "it would be very close." Haig said Nixon has suffered some losses this week and some very severe ones, and, obviously, he Democratic Leader Robert Byrd said chances are "growing daily" that the Senate would convict Nixon in an impeachment trial.

California Republican Convicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — California U.S. Rep. Ed Hutchinson, convicted of perjury for his testimony before a Senate committee, has another court order to meet with probation officers today for a presentence investigation.

Hutchinson remained free without bail after the United States district jury returned the verdict against him Saturday. He characterized the trial as a "gross miscarriage of justice and said he will appeal.

Prosecutors had charged that Reineck lied to the Senate judiciary committee on April, 1972, about an ITT contract with International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT). He received $408,000 to underwrite the cost of the Republican national convention that year.

Reinecke, a 63-year-old Republican, told the committee he never discussed the offer with then-Attorney General John Mitchell, until September, 1971, two months after the justice department consented to an out-of-court settlement of anti-trust case against ITT.

However, the later acknowledged and repeated at his trial that he actually informed Mitchell about the ITT offer in three telephone conversations during May and June, 1971, while the anti-trust settlement was being negotiated.

Anti-freeze Will Be Scarce and Expensive

This winter may be the one in which Belleville motorists get more exercise than they bought they would.

The reason for this is the anti-freeze situation which: a) costs quite a bit more per gallon — in some places more than double — than it did last year and b) is in short supply.

The reason for the increase and shortage is attributed to the shortage of glycol which forms the base of anti-freeze.

A random survey of various city businesses that sell anti-freeze produced unanimous results that prices had indeed risen over last year's and that the supply may have to be limited to customers.

At Canadian Tire, store manager Marc Colden said that his store does have anti-freeze in stock now but that prices of a gallon this year is $6.88 compared to $3.98 a gallon last year.

"We've never had so many requests for anti-freeze for the time of the year before. Everyone seems to be a bit panicky about getting their anti-freeze," he said.

For those driving six-cylinder cars, 15% gallons of anti-freeze are required and an eight cylinder car requires two gallons of anti-freeze every two winters.

Mr. Colden continued: "We'll be able to get 85 per cent or our normal needs this year. We're shooting for 10 to 12,000 gallons of anti-freeze this year but we'll probably only be able to get less than to 8,000 gallons," he said.

Mr. Colden said he wasn't sure if his store would have to limit anti-freeze supplies sold to customers.

"We ordered a lot more than we did last year. It's difficult to order. The price and the availability scares a lot of people.

"We'll have to watch the dealers and distinguish them from people buying in quantity. Hoarding could be a big problem," he admitted.

"You've got to distinguish between a farmer with a couple of cars and a trucker that needs plenty of anti-freeze from a dealer out to profit from the situation. We'll have to be careful."

Mr. Colden said that he has noticed more people buying anti-freeze earlier this year.

"We've had more requests' at this time of the year than we've had in the last 10 years. We're betting a lot of calls. Before we never had any requests for it at this time of year," he said.

"I've heard of some people talking about the price going up to $10, $12 and $14 a gallon for anti-freeze," said Mr. Colden.

This price hike was borne out by one service station representative who said that his supplier never put any in.

"We won't be getting as much as last year," he said. "We don't have any in stock right now. It should have been here a long time ago."

He said that whereas anti-freeze sold for $2.95 a gallon last year, he predicts that there is the possibility it might be in the $10 to $14 range this year.

A representative of a large retail outlet that sells anti-freeze among its wares said there's been quite a number of requests for anti-freeze.

"Our supply will be short this year, we know that," he said. He predicted that there would be some limitations and that there might be a problem with dealers.

"But we should be all right if people don't panic and don't hoard up," he said.

Jim Tebworth, manager of Tebby's Texaco, said he paid three times more for a drum of anti-freeze for commercial use from his company's head office in Toronto than he did last year.

He said he placed his order for anti-freeze to sell to his customers a month ago and is still awaiting it. "We couldn't even get our supply last year for our customers. The situation started last year.

"It's all a matter of supply and demand. Our price for a gallon was around $4.98 but it will be double that this year," predicted Mr. Tebworth.

Booth Damaged

Vandals caused about $200 damage to a telephone booth in the front of the Quinte Drive-In restaurant on Canniton Road at College Street.

The damage was reported by police at about 5.30 on Sunday afternoon.

Driver, Passenger Survive Car Split

An 18-year-old Campbellford driver and his passenger escaped with their lives when the car in which they were travelling was smashed in half in an accident on Canniton Road early Saturday around midnight.

Ors section of the car travelled about 20 feet before coming to rest on a front lawn in the area.

Thomas Irwin is in fair condition this morning at Belleville General Hospital with a concussion, severe facial lacerations, numerous broken ribs and possible internal injuries.

His passenger, Greg Bay, 18, also of Campbellford, escaped with minor injuries.

Investigating officers Constable Donald McDermott of the Belleville detachment, OPP, said the vehicle was travelling north on Canniton Road, north of the 401 a few minutes before midnight Saturday.

He said the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve, crossed the centre line, stopped off a large green highway sign, hit a large maple tree and was split in half.

When the car left the road, it travelled 187 feet along the shoulder of the road before striking the sign and snapping it off. It then travelled 86 feet before hitting the tree.

The vehicle was split at a point just behind the driver's seat. The front portion of the car travelled in a northerly direction upon impact landing on a private driveway or a residence. The rear section travelled about 20 feet in an easterly direction and came to rest on a front lawn.

Head-on Collision Sends 5 to BGH

The accident occurred at 10:30 p.m. on Saturday on Highway 401.

A second vehicle driven by Peter Robertson 24, of Scarborough was westbound on the 401 when the two collided.

Mr. Blomsma was taken to hospital with a broken jaw, broken left ankle and severe cuts to the left side of his face. He is in fair condition this morning.

His passenger, Karen Doucette, 22, of Toronto suffered two broken toes on her left foot, two broken bones on her left hand, a broken index finger and numerous abrasions.

In the other car, driver Peter Robertson was taken to hospital with undetermined abdominal injuries. His father, Peter, 53, visiting from England with his wife, suffered severe cuts to the top of his head, undetermined internal injuries as well as cuts and bruises.

Olympic Trials at Trenton

Medals for Young Sailors

TRENTON — Teenage sailors from Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa improved their chances of representing Canada in the 1976 Olympics here during the weekend.

The Ontario sailing championships for young people 18 years and under were held at CFB Trenton Yacht Club Sunday.

Winners of the Olympic trial who qualified to advance to the eastern Canadian intermediate championship regatta scheduled for Shearwater, N.S., Aug. 9-13, received gold, silver and bronze medals here.

They were: First Ian Reid and Gage Jull, Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto; second Larry McDonald and Steven McNeeney, Royal Hamilton Yacht Club; third — Ali Meller and John Seymour, Britannia Yacht Club, Ottawa.

The weekend regatta attracted 16 entries from zones in Ontario where yacht clubs have special programs and sailing activities for young people.

The only team of girls in the contest — Anna Twastjerne and Madge Barr, of Sturgeon Lake Sailing Club, finished fourth.

Junior Olympic competition in sailing is sponsored by the Royal Bank of Canada. Maurice Murphy, technical director for the Canadian Yachting Association and his Ontario counterpart, Alf Jenkins, were on hand to observe and serve as officials supervising the regatta.

All of the 32 young people who participated received certificates showing they had competed in Olympic trials.

Duane Tyerman, CFB Trenton Yacht Club commodore, was host for the event.

Winners of the 13-years-and-under class were: Michael Cooper and Jason Lister, Island Yacht Club, Toronto; Bruce Hobden and Edgar Vanderbeek, Bronte Yacht Club, Oakville; Mark Lammens and Stephen Beer, Brockville Yacht Club.

Child Missing, Car Sought

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Police across Ontario have been alerted to watch for a late-model black car possibly involved in the disappearance Friday of four-year-old Cindy Williams.

John Cherwaty, a friend of the girl's mother, Diane Williams, said today that three young girls who were playing in a park with Cindy told police a black car pulled up beside the swings where they were.

"They said she went to the driver's side and when the car left, Cindy was gone," Mr. Cherwaty said.

He has offered a $1,500 reward for information leading to Cindy's return.

Police said the wanted car is a 1971 or 1972 Ford with only one mast on the driver's door, a stripe up the hood and patches on the right front fender and trunk.

Less Brucellosis In Prince Edward

Prince Edward County — Cattle here have less infection of Brucellosis than in any other infected area of Ontario, says Dr. J.P McCorquodale, federal agriculture department veterinarian for Belleville district.

"We had encountered one bad herd in Prince Edward County but we have had it depopulated," said Dr. McCorquodale.

Brucellosis is a bacterial disease, and although it does not bring death to cattle, it affects are reproductive system causing abortion in pregnant cows. Raw milk used from infected cows can cause fever in humans and will create symptoms suggestive of arthritis, producing stomachaches and fluctuating temperatures.

Farmer discovers that one of

Among Dr. McCorquodale's duties as district veterinarian is collection of blood samples from the dairy herd if a farmer discovers that one on his animals has aborted or is actively aborting. The blood sample is drawn from the cow's jugular vein and is sent to the federal government laboratory for tests.

Results are available to the farmer 10 days after the test. If the test results are positive, the farmer's entire herd is placed under quarantine. The farmer at this time is prevented from increasing or reducing his herd.

Since brucellosis affects only the reproductive system, the animals are safe to eat. Infected animals therefore are immediately ordered slaughtered and the farmer is compensated by the federal government.

"Reactors are graded on a point basis", comments Dr. McCorquodale, "according to the age of the infected animal and other important determining factors."

The maximum that a farmer can receive for a grade cow that is a reactor is $200. Maximum compensation for a purebred cow is $450. In addition, the farmer will receive the going beef price for the reactor.

After removal of the infected animals, the farmer disinfects his barn, before tests are again given the rest of his herd after 30 days, 90 days and six months.

Crash Halts Vacation

TWEED — A vacationing family of five from Mannon Conn., escaped injury but had their vacation suddenly interrupted Saturday when their car went out of control on Highway 62 north of Holloway.

The car, driven by Mary Lou Reed, was hauling a camping trailer. It left the road, causing an estimated $2,000 damage to the vehicle and completely wrecking the trailer.

Bike Rolls

PICTON — A Milford youth escaped with a fractured ankle, cuts, bruises and burns Sunday when his motorcycle left Ostrom Rd. one mile east of Picton, and rolled into the ditch.

Daniel McCaw, 17, RR 3, Picton, was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for treatment. Provincial police said the accident resulted from a steering defect in the bike. The motorcycle received $100 damage.

Reaction Mixed To Dairy Plan

PICTON — Prince Edward County dairymen expecting to convert to bulk milk in the near future are elated over the announcement by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food that the Industrial Milk Production Incentive Program is being extended another year.

But reaction has been mixed from spokesmen for the county's dairy committee.

Known by dairymen as "IMPIP", the purpose of the program is to increase production of industrial milk and cream, thereby helping to ensure that the province's allocation of market sharing quotas is retained. The main stipulation in the program is that shippers presently shipping in can not convert to bulk to obtain the loan. Features of the program include a five-year guaranteed loan, no repayment on the principle the first year and a 20 per cent refund of the principle available if all commitments are met by the applicant.

The incentive program extension took effect July 1, and will expire June 30, next year. According to Larry Mathesen, provincial government agricultural representative for the county, 38 milk producers applied for the program last year. Harry Evans, Prince Edward County Milk Committee chairman, says it is hoped that "more county milk producers will take advantage of the program during its second year of operation."

The program covers not only conversion to bulk milk, but also barn improvements, milking equipment, equipment or materials to install improved feeding systems. It can be also used to assist in the purchase of dairy cattle.

Gary Fox, vice-chairman of the milk committee, however, expresses displeasure with the extension of IMPIP.

"All it's doing is prolonging the misery. Give us a fair price for our milk and forget about all this incentive crap to keep some people going."

Mr. Fox says that dairy farmers can get the money to put up buildings, milking cows and other facilities as long as enough return is realized to meet the payments.

"Increases in the income to dairymen remain miles behind the present inflationary jump," concluded Mr. Fox.

Rosehall Woman Writes Ministry
Speeding Traffic Draws Protest

ROSEHALL — A protest against the speed limit by a resident here has sparked support from Rosehall residents and response from the Ontario transportation ministry.

Mrs. Allan VanDusen in writing the ministry's Port Hope district office charges that Rosehall residents are being endangered by the speed of the traffic through the hamlet.

"The speed limit through here remains at an unchanged 35 mph and you can easily add on 10 to 20 mph for the usual speed at which traffic goes by. Both a neighbor and ourselves have had telephone crosswires ripped from our houses by passing trucks," she said.

In addition, the hamlet of 35 inhabitants has a highway passing line through its centre, Mrs. VanDusen says that Highway 33, which passes through the hamlet carried heavy and steady traffic, especially on weekends to and from provincial parks and the many cottages in the county.

The VanDusen home is on

Where's The Fire ?

This city seems resigned to the fact that its downtown core is a fire hazard.

The $200,000 damage caused by a July 1 Front Street blaze pushed the thorough-fare's ten-year fire tab well past the $2 million mark.

An Intelligencer survey the following week revealed that only a handful of the occupants of the 100 Front St. apartments carry fire insurance. Agents either will not sell it to them or they will end up paying $150 for a three-year tenants' policy that would only cost $25 elsewhere in the city.

In another $200,000 fire that destroyed a Front Street pizzeria November 29, only two of eight renting families had fire protection.

Despite the street's horrendous fire record, only two buildings — Walker's Store and Walker's Hardware — are equipped with sprinkler systems and alarms that connect with the Moira Street fire hall.

Instead of praying their downtown tinder box manages to survive until all the firetraps are torn down, city council might act in the one area open to them.

Priority should be given to study and adoption of the draft code of minimum building standards now kicking around city hall. Until such a code is put into effect, the city building inspector is powerless to force owners of existing buildings to meet specific standards of safety and appearance.

The National Building Code is only applicable to new city construction projects.

It would also be advisable for city hall to give static fire department a say in enforcing a new building code, as is the case in many other cities.

Tenants or downtown shoppers should not have to take their lives in their hands by entering Front Street buildings.

It's Contagious

Nurses, most will agree, merely began earning long overdue salaries with the $0 per cent pay hikes agreed to by Ontario hospitals.

But, once again, parity has reared its ugly head as lab technicians and other hospital workers are using the nurses' settlement as a target for their demands.

Labor demands for salary increases are too often made a scapegoat for inflation. But the pay-for-wage parity that began in the auto industry will be judged by history as being responsible for many of our economic ills.

It is unreasonable, as the auto workers did, to say that because counterparts in Detroit made double a Windsor worker's wage, the Canadian level should be equalised.

No two economies in the world, while bearing a kinship, are exactly alike enough to make wages and prices interchangeable.

But it is sheer nonsense to suggest that because one works in the same building as, say, hospital cleaners, one should be entitled to the same pay.

For a lab assistant who might do nothing more medical than test a urine sample to seek sugar levels with a registered nurse is ludicrous. It would have been comparable to the nurses seeking a surgeon's pay scale.

Economic gremlins like parity could eventually force some form of wage and price controls on all of our heads.

Bikes Still Buzz

Not all motorbike enthusiasts seem to be deterred by a city hall reminder that parks are out-of-bounds for their two-wheeled antics.

Operators of all motorized vehicles risk fines by straying from established roadways.

He either has money or brains to burn, the city youth who zipped across the Sir John A. Macdonald soccer pitch less than 50 feet from a group of eight-year-olds the other night.

Hopefully the city will be able to weed out some of their parkland cowboys before they have a huge civil injury suit on their hands.

Era of No-lead Gasoline Coming with 1975 Model Cars

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The era of no-lead gasoline will arrive in a month or so, with the introduction of the 1975 cars.

If you are planning to buy one of the new models, you may be depending upon the make—find yourself committed to the use of low-lead gasoline.

And the farther you live from the big population centres, the more difficult that could be.

A survey just completed by the federal Department of Industry, trade and commerce says that some 8,000 of Canada's approximately 28,000 retail gasoline stations will be offering no-lead to their customers by the time the new models come on the road.

That figure is expected to rise to 9,000 by mid-1975.

But, prospective 1975-model buyers in less heavily populated areas would be well advised to locate a nearby station that will have no-lead, before committing themselves to the purchase of a car that requires it.

Why do certain cars need no-lead gasoline? And since lead is not present naturally in gasoline, why is it there at all?

Lead was added long ago as part of chemical formulations to increase a gasoline's octane number, and thus enhance its ability to burn smoothly and prevent engine knocking.

But lead can be poisonous. In certain big cities, with unusual climatic conditions—notably Los Angeles—the lead in the exhausts from thousands of cars creates a health problem.

First California, then the United States as a whole, passed laws requiring car manufacturers to modify engines so as to reduce or eliminate these exhausts.

Because a substantial proportion of Canadian-built cars are destined for the U.S. market these U.S. legal requirements have been applied here—even though the exhaust problem scarcely exists in this country.

The pollution-reducing device that is coming into wide use with the 1974 cars is called the catalytic converter. This is a canister mounted in the exhaust system. It chemically changes some of the exhaust pollutants to harmless substances.

But these devices are practical only with lead-free gasoline. The lead in ordinary gasoline would quickly render them ineffective.

In the line-up of 1975 Canadian-made cars catalytic converters will be used on all General Motors models, about 30 per cent of Ford production, only a few Chrysler products, all of American Motors' significant cars and a few other lines.

No-lead gasoline has been a subject of controversy almost since it was first introduced. Critics say it is not needed in Canada, and that it reduces engine efficiency and fuel economy.

In any case, it has been slow to catch on. The only oil company to have produced it steadily since 1970 is Shell Canada Ltd., and its sales of the product have crept up slowly to 4.5 per cent of its retail gasoline volume.

Texaco Oil Co. of Houston stopped offering lead-free gasoline two years ago because of poor sales.

With the advent of large numbers of 1975 models with catalytic converters, all major oil companies will be offering no-lead gasoline soon—but at only some of their stations.

U.S. Cautiously Recognizes New Mediterranean Leaders

By PETER BUCKLEY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Politics in the eastern Mediterranean has been transformed by the series of breath-taking changes in Greece and Cyprus, but Western diplomats are not admitting caution with their obvious pleasure over the events.

The temptation is to speak of a fairy-tale ending," one official with a NATO embassy said. "But of course there is still too much uncertainty in the situation."

The caution was reflected in terse formality of a United States state department announcement which welcomed the new government of Constantine Karamanlis in Greece and accorded practical recognition to Glafcos Clerides as acting president of Cyprus.

The military's seven years of repressive government in Greece had become a source of growing aggravation to the European members of the North Atlantic alliance. The U.S. was in the increasingly awkward position of weighing distaste for the regime against its desire to maintain naval bases in Greece.

The Clerides appointment seemed to be approved unanimously. It is as difficult to find anyone with an unkind word for the long-time Speaker of the Cyprus parliament as it has been to hear a favorable comment about his short-term predecessor, Nikos Sampson.

Nevertheless, diplomatic observers in Washington take a variety of questions that remain unanswered and problems that await solution.

A key uncertainty concerns the future action of Turkey, particularly in Cyprus.

The Turkish government, in its jubilation over the political and military events of recent days, tries to insist on a continuing presence for its invasion force in Cyprus. In many cases unbearable public pressures on the governments of both Athens and Nicosia to resist.

Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit said earlier this week that the Turkish military is "irrevocably established" in the area north of the northern coastal town of Kyrenia will be Turkish forever.

Even the Soviet Union, which approved the Turkish invasion, has indicated it would oppose attempts by Ankara to exploit its advantage.

Turkey may be trying merely to build up bargaining points for the forthcoming discussions with Greece and Britain in Geneva, but reports of Turkish violations of the ceasefire in Cyprus and of attempts to improve the Turkish military position have caused disquiet.

Uncertainty also remains about the future of Archbishop Makarios.

The new Greek government's recognition of the bearded patriarch as legal president of Cyprus is likely to improve his chances of a return to power. But the failure of Clerides to state unequivocally that he will turn over power to Makarios has undermined the double-talk practiced about Makarios's prospects.

The U.S. government has seldom been enthusiastic about the archbishop. However he has had Britain's open support and the British government is expected to play a important role in settling the question of Cyprus.

Finally, the future of both the ruling military and the Greek royal family remain unclear.

The apparent overnight withdrawal of the armed forces from the Greek government, after a lengthy period of unchecked power, has been greeted here with surprise and admiration.

Whether Premier Karamanlis can keep the military at arm's length through a period of measures to restore internal stability remains to be seen.

His intentions toward King Constantine, now an exile in England, are also uncertain. Karamanlis has maintained contact with the royal family but public opinion is expected to play a part in deciding on whether the monarchy is restored.

First 'Dry' Vote Cast For Frankford Plebiscite

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

A plebiscite for more liquor outlets in Frankford is immanent. I assume the pros and cons members as always would be on that such outlets would provide potential for more income for someone.

Oh! Money! Money! Fame, economy! How long are we going to deliberately close our minds to all the facts and finances we have to accept as very suicidal we are becoming as a province and country in our insolence on making alcohol more and more available to more and more people?

If doesn't increase our net income, but rather greatly reduces it to say nothing of the untold miseries it causes.

We argue for personal rights and it would seem that included in those rights we want the privilege to go out from a dining-room, alcohol-laden level above the tails drop our cash, somehow up our way home and then plead innocent because of intoxication.

Let's face it. It's happening all over Ontario. What has become of the rights of those who don't drink? It must be costing us dearly to suffer through accidents caused by drunks and pay the bills with the money they don't spend on alcohol.

Isn't our society becoming more and more incomprehensible? Individuals compose it, so it's plain to see we need a majority of individuals who are broad enough to face facts squarely and sincerely and vote for the legislation that will protect everyone against these synthetics of human justice. Who will stand up and be counted?

Two-tier Government Seems Better of Two Evils

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Those interested in municipal government have been presented with a puzzle.

What is regional government and what is "restructured county government."

At the recent session the house heard a County of Oxford Bill, which proposed the local government of the county.

In the bill, which is outside of it, there was quite an argument that actually what the legislation was doing was imposing regional government on the area. The government insisted that it wasn't. It said that what the legislation was doing was "restructuring county government."

But the opposition pooh-poohed this and said that really all it was doing was using a different terminology because there had been so much objection to regional government in those areas where it had imposed it.

Actually there are some significant differences between regional government and restructured county government.

As with regional government the restructured county approach does break all government to two tiers and give significant powers to the upper level—the county.

But then in the county approach the senior official, the warden, is elected, one of the most criticized features of regional government as it has chairmen are appointed.

Then under the county system the old county boundaries are maintained. There is no insane reshuffle that has taken place in the regions.

Again, the county structure does not have as much power as the regional. Under the county approach, for example, the police forces are retained.

And, finally, the county approach is voluntary.

Unlike the regional systems which have been imposed from the top, dictated by the province, the county systems are voluntary in that they start from the bottom with local areas ordering studies and working from there.

Although it may seem there really is not that much difference it would appear to me that the county approach is at least the better of two evils.

Greece's Incoming Government Faces Restless Elements of Left

By ROD CURRIE

The Canadian Press

While Greece's allies join in the joy of her people in their unexpected freedom from military dictatorship, many realists foresee intense difficulties for the new government which has given a period of calm in which to establish itself.

With the self-deposed military leaders still hovering in the background and the restless elements of the left suddenly released after seven years of repression, the ingredients for turmoil seem already built into the situation.

Much will depend on the degree of influence conservative Premier Constantine Caramanlis, recalled from exile, can exercise over these opposing forces. He will need all the cooperation his personal popularity can buy him as he tackles the problem of a country left battered by years of neglect, foreign and economic policy and with the worst inflation rate in Europe.

Caramanlis, the nearest thing Greece has to a dominating political figure in the stamp of a Churchill or a De Gaulle, is a reassuring and calm all elements of the population, including many Greek political spectrum if he is to succeed.

In the eyes of many observers, if he moves too swiftly in curbing the excesses and power, he would not accept the role of puppet of the military, in this view.

Also, there is a certain amount of nervousness that the failure of the Greek-directed coup in Cyprus has discredited and demoralized the military regime in Athens to the point it would not so soon be tempted to try to take over again.

The fact that the prospect of war between two such vital members of NATO dow has been averted has created a sense Lancashire's stature even more and perhaps give him the period of peace essential to the survival of the new administration.

Pensioners Leading Dog's Life

The Brantford Expositor

While some luxurious pensioners fight inflation by eating dog food, it is absurd, even an outrage, that Merrill, that felicity cat in TV pet food commercials, earned $100 this year. That's nearly six times as much as a Canadian over 65 gets if he or she has no other income than a monthly old age pension. The Batawelle Canadians are spending over $100 million a year on pet food, mostly for their pets.

The humanities claim, comedy is exaggeration carried to the point of absurdity. How could be more comic than a cat living in luxury while some people hungry? Why not make dog food? Such a fascinating subject as the glaring lack of justice with which it gets distributed. Mr. Merrill rolling in the alms at the thought that Jocelyn Wilder (at $18,000 a year) makes 100 times the salary of the teacher who taught Shakespeare to Mr. Morris?

The most inexplicable pay scale is perhaps that existing among the arts. Once the impresarios and practitioners to the arts were minimal. Then Diaghilev, Massart and William Blake have proved Shaw's maxim wrong. Dr. Johnson, moonlighting as a government clerk, got to Parliament Hill by foot from walking to Canterbury was his pastime. But things have changed. Last month a 15th century Chaucer called "Canterbury Tales" was auctioned in London for $216,000. And as it is unlikely that rock musicians achieve housing success at $150,000 for a single performance.

Increasingly there are at least two kinds of artists: the very rich and the very poor. Between the patrons in the great enterprises of industrial corporations and nations, without which it cannot survive.

What has Canada's oil industry done for you?

How soon everyone forgets. Not many people remember that Canada was not a major oil producer until late in the 1940's. Before then, Canada produced some crude oil, but 90% of its needs were imported.

It took a search lasting more than 20 years—and well over 100 "dry holes"—before the discovery in Alberta of a new and important oil field in 1947.

That was 27 years ago. Since then the oil industry has grown by leaps and bounds. More than 70,000 wells have been drilled in Western Canada alone. 24,000 have produced crude oil. To process this, 40 modern refineries were built, over 18,000 miles of pipe lines laid, and hundreds of millions of dollars spent for the storage terminals, tankers, trucks, rail cars and service stations needed to create a fully effective oil industry.

To serve you.

Canadians enjoy today a very significant benefit from these industry accomplishments. You are in an enviable situation with regard to crude oil production. The quantity produced in Canada equals your total needs! Canada is the only Western industrialized country so fortunate.

There are other benefits. The oil industry is a good employer. 275,000 men and women get their pay directly from the oil industry. Also, it is a good customer of other Canadian businesses—and the vast amounts spent annually on exploration and drilling equipment, ships, trucks, refining equipment and supplies of all kinds, make an important additional contribution to employment in Canada. The 35,000 service stations the industry has provided to serve you, all across Canada, is one of the best gasoline distribution systems in the world.

This amazing growth could not have been accomplished under any other system than that which we now have—private enterprise. Competition has made each member of the oil industry operate in the most efficient manner. Each company constantly improves its products and services. No other system, or form of governmental control, could have resulted in Canada achieving the enviable position of being self-sufficient.

And Tomorrow?

Yes, we must and do think and plan for the tomorrows to come. The oil industry has the will and desire and, above all, the experience to meet Canada's future petroleum energy requirements better than anyone else.

To do this requires some understanding on your part. Some sources would have you believe that "big oil" is bad—that we are "price gougers" and "rip-off" artists and that our profits are "too high".

Harsh words for responsible companies to swallow because they are simply not true. We wouldn't be in business long if we acted badly or treated you unfairly. We also wouldn't be in business long if we didn't make a profit. Clear-thinking people know that all industries, ours included, must have profit incentives sufficient to provide an adequate return on investments in order to finance developments to provide for your future needs.

We've come a long way together—and we've got a long way to go.

Books By And About Women

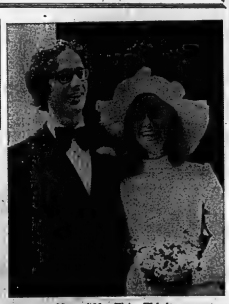
PIONEER OF THE FUTURE, MARGARET SANGER

By Emily Tutt Douglas

Young women today are indebted for their personal freedom to a women who began battling 60 years ago and died in 1966, until she died in 1966, at the age of 86.

Margaret Sanger, the woman who was jailed eight times for her beliefs and "revolutionary activities" finally succeeded in her attempts to make birth control methods legal, public knowledge.

Today, the ability to plan the size and arrival of families is something that couples take for granted. Doctors, clinics and pharmacies dispense information and birth control devices without fear of punishment or fines.



How different from the days when Margaret Sanger, a young nurse in the slums of New York, was unable to get assistance anywhere for women suffering disease (and often death) as a result of too-frequent pregnancies and illegal abortions.

Her search for information led her from America, where she was in severe legal difficulty as a result of her inquiries to Europe, where attitudes and birth control techniques were more advanced. She came back home armed with personal zeal to continue her campaign.

She lectured, picketed, wrote pamlets, defied the law, and set up the first birth control clinics that today bring new hope to every part of the world.

This biography traces Margaret Sanger's personal history as well as her public one. Her early marriage and motherhood, her later involvement with H.G. Wells and Havelock Ellis, and her growing interest in women's rights and world affairs are described in detail. Margaret Sanger emerges as a magnetic, intelligent and dedicated crusader, whose life story makes fascinating reading.

This book is available in the Corby Library.

Ann Landers

Raincoat Flasher Really Harmless

Dear Ann Landers: A friend and I had a frightening experience yesterday. We think you will print this letter and tell us if we did the right thing. It might also help others who may find themselves in the same situation.

My girl-friend and I are both 18. We were walking along a path near a creek. It was a bright sunny day and my girl friend was strolling. A young man in his early 20s, I'd guess, was walking toward us on the same path. As he came nearer we could see he wasn't fully clothed! In fact, he was wearing a raincoat and no trousers. His coat was open and he was intentionally exposing himself.

As he passed he said nothing—just kept walking. He then started to follow us and tried to make conversation. My friend told him in the best thing to do was tell him off. She told him (in plain language) that he must be some kind of nut, that we weren't interested in perverts and to stop following us or we would call the police.

He didn't say one word, just walked away, rejected like.

Since there seem to be so many lunatics running loose these days, will you say something in your column about how to deal with these people? If I had been alone that man might have tried to rape me. Am I right? Please comment.—Scary Scene

Dear S.S.: You're wrong. That man is an exhibitionist. These sick people get their jollies by exposing themselves and that's as far as they go. Most exhibitionists are mere timid, often impotent and actually quite harmless.

They should be reported to the police, however. Hopefully they will be picked up and treated for their psychiatric problem.

P.S.: When a college kid does it on the run it's called "streaking," considered a "harmless fad," even "healthy." Say some, not me. What a difference the setting makes!

Dear Ann Landers: I am worried about my sister. Her daughter died six years ago, but she still has a 12 by 15 picture of the girl on top of the TV in the living room. There are three smaller photographs of the girl in the same room, but there's another picture of her in the kitchen.

Her husband has told me these pictures all over the house really get him down. I sympathize with him, poor man, because whenever I go over there I feel as if I'm in the same room staring at me.

My sister must be very sick to want to be reminded constantly of her tragic loss. Shall I speak to her, for her husband's sake, as well as out of consideration for other relatives and friends who go into that house? Several people have mentioned it.—Uneasy Feeling

Dear Uneasy: If the pictures have been around for six years, your sister has a morbid attachment to them and I doubt very seriously her suggestion from you will do any good.

Her husband should speak to her about getting rid of them—selling, however. The poor woman has been dead to him for over the years, and her daughter's death. The ever-present pictures all over the house are a symptom of her illness.

Confidential to Parents of an Ugly Child Who Is Driving Him Crazy: Sounds like you quit when you were losers. That child needs to be evaluated by a physician. He may be hyperkinetic, and if so, children are frequently are helped by medication—which in turn helps the parents.

Business Women Urge Government Changes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the conference of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs Tuesday passed recommendations to the federal government on Canada Pension Plan benefits, health care, employment and the Canadian constitution.

The recommendations dealing with the pension plan urged that provisions of the plan apply equally to men and women, and that equitable benefits be applied to disabled spouses. Benefits should be made available to all dependents listed on income tax returns, not just, to spouses and children, one resolution said.

The federation also recommended the basic personal exemption for income tax purposes be increased to $3,000 from $1,766.

Constitutional amendments recommended included inclusion in the Canadian Bill of Rights in the constitution of Canada and ratifying the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights. They also urged prompt action in amending the Canadian constitution.

Also passed was a motion that the federal government implement recommendations of royal commission on the status of women.

A memorial service for 102 members who have died since the last conference in 1972 opened the second day of the conference.

Outgoing president Elizabeth Aulin, a Vancouver teacher, said the 102 deaths highlight one of the federation's most pressing problems.

"It's painful but it's natural," she said in an interview. "All of the clubs have disbanded in the last two years, most from lack of interest or initiative as founding members retired or died. There has only been one new club started in Sherwood Park, near Edmonton.

Mrs. Aulin is concerned at the club's seeming lack of relevance, after a history of pioneering for women's rights in Canada since the 1930s.

"We were responsible for the action committee on the status of women's commission," she said. "We let it get away from us. They didn't have to fight the battle."

Mrs. Aulin feels the main thrust of the federation is to have the recommendations of the royal commission on the status of women implemented.

Day Care Services Can Do Wonders

The Canadian Council on Social Development, in its National Guidelines for the Development of Day Care Services to Children, recommends the following ratios of children to staff in institutional day care: one staff member to four infants, one staff member to five toddlers (15 to 20 months), one staff member to nine children aged three and a half to five, and one staff member to 12 children.

Says Philip Hepworth of the CCSD: "Some children are already deprived both socially and economically and this deprivation must be made good. The costs of running a day care centre compare favorably with other institutions. In Ottawa, the annual cost of running a day care centre for 65 children under five is $95,000 to $98,000 in 1973, compared with $145,440 for running a residence of 13 unbanny and delinquent teen-age boys.

"We must realize the heavy future costs that might result from the present emphasis on costs cutting in day care. This could be very bad economics if you take into account the fact that inadequate day care often leads to emotional and educational problems in older children."

Even more we find expressed here the responsibility to make up to a lonely, mixed-up child for the home and lack of one — which made him that way. Day care centres, properly staffed, can accomplish wonders.

Dear Doris: Did you know that Elks and their auxiliary, The Order of the Royal Purple, started the Elks Deaf Dilection and Development Program?

In 1968 a national research project was designed to test 18,000 babies for hearing impairment. The Elks were the first to enter the field of audiometric wan, now a joint effort of the Elks and the government of British Columbia.

The brochure "Can Your Baby Hear?" has been widely published by the Federal Department of Health and Welfare.

Other activities include: a loaning library of slides and films, a Canada-wide public awareness campaign, and coordinating activities with complementary programs.

We hope you will continue to draw the attention of the Canadian public to the disadvantages of the deaf. The identification of hearing impairment and its accompanying problems is needed everyone's responsibility.

Lissette Cooling, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of Canada.

Dear Mrs. L.C.: More power to you! I learn that there are three times as many deaf in Canada as there are blind. And that early detection and the early beginning of treatment can make all the difference in the eventual adjustment of a deaf individual to a "hearing" world.

Your two brochures: "Can Your Baby Hear?" (French and English), and the "Elks Purple Cross Fund" are full of helpful information about coping with this handicap.

Confidential to Concerned In-Law: Could it be that the young nurse is not really having an affair with this very sweet elderly man? Is it possible that in his nervous state, she is the one person who can help his recovery with her good cheer?

Obviously he is mentally far from well. Before censure, I'd advise that you go to talk frankly with his doctor, find out in what ways the family has failed him. This is a case for careful professional handling.

Airlift of Commando Troops To Cyprus Will Begin Today

EDMONTON (CP) — Planeloads of commando troops that will raise to battalion strength Canada's peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus begin leaving today for the troubled Mediterranean island.

Military spokesmen at the Canadian Forces base near this western provincial capital said Sunday that a total of 450 troops, mainly from the Canadian Airborne Regiment stationed here, will be airlifted to Cyprus during the next eight days.

They will bring to 936 the number of Canadians in the United Nations force that is charged with the chore of keeping at arms length Greek and Turkish antagonists.

To get to the island, where 486 fellow troops have been praised for their work under fire during the last two weeks of fighting, the men and tons of extra equipment will be airlifted in 15 aircraft that will make about 40 flights during the next week or more.

They will be landing at a British base 20 miles from Kampania on the eastern coast, 40 miles from Nicosia.

Two Boeing 707 jets and 13 C-130 Hercules planes have been here and at Trenton, Ont., will be used for the lift, expected to take a total of 1,200 flying hours.

The reinforcements were ordered last week by the federal government after the United Nations asked for help.

Ottawa said the troops would have the permission of the Greek government before they were moved across the island to the eastern sector.

The 2,300-man peace force on the island is to be increased. A total of 1,000 additional troops have been promised by members of the peace force—Canada, Britain, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Ireland and Austria.

Meanwhile, on the eve of their departure, Canada's foreign affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said the cease-fire would have preferred not to send the extra troops.

In New York, meanwhile, the United Nations Security Council was called into emergency session to discuss the situation on the island following the assassination of the Soviet Union.

Moscow said the atmosphere in the Greek-Turkish international peace, and urged immediate implementation of the Geneva cease-fire calling for a conference on the island and an end to foreign military intervention.

On Cyprus, reports said Turkish helicopters, merchant ships and navy warships could also be used to move in from Turkey for the ninth straight day since the country's invasion.

The reinforcements, however, made no move to advance beyond a 200-square-mile area now held by Turkey between Nicosia and the northern seaport of Kyrenia.

It's Worth Wound To Reduce Killing

TRENKELLIA, Cyprus (CP) — "Take the worst pain you've ever had and multiply it by ten," said Lieut. Ray McGrath of Kemptville, Ont., in describing the way he felt seconds after being hit by a bullet. He left arm while on peacekeeping duty for the United Nations forces on this war-scarred Mediterranean island.

McGrath, 26, married and the father of a two-year-old girl, described his injury as a clean gunshot wound.

But Pte. Michel Plouffe of Ville St. Michel, Que., was not so lucky. He died from a rifle bullet that pierced the side his face on one of the more recent nights of battle between Greek and Turks.

Plouffe will be felt the bullet hit him like a punch, a rock, in the face.

Reeling, he spat it out along with mouthfuls of blood, teeth—and went right on giving first aid to Canadian Lieut. Bill Greiner, the most seriously wounded of 19 Canadian soldiers brought from the battle areas of Nicosia to a military hospital on the island of Dhekelia.

Blagrimet, of Montreal, was hit by bullets in the thigh and buttocks during fighting between Turkish and Greek Cypriot forces July 23.

But he fought back Sunday on the harrowing experiences of all the soldiers, telling how McGrath said his own suffering was worth it.

"If the UN hadn't been there . . . the shooting and the killing would have been a lot more widespread and savage," he said in an interview.

About the same time McGrath was wounded, Pte. Michel Greniier of Longueil, Que., was on duty with Canadian peacekeepers in Nicosia when headquarters came under fire and four mortar bombs exploded near his position. It was a swift occasion.

The bombs hited Greeler, a

Old Wreck In Danger

KYRENIA, Cyprus (AP) — What may be the world's oldest shipwreck is in danger of being destroyed because of the fighting on Cyprus, an archaeologist-photographer said Sunday.

Chip Vincent, 28, of Boston, said the 2,300-year-old wreck is in a museum in the Kyrenia Castle, now being used as a Turkish command post.

He said a constant level of temperature and humidity must be maintained to keep the ship from rapidly deteriorating, but since the Turkish invasion cities days ago the electricity has been turned off.

"It's the world's oldest shipwreck ," Vincent, a member of the Kyrenia ship restoration, said. "It's very important. I'm worried about it."

He said $400,000 had been spent during seven years to haul the ship from the bottom of the sea a mile off the Cyprus coast to the museum.

Dief Attends Church Service For Ukrainian

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker was among about 1,000 persons who attended a Ukrainian church service Sunday for the silent Ukrainian writer Valentyn Moroz.

Mr. Diefenbaker expressed admiration for the Morox defence committee, which organized the service in a park near the Soviet embassy, for its efforts to secure the writer's release from a Soviet prison near Moscow.

While he did not think the service would have much impact on Soviet officials, he said it would make a big impression on public opinion across the country.

The former prime minister also commended the on-rags of Ranger strikers associated with the Moroz movement but asked them to end their strike.

Two of the original strikers have been jailed, fined for the two weeks. They were joined at a similar service Saturday by three new strikers from Quebec.

Last week two other strikers were sent to hospital and told by doctors to eat or face permanent liver or kidney damage. They since have been released.

Five Die When Car In Collision With Bus

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five New Brunswick residents died when their car was involved in a collision with a bus on the Trans-Canada highway in Quebec Sunday.

Provincial police said Donald, N.B., were among at least 89 persons who died accidentally in Canada during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday night local times permitted

In New York, meanwhile, the United Nations Security Council was called into emergency session to discuss the situation on the island following the assassination of the Soviet Union.

Moscow said the atmosphere in the Greek-Turkish international peace, and urged immediate implementation of the Geneva cease-fire calling for a conference on the island and an end to foreign military intervention.

Canada Reluctant To Double Force

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would have preferred not to increase its peacekeeping force on Cyprus, says External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Speaking on its CTV television network program Question Period, taped Thursday for broadcast Sunday, Mr. Sharp said the doubling of the Canadian force to the seven-hundred-man Mediterranean Island was done at the request of UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

"Of course, if we had our choice we would prefer not to have increased our numbers. But faced with the request from the secretary-general I am sure that you would agree that rather than have the force not operate, or have to call upon other countries to supplement our deficiencies, that Canada should accept this responsibility," he said.

The minister reiterated that peacekeeping operations should be shared by more countries but the question of other contributors to Cyprus should be left alone until we get over this present crisis."

Mr. Sharp said two other countries offered to send troops to Cyprus but Secretary-General Waldheim "turned them down." He did not name the countries.

Canada announced Thursday it would increase its UN Cyprus contingent to about 936 men. Members of the Canadian Airborne Regiment in Edmonton began leaving for the island over the weekend.

It also was announced its augmentation is not permanent and will be reviewed in December.

Mr. Sharp said Canada had had discussions Mr. Waldheim to get the Turks and Greeks together in an effort to find a solution to the growing problem, but then the "all-hades loose."

He said Canada felt the cris-

New Blast

WELLINGTON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Norman Kirk said he believes Frenchmen exploded another nuclear device today—the fifth in the current series.

Kirk told a news conference his information came from New Zealand monitoring stations in the Pacific, but gave no indication of the magnitude.

The series began at Mururoa Atoll June 18.

Lightning Starts New Fires

TORONTO (CP) — Lightning has ignited several new fires in Ontario's forests, officials say here today, but although the fire situation was still very serious in Northern Ontario, the new outbreaks were in remote areas, the Natural Resources Ministry said Sunday.

The ministry said 77 fires were reported burning Sunday, including 25 new outbreaks in the previous 24 hours.

Of them, 14 were not under control.

John Goodman, provincial forest fire control co-ordinator, said the new fires were in the Sioux Lookout and north Cochrane regions around Thunder Bay.

The most serious new fire—which has been burning out of control inside Quetico Park, about 100 miles west of Thunder Bay, he said.

Mr. Goodman said there were about 1,200 persons engaged on the fire-fighting effort, and expected the fire line for up to 25 days.

He said moral was high, but he planned to give the men a week's leave before fatigue set in.

Lightning conditions in all districts, combined with winds gusting to 40 miles an hour and low humidity have resulted in several outbreaks, the ministry said.

The ministry added that there are a number of fires bridging the United States border, resulting in combined efforts by the ministry of natural resources and U.S. fire services.

Honor Girls

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — Two 15-year-old girls received recognition from the nearby community of Little Harbour Saturday for their efforts in saving the lives of two brothers from drowning.

Margaret MacNeil, who now lives in Toronto, and Linda Gordon of Westville, N.S., each received scrolls from the Royal Humane Society and engraved watches from the community for rescuing Francis and Neil Underwood from drowning July 29, 1971.

A third brother, eight-year-old William Underwood, drowned.

The three young boys got into difficulties while swimming at a beach in the area.

First Article of Impeachment Against Nixon Lengthy One

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is the text of the first article of impeachment as approved Saturday by the House of Representatives judiciary committee:

ARTICLE I (as amended)

In his conduct of the office of the president of the United States, Richard M.. Nixon, in violation of his constitutional oath faithfully to execute the office of president of the United States and, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States, and in violation of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has prevented, obstructed, and impeded the administration of justice, in that:

On June 17, 1972, and prior thereto, agents of the committee for the re-election of the president committed unlawful entry of the headquarters of the Democratic national committee in Washington, District of Columbia, for the purpose of securing political intelligence. Subsequent thereto, Richard M. Nixon, using the powers of his high office, engaged personally and through his close subordinates and agents, in a course of conduct or plan designed to delay, impede, and obstruct the investigation of such unlawful entry; to cover up, conceal and protect those responsible; and to conceal the existence and scope of other unlawful covert activities.

The means used to implement such course of conduct or plan included one or more of the following:

—Making or causing to be made false or misleading public statements for the purpose of deceiving the people of the United States into believing that a thorough and complete investigation had been conducted with respect to allegations of misconduct on the part of personnel of the executive branch of the United States and personnel of the committee for the re-election of the president, and that there was no involvement of such personnel in such misconduct;

—Endeavoring to cause prospective defendants, and individuals only tried and convicted, to expect favored treatment and consideration in return for their silence or false testimony, or rewarding individuals for their silence or false testimony.

And in all this, Richard M. Nixon has acted in a manner contrary to his trust as president and subversive of constitutional government, to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice and to the manifest injury of the people of the United States.

Wherefore Richard M. Nixon, by such conduct, warrants impeachment and trial, and removal from office.

Nixon Aide Admits 'Some Severe Losses'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key aide acknowledges that President Nixon has suffered "some very severe losses" that make his chances of avoiding impeachment by the House of Representatives "more uncertain."

Meanwhile, Nixon planned to meet this morning with his chief Watergate lawyers, James St. Clair and Fred Buzhardt, and Rose Mary Woods and Alexander Haig.

Haig told reporters aboard Air Force One Sunday night as Nixon flew here from Cincinnati: "the conflicts referred some cases this week and some very serious losses, quite certainly."

He cited what he termed "a triple whammy" that involved a "refusal of evidence" by the Nixon judiciary committee, an adverse Supreme Court ruling on the Watergate tapes and "considerable erosion" in the some judiciary committee Republicans on pro-impeachment positions.

Haig said that if a vote were taken today on impeachment, he would vote no. But in this lecture, I just don't foresee it."

Asked whether the president might resign, he said: "I think he believes that."

Pultz Pounds BYBF To Series Victory

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Judy Pultz, Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund catcher, doesn't hit often, but when she does poke the ball the opposition had better have fast outfielders.

Sunday night, at Alemite Ball Park, Pultz broke a game wide open and led her team to a 7-6 victory in the deciding contest of the Provincial Women's Softball Union Intermediate A opening series.

With the Purina-ettes leading 5-3, Pultz crashed a bases loaded triple, and scored herself on the same play, to give her team the winning margin. She had been held blankless in her previous three trips to the plate.

The Yardmen, won the Ontario Intermediate C crown last year and will go against Quinteville (Gerwoodale) in the second series tonight in their bid for an A Championship.

The opening series began Saturday night in Madoc. There, the Yardmen took a 9-1 decision. The score, however, was not indicative of the play as Belleville scored all their runs in the final two innings.

Sunday, Purina-ettes forced a third game in the best of three series by defeating the Yardmen 3-0. Their first victory came at the Alemite and was immediately followed by two free bases on the Madoc mound.

In the second game of the series, Sunday night, Fleming struckout three and issued a pair of walks enroute to the Purina-ettes 2-0 win.

Sue Morton took the loss on the Belleville mound facing two.

Madoc outhit the Yardmen 13-6 in this contest but still only managed to push two runners across the plate.

Sue Wright was the big hitter for Purina-ettes with a home run a double and two singles in five times at bat.

Other Madoc hits went to Brenda Hay with three singles, Meryl Bateman and Sandra Fleming with two and Jane Bailey and Sharon Lessard with a base hit each.

Saturday night's victory went to Sandra Claus on six strikeouts and two walks.

Once again the Yardmen didn't pull the stinger out of the fire until late in the game.

They scored single runs in the eighth innings and five in the ninth to win 9-1.

Marj Reid belted a pair of triples and a single, Judy Pultz had a triple and two singles, Sheila Smith singled twice, Donna Lucas tripled and doubled and Sue Morton had a double. Scoring for Donna Lucas, Shirley Gulliver and Judy Pultz were the singled once.

Sandra Fleming took the loss for the Purina-ettes issuing three walks and fanning two. She allowed four runs in her eight innings and Mary Bateman gave up five in the final frame. Bateman allowed one walk.

Jane Bailey had a double for Madoc. Sue Wright a pair of singles, and Mary Bateman, Brenda Hay and Roseanne Chepesko a single each.

When Leo Bradley isn't occupied with his job at Northern Electric or coaching the Mulroney Saucee team in the senior division of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association's home league, he has other commitments.

Among them is his responsibility to perform the duties of Eastern Ontario representative for the Montreal Expos.

Bradley's appointment with the baseball organization is difficult to understand, since Leo has been a staunch fan in the local frame. Bateman allowed one walk.

Olympics Lose Second

KINGSTON — (Special) — O'Neill, He scored on a hard shot after a good effort by outside left Stuart Milton and outside right Nick DeMarco had given him the ball.

The second period, his Olympics once again had control of the game, but poor finishing of plays prevented them from recording any more scoring.

Italo came on again near the end of the game, but the new strong Belleville defense, were held off. Mike D'Onofrio and Del Grosso were strong for the Belleville team.

Kingston coach Ross Yeandel commented after the game "The Olympics played well enough they deserved at least a tie."

Oshawa Pours It On To Take McDonalds

By ALAN TEMWORTH

The rain finally let up Saturday night, after a two-hour downpour, but when it did, Oshawa came out with six of their own to take the first Annual McDonald's Bantam Softball Tournament.

The rains came at around 6 p.m. Saturday night, after 39 of the 21 games in the day-long tourney had been completed, leaving only the two championship games to be played. Set for the 8 final were Lindsay and Port Perry, and in the A division, Richmond Hill and Oshawa faced each other.

It was then a waiting game for tournament convenor Dave Smith, who was faced with the possibility of having to arrange last minute billets for the four entries, should the games have to be postponed.

Smith contacted the duty weather forecaster at CFB Trenton, and was assured there was nothing more coming after the rains which thoroughly soaked the Alemite field. At about 8:00, the rain finally gave up, with the teams scurrying on to the field, getting the B championship game going at about 8:25.

The two finals, which were originally set for nine inning contest, to begin at 6:15, were shortened to seven innings to playing time before the 11:00 city curfew darkened the field for the night. The Consolation game was to be played to five innings, the A final in seven.

The seven innings were all

Oshawa needed to convince the more than 300 spectators, that watched out the rain, that they were the best. They spotted Richmond Hill a marker in the first inning on a throwing error by pitcher Wendy Baker, but it was Oshawa the rest of the way.

After going the first two innings without scoring a run themselves, they came on with five in the third and four more in the fourth to rack up the win. Richmond Hill scored their other two runs in the top of the seventh inning.

Oshawa sent a total of 17 men to the plate in the two frames, collecting seven hits, adding three free passes.

The tournament win was the third this season for the powerful Oshawa squad, they have also taken the Northern York, Preston, and Simcoe tourneys.

One of the biggest reasons behind the team's success is their outstanding hurler, Jo Boyce, who was selected the Most Valuable Player in the Belleville tournament.

The big right hander has been selected the Most Valuable Player in the North York tournament as well as Belleville one. Here in Belleville, she pitched two complete games, including the final, and part of one other. In 17 innings of ball, he struck out 37 batters while allowing only seven hits.

But, as well as with his arm, he was selected for the title because of his batting prowess. Boyce was three for five in the tourney, including a triple in the championship game that would easily have been a four bagger, had he not fallen in the muddy gravel after rounding first base.

In the closing minutes of the final game, Boyce came close to not even finishing the contest. A line shot off the bat of Richmond Hill catcher Chris Degner was ticketed for the centre of the field, but somehow, he got a piece of the ball with his quick glove, although the force of the hit did knock him to the ground.

Oshawa had made it to the final of the tourney by knocking off two more entries. They shaded the home Belleville crew in the opening game of the week 2-1 in five innings. Kingston Township trounced Port Perry 18-8, in five frames, and Willowdale United 9-8 in the semi-final.

Richmond Hill had a Bolle roughen line-up that made route to the game, actually trying their first two games they played. In the first game Bramalea played host to a 4-4 seventh but Richmond Hill took the game of the basis of its most runners reaching first base.

The same results exactly, even to the score of the game, occurred in their match with Eringate. In the third game, they whitewashed Toronto Beaches by a 5-0 margin.

The championship contest Port Perry, behind the strong pitching arm of Larry Elson, shut out Lindsay, 5-0. The right hander Elson fired third strikes past 12 batters for all but three of the outs in the five inning game.

Port Perry was sent to the B side of things, dropping a 10-9 decision to Kingston Township in the first game, but bouncing back for a 15-3 win over Belleville, and a 10-3 pasting of Norwood.

Lindsay had come to the game via a loss to Eringate, and won over Bramalea, and Willowdale AJM.

MVP

Oshawa pitcher Jeff Boyce was selected Most Valuable Player in the First Annual McDonald's Bantam Tournament held on Saturday. Boyce shown his throwing form here, an overpowering style for the age bracket. Boyce recorded 37 strikeouts in 17 innings in the tournament, and went three for five at the plate, as well. His team won the A championship with a 9-1 win over Richmond Hill.

Soule Pitches SACO To Championship

The Belleville - SACO Peewees won another tournament on the weekend, this time the one in North York, overcame to win in four straight games to take the title.

They defeated Grantham in the final game 3-1 in a tight defensive battle for the crown.

Grantham's Brian Sheppard has scored the first run in the top of the fifth so give them a 1-0 lead, but Belleville returned the earlier in the bottom of the frame, when Allen Brooks' double pushed across Tim Soule.

Bob Hedge broke the game open in the last half of the sixth inning, when he powered a two run homer to give Belleville the game. Clarence Brookens had been on base with a single on balls when Hedge unleashed the shot.

Winning pitcher Soule had one strikeout and walked none, getting outstanding fielding from his mates in the final game, Don Nichols on the Grantham second struck out two and walked two in the losing effort.

In the semi-final game, Belleville collected ten hits six runs in a 6-1 rout over Richmond Hill. Lions, Clarence Brookens, Andy Rossitt, and Darrell Colman each drove home two runs, with John Henry, Ron Bagley, Bob Hedge, and Soule contributing one apiece.

Winning pitcher Soule had six strikeouts and walked none, losing his shutout bid in the top of the seventh. R. McKenzie crashed a cob out home run in the last frame to put the blemish on Soule's mark.

Andy Rossit was on the second for Belleville in their second contest striking out six. He was backed up by three hits by Colman and two by Begley in the 7-1 victory.

Amesbury were the target of the Belleville attack in the opening game, dropping to the locals 8-3.

John Henry and Clarence Brookens each had home runs to back up a 12 strikeout performance by Andy Rossit on the mound. Begley, Rossit and Colman each had doubles in the cause.

Amesbury right fielder Deffenbaugh hit a two run shot in the first inning for the only two runs they could muster in the game.

Mets Down Expos 4-1

It Only Took 97 Games For McGraw To Win First

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Relief pitcher Tug McGraw of New York Mets has been having his troubles this year with New York Mets but Sunday he went ahead of his 1973 Mets' table with a 4-1 victory over Montreal Expos.

The Mets' left-handed reliever, who has lost four games this year and owns a dismal 6.35 earned-run average, didn't win his first game last year until the 126th of the season—August 21, to be exact.

Sunday's game was 127th 97th game for the Mets.

In Sunday's other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, St. Louis Cardinals downed Chicago Cubs 5-4, Cincinnati Reds bombed San Diego Padres 14-1 and, in a pair of 10-inning games, Atlanta Braves edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 and Houston Astros tripped San Francisco Giants 5-4.

In Saturday's games, St. Louis edged Chicago 3-2, Philadelphia swept Pittsburgh 5-4 and 7-4, Cincinnati dropped San Diego 5-2, Atlanta bombed Los Angeles 10-3, New York defeated Montreal 8-3 and Houston clobbered San Francisco 13-3.

The "a-s gotta punk ourselves bunch" McGraw was in.

And when reminded that the team has a tough week coming up, with twi-night doubleheaders against Pittsburgh and Chicago, McGraw replied: "You gotta worry about the schedule in wintertime. Now you gotta punt."

Ken Boswell hit a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning against the Expos and Teddy Martinez followed with a two-run single.

Montreal's Ernie McAnally opened the eighth by walking John Milner. Rusty Staub forced Milner, then Ed Kranepool singled and Boswell doubled down the left field line.

John Montague replaced McAnally and walked Don Hahn to load the bases before Martinez bounced a single over a drawn-in infield for a pair of insurance runs.

The Expos got a run in the second on Mike Jorgensen's double and Bob Bailey's single, but the Mets tied it in the bottom of the inning when Kranepool walked and Boswell and Hahn singled.

The Pirates trimmed the Phillies East Division lead to two games with a run in the ninth.

Tommy Helton's triple and Joy Johnston's sob homer gave the Phillies a 3-0 lead but Richie Hebner, Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen doubled for two runs in the sixth. Sanguillen belted his 16th in the eighth and the Pirates and won the ninth when Hebner's fly set doubled and Hebner fanned.

Ted Sizemore led off the ninth inning with a homer to power St. Louis closer to the top and drop the Cubs into last place in the East.

Joe Morgan hit a home run in the third inning and scored an error-aided five-run fifth with the first of four consecutive walks for a run in the Reds' rout of the Padres.

Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall lost his second straight game with a wild throw into right field for a pair of tying

Canadian Open

Nichols' Birdies Sound Like Money

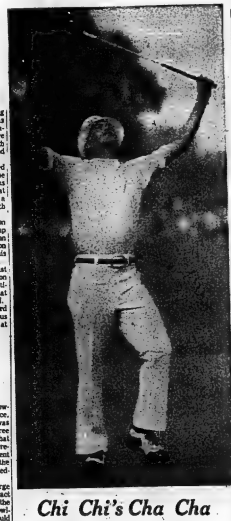
TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Nichols shrugged off the cold that has baffled more than its share of golfers over the years, turned back the clock for Nicklaus.

In 1964, when the Canadian Open was last played here, he won his second shot into the river that fronts on the green at the 18th hole with a huge, long the championship by one stroke to Gene Littler.

He was in position to challenge for the lead again Sunday, playing several groups ahead of Nicklaus, when his one-iron shot with a trailing wind plunged into the river bank but before the green.

It took Nicklaus three strokes to get to the fringe of the green and he finished the hole with a double bogey.

Nicklaus had played the hole the same way Saturday when he parred the hole and it was the just another example of the way he has been playing the Canadian Open. He's been getting a few hot holes than "frittered away opportunities."



Nicholas figured after seeing Nicklaus hard the No. 1 green was after two days of no rain or watering that a 15-under score would probably be good enough to win, "but I was surprised that I won by four strokes."

"The course sure toughened up the last couple of days," he said, reacting to suggestions from many of the players that the course played too easy for a national championship both Thursday and Friday.

Kern and Hocmenuik won berths on Canada's World Cup team as the top Canadians in the tournament. Kern also won an $800 charm bracelet for his wife, Nancy, as low female.

Total attendance for the last two days was 66,068, 21,112 on Sunday. The record is an estimated 80,000, set last year at the Richelieu club in Montreal.

Ticket revenue was a record $220,000, topping the previous high of $222,000, set in 1972 at Cherry Hill in Fort Erie, Ont.

Suspension Remains On Al's Ed George

MONTREAL (CP) — Marv Levy, head coach and general manager of Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, said Sunday suspended all-star offensive lineman Ed George will definitely not play in the Alouettes' next game here Wednesday against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Levy, who announced the suspension Saturday after George skipped practice, said a meeting Sunday with lawyer Bob Aboutaleb failed to settle the dispute.

"At least at the discussion centred on money," Levy said of the meeting. "The position is there and nothing could be resolved until Mr. Leclerc gets back to Ottawa."

At a news conference following the Alouettes' 23-20 victory over Sam Berger said he was first informed "about three weeks ago" by George that George wanted his contract renegotiated as George performed for two games added to the CFL Eastern Conference schedule.

Berger said that when George signed a seven-year contract May 28, 1973, to play for the Alouettes it was common knowledge that the two games would be added to the Easterns' schedule.

"I happen to know," Berger added, "that Ed was happy as high as any lineman on the North American continent.

"He told us he was happy here, that he wanted to play here and play the rest of his career here," Berger said.

"I thought he had signed the contract we gave him everything he asked for. There's no talk then of the 16-game schedule."

Berger said George's demands are not "just niggling, only a few dollars" and indicated his unwillingness to give in to the demands.

"If I was to settle with him, I'd have to do the same for everyone else on the team as well," Berger said. "On top of that, it is the same for every league down too."

George, 27, has been with the Alouettes since 1970 when he played the club to the Grey Cup.

The six-foot-five-inch, 265-pound George was runner-up to linebacker Ray Nettles of British Columbia Lions in voting for last year's lineman-of-the-year award in the CFL.

US Labor Mediator Hopes to Hash Out NFL Players Strike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's a new referee in the 26-day-old National Football League Players Association strike ... the mediator.

In the first step toward renewing collective bargaining Tuesday, W.J. Usery, top labor mediator in the United States, asked the NFLPA to meet him at 4 p.m. EDT today at his office in Washington.

He requested a session with Theodore Kheel, chief counsel for the 26-club owners' group, on Tuesday morning and then across-the-table bargaining between negotiators for the NFLPA and the NFL Management Council Tuesday afternoon.

If Usery's efforts are successful, it will be the first meeting of the two sides to meet since talks collapsed last Monday after owners walked out the day before.

Contract negotiations began March 16 when veteran players submitted 39 demands, later increased to 63. After 18 full-day sessions, talks broke off and the 2,000-member NFLPA struck July 1, picketing training camps as owners opened rookies and free agents.

Players say they have sweetened their offer by $4 million, but the players are seeking more freedom from the owners in addition to more money. It is on the freedom issue that the owners have refused to yield.

The strike forced cancellation of the all-star game earlier this month in Chicago between the best in the college ranks and the NFL champion Miami Dolphins.

And only three veterans were available for the Hall of Fame game in Canton, Ohio, Saturday between Buffalo Bills and St. Louis Cardinals.

The NFL Management Council said that as of Sunday night 209 veterans—57 of whom were starters last year—had reported to their teams leaving about 1,000 members of the NFLPA still on strike.

The most notable crossovers Sunday were quarterback Craig Morton and wide receiver Golden Richards of Dallas Cowboys; quarterback Ken Anderson and receivers Isaac Hayes and Bruce Coslet of Cincinnati Bengals; quarterback Pat Sullivan of Atlanta Falcons, and linebacker Bill Bergey of Philadelphia Eagles.

IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING memory of our dear grandson, Marcel Bennett, who passed away July 26, 1975.
One sad year has passed since then,
We've had no chance to say goodbye,
But God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our memory.
Sadly missed by Grandma and Grandpa

Wonderful memories and thoughts of a grandson, the truest we found to us.
—Lovingly loved and never will be forgotten, Grandma and Grandpa Bennett, Aunt Dorothy, Aunt Gertrude, Uncle Ken, Terry, Tammy, Wayne, Debbie and Bobby.

IN LOVING memory of a dear father, Wilbert Bennett, who passed away 3 years ago today, July 26, 1973.
Dad, we think of you each day,
We know that heaven's little solid,
Still we miss you.
Will we see you?
We know that you'll have made your journey,
Then we'll meet you with the rest,
But don't forget us all down here,
Because we'll never forget you.
—Sadly missed by Ethel Mason, Mary Ann, Bonnie, Jeff, Jeanie, Steve and families.

Don't Give Inch

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — City hall is getting tough with motorists who park too far away from the curb. Alderman John Nordocchio says the city's police cadets have been given a new weapon to fight poor parkers — a ruler — and he's not pleased about it. The Motor Vehicles Act says the distance between a curb and the wheels of a parked car should be six inches or less and, says Ald. Nordocchio, "our cadets are issuing tickets to owners of cars parked seven inches from the curb."

Gondolas Get Scarce In Venice

VENICE (Reuter) — An alarm is being sounded in Venice, already threatened by decay, pollution and sinking into the Adriatic—the gondolas are disappearing.

Five centuries ago, 10,000 of the slim craft piled the 153 canals linking the 118 islands which make up the lagoon city.

Rich families owned gondolas up to five gondolas apiece and gondoliers numbered 20,000—a tenth of the whole population.

Now there are only 400 gondolas left and the number of full-time professional gondoliers has gone down to 130.

As a profession they are famous not only for skilfully poling the great vessels, up to 33 feet long, through Venice's intricate waterways.

Their songs and wit are part of history. Richard Wagner is supposed to have borrowed a melody hummed by one of them in scoring Isolde's death music in his opera Tristan and Isolde.

The case of the vanishing gondola is no mystery.

Chief cause is the Venetian water bus or vaporetto, which first went into operation in 1881. In addition, Venetians who used to have private gondolas find it more convenient to have motor launches.

This means the gondoliers are dependent chiefly on tourists for their living. And the fact that this work is confined largely to spring and summer means that the prices they charge are increasingly astronomical.

There still are rotas operated by gondolas as a public ferry service, but the operation is run at a loss because of the hard-pitched communal subscription they need.

Gondolas are surprisingly fast. One can do an average of one minute to cross the Grand Canal—and manoeuvrable. An skilled gondolier can make his half-ton craft pivot entirely on itself with one stroke of the pole.

But it takes three years to achieve expertise and there are few candidates coming forward at apprentices.

The idea of financing scholarships out of public funds to train gondoliers has been put forward but so far has come to nothing.

Even if the shortage of gondoliers were filled overnight, it would still leave Venice with a dearth of gondolas.

There is only one Venetian shipyard left capable of making gondolas, while one other can undertake repairs and servicing.

The vessels are not at one with the 20th century. Few people can be found to learn the centuries-old craft of gondola making.

Even fewer are prepared to face the work of hand-building the craft out of the separate wooden pieces, balancing it so delicately as to take in not only the weight of the gondolier and the poop, but of the traditional comb-shaped iron ornament at the bow.

This means the price of a gondola starts at around a million lire at ($1,760).

Paradoxically, however, there is no shortage of orders. Though Venetians are not in the market, Americans, Canadians and even Japanese definitely are.

Bartender Is Slain

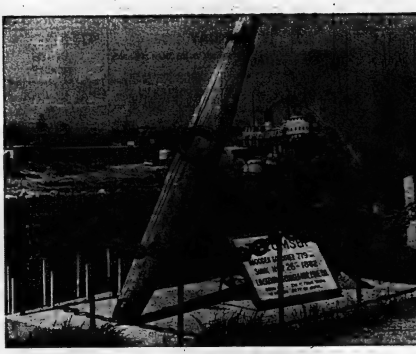
DELSEI, Oct. (CP) — The body of Delsei bartender Harold Fagnan, 36, was found in his apartment here Sunday and police said he apparently was beaten to death.

Mr. Fagnan, a native of northern Quebec, lived alone in this community about 15 miles northwest of Timmins.

No arrests have been made in the case.

Night of Love Is Offered For Lost Dog

COLOGNE, West Germany (Reuter) — Hoteier Hans Schmitz with stray dogs responded Saturday to a Cologne housewife's offer of an "erotic night of love-making" to the finder of her missing Dalmatian terrier, Medel.



A spokesman for a Cologne newspaper that printed her story said the most were offering her "all kinds of services for PAYMENT"—but the real Medel had not turned up.

A baker who said his 13-year-old son had found the dog wondered if his son had to forego the reward or whether he was able to do so himself.

And three men who said they had found Medel jointly asked whether all three could share the prize.

The 30-year-old woman said she and her children were so sad that her haircuts and [illegible] preferred it to a broken marriage.

The couple also offered an extra reward.

Ancient Anch or

Chinese Pleased as Canadians Break Into Rollicking Songs

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — A Chinese orchestra loved it when the young Canadian visitors belted out Alouette and then burst into a rollicking rendition of We'll Rant and We'll Roar Like the Rolling Wind, foundlanders.

"We brought down the house," was the recollection of Paul Brennan, 23-year-old violinist from Toronto on vacation from China.

"The next night we were danced a Virginia reel, too."

It was the first time the citizens of Shihjiazhang had heard Canadian songs though the people of Canada had already known there as the homeland of Dr. Norman Bethune, physician-hero of the Chinese Revolution.

"As Canadians, we have a privileged position in China because of Bethune and because Canada was one of the first Western countries to re- in the 1960s."

He and 19 other Canadian along with more academics from 12 other countries—invited last November at the Peking Language Institute when it was re-opened to foreign students after being closed in China's Cultural Revolution of the 1960s.

"These exchange programs are the best means I know by which we can learn from them and they can learn from us," Mr. Brennan said, noting that 19 Chinese students are now enrolled in Canadian universities.

The six-foot-one, bearded Montrealer—who stands out in any Chinese crowd—recounted how the Canadian students travelled as guests of the Chinese government to Shihjiazhang, site of the Norman Bethune Basic Medical College and the Bethune Peace Hospital and an entire museum devoted to Bethune memorabilia.

"We were warmly welcomed and even applauded in the streets," he said of the three-day stay, which included a stage performance by Canadians in honor of the Canadians.

"At the end of the performance we were asked to sing. The response was great."

Mr. Brennan, who majors in history, cited the Shihjiazhang audience as a matter of human interest but he devoted most of an interview to the value and meaning of exchange programs between Canada and China.

"In the case of the new movement of criticism now taking place, we were able to get beyond the slogans and understand something of the complexities," he said.

"The tendency of many of us, including myself, was to react rather strongly. In one instance, against attacks on the teachings of Confucius because we thought of him as a wise sage.

"But you have to remember that China was ruled by Confucian principles for 1,400 years. You see on closer study that they were used as an ideology justifying rule by landlords and the imperial court over 85 per cent of the population.

"The Confucian caste— Those who work with the mind and learn to rule; those who work with their hands are born to be ruled—provided a perfect justification for exploitation.

"The Chinese feel they have to deal very directly with their past if they are to continue to progress. Ancient ideas persist even though there has been a revolution. Change is a slow process. Peasants who never have studied Confucius still live influenced by his principles. The whole attitude toward women is being re-examined. Women were much oppressed under Confucian ways.

"The present movement is aimed at bringing up these attitudes and having people discuss them. The Chinese ask themselves in this way what things they need to change in society and education."

Mr. Brennan regards the widespread process of criticism and self-criticism in China as "very healthy, as a sign of their freedom to criticize their leadership at all levels."

Officials of the language institute had been uncertain how to deal with the new generation of foreign students.

They believed we wanted special treatment in such things as dormitories and dining rooms. At first we did not have much opportunity to mix with Chinese students socially.

"But it is nonsense to say— as has been said in newspaper and magazine reports—that the Chinese authorities keep foreigners apart from Chinese students. In fact, they pleaded for suggestions and they did make changes."

Mr. Brennan and six of seven of the Canadian students were dropping out after the first year, enrolled in courses and the standing of their chosen in Canadian universities.

U.S.-Chinese Relations Seem to Be Stagnating

By TIM PEARCE

PEKING (Reuter) — Since the United States opened its liaison office in Peking a year ago Americans have moved from being China's No. 1 enemy to the more desirable status of foreign guests.

However, they continue, to share the frustrations and problems of other foreign diplomatic missions in the capital as the foreign diplomatic compounds are known.

When the first American diplomats to live in China for more than two decades arrived in Peking last year, there was a sense of elation that the world's richest and the world's most populous countries were at last on speaking terms.

Burgeoning trade figures and a string of "firsts" in terms of cultural, scientific and sporting exchanges were handy stuff after 30 years of mutual hostility.

Domestic developments, the criticism campaign in China and the Watergate affair in the U.S., have made both countries take a look at the underlying stability of their ties and a question of whether attitudes may change if the architects of detente or either side leave the political stage.

Much of the groundwork for the establishment of diplomatic links, although informal ones, between China and U.S. was done by State Secretary Henry Kissinger through a series of meetings, often at night, with cloak-and-dagger secrecy, with Chinese leaders Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

Thus, it was already understood before the Liaison offices were established in Washington and Peking that America does not represent a military threat to China, that U.S. forces would be withdrawn in time from their East Asian footholds and that the solution of the Taiwan problem was ultimately an internal Chinese affair.

It was hoped that these steps towards rapprochement would provide the impetus to stimulate the rapid solution of outstanding problems such as America's continued recognition [illegible] and the bank assets held in each [illegible].

But there has been little visible progress on such issues in the last year and this, together with a recent hardening of Chinese attitudes towards the acceptability in China of Western culture and technology, has led to fears that relations are stagnating or even deteriorating.

Some diplomats here feel China must have been pleased at the Canadian decision of Leonard Digger, a senior external affairs official and former ambassador to Taiwan, a move which underlined that Ottawa is not preparing to downgrade its commitment to Canada Kai-shek's nationalist regime.

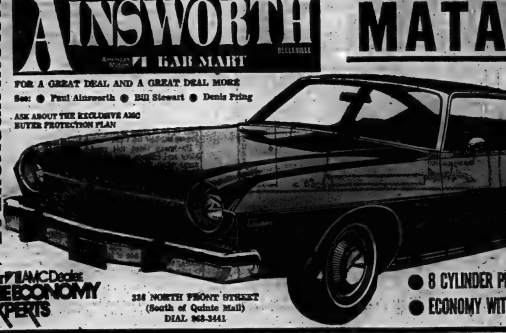
Trade is another field in which Sino-American ties have been tempered by recent developments. Two-way trade shot up from almost nothing in 1971 to $95 million last year, of which nearly nine-tenths represented U.S. exports. Despite considerable grain sales.

China recently refused to accept several shipments of American grain because they were laden with a type of fungus which American experts regard as harmless and easily eliminated. Some American sources have been suggesting that the underlying cause is China's refusal to take the grain.

American wheat traders and scientists now are meeting with Chinese officials to discuss the problem, which could mean a multi-million-dollar contracts worth nearly $100 million.

Those, who believe that relations are beginning to turn downwards, also cited the five-month delay before the post of Huang Chen, China's top man in Washington, and the subsequent retail of his opposite number in Peking, veteran U.S. diplomat David K. E. Bruce.

Mr. Bruce returned to Peking after an eight-week absence, he said journalists he had seen on the subject of any coolness between the two countries and he had not spoken since to deny speculation that he is tired of Beijing post, either personally or professionally.



Diplomatic observers in the Chinese capital believe that after the first euphoria of the Kissinger-Mao meetings of 1972 and honeymoon period, U.S. relations with China are now settling into the same pattern as those of other countries.

"We all have our ups and downs with the Chinese" said one Western diplomat. "It would be making a mountain out of a molehill to say that Sino-American relations are turning sour."

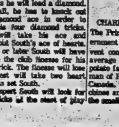
Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby



If the expert has to take a finesse and has only one way to take it, he is going to lose that finesse one-half the time.

He knows about the possibility and tries to take the finesse when the loss is least likely to hurt him.

Now look at today's hand. South will duck the first heart lead and win the second one in dummy. Then, if South is all capsless he will lead a diamond. After all, he has to knock out the diamond ace in order to take his four diamond tricks. East will take his ace and knock out South's ace of hearts. Sooner or later South will have to take the club finesse for his ninth trick. The finesse will lose and West will take two heart tricks to set South.

An expert South will look for nine tricks at the start of play the smaller finesse and see that two clubs will be needed. He will lose the club finesse right away. He will lose the ace of diamonds trick later, but there will be no way for East to put West in to take those heart tricks.

Suppose West holds both the king of clubs and ace of diamonds. Even South will go down just like everyone else.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding five clubs your partner jumps to four diamonds to show first suit. What do you do now?

To Your Good Health

Return to Bottle Seems Unlikely

By G. C. THORSTEON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteon: Would you write something on the statistics on alcoholism?

I am in my middle 50s. For months I suffered from a very painful illness and started taking alcohol to relieve the pain. I felt it got me better of me. After an episode which breaks my heart — yes, I definitely stopped alcohol in any form. I stopped it on my own with no therapy or rehabilitation. I thought it it is repulsive.

My husband keeps some in the house for a drink now and then. I have never touched it and have no desire to do so whatsoever. It is wonderful to wake up in the morning and not have to wonder what happened the night before. My husband has never lectured me and trusts me absolutely. It has been 11 months since I touched alcohol.

Recently I was told by a professional person that I am not trusted even though I give no symptoms of any desire to return to drinking. This person said that only four per cent stay off it and the others return to the bottle. Since then I have felt like the living dead.

Please give your opinion and statistics if you will.—Mrs. C.C.B.S.

I cannot confirm that four-per-cent figure. Possibly somebody else can give us some light on that.

But I flatly don't believe it.

Just by a quick count on my fingers, I know five routine hard drinkers — alcoholics — who quit and stayed that way. Two stayed on the wagon all the rest of their lives; three others haven't had a drink for periods ranging from three to more than 10 years.

One of the ones who died did a great deal of travelling, and over the years always had a bottle in his hotel room for those who wanted it, he never touched it.

So if that "four per cent" remark has any validity, it means that I ought to have encountered 125 who quit but then returned to the bottle. Of course, I know a lot who never quit. And some who never drank.

To the best of my knowledge, every former heavy drinker who has quit will tell you that the only safe rule thereafter is "Never take the first drink."

Never try to be a "moderate drinker." stay away from it completely.

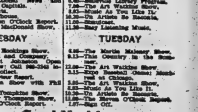
I've also seen some try to take "just one" and it doesn't work. One is too many.

In my experience there is nothing to bear out your "professional person's" dismal assertion.

More power to you.

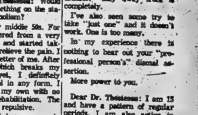
Dear Dr. Thosteon: I am 13 and have a pattern of regular periods. I am also active in sports and outdoors and would prefer tampons to pads but my mother thinks there is an age limit and that 15 is too young. Could you explain.—A.G.

No, there's no age limitation, in fact, tampons are made in a junior size. I trust your mother will reconsider.

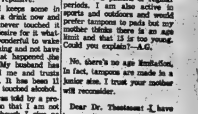


Dear Dr. Thosteon: I have been quite concerned for the past few months. One day I will have diarrhea and the next day I will be constipated. I have indigestion and gas all the time and I also pass mucus in my stool. I am 39 years old.—Mrs. C.E.S.

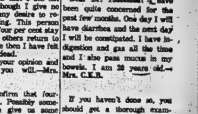
If you haven't done so, you should get a thorough examination, beginning with tests for parasites, and a proctoscopic (rectal) examination.



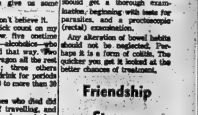
Any alteration of bowel habits should not be neglected. Perhaps it is a form of colitis. The quicker you get it looked at the better chances of treatment.

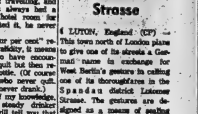


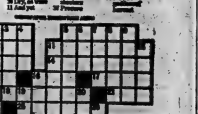
Friendship Strasse

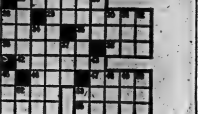


LUTON, England (CP) — This town north of London plans to give one of its streets a German name in exchange for West Berlin's gesture in calling one of its thoroughfares in the London district Leicester Strasse. The gestures are designed as a means of sealing friendship between the communities.









Eskimos Prove Natural Actors

OTTAWA (CP) — The White Dawn, a film starring three U.S. actors and a host of Eskimos speaking their own language, had its Canadian premiere Thursday night and audience reaction indicated it could be a box office success.

About half the dialogue of the film adaptation of James Houston's book about the Canadian Arctic is in Eskimo with a minimum of English subtitles.

But those titles and the dialogue of Warren Oates, Timothy Bottoms and Lou Gossett, the three U.S. actors, is enough to carry an authentic though dramatic story filmed in spectacular living color on Baffin Island in the high Arctic.

While Oates, Bottoms and Gossett got top billing in the Paramount production, the success of the film is assured by the Eskimos, particularly Joanasie Salomonie and Anee Nakasuk, both of Baffin Island.

Peter Kaufman, director of the $1.9 million film, said the Eskimos are brilliant, sheer naturals.

He said he told Prime Minister Trudeau, who attended the premiere with Mrs. Trudeau, that the government should promote Eskimo dramatics.

"They are natural actors."

The White Dawn is a story, which Mr. Houston says is mostly true, of three New England whalers marooned on Baffin Island in the last century. They are rescued by Eskimos and live with them. But they so disrupt the lives of their rescuers that the Eskimos have to kill them.

Houston heard the story during his 12 years on Baffin Island as a government agent. He turned it into a best selling novel that now has had 36 different editions in 19 languages.

New York, he said, helped in the film adaption and in recruiting the Eskimos.

Mr. Kaufman said the film opened in several U.S. cities this week. He said it got mixed reviews in New York and rave reviews elsewhere.

Mrs. Hanson has been active in Eskimo affairs in the North for a long time. She founded a newspaper in Frobisher Bay and wrote and broadcast for the CBC.

Her great-grandparents were related in the camp chief who adopted the Hiller whalers.

Ovation Greets Rossini Opera

OTTAWA (CP) — An ovation lasting almost five minutes greeted the first Canadian performance Thursday night of Rossini's Bride-town opera La Conte Ory in the National Arts Centre.

With an international cast and the National Arts Centre Orchestra under the direction of Mario Bernardi, the tuneful, rollicking opera was designedly set in the time of the Crusades by Mark Negin and directed by Carlo Maestrini.

John Brecknock, leading tenor at the Sadler's Wells Opera, now known as the English National Opera, sang the role of the lusty young nobleman Count Ory. Montreal-born Colette Boky, a leading soprano at the Metropolitan Opera in New York, was the confident Adele de Formoutiers.

The 146-year-old opera is rarely performed because of the extraordinary demands on the leading soloists, and will be given only two more performances here before the end of the month. As far as the arts centre can ascertain from existing records, it has not been performed before in Canada.

The music is rich, lyrical and full of wit, in the fashion of the Italian composer's better-known works, The Barber of Seville and The Italian Girl in Algiers. It was Rossini's only opera written to an original French libretto, and now usually is sung in Italian. The arts centre searched the music capitals of Europe to find an original French version—and found it in the music department of the National Library in Ottawa.

Mr. Negin obviously drew his ideas from the 15th-century Duke of Berry's Book of Hours—a many-towered castle before which the ladies of the court, their swains, and the peasants of the fields cavort in search of love.

The story is that of the ladies of the court who have withdrawn into seclusion while their men are on crusade. Duke Ory, a crusader in love rather than war, gains admission to the castle by posing, with his brethren, as nuns seeking shelter from a storm.

The second-act scene of the men in fantastic nun's habits, uncomfortably crowded on white Mickey Mouses, trying to regain their own composure after a drinking bout, stopped the show.

In the first act, the chorus of ladies of the court and peasant women was a spectacle of red reds, blues, whites and golds, and where the arts centre found such buxom ladies perhaps should remain a secret for their own safety.

Mon Oncle in English Coming

The most honored Canadian feature film of all time, the National Film Board's "Mon Oncle Antoine", is to receive its English-language world TV premiere on the CBC-TV network, Aug. 4 at 9 p.m.

Based on author Clement Perron's boyhood experiences in a small Quebec asbestos mining town and directed by Claude Jutra, "Mon Oncle Antoine" was first released in French, on Radio-Canada and was viewed by more than 3 million people, its second highest rating in the history of Radio-Canada. It was proceeded only by the final game in the Canada-Russia hockey series.

The film's overwhelming critical praise has been worldwide, gathering for it the most enthusiastic reviews any Canadian-made feature movie has received.

"Mon Oncle Antoine" won eight Canadian Film Award Etrogs including best picture, screenplay and director. It also received the best picture and screenplay award at the 1972 Chicago International Film Festival and was chosen as one of the year's best films by the Society of Film Critics with a special award for outstanding achievement. The film has been selected and shown in many other international film festivals including Moscow, Sydney, Melbourne, Teheran and Mexico City.

Here is what some eminent film critics and newspapers said about "Mon Oncle Antoine" at the time of its release:

"The Best Canadian feature-length movie ever made", wrote Clyde Gilmour of the Toronto Star. The London Times called it, "A Quebec Summer of '42". Bosley Crowther of the New York Times described the film "as a beautiful film, full of acute observation and marvelous humor." Robert Ebert in the Chicago Sun-Times said, "It is a Canadian masterpiece." The New Yorker Magazine film critic Pauline Kael stated, "Mon Oncle Antoine" is one of the best Canadian film I've ever seen."

This lyrical story of a boy's coming of age in rural Quebec during the forties stars the distinguished actor Jean Duceppe in the title role, Jacques Gagnon as the nephew Benoit and Olivette Thibault as Antoine's wife. Other features in the cast include Lyse Champagne, Monique Miller, Lionel Villeneuve, Helene Loiselle and Claude Jutra.

Canadian Brass Going to Paris

The Canadian Brass, one of Canada's finest musical groups, quintets have been invited to represent Canada at French Festival in Paris, Aug. 1-17.

The engagement is tailor-made for the group's easy going stage informality since their concentration in Paris will be on a daily half-hour recital on the Ratens Moncke, a boat that moves up and down the Seine River. Highlight of their stay in Paris will be a double concert Aug. 13 in the historic Sainte Chapelle.

The concert in St. Chapelle will be a return visit and screening of a concert performed there two years ago which was a highlight of Canada.

The invitation to participate in Paris follows hard on the heels of the release of the Brass's first commercial recording on the Boot Master Concert Series. Already sold out, the recording gives strong indication of the many features that have made the Canadian Brass one of the most sought after groups in Canada — impeccable musicianship and audience rapport. The Canadian Brass, over the past few years have developed both a repertoire and stage presence that attracts not only classical buffs, but also a public that is generally not attracted to 'serious' music.

The Canadian Brass, who are artists in residence with the Hamilton Philharmonic have had a busy summer. July 6, the group performed at the Stratford Festival and two days later launched Camp Fortune's CBC Festival in Ottawa. On July 13 the group left for the Banff School of Fine Arts for a two week residence and then three days later sets off for Paris.

The group's trip to Paris is being sponsored by the external affairs ministry and they will be accompanied by their personal representative Christine Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Sam (the Record Man) Sniderman. Sniderman produced the group's final recording titled simply the Canadian Brass and is artists and repertoire manager of Boot Records' new label, the Boot Master Concert Series. It is Mrs. Sniderman's intention to investigate the possibility of recording the Canadian Brass while in PARIS.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The U.S. state department says the over-all level of environmental noise is declining every decade. A normal person can tolerate comfortably noise levels of 80 decibels. It said in a report, but the sound level of heavy city traffic is typically 100, a telephone 120, a jet 130 and a power lawn mower 96 and a rock band from 108 to 114.

Downchild Blues Band Unlikely Success Story

TORONTO — On the face of it, the Downchild Blues Band is an unlikely success story.

A half-dozen Canadian kids in their early twenties, pulling together a band based on the music of the black bluesmen of the south in Memphis and Chicago, and Detroit when the members of Downchild were still in kindergarten.

They won packed houses, applause, and critical raves from audiences in high school gyms, the National Arts Centre, dance halls, and coffee houses. Martlines, tough bars on the Spadina strip in Toronto, the Philadelphia Folk Festival, and even the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival.

They've been on the road for nearly five years now, and they've seen a lot and done more.

Guitarist Donnie Walsh put the band together at the same time that he was holding down a job as a delivery truck driver in Toronto. He learned to play a tough style of blues harmonica to ease the boredom of his job.

Together with sax player Dave Woodward, drummer Cash Wall, and bass player Tom Stone, Walsh took the band into Grossman's bar in downtown Toronto. Years later, he still goes back there to jam with another generation of up-and-coming musicians.

Since then, there have been additions to the band — including Winnipeg-born Jane Vasey, whose delicate blonde looks don't disguise the fact that she plays a strong brand of bewhitened barrel-house piano, only slightly softened by her fondness for jazz and her classical training at the Royal Conservatory of Music.

Singer Tony Flinn interprets the words — songs originally recorded by Muddy Waters, Jimmy Reed, Sonny Boy Williamson or Howlin' Wolf — with a conviction that only comes from a deep and personal identification with the music.

Four More Are Slain At Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit police detectives are investigating another round of weekend killings after four persons were shot to death, boosting the 197 Detroit homicide toll to 426, compared to 409 at the same time last year.

Police said victims were a 15-year-old girl killed when she tried to stop an argument between other girls; a 19-year-old man shot to death in a fight; a 46-year-old man gunned down outside a bar; and a 28-year-old man whose body was found in a field with multiple wounds.

In three homicides Friday, a 36-year-old woman was found with multiple stab wounds in an apartment; a 22-year-old man was shot to death after a man told them he found the victim in his garage and killed him with a shotgun; and a 29-year-old woman was stabbed to death in what police called a lover's triangle dispute.

Police Fear Hamilton Tot Was Abducted

HAMILTON (CP) — Police believe that four-year-old Cindy Williams; object of an intensive search since she was reported missing from her Hamilton home Friday might have been abducted.

"We still have a mobile search group but no specified search," Staff Inspector Ed Ward Shadbolt, head of Hamilton-Wentworth regional police said Sunday.

"We're now working on the theory she has been abducted or picked up because we covered the ground so thoroughly yesterday," he said.

Saturday, about 100 searchers, hair dogs and officials scoured the area around the missing girl's home from dawn to mid-day without success.

Inspector Skaltsky said the organized search will be discontinued because it was felt all ground had been covered.

Held in Greece

SMITH FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A Smiths Falls man who says he was detained by Greek military officers after a visit to Athens returned home Sunday.

Angelo Mavrogenis, 39, was ending a visit to Greece when he said he was taken off a Canada-bound airliner Thursday and informed that he was considered a Greek citizen and liable to serve two years in the Greek army.

Mr. Mavrogenis, a naturalized Canadian citizen, said he was told he was subject to Greek conscription laws because he was born there.

When his relatives in Smiths Falls contacted his predicament, they got in touch with Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Leeds, Mr. Cossitt confirmed that the external affairs department in Ottawa and the Canadian Embassy in Greece in Athens would make representations to the Greek government concerning Mr. Mavrogenis.

Trip Planned

CAIRO (Reuter) — Vice-President Gerald Ford as scheduled to visit Egypt next November, the newspaper Al Ahram reported Sunday. Ford will also visit Israel, he said.

Gold Seized

(AFP) — A solid gold block from Toronto weighing more than $24,000 has been seized by customs here, from gold was found in a parcel sent to a local jeweller and marked "cosmetics". The consignment was fined $10,000—three times the value of the smuggled gold.

Fatal Meeting

Pedestrian Catcher

A new system for reducing the number of pedestrians killed and injured was demonstrated at the recent International Vehicle and Road Safety Exhibition in England. The system consists of a low, modified front bumper which tips the pedestrian onto the hood of the car. The hood is contoured to reduce injury. A sensor in the bumper activates a retaining bar to spring up to prevent the accident victim from sliding back into the path of the vehicle. In normal use, the retaining bar is recessed into the hood. (CP Photo)

Canadian Troops Will Enjoy Elegance of Nicosia's Ledra

NICOSIA (CP) — Some of the Canadian soldiers serving with the United Nations peacekeeping forces on embattled Cyprus will get to enjoy just a taste of old-time elegance now that the men from Ottawa have taken over the war-ravaged Ledra Palace Hotel in Nicosia.

With reinforcements from Canada due here Tuesday, the Canadians are filling up rooms left habitable after the fierce fighting between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots which kept some of the civilian guests trapped there for almost two days after the invasion of Cyprus by Turkey.

Parts of the hotel were left a shambles of broken glass, flooded floors and debris that included bagpipes left by the guests. But despite severe damage to at least one storey, the buildings—by battle standards—survived relatively unscathed.

It was the Canadian, operating from their UN barracks across the street from the Ledra Palace, who finally arranged a local ceasefire between the Greek and Turkish Cypriots July 21, and thus enabled the hotel guests from death in a possible all-out attack on their haven by the Turks. The Greek-Cypriots had been using it as a battle position.

Since then, Canadian troops have been cleaning up the Ledra, carefully sorting the left luggage and making the hotel habitable when they are not on patrol.

The Canadians who'll live there won't enjoy any of the staff services or the many luxuries associated with a resort hotel, though a cheerful bar lobby and a posh garden embellish their surroundings.

But living at the Ledra will be a decided improvement on barracks life, especially since some buildings at the Canadian compound were the dueling last week's fighting.

A number of the Canadians, most of them from the Edmonton-based Airborne Regiment, owe their lives to the degree of discipline shown by the Turkish-Cypriots during the fighting.

Recalling the mortal risks to the peacekeepers which would have been posed if the Turks had been trigger-happy, one Canadian said that if the latter hadn't been so disciplined many Canadians would have died.

Even as the Greek-Turkish battle raged around the barracks—with mortar bombs and bullets part of the everyday scene—the Canadians were on hand to help the wounded. They ferried Greek-Turkish civilians, dug graves for the dead and helped bring in the wounded.

Now that the Canadian troops are at the barracks, Some have gone to a British air base on the south coast of Cyprus to make arrangements for the arrival of the reinforcements from Canada.

Among them was Cpl. Larry Baillie, a native of Salt Spring, N.S.

Last week he was caught for two hours in a Greek-Turkish crossfire while manning a UN outpost with seven other Canadians.

"We were a Bille nervous," said the lean Scotian as he coolly described treacer bullets whizzing across the outpost and the sniper fire all around. "Finally the antagonists just quit their firing," Baillie recalled.

Unhurt by the fire, he was asked what he thought the future course of the Cyprus crisis might be. "It's theirs' year, not ours," said the corporal with a shrug of his shoulders.

Turks Stop Looters In Cypriot Resort

KYRENIA, Cyprus (AP) — Helias Street, usually bustling with tourists at this time of the year, was deathly quiet Sunday.

The silence was broken only by Turkish army helicopters flying overhead and occasional vehicles casually carrying Turkish troops.

All along Helias, Kyrenia's main shopping street, the stores were shattered, plundered in the wake of the Turkish invasion that captured the picturesque resort town formerly controlled by the Greek Cypriots.

A Turkish-Cypriot policeman stood guard outside one ransacked shop. He said: "Our duty here is to stop looting by irresponsible people. We've arrested seven Turkish looters. There is no more looting now in Kyrenia."

Much of the Greek community fled in terror as the Turks advanced, leaving to Turkish administrators and soldiers the task of restoring services and public order.

Rauf Denktash, leader of the Turkish-Cypriots, assigned 23-year-old Ahmed Sami Pasha to run the town. He said he is sending out police, Turkish-Cypriot police, brought in from the Turkish sector of Nicosia, to restore law and order.

"Armed police are constantly patrolling, particularly the main shopping area," Sami said.

Homes in the city have been plundered, and the streets were littered with rummaged by Turkish looters.

Along the rim of the yacht-filled harbor, the normally crowded cafes were silent and empty except for one handful of Turkish sickers lounging in the bright Mediterranean sun.

But in the sanctuary of the Dome Hotel, controlled by United Nations forces, the Greeks and Greek Cypriots sat listlessly waiting for the Turks to give them permission to be moved to Nicosia.

A UN officer said the permission was delayed because the Turks believed a number of Greek - Cypriot soldiers "considered prisoners of war" are hidden in the hotel.

The officer said: "Our task here is to reduce the fear prevailing among Greek people. They are very much frightened by the Turks."

Convicts With 15 Hostages May Win Their Freedom

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The ringleader of three armed convicts holding 13 hostages in the Texas state prison system's marathon standoff with prison officials may end today with freedom for the rebels.

But Ron Taylor, a spokesman for the state department of correction, told reporters as negotiations with the convicts recessed Sunday night: "We don't ision has been made on any release."

Talks were to resume today.

Fred Gomez Carrasco, who leads the three convicts who are holding the hostages in the third-floor library of the prison, told reporters Sunday by telephone that "things are looking up."

"I believe we will conclude this in a few hours," Carrasco said. "If not provoked tonight, I believe tomorrow will be the day of release."

But Taylor said: "Negotiations have not changed. We have not received any additional demands. I think serious negotiations are ahead."

Carrasco, a former kingpin of illegal drug traffic in South Texas and Mexico, has indicated he wants to take four hostages with him to Cuba, and he spoke to reporters Sunday night of Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

"I believe if I do have an opportunity to communicate with him (Castro) by telephone, I do believe the man will give me refuge," Carrasco said.

The hostages include four other convicts; nine school teachers and librarians; Rev. Joseph O'Brien, a Roman Catholic priest who is the prison chaplain; and a prison guard. All except Father O'Brien have been held since the rebels since Wednesday.

Father O'Brien has been in the library since Thursday and when he went there to negotiate with the rebels, Prison officials say there is a possibility he may be retained with the rebels voluntarily.

The rebels have freed two persons, a guard wounded on the first day of the uprising and a teacher who suffered a heart attack. One of the teachers still being held, Ben Robinson, was wounded in the shoulder last Thursday.

Prison officials have delivered to the rebels at Carrasco's demand two bulletproof vests, civilian clothes and two bulletproof cameras.

The rebels have also demanded bullet-proof vests, three automatic rifles and ammunition.

Eleven Women to Be Episcopalian Priests

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Amid wide controversy, 11 women are to be ordained Episcopalian priests here today, the first of their sex to be given that clerical rank in the church's history.

The ceremonies at Philadelphia's Church of the Advocate were set in defiance of the denomination's long-time practice and regulations.

But in the view of the bishops conducting the services—as well as that of Philadelphia's strongly disapproving Bishop Robert L. DeWitt—ordination will stand as theologically valid, although irregular.

Episcopal church bishops said they were acting in obedience to what they believe is God's "walk in newness of life" seeking freedom liberation and dignity.

Their course of action came in spite of a plea from the church's presiding bishop, Rt. Rev. John Allin, last Sept. 30 to abort don their rebel manoeuvres.

The women became the first in the Western world to be ordained through the so-called "apostolic succession"—a chain of authority traced back to Jesus' ordination by laying on hands from one generation to the next.

This line is maintained in the Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox and Anglican churches, of which the 3.1-million-member Episcopal church is the U.S. branch.

Often called a "bridge church," it embraces both Protestant and Catholic traditions. Ordaining women in it constitutes a historic breakthrough in the ancient tradition of the priesthood in that heritage.

The Episcopal Convention is to begin to free priesthood from sex bondage if it suffers an loss as it is characterized by categorical exclusion of persons on the basis of sex," says a 1,000 statement by the 11 women.

The federal general Convention will b inffective in grappling with women's issues, Bishop Allin told the National NDE women's conference that trying to advance the ordination of women and people in general through the old-line parties is like a boxer going into the ring with one hand tied behind his back."

She told 200 delegates Primate Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau had terms with a majority govern ment, only supplemented on the third of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women.

"The major recommendations are still untouched. Do you think they're going to do it now? No matter what crumbs the women in Parliament are given they won't get the big things."

She said only through a socialist government can freedom equality of women be attained because the NDP is pledged to the equality of all people.

Surprise Fatal

CARACAS (Reuter) — A Venezuelan fisherman officially pronounced dead woke up in his coffin to discover he was being buried—and died of a heart attack. Witnesses said Ramon Rivera Rodriguez got up from the coffin in front of his grief-stricken relatives, removed the cotton swabs from his nose and when he realized he was being buried, endured a heart attack.

His relatives are demanding action against the doctor who pronounced Rivera dead after he had a fit.

Grace McInnis Says Old Line Parties Useless

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grace McInnis, Vancouver New Democratic Party member of Parliament, said Sunday the nine women elected earlier this month to the federal general election will b inffective in grappling with women's issues. NDP women's conference that trying to advance the ordination of women and people in general through the old-line parties is like a boxer going into the ring with one hand tied behind his back."

Da Nang Is Shelled

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces kept up their attack on Da Nang, second city in South Vietnam today, heavily shelling the Da Nang air base and the city's suburbs for a second time in 10 days, the U.S. Command reported. No casualties were immediately announced.

The Viet Cong Blue Sea region's chief military spokesman said six persons were killed and 40 were wounded in the attack. Six were fired into the base and surrounding villages before dawn.

Hien said most of the rockets hit residential areas and five of the dead and 22 of the wounded were civilians.

A rocket attack on the air base July 18 is reported to have killed 16 persons and wounded 72.

7 Republicans Back Charge

Abuse of Power By Nixon Seen

WASHINGTON (CP) — The House of Representatives judiciary committee began work today on a third article of impeachment, this one charging President Nixon with refusing to comply with judiciary committee subpoenas.

Minority chances of escaping a Senate trial were dealt a shattering blow Monday night as seven Republicans voted with the 21 Democrats on the committee to recommend Nixon's impeachment on an article alleging abuse of power even before the Watergate burglary.

The article charging Nixon with contempt of Congress for not complying with committee subpoenas for tape recordings was expected to be approved today. After that, another article remains to be taken up.

Monday night's vote saw the second-ranking committee Republican—Robert McCloy of Illinois—join his six party colleagues who joined Saturday in voting 27 to 11, the first impeachment article accusing the president of obstruction of justice in covering up the Watergate burglary in June 17, 1972.

The article approved 28 to 10 Monday night accused Nixon of misusing his presidential powers from his first year in office in 1969 and even beyond the break-in at the Democratic party's Watergate headquarters.

It is on Saturday, all 21 Democrats voted in favor of recommending impeachment.

The five-point article approved Monday night said the president was subject to impeachment for misusing the government's Internal Revenue Service for political purposes and for authorizing improper wiretapping of people, including White House aides and Nixon's brother, Donald.

The president was also accused of improperly allowing the General Intelligence Agency to be used in a 1971 break-in at the office of a psychiatrist treating Pentagon papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

The article charged the president with impropriety setting up the White House "plumbers," a unit established to plug intelligence leaks and of misusing his power to interfere with the investigations investigating the Watergate break-in.

Today, the committee takes up McCloy's amendment charging the president with committing an impeachable offence by not complying with the committee's eight subpoenas for 147 tape recordings sought during its impeachment investigation, which began in early May.

Also waiting action is an article accusing the president of wilfully attempting to evade payment of more than $400,000 in income taxes from 1969 to 1972, and of receiving unlawful government-financed improvements on his houses in San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

Some Democrats may also introduce an article charging the president with ordering the illegal bombing of Cambodia.

Members said they hope to end their debate tonight by voting on the article accusing Nixon of evading income tax.

The abuse-of-power article in some respects is politically more damaging to the president than the one approved Saturday.

Democrats said that the misuse of government agencies, particularly the political spying, created the danger of a police state.

"Just as a consistent abuse of power holds more danger for the republic than a single criminal act, so is this a far more serious charge than in the article already adopted," said Representative Lawrence Hogan (Rep. Md.), a leading supporter of Article II.

Guards Relax

Indian guards at Ambiihnabe Park relax on hood of car at park entrance contemplating their two-week-long occupation of the park. Senators Study Rules for Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate has taken its first step toward a possible impeachment trial of President Nixon by adding the rules committee to review procedures and precedents and recommend necessary revisions.

Chairman Howard Cannon (Dem.-Nev.) said the committee will begin work in closed session Wednesday.

"We will examine very carefully the rules followed in the Johnson case," he said, referring to the impeachment trial of President Andrew Johnson more than a 100 years ago.

Johnson was the only president brought to trial in the Senate. The vote in his case was one-short of the two-thirds majority needed for conviction and removal from office.

Cyprus Partition Is Taking Shape

NICOSIA (AFP) — A de-facto partition of Cyprus has been gradually taking shape since the Turkish invasion.

The first signs of partition between Greek and Turkish-Cypriot sectors appeared following Monday night clashes between the two groups in 1963.

Work now is in progress to enlarge a small airport in the zone occupied by Turkish forces, and a shipping line from Turkey to the Cypriot port of Kyrenia is to be opened in a few days.

Turkish-Cypriot mail is routed through Ankara. Turkish-Cypriot autonomous administrative services set up after 1963 are quickly being expanded to cover all the Turkish-held zone. A Turkish-Cypriot telecommunications centre is supposed to be opened in Kyrenia.

Plans to make the Turkish-Cypriot electricity supply independent of the Greek-Cypriots are being studied.

Vice-President Rauf Denktash, leader of the Turkish-Cypriot administration there in a "de-facto division," although he declines to use the word "partition."

Turkish forces continue to occupy the territory discreetly. They now hold about one-thirtieth of the island—an occupation zone covering 13 miles along the north coast and extending an equal distance south from Kyrenia to Nicosia.

The zone includes a coastal plain, mountains, and rich farmland beyond. There is viable area.

Commercial flights will begin in a few days at the airport in the mountains 10 miles northwest of here. A Turkish-Cypriot civil service said.

Denktash said a civilian administration is taking control of the Kyrenia district. He returned from an inspection there Monday.

The vice-president proposed making Kyrenia the capital of a Turkish-Cypriot federal state.

"All Turkish-Cypriots should be united there as there will be no more isolated Turkish neighborhoods," he said. "The most reasonable solution would be a non-aligned, independent federation of a Greek zone and a Turkish zone."

If the solution cannot be attained, we will have to resort to parallels. There is no other alternative."

The Turkish-Cypriots now have the backing of a formidable army to achieve the solution they have demanded for years.

Cobourg Girl, 16, Found Dead

COBOURG, Ont. (AP) — Police said Monday they suspect foul play in the death of a 16-year-old girl whose body was found Sunday night beside a county road near Elizabethville, in the area 75 miles southeast of Peterborough.

Cindy Lee Huggins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Huggins of Green Landing, left her home about 6:15 p.m. Sunday for the home of a friend 1½ miles away, police said. She never arrived.

The girl was found shortly afterwards lying about two feet off the road by a fruit-stand attendant.

A police statement issued late Monday said investigators believe the girl was picked up by a motorist between her home and the home of the friend she had planned to visit.

Turks Report Accord

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Turkey and Greece have reached a compromise agreement on self-rule for ending their military showdown on Cyprus, a spokesman for the Turkish delegation to the Geneva peace talks said today.

He predicted the accord would be signed tomorrow.

But Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros in Athens said that, while it is hopeful, there were still a number of problems to resolve before a truce can be signed.

The Turkish spokesman said the exact wording of the agreement is being worked out, including a compromise on the potentially explosive issue of Turkish troop withdrawals. He indicated the Turks would agree to wording in the agreement that would speak of Turkish troop reductions, rather than withdrawals.

A Greek delegate said, however, that the new Turkish formula commits the Ankara government to withdraw its invasion force when a final political settlement is reached on the Mediterranean island. The Turkish military presently thereby would be officially defined as temporary, thus saving the Greeks face.

Once an interim military agreement is concluded in Geneva, the Cyprus peace talks will be able to advance to a second stage to deal with the island republic's political future, they would include a overruling of the Cyprus constitution as well as the treaties guaranteeing Greece, Turkey and Britain guaranteed Cyprus independence.

Those talks might begin toward the end of the first week in August, the Turkish spokesman said. One date has been floated is Aug. 8.

Observers in Geneva reacted to the latest pronouncements with caution, recalling that several times during the six days of talks delegates had said an agreement was near, but each time the accord fell through.

Amin Sees CIA Hand In Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — President Idi Amin of Uganda has sent out telegrams accusing the United States Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) of masterminding the Cyprus coup.

His charge that the CIA was behind the coup which ousted Archbishop Makarios came in telegrams to Greece and the Turkish premiers and the archbishop, and circulated by the Ugandan UN mission.

Amin said: "The facts leading up to the seizure of last week's coup appear to indicate that CIA intelligence was very much involved in the planning of it."

Amin, who several times recently has alleged that Uganda was about to be invaded by its neighbouring African country of Tanzania, did not elaborate on his charge.

The telegram also made sweeping charges against the crisis, including a warning that "external military or intelligence interference should not be allowed to control Cyprus."

Indians Planning Offensive

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Ojibwa Indians occupying Anicinabe Park say they "have a massive action" will begin at noon Wednesday if the park is not turned over to them by that time.

The Indians made the declaration Monday night after they were called to a lack of progress in settling the week-old armed occupation of the 14-acre park located several miles from downtown Kenora.

Spokesman Louis Cameron told a news conference held at the barricaded building into the park that he would not elaborate on what action would be taken in the event the deadline is not met.

In the meantime, he said, security along the perimeter of the park will be tightened.

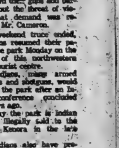
Earlier in the evening, Kenora town council issued a statement advising on the deadline day to lay down their guns and batons without the threat of violence. That demand was rejected by Mr. Cameron.

As a weekend truce ended, the Indians resumed their periods of the park fence with catakitris of this northwestern Ontario tourist centre.

Monday, noisy armed with rifles and shotguns would not let the park fence as Indian conference concluded seven days ago.

They say the park is Indian property illegally sold in the town of Kenora in the late 1920s.

The Indians also have presented a list of demands to government negotiators, including removal of a provincial judge in Kenora and establishment of Indian police and justices of the peace.



Although police reinforcements were brought in Kenora when the talks occupation began, the only sign of police surveillance Monday was a two-man provincial police squad car parked some 200 yards from the barricaded entrance to the park.

Kenora Mayor Jim Davidson has said the park will be returned to the Indians if they can prove they are legally entitled to it.

Greek Military Buildup Is Reported on Rhodes

ANKARA (Reuter) — Turkish Premier Suleot Ecevit, was called from his home to attend headquarters early today for an urgent four-hour meeting on reports of a Greek military buildup on Rhodes, island Greek Island to Cyprus.

Ecevit, after his session with military leaders, told reporters Turkey is studying information about the buildup on Rhodes, 125 miles off the Turkish coast.

But he said on Tuesday about an unconfirmed report here that Greece may try to send reinforcements to the Cypriot port of Paphos.

Turkish authorities in the near Rhodes said last week they received information that Greek transport aircraft were landing troops on the island and rearranging some civilians.

Calgary Man Said Tortured In Mexican Jail

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta, B.C. copyright story, says the son of a Calgary couple is being held by Mexican authorities on a drug charge and has been tortured and brutalized while the parents attempt to raise $30,000 to free their son.

The newspaper says the couple, not identified because they said they feared reprisals against their son, is near-bankruptcy due to alleged extortion by Mexican officials.

Maurice Schwartzman, Canadian Ambassador to Mexico, is quoted as saying Canada is doing all it can to obtain the boy's freedom but cannot interfere with the internal affairs of another country.

High Cost Of Houses 'Tragedy'

EDMONTON (CP) — The high cost of housing in Canada is a "national tragedy," says Mayor Vic Copps of Hamilton.

"Home ownership for young people is the impossible dream," Mayor Copps said during a panel discussion Wednesday on housing and land use at a one-day conference of mayors from 11 large Canadian cities.

"To start home ownership is virtually impossible."

Mayor Copps mentioned high interest rates, land and building costs as contributory causes to the situation.

Controlling mortgage rates is beyond the power of cities, said mayor Copps, but municipalities can "shake up our zoning and land use to induce more housing starts."

The only resolution passed out of the housing panel was a call for provincial and federal governments to enter into agreements with the federal government on housing and land assembly assistance to urge such agreements.

Mayor Jane Bigelow of London, Ont., said Canada has a responsibility to help ease the overcrowding in other parts of the world.

And Mayor Pierre Benoit of Ottawa said Ottawa is concerned about restricting immigration from countries which crowded on directing immigrants to underpopulated areas in Canada.

Face Charges

WEST LINCOLN, Ont. (CP) — Two brothers and a brother-in-law were charged Monday with mischief causing bodily harm after twelve bottles were thrown at passing truck injured three persons and smashed several car windshields.

Provincial police said youths driving a pickup truck late Sunday night hurled plastic bags filled with water at the windshields of cars travelling in the opposite direction.

The truck was being driven through the Beamsville and Caistor Centre areas, about 10 miles southeast of Hamilton.

In about an hour, police said, six windshields were smashed and three people sent to hospital and treated for cuts. Three other drivers escaped injury.

Charged were Edward Brubacher, 19, his brother Henry, 18, and a 15-year-old juvenile, all of Caistor Centre.

Still Fast

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Ukrainian Canadians have ignored suggestions by Immigration minister John Diefenbaker and their doctor to end a hunger strike they began 15 days ago outside the Soviet embassy.

Lada Hrop and Andriy Sandrets, both of Toronto, said Monday they feel they are well and will not eat until they get word that Soviet authorities are taking steps to release Ukrainian writer Valeriy Marchenko.

Mr. Diefenbaker praised the students Sunday for their courage in taking a stand for human freedom, but said they already have made an impact on Canadian public opinion and should end the strike.

Canada and 8 States Favor 12-mile Limit

CARACAS (AFP) — India, Indonesia and Iceland joined Canada and five other states Monday in a formal consensus in favor of the 12-mile territorial sea limit and an additional "economic zone" as 25 miles more.

The other countries were Chile, Mauritius, Mexico, New Zealand and Norway. Canada presented the consensus paper to a plenary session of the 150-nation UN conference on the Law of the Sea, which is in its sixth week of meetings here.

The issue of sea limits is being thrashed out in committee. Observers viewed the nine countries' decision to go directly to the plenary session as a gesture of impatience with the reserves of the committees' proceedings.

West Germany, Peru and Turkey led strong opposition to acceptance of the paper by the committee, saying this is the subject of the conference.

Hazardous U.S. Lights Brought into Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 3,000 trouble lights considered a fire hazard in electrician circles have been imported to Canada from the United States, a consumer affairs department official said Monday.

An unknown number of the lights are already being offered for sale.

"The existence of such dangerous electrical products points up a gap in existing consumer legislation," say officials of the department's bureau of product safety and standards who are moving to bridge it.

Under changes expected to be introduced in parliament this session, it will become illegal to import unapproved electrical products into Canada and inspectors will be empowered to seize dangerous products from store shelves.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) has warned that 200,000 of the lights — equipped with rubber cage hoods — are on sale in the U.S.

The CPSC says the lights are manufactured by A. E. Electric Corp. of Brooklyn, N.Y. They have been distributed in Canada and Great Britain and half-dozen states, said Dick Virtue of the hazard-control product section of the CPSC.

Storm Hits

HAMILTON (CP) — A middle-aged man and his wife were seriously injured Monday when a tornado swept through Owen Sound and left a trail of destruction in other southern Ontario communities.

Mr. Diefenbaker praised the students Sunday for their courage in taking a stand for human freedom, but said they already have made an impact on Canadian public opinion and should end the strike.

There are no easily identifiable marks on them but they do not carry the Canadian Standards Association (CSA) seal of approval, he said.

Mr. Virtue is advising consumers to check their existing trouble lamps and be cautious in purchasing them. Some lights have a cord with a metal hook above the screened light bulb for hanging the unit. A hydro outlet, or receptacle is the handle of the light, is considered the hazard by the CPSC.

The plastic surrounding the outlet is considered a fire risk and can be depressed to touch electrical contacts and cause a fire.

"That make sure people test them when they are supplied," he said.

Railways Agree to Talk With Non-ops

MONTREAL (CP) — Spokesmen for Canadian National and CP Rail said Monday they are willing to meet with representatives of the associated non-operating railway unions to discuss cost-of-living demands.

In a joint statement the companies said they will meet with union representatives Friday.

The statement said that the railways are scheduled to meet union negotiators Aug. 2 to try to arrive at a new agreement. The statement said cost-of-living trends will form one of the major items under discussion at that time. The current contract expires Dec. 31.

Earlier in the day R. C. Smith, chairman of the 55,000-member unions, said the railways agree to the railway companies making for an immediate 10-cent increase to offset cost-of-living increases.

Rain Helps

TORONTO (CP) — Rain, low temperatures and high humidity helped firefighters battle a 60-acre forest fire near Dryden under control, the Ontario ministry of natural resources reported Monday.

The ministry also said a 120-acre fire near Red Lake now is being contained.

There were 36 fires burning in the province Monday compared with 112 Sunday. In the northwest and north-central regions, 13 fires were burning with 17 under control, eight being held, six not under control and 21 being observed.

Land Tax Exemptions Granted

TORONTO (CP) — Most companies requesting exemption from the Ontario government's 35-per-cent tax on land sales to non-residents say they are in a "crisis situation," an official of the ministry of industry and tourism said Monday.

Melvin Garland, executive director of the division of industry, said priority is given to companies on the verge of going out of business who wish to sell to foreign firms.

"They come in with sons de grace of urgency and we must to rescue the jobs involved," he said.

About 20 requests are being examined by the ministry, which considers each case and makes recommendations to the minister.

So far, two exemptions have been allowed-both for United States companies — and one involving the purchase of a privately-Canadian company.

Babcock and Wilcox Refractories Ltd., a York-based company has been allowed to take over Holmes Insulation Ltd., Dundas, previously owned by Holmes Rhmt Ltd., a Swedish company.

Last month the government waived the sale of Cabarco Canada Ltd., a manufacturer of industrial cleaners and chemicals, to Diversey Inc. of Toronto. Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of the Chicago-based Consolidated Foods Corp.

A ministry spokesman said Gilbarco was "ready to fold" and 700 jobs would have been lost if it had not been sold. He said 300 more jobs might be supplied by the new owners.

No Converters

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Canada Ltd. announced Monday that their 1975 model cars will not be equipped with catalytic converters because of the limited availability of unleaded gasoline.

Company President Roy Bonisteel said in a statement that with the exception of one optional engine, Ford will not introduced this fall in Canada will operate only on regular gasoline—regular, premium and unleaded.

BRITT, Ont. (CP) — Police were called Sept. 6 to the death of an elderly man whose decomposed body was found floating in a horse at the Pickerel River Indian reserve at Sill River, 10 miles north of here.

The body has not been positively identified and in the Centre for Forensic Sciences in Toronto.

Steven Ashawasegai, 78, owner of the horse where the body was found, is missing.

The body was found in a cupboard and police found human items in the horses for possible evidence. The man has been described as five days dead when found.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a three-year court fight, reporter William Farr was sentenced to jail and ordered fined $500 Monday by a judge who said the reporter has not yet able to make the sentence stick.

Farr refused to tell Superior Judge Older, accusing Farr of "holding himself above the law," details concerning a newspaper story the sentence pending a decision on a matter appeal to federal court.

Farr, who served 46 days in jail earlier in the case, said he was disappointed but certain that his stand for Judith Exner Immunity would be upheld. Exner sources led convinced the public that reporters must stick to their moral convictions.

Older had demanded Farr tell him the names of the sources for a story he wrote in 1971 on Los Angeles Mexican mobster case.

Tenth of Canada's Forces Overseas

OTTAWA (CP) — The 464 Canadian Forces personnel being added to the Cyprus UN force this week will bring to about 2,150 the number of servicemen serving overseas.

That represents about one-tenth of the about 21,000 personnel in the slightly-under-strength unified forces.

Figures from the forces show the overseas Canadians range from the 8,131 in the Canadian NATO contingent to the single officer seconded to special work in Nigeria.

The 950 men, mostly of the Canadian Airborne Regiment, serving on Cyprus join Canadians on UN work in three other theatres: about 1,100 men in the Middle East; less than 20 in Kashmir and a couple in Korea.

The 8,250 overseas this week compare with the 8,000 that were in the country before the force Canadians started flying to Cyprus June 20 for the UN Emergency Force (UNEF).

The Canadian contingent in the 16-year-old Cyprus force then numbered 521 men. The number had been reduced to 486 men when the recent hostilities forced the UN to send in double the size of the 2,100-man peacekeeping force.

Beside the more than 8,000 men now overseas on active service, 8,000 men ready to go overseas if needed to help defend the northern flank of Europe.

The Canadian NATO group include about 3,300 in the 4th Mechanized Brigade Group and about 1,000 in the 1st Air Group.

In the Middle East there are Canadians with UNEF, with the old but still operational UN Truce Supervision Force (UNTSO) and with the UN Disengagement Observation Force (UNDOF). The latter is on the Syrian-Israeli frontline with about 150 Canadians.

More than 800 Canadians are in the United States, some in Washington, some in defence establishments where equipment for Canada is made and between 70 and 80 at the North American Defence (NORAD) headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo. Others are at various NORAD bases.

About 100 men are in British Honduras.

Ninety members of Maritime Command are in Bermuda operating a communications centre.

About ninety Canadians are in Greece with the NATO headquarters, 44 are in the Netherlands, 19 are in Pakistan, most assigned to the UN Kashmir operation.

In some cases servicemen are seconded to aid projects and in other cases they are specialists in some field where they are of assistance to the diplomats.

Motel Owner Unaware Of Any Drug Problem

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The owner of the Landmark Motor Inn told a royal commission inquiry Monday he was unsuspected any problem with drugs.

Edward John Lane, who took over ownership of the Port Erie motel in 1971, told counsel for the royal commission inquiry into drug raid at the hotel last May 11.

Forty-three persons, all but seven of them women, were strip-searched during the raid.

Lane's lawyer told commissioner Burton Kelloch of Brantford, Ont., that he had "absolutely no desire to be a burden, never believed he had a drug problem and did not consider he had a situation which would affect his liquor license.

Evidence presented by police witnessed last week indicated the existence of under-age drinking, liquor offences outside the hotel and widespread use of marijuana.

Lane also said that if he police knew of a drug problem at his establishment they should have got in touch with him before hand.

Earlier in the day, Paul Kelly, 22, an occasional customer of the hotel, testified under protection of the Ontario Evidence Act, he knew there were drugs being consumed by the bar who were involved with them.

Mr. Kelly asked Port Erie's drug problem with the then-captured race track there.

"The police had to come in that night," he said, "and brought it with them, but the most had already left town," Mr. Kelly said.

Hockey Not Inflated

In an era when skyrocketing salaries and admission prices dominate the professional sporting world, it is refreshing to note that Belleville junior hockey fans don't have to fight inflation at the turnstiles.

Belleville Bobcat president Jim Matthews has announced that, although a realigned Metro Junior B League means fewer Belleville games, season ticket prices have been adjusted so that the per-game admission remains around the $1.50 mark.

That's a good buy for the exciting brand of hockey the Bobcats have played in their two years in the league, seasons in which coach Murray Hunter led them to respectable fifth and third-place finishes.

Now, with coach Hunter leaving, city fans will be asked to support well-known area hockey personality Tim Williams in his new coaching assignment.

This year's new edition of the Bobcats also promises to have many new faces in the lineup as age forces graduation on club "veterans".

One sure drawing card for this season will be the addition of a Kingston entry to the league, thereby assuring more of the Eastern Ontario rivalry these two cities have brought to many sporting scenes.

The Bobcats have established a reputation for themselves in the Metro League as a force to be reckoned with, but so have their fans.

The enthusiastic support lent their team by Belleville arena-goers has made the city the pre-season favorite as site of the January league all-star game.

Perfect Timing

It was unplanned, if perfect timing that the current issue of "Sentinel", the Canadian Armed Forces magazine, was largely devoted to participation by Canadian troops in United Nations roles.

The week "Sentinel" was off the presses, Canadian forces in Cyprus suddenly had a more urgent role thrust upon them.

A new magazine feature — a centrespread cut out feature on the Canadian Egyptian belly-dancer but the 12 UN medals which Canadian troops won for peacekeeping duties.

Canadians have received the ribbons for service in Korea, Vietnam, The Congo, and Egypt, to name the more familiar theatres.

Then, of course, there is Cyprus, an estimated 10,000 Canadian troops have been eligible for the white and blue UN ribbon in a decade of keeping Turks and Greeks at bay.

"Sentinel" editorializes that "peace medals" may be a misnomer for the decorations; many of which are earned under combat conditions.

The dozen Canadians who were wounded on Cyprus in recent days know that "peacekeeping" can be a lot like war.

Air Good Buy

Fresh air would be cheap at twice the $15 weekly price a city-sponsored community day camp program offers.

The program, a joint YMCA-recreation department venture now in its third year, takes city youngsters to scenic Vanderwater Park weekdays for social education in an outdoor setting.

". . . The main thing is they learn how to get along with other kids," says camp director Jerry Holway. "It's not a babysitting service," stresses the recreation department's Cliff Belch.

Whatever the definition, the day camp is a fine example of co-operation by two community groups to provide a valuable summer service.

There likely will be a deficit when the eight-week program shuts down in "mid-August.

But there are also 80 free memberships allotted for city families who could not otherwise give youngsters a similar opportunity.

Former Magazine Editor Is Minister

French Government Creates a Secretariat For Women

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Women's Lib Movement has gone sour. Germaine Greer and azalea are a drug. Betty Friedan scares you like the Chilean generals.

And "strident broads" means more than gals who insist on paying for their lunch.

Yet women persist in public life, in one of the oldest and mainly most honorable professions in the world, politics.

And from France, whence came Simone de Beauvoir, Francoise Sagan et al, as well as much of the intellectual and emotional stimuli for Women's Lib, the French have done it again.

Madame Francoise Giroud, if she hasn't heard of her already, has been made Prince'ss and possibly the world's first "Minister for women" or more correctly, "secretary for the condition of women."

An early response from a male and former French cabinet minister is what you might expect. Why not a "minister for the condition of men?" The critic was no less than tough-talking former foreign minister Michel Jobert, the only foreign minister overseas a few weeks ago who was ripping off Henry Kissinger in public.

Enough about Jobert. This column is about women and Mme Giroud is some woman. She gained fame in France and overseas first as editor of the well-known Parisian women's magazine Elle-(She) and then as a co-founder of the gutsy paper L'Express (Express).

Its co-owner is the very prominent French politician and author Jean-Jacques Sirvan-Schreiber, harsh critic of Gaullism and even harsher observer of the cruel, colonial war in Algeria of the late 1950s in which he had to fight as a conscript officer.

Mme Giroud went into the new cabinet of the new French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing within days of Schreiber's departure from it.

The two events were not connected since Sirvan-Schreiber was indiscreet enough to comment unfavorably on a key matter before the cabinet, nuclear weapons testing, before a cabinet meeting.

Mme Giroud is a feminist but not as we say in North America, "a women's libber." She has had to be self-reliant under conditions most North Americans female counterparts of women's self-reliance have never experienced.

Unable to marry the father of her first child because of the fact of France in 1942, she could not obtain an abortion under tough man-made laws against it in France, nor welfare ration cards for her child because he was illegitimate. She recently said her only diploma might be called "Master of Life."

Mme Giroud, from what one reads and sees about her, is a successful professional and will probably be just as good as a politician because basically she is feminine to her own way.

So if the liberationists care to look, across all the leading political caverns of our time, India' Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi has great personal charm and style.

Rocketed and bereaved Sonora President Peron in Argentina is a beauty beneath the tears and the dowdy looks, and probably needed great good looks to make her way as a dancer among all the night club owners. One of them incidentally now is her minister of health and welfare.

And here in Canada Minister of the Environment Miss Jeanne Sauve and Conservative MP Flora Macdonald are feminine forces to reckon in her own way.

Senior public servant who sits in many meetings with Mme Sauve told this columnist recently, "She arrives at, when she comes into a departmental meeting because she's so damn feminine."

So woman liberate get lost. The old charms are still something male egos. And no one is shooting! <

Warsaw Pact Troops For Cyprus?

By GEORGE KITCHEN
UNITED NATIONS (CP)

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's decision to expand the 3,000-man UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus has opened the way for a possible move to weaken the composition of the force and include East European troops in its ranks.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp indicated in Ottawa Thursday that he would like to see other countries participate in the force, though he made it clear he was not thinking of letting Warsaw pact countries to contribute.

But Warsaw pact representation may well be what Soviet delegate Vasily S. Safronchuk had in mind last Monday when he drew the Security Council's attention to the fact that the composition of the force should be decided by the council.

Safronchuk revealed that the Soviet Union had abstained on the provision dealing with the composition of the force when the council set it up in 1964 or keep the peace between the warring Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities in Cyprus.

The Soviet delegate says he has been laying the groundwork for a bid for Warsaw pact representation in the event a crisis of the Cyprus force comes up for renewal in the council every six months.

The Soviets launched a successful demand for inclusion of an Iron Curtain country in the UN Middle East force when the peacekeeping operation was created to bring about the Poland was included in the force on Israeli and Arab sides with Canada and UN sources say the idea that a Warsaw pact force with NATO troops has worked out well, despite occasional misgivings.

At present, these six countries have troops in the Cyprus force: Austria, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Sweden and the United Kingdom. In addition, Australia, Austria, Denmark and Sweden have civilian police units.

Though it was set up in 1964, the force had an authorized strength of 7,000 men. This has dwindled over the years until total strength, including both military and police units, was down to about 3,200 on hand. President Makarios was overthrown by the Greek - Cypriot National Guard on July 15.

The fall of the Makarios regime, and the subsequent invasion of the island by Turkish troops, has thrown a tremendous workload on the peacekeeping force and on the UN force. It now, along with its headquarters, is facing the Greek-and Turkish-Cypriot factions apart, has to supervise a shaky ceasefire, take care of stranded tourists and refugees and provide protection for dangers caught up in the fighting.

With Turkey daily pouring troops, tanks, armor and other war material into its beachhead on the north coast of Cyprus, the situation within the island may well build up to the point where Waldheim will be forced to ask the Security Council to broaden the force and the UN 900 figure.

Such a move almost automatically would require the council to seek troops from beyond the six countries providing them now.

The Treadmill – And How It Is Becoming a Shade More Tolerable

Tired of the old work routine? Just long in there a little longer. Changes are on the way.

Routine working hours have long been accepted as a necessary part of the process of making a living—although the work week has gradually been reduced from six days to 5½, and now to five.

Today's trend is toward a less regimented routine. One reason is that growing numbers of people find their individuality is somehow diminished when they must conform to a fixed work schedule.

Another is that married women are constant as an important segment of the labor force. Many of them would like work part time or on a flexible schedule, because of their family responsibilities.

Two new patterns, becoming more widely accepted by employers and workers alike, are these:

—The compressed work week. Typically, this means four 10-hour days each week instead of five eight-hour days.

—The flexible work week. The employee works the same number of hours per week, but chooses his own hours each day as long as he is present for a "core" period, such as 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Some companies that have tried the new systems have found them to be highly successful.

Imperial Oil Ltd., at its Whitby refinery, switched from three eight-hour shifts to two 12-hour shifts each day.

Workers put in three day shifts followed by four days off, then three night shifts and three days off—a 12-day cycle.

To cover possible absences, a shift worker is on call on his first day off, and released after the next shift is started.

The flexible work week has also been introduced by Imperial Oil in its systems and computer-services group.

Employees may come to work any time between 7:30 and 10:30 a.m., and leave between 2:30 and 6 p.m. They are expected to put in 35 hours a week, averaged over four weeks.

How did the employees respond to the freedom of choice? About 60 per cent opted for a regular hours, changing day by day. Another 25 per cent adopted a new schedule that doesn't vary from day to day. The rest stick to the same hours as before.

But all are reported to have found the new system preferable to the traditional inflexible schedule.

Other changes in work patterns could be a fad (there are plenty of those in business).

It seems more likely, however, that they are the beginnings of a growing movement away from rigid work schedules, and toward a working life in which room exists for individual preferences.

Most workers seem to find greater freedom and satisfaction, rather than laziness, in getting their job done.

The greater efficiency has been clear. For employers, it can increase the traditional rush-hour strain on traffic and public transit. But the pressure on other public facilities—recreation, for example—could become heavier.

Finnish-Soviet Trade Ties Strong

By JOHN HARBRON

In another time, not entirely during the Second World War, the late Winston Churchill drew on another articulate author when he described the Russian bear with the devil inside a long spoon.

The reference in three years of fighting enemies and allies alike, from Churchill to Stalin to Roosevelt, was to Soviet Russia's brief honeymoon with Nazi Germany before the German invasion of the U.S.S.R. in June, 1941.

That alliance, signed in Berlin just before the outbreak of the Second World War in August, 1939, brought the Russians some much needed plunder, as usual economies can't organize, first by themselves and then by allies, by absorbing the tiny and defenceless Baltic republics.

Then the rigid relations between democracies and dictatorships changed, as they always are not in a global war situation. Hitler, in short, made peace with the devil" for our own good. The devil remained in his spoon the war has been Finland.

That double that the shrewd, independently-minded Finns have lived in this way. When you are as tiny as Finland and you live next door to the big bear of Russia, you are bound to operate in a somewhat different fashion.

The most obvious sign of close Finnish-Soviet relations is the Finnish reliance on its huge neighbor as a major customer for the products it has a special preference in turn for what the Soviets have.

Major exports to the U.S.S.R. are wood pulp and ships. In fact the Finnish merchant marine fleet has been built and developed largely to Finland and in particular at the Wartsila Yard, into the world's largest ice breakers and builders of icebreakers.

The Russian preference for Finnish ships, despite dainty household things made by the Finns in the service, stems from sources of the U.S.S.R. are security. It's a matter of procurement.

Russian naval admirals visit around outer space and Soviet nuclear submarine crews live in Finland. Finland is a country with a degree of security in a large nation many times its resources. So Finland is a useful country to the Russians and a marvelous builder you might say.

Not that the Finns are Russian servants, since they are not. Far from it. The memories of the Finnish people and even of the Russian hordes in the forests of Karelia in the grim war of 1939 will never die.

The Russians finally forced a peace on the Finns which stripped Finland of vital industrial bearing regions, but Stalin and his gang of cut-throats never got the country.

They couldn't and he knew it. The sprawling Soviet army was humbled by a people in the incredible proper of 1939. And the Finns, with no alternative, supported the Germans in the Second World War against any Russian threat to survive.

The Finns paid yet another price for that alliance when the war ended in 1945, because it left a reliance on the Soviet Union for a much larger trade interest.

The Research Institute of the Finnish Economy estimates the U.S.S.R. will take 20 per cent of total Finnish foreign trade in 1973 and will take more in 1974 for the month Helsinki-Moscow rates.

The reason is that the Finnish economy has been hard-hit by rising oil costs like many other nations in the world with no petroleum. Forest industries have to sell at a very depressed price.

In spite of the historic reasons for the Finnish-Soviet trade, current economic conditions mean the Russians are going to pay through the nose this year to maintain it.

Quebec's Controversial Bill 22

Kitchener—Waterloo Record

One thing you have to say for Premier Robert Bourassa: When he gets into trouble, it is often because he has the courage of his convictions to accomplish the impossible.

The mammoth hydro-electric project he sponsored on the shores of James Bay sometimes seems to be going the whole province on albatross around his neck. Now his bill to implement the French language policy in Quebec and to make it possible for Quebecers to learn English is encountering throughout the provincial economy the devastating effect of bloody heavy weather.

The major objective of Bill 22, which has been given first French the official language of Quebec, is to make French the predominant working language and the enforcement of whatever limitations on the provision of public English-language schooling in the province.

It is possible to see the reasoning behind the initiatives Bourassa is proposing the wisdom of the bill and the constitutionality of some key provisions and the practicality of its aims. As it moved into clause-by-clause study late last week it began to appear that the bill could be Bourassa's Waterloo, to the English title of a revered pamphlet.

For often quite rational and reasonable measures, the bill has aroused general opposition in Quebec's Anglophone community. The opposite reasons — that is because it is not drastic enough in its elevation of French as the province's priority language — it has aroused similar if more partial French-Canadians, including the elder statesman Quebec Minister Francois Cloutier.

A group of Montreal university law professors, including noted constitutional authority Frank Scott, have declared that certain of the Bill are unconstitutional. Considered that the Bill cuts across the British North America Act 1867 which guarantees the right of parents to choose what the send. At some point, however, even the best begin to question the wisdom of this decision and to realize that, in questions of language, the numbers game can be treated as statistics and solutions.

LONDON (Reuter) — Film star Mia Farrow has won undisclosed damages against a British newspaper over an article on her alleged unhappy relationship with co-star Robert Redford during filming of the Great Gatsby.

The article was titled: "How do you like a man you can't stand?"

Miss Farrow, former wife of singer Frank Sinatra and now married to Andre Previn, conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra, brought a libel action in the High Court here against News of The World Ltd., which is the Sunday paper last March.

The 28-year-old film star was not in court, but her lawyer made it clear it had been unfounded by her to Miss Redford.

"Throughout the production of the film and at all times Miss Farrow has enjoyed an entirely happy personal and professional relationship with Mr. Redford and there was never any question of interference with the production of the film," he said.

Counsel for News of the World Ltd., which also agreed to pay Miss Farrow's costs, said the article was based on information which they believed at the time to be true.

HONG KONG (AFP) — A 19-year-old movie actress who said she was mentally depressed after starring in a film in which she appeared nearly nude, was found dead in her apartment Wednesday.

Police suspected Pai Siu-man, who recently appeared in a movie entitled Sex, Wine and Song, had taken an overdose of sleeping pills.

Three letters were found by the woman's body. They were addressed to her mother, sister and brother.

In the letter to her mother, she said: "I regret having made this film—it is too obscene."

She added in the letter that the movie industry was "dirty" and that there was "much jealousy among starlets which would cause you many regrets."

Miss Pai was scheduled to star in a film Shaw Brothers-Warner Brothers production—a sequel to the Cleopatra-Jones adventures.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Hartz, an NBC reporter and anchorman, was named by NBC Wednesday as permanent co-host of the Today show, filling a vacancy created in April by the death of Frank McGee.

Hartz, 34, a native of Tulsa, Okla., got the job after trying out the show with other, better-known NBC reporters as temporary substitutes for Tom Brokaw, Garrick Utley, Edwin Newman and Tom Snyder, host of NBC's Tomorrow show.

A former musical student at the University of Tulsa, Hartz began his broadcasting career in 1961 with station KOTH in Tulsa. He joined NBC News in 1965.

NBC said Hartz, who will start on Today next Monday, will be assigned to read some commercials as do the show's regular co-hosts Barbara Walters, Gene Shalit and Frank Blair.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The critics predict that Mack and Mabel will settle down for a long, long run when it reaches Broadway, in October. It quits Robert Preston just fine.

Mack and Mabel is a new musical based on a tragic love story of comedy king Mack Sennett and the star of his silent comedies and his personal life, Mabel Normand.

"You know what a long run means to me? Sheer heaven," commented Bob Preston after a strenuous evening as Mack Sennett.

"Yes, I know that some actors can't stand doing the same role night after night."

"Well, when you're doing a long-run show, you have a different audience every night and you get a new reaction. So it never gets boring."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Gloria Swanson says the Internal Revenue Service wrongly assessed her more than $14,400 in back taxes by disallowing business deductions and following a policy she says discriminates against unmarried taxpayers.

In a petition filed last week in United States tax court, the 75-year-old film and stage star requested a jury trial on the tax issue.

Miss Swanson says her federal income-tax liability was increased by about $2,500 in 1968 and 1970 because she was then unmarried. Her fifth and last husband, a Greenwich broker William Dewey, ended in divorce in 1945.

Her petition argues that because she was unmarried, she could not take advantage of a provision allowing married taxpayers to avoid higher tax brackets by filing combined returns.

The actress is president of a Fifth Avenue fashion firm in New York and vice-president of Parkan Dress Co., Waltham, Mass.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I've never been locked up, I've never taken a drink, I never hurt anyone, and I gave all my money away. So how come I got this born reputation?"

George Raft was speaking about the knocks he has taken in the press and from the law during his career as a movie tough guy.

Still dapper at 78 but slowed down by emphysema, he wonders why his screen reputation has been transferred to his private life.

"I suppose it started because I danced in the New York night spots during the 1930s," he said. "The guys who owned those places were racketeers like Dewey Madden.

"But they were the bosses, the hosts, and anybody who worked in those joints had to deal with them."

Over the years, Raft's name has been mentioned in investigations of the underworld, but he says he has never had any connection.

Raft feels the toughest blow of all came in 1961 when he was barred from Britain as an "undesirable." He had been looking for a London casino job last full-time employment.

"The worst part is that they never accused me of anything," he said.

Throughout the 1930s and 1940s Raft was one of Hollywood's highest paid leading men. In 1946 his earnings were $468,000.

Then film styles changed, and Raft began playing cameo roles.

The money vanished, partly because of Raft's 43-year support of his estranged wife. They had met and married in vaudeville but soon drifted apart. She would never divorce him.

He said he paid Grayce Mulconney Raft more than a million dollars by the time of her death in 1970.

Raft's money problems mounted to recent years, especially with the Internal Revenue Service.

He now lives once in an apartment, spending afternoons as a greeter in the Beverly Hills office of a Las Vegas hotel.

Wilderness Survival: This Expert Teaches You How

By SHARON AIRHART

Alone in the wilderness, the victim of a plane crash, you die of dehydration although there is plenty of fresh water.

The reason: you simply forget to drink enough water to keep you alive.

An incredible frooy but a common occurrence in the bush where, as Berndt Berglund will tell you, loneliness increases fear and fear builds to panic.

"And once you panic, you're as good as dead."

Berglund, the country's leading authority on survival, has spent a lifetime teaching military men and pilots how to keep alive in the wilderness, how to avoid that deadly panic.

Four years ago he founded National Wilderness Survival, Inc., a federally chartered non-profit organization dedicated to education and research. The school, a 230-acre farm, is located at Campbellford.

His aim was — and is — simple.

"We just want to try to teach the hunter and fisherman and camper to take care of himself if he's lost while travelling in the bush."

The "we" is not a modest editorial prooom: one of the driving forces behind the school is Clare Bolsby, Berglund's wife, one of its six instructors. Berglund is executive director of the organization.

The more than 2,000 students began their course with a 17-lecture home study program. Booklets, written by Berglund with illustrations by outdoorsman Bev Sanders, are studied as students who read them and answer 15 questions on each topic.

Survival psychology, signals, shelters, traps and snares, hunting and fishing, edible wild plants are some of the 17 subjects. Berglund and the instructors "correct" the answers and guide students through the course.

The second part of the course, five days of bush training, is spent on the Berglund's Campbellford area farm.

The school was located in the area, Berglund says, because the pair loved "Northumberland's rolling hills" and because the site was perfect for their needs: acreage, unfarmed for 50 years, that boasted most of the wild plants mentioned in their course, flowing water, and even a beaver dam.

Twenty-five students and one instructor live for five days and nights in the bush as if they were lost, building shelters, hunting food, finding water. Hard work and not a little boredom, he points out.

The final phase of the course — for the most dedicated students — is five days of survival in the wilds north of North Bay — alone.

The students is set up in the bush — on a forested hillcrest — where he is expected to find food and make shelter. His only link is civilization is a "beeper", an electronic device he can use to summon aid if he's injured or if he breaks down from the loneliness.

Most people break down between the second and fourth day. And that's just what we want, Berglund says.

"That's the only way we can fight the fear: if they can admit it."

The enemy is not the environment when a man or woman is lost in the bush but the loneliness common to even the most experienced outdoorsman.

"We've not used being alone; we have devices to call other people around all the time. In the bush, alone, the shadows become big wolves. It's tough to fight because it creeps up on you, we can't pinpoint it," he says.

The end result of unchecked loneliness is the panic that kills, when thinking becomes disorganized and lives slip away for no reason.

"When someone pushes that beeper, we know they're all right; they still had sense enough to know that much — the battle is won."

Berglund himself, who has taught survival in the Arctic, has never been lost.

"But I've been twisted around for four or five days," he says.

The difference?

It's the difference between a novice in the wilds and an experienced bushman, a difference in point-of-view and state of mind.

"People ought to be aware that sooner or later, if they spend a lot of time in the bush, they're going to be in a situation where they'd better know how to survive," he says.

It's a fact proven by the stream of letters from ex-students thanking him for their lives. Recently, for example, a pair of ex-students went down with their plane in the Labrador Peninsula.

They survived the ordeal easily thanks to Berglund.

"We like to think we're the best survival school there is," he says, "because anything we teach has to be absolutely right; a man or woman's life might depend on it."

If that word — "woman" throws you, it shouldn't.

Currently about 40 per cent of Berglund's students — only half of whom are Canadians — are women.

"There is a very interesting trend at the moment," he says. "Women are becoming very interested in getting to take care of themselves in the bush — and their husbands and friends know it."

Berglund says he likes the idea and the women he's preferred to have at least one woman in his course.

"Women aren't afraid to ask questions; they don't feel they'll look foolish. You get some guy who's been in the bush a lot and he thinks he ought to know something but he doesn't.

"Women come out of the course with a great deal more information than men. There's no question of looking foolish when your life depends on he answer.

Dandelions His Friends

EDMONTON (CP) — For the gardener, dandelions are a source of frustration but for Berndt Berglund they're a source of nourishment.

Mr. Berglund, an authority on wilderness survival, makes good use of dandelions, incorporating their leaves in such things as salad, stew, soup or tea. The roots can be used to make coffee and the flower heads to make wine.

Dandelions are only one ingredient. Mr. Berglund also works wonders with milkweed pods, plantain cream, cattail or bulrush roots and snakes.

The latter, he says, are really quite tasty.

Mr. Berglund is the author of Wilderness Survival and co-author with his wife, Clare E. Bolsby, of The Edible Wild and Wilderness Cooking. The couple were in Edmonton recently to exhibit their skills.

All cords from the wild are delicious if properly prepared, said Mr. Berglund. Knowing how to find and prepare food was a major requirement for survival in the wild and a person should only kill animals in times of necessity.

Meats that Mr. Berglund uses in his cooking demonstrations are taken in season and frozen. The animals he uses are horse-grown.

A friend who rules cattle makes for venom extraction supplies that variety and the government kicks 400 to 500 water snakes.

Mr. Berglund has been teaching survival for 28 years, first in his native Sweden and since 1959 in Canada.

In the wild, it is important to learn what not to eat, since some plants are toxic.

If you're unsure of the identification of a mushroom, for example, leave it alone. Some mushroom are delicious but others are poisonous—especially the fly amanita and the deadly amanita.

The water hemlock has been known to kill livestock which have drunk water poisoned by the plant's roots. No chemical antidote is known.

Other toxic plants are poke-weed, white mahwrot, jimson weed, poison ivy, poison oak, poison sumac and the innocent-looking buttercup.

In the animal kingdom, the only dangers are the liver of the polar bear or the bearded seal, Mr. Berglund said. The danger arises from the extremely high vitamin A content.

But the dandelion, bane of the garden, poses little threat and has been used by Mr. Berglund and his wife in the following recipes designed for home preparation:

Creamed Dandelion Leaves
Chinese Style

1 lb. dandelion leaves
2 tbsp. cornstarch
¼ cup milk
2 tbsp. chicken fat
1 tsp. salt
pepper
½ tsp. sugar
½ cup chicken stock
½ cup chicken stock, 1 slice smoked ham, ½ inch thick, finely chopped

Clean and rinse leaves under cold running water. Cut crosswise in one-to-1½ inch slices. Combine cornstarch and milk in a small bowl and stir until cornstarch is dissolved.

Put a 12-inch skillet over high heat for a minute. Add chicken fat, making sure it is melted and covering the bottom of the pan. Turn the heat down to medium. Add dandelion leaves and stir until covered with fat. Sprinkle salt and pepper over the dish and pour in chicken stock.

Bring stock to a boil and cover the pan. Turn the heat to simmer for 3 minutes or until leaves are tender. With a slotted spoon, transfer leaves to a heated platter. Bring stock back to a boil after stirring cornstarch quickly to mix it well again and add it to the stock in the pan. Stir until the sauce thickens.

Pour over dandelion leaves, sprinkle chopped ham over the dish and serve at once.

Dandelion Salad
With Sour Cream Dressing

½ lb. freshly-picked young dandelion leaves
5 young dandelion roots
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 cup sour cream
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper

Clean dandelion greens under running water, making sure all the sand and grit is washed away. Shred in fork-sized pieces. Scrub roots, scrape well and slice in ½-inch rounds.

Add roots to greens and set aside in refrigerator to chill. Do not take them out of the refrigerator until the last moment before serving.

Pour sour cream into a mixing bowl. With a wooden spoon, stir in lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper. Beat with the wooden spoon until the sauce is smooth and creamy.

Just before serving, bring greens out of the refrigerator and add just enough sauce to moisten them but not to make them soggy. Serve at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Griffiths

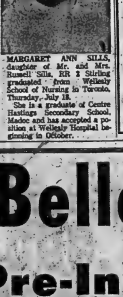
Griffiths — Finlan

St. Joseph's Church was the setting for the July 13 wedding of Elizabeth Sheila-Ann Finlan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Finlan, and Thomas James Griffiths, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Griffiths of Weymouth, England.

Msgr. Leo Corley performed the service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a high-necked sheath trimmed with taffeta, with Alencon lace and seed pearls accenting the front and back of the bodice and matching lace on the hem of the skirt. The train and three-tiered veil had lace edging and the headdress of lace flowers was trimmed with tiny roses and she carried a nosegay of red roses.

The bride's sister, Margaret-Jane Charlebois, was matron of honor in a gown of yellow check over white with a plain white bodice. A long-sleeved ruffled jacket completed the ensemble, and she carried a nosegay of daisies.



Bridesmaids Cathie Thibaudeau and Marilyn Lapp wore identical gowns and carried similar flowers.

Janet Lees was flower girl in a white flocked gown trimmed with yellow ribbon and carried daisies.

Timothy Finlan was ring bearer.

Acting as best man was David Griffiths, and ushers were Edward Finlan and Marty Cyr.

After a reception and dinner at the Four Seasons Motel, Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths left on a wedding trip north. They now live at 250 West Moira Street.

MARGARET ANN SILLS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sills, R.R. 2 Stirling, graduated from Wellesley School of Nursing in Toronto Thursday, July 18.

She is a graduate of Centre Hastings Secondary School, Madoc and has accepted a position at Wellesley Hospital beginning in October.

Dandelions His Friends

EDMONTON (CP) — For the gardener, dandelions are a source of frustration but for Berndt Berglund they're a source of nourishment.

Mr. Berglund, an authority on wilderness survival, makes good use of dandelions, incorporating their leaves in such things as salad, stew, soup or tea. The roots can be used to make coffee and the flower heads to make wine.

Dandelions are only one ingredient. Mr. Berglund also works wonders with milkweed pods, plantain cream, cattail or bulrush roots and snakes.

The latter, he says, are really quite tasty.

Mr. Berglund is the author of Wilderness Survival and co-author with his wife, Clare E. Bolsby, of The Edible Wild and Wilderness Cooking. The couple were in Edmonton recently to exhibit their skills.

All cords from the wild are delicious if properly prepared, said Mr. Berglund. Knowing how to find and prepare food was a major requirement for survival in the wild and a person should only kill animals in times of necessity.

Meats that Mr. Berglund uses in his cooking demonstrations are taken in season and frozen. The animals he uses are horse-grown.

A friend who rules cattle makes for venom extraction supplies that variety and the government kicks 400 to 500 water snakes.

Mr. Berglund has been teaching survival for 28 years, first in his native Sweden and since 1959 in Canada.

In the wild, it is important to learn what not to eat, since some plants are toxic.

If you're unsure of the identification of a mushroom, for example, leave it alone. Some mushroom are delicious but others are poisonous—especially the fly amanita and the deadly amanita.

The water hemlock has been known to kill livestock which have drunk water poisoned by the plant's roots. No chemical antidote is known.

Other toxic plants are poke-weed, white mahwrot, jimson weed, poison ivy, poison oak, poison sumac and the innocent-looking buttercup.

In the animal kingdom, the only dangers are the liver of the polar bear or the bearded seal, Mr. Berglund said. The danger arises from the extremely high vitamin A content.

But the dandelion, bane of the garden, poses little threat and has been used by Mr. Berglund and his wife in the following recipes designed for home preparation:

Creamed Dandelion Leaves
Chinese Style

1 lb. dandelion leaves
2 tbsp. cornstarch
¼ cup milk
2 tbsp. chicken fat
1 tsp. salt
pepper
½ tsp. sugar
½ cup chicken stock
½ cup chicken stock, 1 slice smoked ham, ½ inch thick, finely chopped

Clean and rinse leaves under cold running water. Cut crosswise in one-to-1½ inch slices. Combine cornstarch and milk in a small bowl and stir until cornstarch is dissolved.

Put a 12-inch skillet over high heat for a minute. Add chicken fat, making sure it is melted and covering the bottom of the pan. Turn the heat down to medium. Add dandelion leaves and stir until covered with fat. Sprinkle salt and pepper over the dish and pour in chicken stock.

Bring stock to a boil and cover the pan. Turn the heat to simmer for 3 minutes or until leaves are tender. With a slotted spoon, transfer leaves to a heated platter.

Bring stock back to a boil after stirring cornstarch quickly to mix it well again and add it to the stock in the pan. Stir until the sauce thickens.

Pour over dandelion leaves, sprinkle chopped ham over the dish and serve at once.

Dandelion Salad
With Sour Cream Dressing

½ lb. freshly-picked young dandelion leaves
5 young dandelion roots
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 cup sour cream
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper

Clean dandelion greens under running water, making sure all the sand and grit is washed away. Shred in fork-sized pieces. Scrub roots, scrape well and slice in ½-inch rounds.

Add roots to greens and set aside in refrigerator to chill. Do not take them out of the refrigerator until the last moment before serving.

Pour sour cream into a mixing bowl. With a wooden spoon, stir in lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper. Beat with the wooden spoon until the sauce is smooth and creamy.

Just before serving, bring greens out of the refrigerator and add just enough sauce to moisten them but not to make them soggy. Serve at once.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Taylor are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Elizabeth Veronica to Keith Patrick Dockrill, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd G. C. Dockrill, Belleville. Marriage to take place Saturday Aug. 24 in St. Michael's Church at 3 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ward wish to announce the engagement of their daughter Janet Ward to Mr. Peter Hillier son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hillier. The marriage will take place Aug. 29, Belleville.

People and Events

The annual reunion and picnic of the descendants of Ralph Sills, Prince Royalist, was held recently at Adolphustown Provincincial Park.

Mrs. Ralph Sills, historian, presented the information she had obtained about how Ralph Sills immigrated and amazing it can be to have so many families with the same first and last names.

Plans are underway for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary Tea and Bazaar Dance, to be held September 28 at the Four Seasons Motel. Convener will be Barbara Nelles, and subscriptions are being arranged by Dorothy Locke.

R.E. Paul's Anglican Church Women in Marmora held a Centennial Tea and Bake Sale recently in the church hall.

A collection of antique furniture, dishes and linens in bedroom accessories were displayed behind a rustic rail fence, accented by rag rugs and old quilts. Lena Cosden was in charge of this display.

Mrs. Dewright and Annie Edwards convened the bake table. The tea table, covered with a brown-eyed susan flowers, were loaded silver by Mrs. Lavender, Mabel Clarke Jodie Anderson and Mary Jean Hopkins.

Bulk Is By-word— But Who Can Wear It?

NEW YORK (CP) — Many United States designers said fashion houses are backing bigness for fall—big skirts, voluminous capes, bulky coats worn over blouson tops and full skirts with everything tied loosely with a long muffler.

It looked new and interesting on the models at the New York press showings. But once away from the curtailed effect there are second thoughts.

Few women can wear bulk successfully. The younger age group can't afford the accessories essential to carry off this look, even if they are being weaned from those U.S.-inspired jeans. In fact, they accepted the jackets and so enthusiastically that they adopted it for street wear with dismissive results.

They may accept the bulk without corset restraints and the new mid-calf skirt. If so, it will be disaster again.

The new length demands the same as the 1947 length, now termed the New Look. It remained in fashion for nearly 10 years.

There is nothing really new in tall styles. Everything has been done before, but not all at once. The late Balenciaga introduced with bloused dress and the balloon jacket in 1952 but with a tight skirt. This fall the blouson droops over a full skirt, either bias-cut or gored.

The mid-1950s saw the beginning of the straight-cut chemise and the long and tight unshaped coat that covered them. This year most of the bulky coats are restrained by belts. By 1960 the cape was in vogue again. It has been in and out of style since medieval times.

Dresses, too, have been popular season to season. Daytime dresses have been trying to come into style for the last couple of seasons. The designers are pushing them as part of every wardrobe but many are featuring two-pieces.

Bulk doesn't appear as much in the one-piece dress for fall. And where it is bulky, it is a very tight, bald tented wide pleats and matching stole.

Jackie Simpson also adopts the stole concept, whole group in her fall collection included either fringed stoles, as with a cut-dress, or a scarf with an overblouse wool dress. She showed a group of pale wool jersey dresses that went to the opposite extreme from bulk. They were form-fitting and shaped.

"They're designed to be wrapped in furs," she said.

Meditation Might Help

SASKATOON (CP) — People might be able to reduce their anxieties by relaxing through meditation or systematic desensitization, says Dr. R. W. Zamora, director of a research group at the University of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Zamora has completed experiments with the systematic desensitization method, which involves reducing anxiety caused by the stress of both public speaking and taking examinations.

Subjects are taught to "relax and then exposed to situations which would normally make them anxious. He is planning further experiments with subjects who are afraid of both public speaking and harmless snakes.

"If treatment of one fear carries over to the other, it will indicate that systematic desensitization might be used to reduce anxiety in general."

Dr. Zamora said the results of the experiment will be compared with results from tests with meditation, where the subject becomes detached from his/her experience.

Similar research has been done on the psychological effects of pollution, he said, scientists that it can be used to reduce anxiety since detachment and anxiety don't mix.

Subjects for the experiments were obtained after extensive testing designed to reveal various fears.

Junk Consumption 'Alarming'

LETHBRIDGE, Alta (CP) — Canadians' consumption of soda pop, sweets and junk foods is alarming; says Dr. Hagen Meintzer, nutrition specialist, at the University of Lethbridge.

"We are a nation of snackers rather than eaters of solid, balanced meals."

Dr. Meintzer, a chemist, is writing a book on nutrition, geared to the layman's understanding, to express his concern about society's aversion to good eating habits.

"When you're in the corner grocery stores at noon, it's the 9-and 10-cent bars of candies the kids are buying. And in the lunch bags high schools, the lunches brought from home are often tossed into the garbage so students may buy chocolate bars and potato chips from vending machines for their noon lunch."

Dr. Meintzer, a father of seven, said good nutrition must begin when life begins and education about biological development is the best way of doing things. We may not want to eat a lot of organ foods, our snacks, in favor of more balanced meals which take more time to prepare."

He said the Canada Food Rules, despite their rather sloppy appearance, are the best guide for any homemaker or parent who wants to ensure proper daily nutrition.

"The key is moderation and variety. Eat the right amounts of milk, meats, cereals, fruits and vegetables. Even snacks and a few cans of soda pop have a place in the diet if kept to a reasonable amount.

"We have got to stop thinking about nutrition in isolation from everything else since it affects every aspect of our daily lives."

Ann Landers
Wife Never Gives Gift

Dear Ann Landers: I am 63 years old and have been married for 40 years. I have given my wife $3 birthday and anniversary presents, 21 Mother's Day gifts, and an occasional number of "just because I love you" gifts. My wife has never given me a gift of any kind.

This woman is wonderful, dear Ann. Kind, loyal, decent. I love her dearly. She has told me every Christmas since then she opens the gifts from me and the children, that men do not attach any importance to gifts—which is why she has never bought me anything and never will.

We have a joint checking account and I write out the checks for at least seven stores. I don't need anything except the pleasure of receiving a gift from her. I would cherish the wicked, cheap hideous necktie ever made, and I'd wear it with pride if my wife bought it for me.

Call me childish if you like, but this is the way I feel. Can you find room in your column for my letter? It may help others other wives who think as she does. I could never tell myself to let her how I feel and I'm too embarrassed to sign my name. Just call me Gift-Rapped

Dear Rapped: Any man who would harbor a secret complaint for 40 years must have his hair shirt.

I suggest that you hand your wife this column and tell her you wrote the letter. I hope she will then get out and buy you the widest, most hideous necktie ever made.

Dear Ann: What didn't do when I discovered my son was coming over quite often? My husband told him, but I can't stand his being with mouth. He doesn't care what's around. What's the matter with him?—Appalled.

Dear Apple: The weaker the sicker the stronger the language. A person whose thinking lacks substance often laces it with profanity in an effort to give it weight. It's a word—he's intellectually bankrupt.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for Disturbed. Every college dorm has a few night people who feel they were born the God given right to keep everybody up until 3 or 4 a.m. in order to where it's quiet. Try to get that ungodly hour.

Questioning The Universe

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris:In your answer to Billie you say, "not to my mind, the non-believers have more restricted views than those who affirm the existence of a power more powerful than they are. call it what you will."

The key words here are, "who affirm the existence." How can anyone "grant" the existence of something for which there is no evidence?

Place a fruit or vester under a microscope. The water will be seen to contain millions of creatures of every feeding. Astronomy has convincingly shown that the earth is but one of millions of spheres, many of which are many, many times larger than the earth. The relationship of the earth to some of these larger spheres is as the relationship of that drop of water under the microscope to the earth.

Does this literature or question of granting the existence of a power The Intelligencer: "Why is there nothing? Why is there anything at all rather than nothing?" We can only ponder the question; we cannot answer it!

J.G.

Dear 'I.G.': From where I sit, your letter is contradictory. You will also the possibility of "powers" but deny the existence of a "Power".

But it is a free country! Or would you like to ask me on that?

Dear Doris: A visitor in my home robbed my purse of some American quarters and left the cover from same with their finger prints on. They also picked up another article months later and put it on another spot after having had the article sprayed.

I have passed numerous time and again which should show them I am aware of what they have done, and they just brazen it through. Shall I make them aware of it?

Disturbed Subscriber.

Dear Subscriber: Don't you like the original Milquetoast? Keeping the peace does not call for letting the wrong persons walk all over you.

I'm suspicious that a family member or you would have crossed the subject over your list of visitors long ago. If you are positive of your facts make them! Take it from more money and more active wants.

Juveniles Nabbed After Car Chase

City police and Belleville OPP joined forces early this morning following a stolen car, incident involving three juveniles.

The car was reported stolen in Shannonville. At about 2:30 this morning, city police constables Don Bruce and David Thomas received word of a suspicious car on North Front Street and upon sighting the car spotted the car travelling down that street.

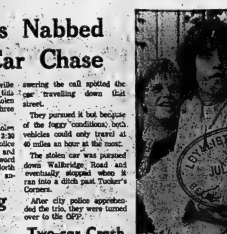
They pursued it but because of the foggy conditions, both vehicles could only travel at 40 miles an hour at the most.

The stolen car was pursued down Wallbridge Road and eventually stopped when it ran into a ditch past Tucker's Corners.

After city police apprehended the trio, they were turned over to the OPP.

Two-car Crash Damage $500

TWEED (Special)—Property damage of close to $500 resulted Monday afternoon in a two-car collision on the Highway 7 bypass at Madoc.



Provincial police from Madoc said a car driven by Annie Tressit, 51, of Marmora, was coming from Madoc when it was in collision with another vehicle driven by James Turcotte, 45, of Alnwick, Ont. There were no injuries.

Cyclist Hurt

A 10-year-old bicyclist is in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital with possible head injuries and lacerations to his left leg, following an accident.

The mishap occurred on Sunnidale Drive about three miles west of Highway 14 about 2:30 Monday afternoon.

Steven Frost, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Frost, RR3, Belleville, was admitted to hospital after being in collision with a vehicle driven by 23-year-old John Zandbergen, also of RR3, Belleville.

Sentencing Deferred

Sentencing has been deferred to August 30 in the case of a Marmora man convicted in provincial court last Thursday of assault causing bodily harm.

Donald Bruce Walton of RR3, Marmora appeared in court yesterday for sentencing.

The charge was laid following an altercation March 13 in the rear of a parking lot at Read Johnson's. Walton was alleged to have hit David DeGenova after Walton became annoyed at the way DeGenova was driving.

Apartment Broken Into

BLOOMFIELD — A break-in Monday at the residence of a Bloomfield woman is under investigation by police.

Mrs. Donald Hydeman reported her apartment had been ransacked and a coin collection, a guitar and camera taken. No value on the items was estimated by police.

The break-in is believed to have occurred between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday.

A Dog's Life

Wet and shivering, Timothy O'Reilly hid behind masters Jon Williams, 12, (left) and his sister Jocelyn, 13, of Bertram Street, Trenton, for protection against Monday's chilly and rainy weather. However, the Yorkshire terrier wasn't heard to complain of the dog's life he was leading.

Quinte Area VD Rate Below National Level

Public health authorities in Hastings and Prince Edward counties believe their statistics on venereal disease — running way below the national average — reasonably reflect in the situation in their area.

Few doctors fail to report cases of the disease, even if such information were withheld, in most instances it would be revealed through other, clinical sources, says Dr. R. Lesk, public health officer for the counties.

Last year the venereal disease rate was estimated one-third that of the Ontario average.

This weekend, the federal health department reported gonorrhea infections across Canada had climbed close to an all-time high. The rate reported was 305.3 cases for every 100,000 persons. The syphilis rate was 17 per 100,000.

By contrast, Dr. Lesk's annual report published last April showed 65 cases of gonorrhea and one case of primary syphilis in Hastings and Prince Edward during 1973.

The health unit area has a population of about 130,000 in both counties — including the larger urban communities of Belleville, Trenton and Picton.

Statistics compiled Monday by the health unit show a total of 38 cases of gonorrhea and one of syphilis since January of this year. Some seven of the infections involved women.

Explanations on the contrast with higher provincial and federal rates still defy easy explanation, the health officer indicated.

"I don't know why we're so lucky," he said.

The federal report warned a true picture of gonorrhea and syphilis rates may be difficult to define because all cases may not be reported.

"Unfortunately, the true incidence is probably much greater as both diseases remain vastly under-reported," said the report.

But Dr. Lesk is confident statistics in his area are sufficiently accurate.

Cyprus Airlift Is Under Way

TRENTON — Aircraft and crews from CFB Trenton are today in the process of airlifting men and supplies from Edmonton to Cyprus in support Canadian United Nations forces serving on the island.

The move follows the announcement by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp Thursday last week that Canada's peacekeeping contingent in Cyprus will be increased from 494 to 950 men.

CFB Trenton 436 Squadron personnel, together with crews from 429 Squadron in Edmonton are providing a total of 12 Hercules aircraft for the airlift, operation, Squadron planes and 12 crews — 72 men — are based here.

Acting OC Squadron commander, Maj. Jack Donald said Monday, the bulk of the airlift will take place today and Wednesday. Only one Hercules aircraft left CFB Trenton for Edmonton Monday.

Men and light equipment from the Canadian Airborne Regiment in Edmonton will be flown to the Canada's Fayen Base in Lake, West Germany, before moving on to Cyprus, he said.

Two planes relief 437 Squadron here have been assigned a part in the airlift. One flew in Edmonton Monday and is now taking 155 men to the Mediterranean trouble spot.

Another Boeing 707 will leave Trenton for Edmonton tomorrow.

Six relief crews from CH Squadron — all Trenton-Belleville area men — are now stationed in Goose Bay and Lake.

It is expected that the first detachment of Canada's increased contingent will arrive in Cyprus Thursday. The airlift of men and supplies will be complete by Aug. 5.

Maj. Donald said the men will relieve the other six Hercules crews and keep the planes in the air, shuttling between Edmonton, Lake and Cyprus.

He said most of the heavy equipment — believed to be armored personnel carriers and Lynx reconnaissance cars — will be flown to Cyprus from Lake.

Restoration

Corporal Vernon Hayne paints intricate stencil designs on Prince Edward museum wall. If pastern seems vaguely ecclesiastic, it's for good reason. Museum is housed in old Picton church.

Everything's Shipshape

Restoration work on World War II warship Haida is discussed between Warships Personnel, executive director Ken Macpherson and former Belleville who is captain of the old destroyer now docked at Toronto's Ontario Place, for public display and sea cadet summer training.

Bellevillian Commands Historic Destroyer

By ROBERT WHITELAW
Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — Each day seamen to Ontario place are piled out of their shoes when the crew of the nearby HMCS Haida fires the bugles at noon.

Overseeing the firing is Belleville Commander Ronald Stockwell of Holmedale, captain of the navy's most famous destroyer for the past four years.

Lieutenant - Commander Stockwell became skipper and lieutenant in the Belleville and Trenton area was appointed manager of Haida's affairs when it moved to Ontario Place docks in mid-June, 1971.

Haida steers a training program for Ontario sea cadets in the summer months and August is sponsored by the provincial federal government in co-operation with the Navy League of Canada.

Haida is a 30-year-old Tribal Class destroyer used by the Canadian Navy in Atlantic and coastal battle around England and Europe during the Second World War.

She has travelled her share, mostly through the straits of the Navy League, who formed a group in 1966 to save the 400-foot ship from the scrap heap and scrapping.

This year 250,000 visitors will tour the ship which is based at Ontario Place. During the last couple of years, restoration and refitting has reached because of a $50,000 annual provincial grant.

Rust, dirt and peeling paint are gradually being replaced by a fresh coat of lings, port-holes, and armaments, part of the ongoing restoration program.

During the summer, cadets rotate on two-week cycles to gain experience.

Lieutenant - Commander Stockwell told The Toronto Globe and Mail that he hopes about 30 cadets can be served by Haida during the year. The summers have joined the ship's crew in co-operative and the cadets he has known during his tenure have all proven to be valuable trained personnel.

Captain Stockwell runs a tight ship and cadets care for it like their own. Besides regular training, life is well-rounded with a full schedule of sports and other activities.

A park official said Mr. Denigan arrived at his cottage early in July, about two weeks before he took the fatal shots.

His long working career has produced books, poetry and numerous radio series. His latest work included books on some of the founding industries of modern Canada. They included The Barley and the Stream, the history of Molson's Brewery and Canada's First Bank, the story of the Bank of Montreal.

Even if a physician failed to report a case to public health officials, it eventually would come to their attention.

Blood and smear tests must be given to prove the presence of venereal disease, and most be sent to hospital laboratories. All such centers are required by law to notify public health officials when test reactions reveal the disease, explained Dr. Lesk.

"There could be a specific case where a doctor treats a patient for the disease, but not the need for tests. But such incidents would be so rare that statistics would not noticeably altered, he believed.

"I have no reasons to believe that doctors are not cooperating," said the health officer.

MORE

Concern about the incidence of venereal disease has been expressed by counties' health board member Enos David of Belleville.

Mr. David, in turn, locally reflected the attitude of the Association of Ontario Boards of Health, of which he is an executive member and newsletter editor.

Venereal disease is a priority area of concern to his association, says Mr. David. The incidence now almost parallels the high percentages of World War II.

"We will have to find some means of controlling it," he said.

A combination of freer sexual attitudes and widespread use of contraceptive methods has added to the continued increase of venereal disease.

The latest newsletter which the association mimeographed and edited by Mr. David also warns about the need for physicians for treatment are reluctant to them.

The newsletter claims 99 per cent of venereal disease cases reporting to family physicians for treatment are referred to health officers.

Reporting has been simplified so that now only a telephone call is required, but the regulation making it mandatory "that no testing be constitutionally ignored," it said.

There is an attempt to do so, or even encourage such reports, it

"It is vital that physicians make these reports, and if necessary be penalized for failing to do so."

Author Ill

Merrill Denison, 81, prolific Canadian author and playwright, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital, latest reports indicate.

Mr. Denison suffered his summer home on Stoney Lake.

Hospital authorities Monday described his condition as satisfactory.

The medical spokesman said he has shown improvement.

Mr. Denison suffered the ailment during a visit to the cottage early in July, about two weeks before he took the fatal shots.

His long working career has produced books, poetry and numerous radio series. His latest work included books on some of the founding industries of modern Canada. They included The Barley and the Stream, the history of Molson's Brewery and Canada's First Bank, the story of the Bank of Montreal.

City Man Elected

Dr. J. S. A. Spearman, of Belleville, has been named Ontario superintendent of the Wesleyan Church Conference.

The appointment was made at the annual church conference held July 20-28 at Silver Lake Camp at Maberly, near Perth.

The district superintendent of the conference is Rev. Ira Taylor, Toronto. Rev. Fred Irish of Belleville is the conference lay district treasurer is Miss Eileen Baker, Toronto.

Keynote speaker at the conference was Dr. O. D. Emery of Marion, Indiana, who said Christian education in the northwest is in harsh trade. Miss Marie Evatt of Marion, Indiana, and formerly of Sierra Leone, West Africa, presided over the Women's Missionary Society sessions.

Music From The Past

Organ with reach of its music on a ping in the past is displayed by Rosemary Metcalfe in Prince Edward's County museum. Miss Metcalfe wants to see more interest stimulated among school students for museum project and its exhibits.

Museum Committee Suggests Year-round Operation

PICTON — With a "charity begins at home" approach, the management committee of the Prince Edward County museum has suggested it remain open throughout the year, reports.

Committee chairman Jesse Musgrove received the council meeting, many of the visitors to the museum are tourists, but the residents, he noted that by keeping the museum open throughout the year possib by many school children in the county could enjoy such item, in addition, certain artifacts from the museum could be taken to the schools to provide pupils with a better idea of the history of Prince Edward in this area, he stressed among the youth of Prince Edward instead of being "a tragedy" by Picton resident Mervin Mouck when recalling the church as a boy and admiring the polished of golden oak, the different shapes and sizes adorning the walls and the overall of time.

The building has been replastered and work is in progress on the restoration of the ceiling and the original stencilled decoration around the window of the chancel and its lower halls. The stencilling is being done by Prince Edward artist Vernon Hayne.

Hayne estimate that the stencils on the walls of the chancel will match the arch at the chan- were added some time after those in the sanctuary. The light fixtures hung over the chan- chair is the original. A rug will be replaced and, church officials arrange completed by part of the renovation project.

"The plain blue and red panes of the original window in the sanctuary were replaced by a stained glass window donated by Picton's late mayor Harvey J. McFarland.

It is hoped that the chancel of the museum, formerly the Picton Methodist church on Main Street, will be officially highlighted by a series of working crafts exhibits. On August 7 and 8, Mrs. Eva Smith will sketches the exterior of the church museum with other interested artists. The public is invited to watch this demonstration from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and all are invited to participate in sketching.

Later in August, Mrs. Jessie Cunningham will provide a demonstration of pottery making and Miss Kay Dunn will demonstrate candle making.

Museum curator Rosemary Metcalfe noted that there is no charge this season to tour the museum. A donation box has been installed instead and is working well.

Not Fighting The Giants Despite Growing Demand

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Bill Smith doesn't expect to rival the established skate makers in production, but he figures he'll more than hold his own in quality.

"The quality of the product we make and the fact we give the skaters fitting is the way where they are sold are the two biggest factors we have going for us," said the two time hobby salesman.

Many hockey skates are purchased over the counter and January has been sold. In fact we've also been getting a lot of calls about our figure skates.

"But we just don't have the man hours available to make any. We know how to make them—and we know what we want, but we don't have the men to work at them."

Smith got into business by accident, and it wasn't even skates he was interested in at the start.

Smith's secretary at that time in a firm headed by Jack Elder, B-W Gali Sales, was Greta Shearer.

Greta's husband, Joe, was a machine shaker in the skate plant and wanted a change of environment.

"I got to thinking about it and talked to Jack about starting up a small sales operation," Smith said.

Elder's backing and now acting as operations manager, he and Joe bought some used equipment and set up BayWood Footwear Ltd. a small building in Elmira.

"Through trial and error, the two learned enough about a small scale.

"I'm beginning I don't think they were very good but by the time the operation ended about 1,500 pairs—of good skates later we were making an excellent product."

The part-time operation might have continued indefinitely if Elder hadn't sold out. The firm purchasing his company eventually closed the small plant.

Smith took steps to continue the shoe-making business on his own, but even then had ideas about producing skates.

"Of course, it was still going to be a part-time involvement since I planned to stay with B-W Sales."

His employers had other ideas. They didn't want him continuing his dual role.

After a lot of soul-searching —"I had a family wife, three sons and a daughter — and all I ever knew was the heeling business" — he severed his connections with B-W Sales and William J. Smith Sports Inc. was launched.

Ironically, the firm that let him go hired him back as a consultant for what Smith called a "handsome" salary.

Smith's enterprise thrived but he had no desire to chain shop. He wanted to remain a specialty concern.

"I can't go into competition with those giants," he said. "Even if I could mass-produce skates, I don't want to."

Smith's backing and name Ross — from the word kangaroo, since kangaroo hide is used for the boot.

"Our skates are individually produced. Buyers' orders have charts and special measuring instruments so we can strictly guarantee a perfect fit."

The design incorporates ideas Smith gathered from talks with trainers and players. The skates are distributed to about 175 retailers across Canada by a Toronto firm.

"I guess you can say I rely strictly on word-of-mouth advertising," Smith said. "And it seems to be getting around among the pro hockey players."

Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks and Dwayne Gryden of Chicago Cougars are two goaltenders, who vouch for the Ross blade.

While Smith refuses to belittle the conglomerates for the skate market, he does intend to increase production. Last year, the firm turned out 20 pairs a day "and we lost money.

"But that won't happen this year. We've improved some of our production methods and I hope by August we can turn out 25 pairs a day."

Roos Really Hopping

Joe Stegner, chief shoemaker at Wilbur J. Smith Sports Inc., works on a hockey boot at the Kitchener skate making plant started by William Smith (right) a little over a year ago. Smith, after examining one of the finished products, says he has no intention of trying to compete with the giants of the industry.

Brock Presented with Bag, Expos Outhit Mets - Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lou Brock continued his 'explosive base-clearing pace Monday while helping St. Louis Cardinals beat Chicago Cubs 11-3 in a National League baseball game.

"Winning games is important, not setting records," Brock said after stealing his 59th base of the season and 700th of his career.

"But when the competition is tight and the challenge is there, then you find yourself doing things you didn't think were possible."

Brock, closing in on Maury Wills' single-season record of 104, also showed up on the athletic fest into some exclusive company.

Only four other players in baseball history have stolen 700 or more bases—Ty Cobb (892), Eddie Collins (743) Max Carey (738) and Honus Wagner. (701.)

"Yes, I remember once saying that 700 stolen bases was my goal," Brock said, acknowledging a reporter's question. "I'm surprised it came this quickly, especially considering the start I had last year.

"I was out on 19 of my first 23 attempts. That was when 700 looked tough. Then I stole 69 on my next 76. That turned it around."

In Monday's other National League games, New York Mets edged Montreal Expos 4-3, Los Angeles Dodgers hammered Atlanta Braves 10-2; Philadelphia Phillies rushed Pittsburgh Pirates 13-1, San Diego Padres stopped Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and Houston Astros trimmed San Francisco Giants 7-2.

Along with his steal, Brock collected twice and scored twice while Ken Reitz and Joe Torre both homered for St. Louis.

Brock singled in the first inning and stole second. At this point the game was stopped for a brief ceremony during which the umpires uprooted the bag Brock pressed it to Brock. Then Brock scored on a single by Ted Simmons, sparking St. Louis ahead to stay.

Jim Wynn knocked in four runs, including two on his 24th home run of the baseball season, helping Los Angeles snap a five-game losing streak with an easy triumph over Atlanta.

Andy Schmidt hit a pair of two-run homers and Steve Carlton pitched a two-hitter for his 12th victory of the season as Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh.

Dave Concepcion and Nate Colbert hit solo home runs to help Bill Greif and San Diego beat Cincinnati.

Ed Halicki scattered 12 hits for his first major league victory and Bobby Bonds sparked two San Francisco rallies with a single and triple to lead San Francisco over Houston.

The Osborne at Niagara Falls game was postponed because of rain.

Lumley finished the Warriors' win one ink to the corner and struck out nine batters to gain his win. Jim Bibby suffered the no-hitter with a fourth-inning single.

Catcher Don Hollodge singled in Les Downing with the first Intelligencer run in the fifth inning. Wally Cooper scored the other Reay run in the fifth on a ground out.

Bill Fuller took the loss, allowing five hits and striking out seven.

In the nightcap, Donelli fanned 11 batters while holding the Warriors to four hits. Dave Prorucki was the loser with relief help from Lloyd Hiles at rocked gave up four hits before driving Ray in Fuller's third. Fuller allowed six hits and struck out eight.

Cooper homered in the second and the opening Newmarket run. Don Lalley doubled to start the run. Downing's single in the third. Tim Stokes and their final three runs in the seventh on a home run by Ray, two doubles and a single.

League play resumes tonight with Woodstock in Osborne for a doubleheader and Niagara Falls playing host to Niagara Falls in a single contest.

Tennis Championships Running to Plan

WINNIPEG (CP) — Susan Stone and Vickie Bernier, both of Vancouver, were the only seeded players who had difficulty advancing through the first round of the Canadian mixed tennis championships Monday.

Miss Stone, winner of the Saskatchewan Sunday and the doubles crown on the Canadian tour this year, was taken to three games by Regina resident Cheryl Kozy of Vancouver 6-1, 6-4.

Miss Stone finally took the victory after more than three hours of play, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4.

The pair seldom abandoned their baseline-to-baseline exchanges throughout the marathon with Miss Stone needing just one point in the second set to upset the No. 1 seeded player. But she couldn't produce it and Miss Stone, with it deficiency second drop shot and a strong passing shot won the second set on the tie-breaker. After a 15-minute break the Vancouver girl cayed steadily, long-ball hitting to take the win.

Miss Bernier, the 1971 Canada champion, beat Dru Ann Hamilton of Burlington 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

Andrew Martin of Montreal, the top-seeded women, easily defeated Mandy Parsons of Vancouver 6-2, 6-1 and No. 2 seed Jane O'Hara of Toronto overpowered Kris Kearns of Vancouver 6-1, 6-0.

In the men's singles, there was only one minor upset. Jeff Moore, an Australian now living in Toronto, beat Richard Legendre of Quebec City 6-3, 6-3.

Everything else went according to plan with victories by Jean Genois of Quebec City, the No. 4 seed, Pierre Lamarche of Montreal, No. 7, Jim Boyce of Toronto, No. 8, and Keith Carpenter of Toronto, the defending champion seeded No. 5.

Genois beat young Mitch McLaughlin of Toronto 6-3, 7-5 but he had to turn his game completely around to do so.

Both players had difficulty serving in the first set and Genois continually put himself into trouble with faulty ground strokes. He broke serve 4-1 in the second set, he began to bear down, losing his net at 5-5 and simply overpowering McLaughlin for the final two games.

It probably the best game of the day, Pierre Lamarche of Toronto, the unseeded 1971 men's champion, beat Lloyd Hiles of Vancouver 6-2, 7-6.

Lamarche trailed 4-2 in the second set but rallied behind a much improved serve and excellent anticipation and shot placement to win.

The top four seeds in the men's singles—Don McCormick of Vancouver, Tony Barclay of Vancouver, Chris Butr and Dale Power both of Toronto—play their first games today.

McCormick will play Alan Mills of Vancouver, Barclay meets Glen Scott of Winnipeg, Butr goes against Peter Pospisil of Toronto and Power will play Moore.

NFL Players Flock Back to Home Teams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Football League players' strike entered a critical stage today as the resumption of talks and rank-and-file criticism of the players association's negotiating tactics.

Efforts to settle the 30-day-old strike were scheduled to resume this afternoon in Washington but under the auspices of a federal mediation and conciliation service chief, W. J. Deery.

Usery met Monday with representatives of the NFL Players Association and planned to talk with Pete Rozelle, the league's commissioner.

Usery said he hoped now that "we can get both sides down to hard-faith bargaining. That is what we desire and are working for and we hope an agreement can be consummated."

Meanwhile in Chicago, offensive tackle Bob Asher of the Bears said "it's getting obvious we've lost the effect. The owners aren't budging."

Some hope for compromise, however, was given Monday in a statement issued under NFLPA President Bill Curry's name. The statement said the union's executive committee had met with its advisers and reassessed its demands.

But the training camps, the flock of defections from the strike continued, most notably in Latrobe, Pa., where seven veterans joined the Pittsburgh Steelers' camp.

They were quarterback Joe Gilliam, safety Dennis Meyer, defensive end Craig Hanneman, defensive tackle Steve Furness, and wide receivers Barry Pearson, Glen Edwards and Dave Davis.

Another notable defection was that of quarterback Greg Landry, who joined Detroit Bloomfield Hills, Mich., camp but won't play for the Lions in exhibition games until the strike is settled.

Other players who abandoned the strike Monday included lineman Kent Branstetter of Green Bay, lineman Larry Brown of Washington, linebacker Jim Youngblood, Rich Kay and Jim Peterson, and tackle Tim Stokes of Los Angeles Rams, running back Billy Kilmer and defensive end Jim Sims of Cleveland Browns, wide receiver Preston Riley of Atlanta Falcons and linebacker Ezkridge Small of New York Giants, Ira Gordon of San Diego Chargers, safety Jeff Severson of Houston Oilers, offensive tackle Gerry Foley of Baltimore Colts, and Hank Bjorkstrand and Mike Adamle of New York Jets.

Boston Held to 3 Hits And Still Defeat Yankees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another game was added to New York Yankees' failing streak in Boston's Fenway Park Monday night when the Red Sox clipped them 2-1 in 11 innings. That makes 11 straight losses in Boston for the Yankees—and 30 in their last 21 games there.

If the Yankees are starting to believe in heroes, they got some more evidence Monday night. The Red Sox managed only three hits and won the game in the 11th without the aid of a hit.

Elsewhere in the American League Monday, Baltimore Orioles trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 5-2, Detroit Tigers clubbed Cleveland Indians 8-3, Texas Rangers trounced Kansas City Royals 13-1, and Oakland A's outscored Chicago White Sox 11-9.

The last time the Yankees managed a victory in Boston was last July 31.

Sam McDowell, a lefthander who came off the disabled list July 14, blanked the Red Sox on one hit for 7 1-3 innings.

He held the Red Sox hitless through five innings until Dwight Evans homered a sharp single to left. And he held the Red Sox scoreless until, with two out in the eighth, Evans slugged a lying homer high into the left-field screen.

Evans', homer matched Bill Sudakis' solo blast in the fourth inning, and the score stayed 1-1 until the 11th.

Carl Yastrzemski led off the 11th against New York reliever Sparky Lyle and drew a walk. Bob Montgomery laid down a sacrifice bunt but Lyle threw wildly to first. Then Rick Burleson walked on four pitches, filling the bases.

After Doug Griffin grounded into a force play, Terry Hughes lofted a sacrifice fly into center for the winning run.

Fenway Park's batters need first-inning homers into the stands, causing any late arrivals to miss a major league record.

Never before had a team hit four homers in the first inning, although four teams have hit five home runs in a single inning and the four-homer mark has been reached 17 times.

Al Kaline, BB Freeman and Mickey Stanley belted consecutive homers off Fritz Peterson, and two batters later, Ed Brinkman connected off Steve Kline. The barrage was more than enough for Mickey Lolich, who scattered six hits.

Len Randle and Mike Hargrove delivered two-run singles and Jeff Burroughs hit his 17th homer of the year for Texas to help Forsch on Jenkins pick up 16th win in a game delayed one hour and 26 minutes by rain.

Paul Blair and Don Baylor drilled run-scoring hits to spark a four-run Baltimore rally that gave Ryan Grimsley his seventh victory in his last eight decisions.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, July 31

Aries (March 21-April 19) It will take lots of persistence and stick-to-itiveness to achieve what you go after now. Be prepared so you can overcome.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Individuals with limited views will rub you the wrong way. Rather than let them upset you, avoid their company.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Someone you're quite chummy with who is always running out of something or other, will be borrowing from you again shortly.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Maybe the reason you're not getting all the co-operation you should from others is because you're too insistent upon doing things your way.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Give a little more attention than usual to health matters. Get lots of rest and sufficient exercise so you'll feel your best.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a problem developing among friends you mix with especially. You may shortly find yourself having to take a side.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have a little problem at home, do your best to resolve it as quickly as possible or the chill will linger for a few days.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're not as on your own ideas that you'll fail to hear the suggestion of another who is trying to be helpful.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The next couple of days, be extra wise and prudent in the management of your money and property. Think twice before making loans.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will seem like everything you want to do at this time is stymied by something you have no control over. Be patient, it will pass.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It's best to resign yourself to the fact that what you're working on now is going to take some real effort if it's to be successful.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) If you're involved with a club or organization, you will get tapped for a chore that the other members are dodging.

Medical Society Can Check Bill

By G. C. THUSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thusteson: A specialist sent me a bill which seems to me to be grossly excessive. Kindly advise me as where I could have it checked as to its appropriateness.—M.W.T.

Human greed being what it is, I can't deny that some medical bills are excessive.

But I am convinced that the majority of physicians want to give honest value for fees they receive, and want to build up a firm and honest relationship with patients.

I think most physicians—and include me, please—believe that every case of overcharging hurts the whole profession.

For that reason, most county medical societies have a grievance committee (the exact name may vary). The committee exists to listen to patients' complaints, and not limited just to fees.

Where it is a question of fee, the committee listens to both sides. It is sometimes true that special procedures, tests or study of the literature may mount up to more than the patient realizes. But the patient is entitled to know that.

It is important to you the patient as well as to us—the physicians—to reach a fair understanding. Sometimes adjustments in the fee are made after such hearings—sometimes not. But that is confidence to go for adjustment if it is warranted, and if not, an explanation.

Dear Dr. Thusteson: How does a thyroid gland affect a person's weight? I am very much underweight and cannot gain, no matter what I eat. I would like to know if an overactive or underactive thyroid could be causing my trouble.

I am a man, 49, and have a slight case of diabetes and am on a diet of 2,000 calories a day, but I have lost 15 pounds in the past few months.—H.E.

The thyroid isn't normally a major factor in weight gain or loss, and we usually have to look elsewhere for the cause. In your case it may be that your diet is not sufficient alone to handle your diabetic problem.

If an overactive thyroid was responsible, you would have other symptoms such as nervousness, tremor, ease of perspiration and a fast heart rate. An underactive thyroid causes sluggishness, fatigue, dry skin and a slow pulse.

When is the last time you had a check-up to see how well the diet is keeping your diabetes under control? It could be that you need something else to help you. You could be ready for it—with or some of the oral agents now.

You should report your weight loss immediately and get a new reading on your condition.

Note to J.D.M.: No, the artery operation on your aorta has absolutely nothing to do with vasectomy.

Country Not Us

LONDON (CP) — The conservationist Countryside Commission is moving to Cheltenham from London. But three-quarters of the commission's staff has declined to make the move to Cheltenham, despite its picturesque rural setting, because the officials don't want to live in the country.

Wreckage Valuable

SANDRINGHAM, England (CP) — Renovations at the Queen's country residence have uncovered that parts of demolished sections can be bought by the public. One expert predicted that more than 1,000 tons of debris, from demolished rooms would be salvaged.

Man Bites Parot

BROCKENHURST, England (CP) — The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is investigating allegations that a man bit off the head of a parrot on a £10 ($23) bet.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "If a bridge player could get a prayer granted, he might pray: 'Lord, deliver me from partners who insist on becoming declarer and confirm it by misplaying the hand after-wards.'"

Oswald: "South's four diamond call was the bid of a hand bog. His ace-king-queen of diamonds would be tricks at a club contract, his three small club could ruff hearts if clubs were trump and North had rebid clubs at the three level. Still South did fail four and three diamonds."

Jim: "Six clubs would have been a cinch, six diamonds should also have made, but South checked the contract by a careless play from dummy at trick three."

Oswald: "He ruffed the second heart, led his ace of diamonds and played dummy's six instead of the nine or ten as a good player would."

Jim: "He continued with the king of trumps. West showed out. Now South had to get to dummy to discard a heart. East's jack. He did that, but unfortunately was stuck in dummy when East did not cover the ten. If he had kept the six in dummy, he could have overtaken with his eight, pulled East's last trump and made his slam."

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♥	Pass	1 N.T.
Pass	3♥	Pass	4♠

You South, hold:

♠AQ1074 ♥AJ6 ♦K4 ♣K652

What do you do now?

A—Bid five notrump. If your partner shows three kings you will bid seven.

HAYSEWOOD — In loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Haysewood, who passed away July 30, 1973. It is hard to part with our beloved one, but harder to forget. A place in heart no one occupies, Though on earth you are no more, Memories of you we always store, And on memory you will live forever. — Lovingly remembered by wife, children and grandchildren.

CAMPBELL (nee Allen Malcolm) — In fond and loving memory of a dear daughter Alice who was taken from us July 30, 1973. In life we loved you dearly, In death we love you still, Our hearts still ache with sadness, And always will. Sweet memories are all we have, Dear Alice, to remind us how you Alice, to remind us how you gave, And taught us how to live, To know peace on earth, To receive God's forgiveness. — Sadly missed by Mother, Dad, Sisters and Brothers.

CARROLL — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Alice, who passed away July 30, 1973. In our memories we keep you, In our hearts you will always be, Though we cannot see you, We know you are with me, Always remembered and loved by husband, Jim, daughter Sharon and son Robert Norman and family.

BOOTH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ivan, who passed away July 30, 1973 at his home in Frankford. He reserved that place for me, Then one day we'll meet in heaven, and reunion be sweet indeed, And never to know the sorrow, Of parting, we'll be free, Then we'll walk hand in hand together, Dear husband, without you, I realize, I'm only half complete, For part of me went with you, The day God took you home, Then with sad memories, I am left to live alone, For all the love we shared, Can never be repaired, Until God calls me home. — Lovingly remembered by wife Ivadell, daughter Norma and family, son Robert and family.

BRYANT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ivan, who passed away July 30, 1973 at his home in Frankford. U.S. Gander Doesn't Like Way World's Goose Sauced

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi Arabians, who may have up to $20 billion to invest in foreign markets this year, are puzzled by fears in the United States that they might obtain control of major U.S. corporations by purchasing a majority of shares.

"I don't know why you have fears," said Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister.

"You should be extremely happy if we decide to do this because there are so many countries on earth who have been extremely enthusiastic to get Saudi Arabia to come and invest in their equity market.

"The equity market is another term for the stock market.

Yamani's view was echoed by other Saudi officials in private view here. They were noticeably irritated at suggestions there would be something objectionable in Saudi control of U.S. corporations.

One U.S. banker here said: "For years, I have been trying to justify American ownership of foreign enterprises. And suddenly Americans are saying it would be wrong to have foreign ownership of American corporations. It's madness."

Ambassador James Akins and other U.S. officials here believe it is imperative for the United States to make attractive investment opportunities available to Saudi Arabia, Iran, Kuwait and other oil-producing nations.

If the oil-producing nations don't invest their vast surplus wealth profitably now, they almost certainly will cut back on oil production until such a time as they can, the officials said.

Such a move would reduce the supply of oil, drive oil prices higher and make a bad world financial situation even worse, they added.

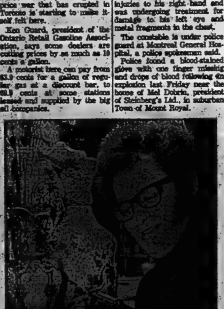
Estimates of the amounts available to be invested abroad by oil-producing nations are staggering. They range as high as $70 billion this year, $200 billion in two years and over $1 trillion by 1985.

Gas War

OTTAWA (CP) — A gasoline price war that has erupted in Toronto is starting to make a dent in Ottawa.

Ken Chard, president of the Ontario Retail Gasoline Association, says across dealers are cutting prices by as much as 10 cents a gallon.

A motorist here can pay from 63.9 cents for a gallon of regular gas at a discount bar, to 81.9 cents at some stations because those supplied by the big oil companies.



Mountie Injured

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Stevenson was identified Monday by Montreal Urban Community police as a member of the RCMP constable admitted to hospital last Friday suffering injuries incurred following an explosion.

Constable Stenson, 29, a seven-year veteran with the force, was suffering extensive injuries to his right hand and was undergoing treatment for damage to his left eye and metal fragments in the chest.

The constable is under police guard at Montreal General Hospital, a police spokesman said.

Police found a blood-stained glove with one finger missing and drops of blood following an explosion last Friday near the home of Mel Dobrin, president of Salsberg's Ltd., in suburban Town of Mount Royal.

Mama Cass Chokes On Ham Sandwich

LONDON (AP) — Mama Cass Elliot, the sweet-voiced pop singer who was found dead in her London apartment Monday, probably choked on a ham sandwich, her doctor says.

An autopsy report was due today, and Dr. Anthony Greenberg said it would probably show that "she died as a result of choking on a sandwich while lying in bed and halting her own words."

But he added that she "was a very big lady" and may have had a heart attack.

Dot MacLeod, the singer's secretary, said she found the 33-year-old star's body Monday afternoon slightly propped up in her double bed in the six-room apartment she was occupying during engagements in Britain. The television set was on, and a ham sandwich and a soft drink were beside her pillow. Miss MacLeod said.

"She had been dead for a considerable time before her body was found," Dr. Greenberg said.

The singer, who rose to fame in the 1960s as the leading Mama of The Mamas and the Papas, completed a two-week engagement at the Palladium Saturday night. She was preparing to start a tour of Britain.

"This last week was the happiest I have ever seen her," said her manager, Allen Carr.

"She told me after she had received a standing ovation at the Palladium: 'I feel that I have given the best of myself 23 times, but I have never felt better about anything I have ever done professionally.'"

Dr. Greenberg said she had been dieting and had "been doing quite well." She told an interviewer from The Times a few days ago she lost 80 pounds in the last year. She had weighed 228 pounds.

Miss Elliot's seven-year-old daughter by singer James R. Hendricks, Vanessa, was reported with her grandmother in Baltimore, Md.

Born Ellen Naomi Cohen in Baltimore, Md., she grew up in Virginia and Maryland and took the name Cassandra Elliot before going to New York at 19 to try for a stage career. After a few small parts and a role in a touring company of The Music Man, she turned to singing, first with Denny Doherty and Tim Rose in a group called the Big Three, then with Doherty and two others as The Mugwumps.

The Mugwumps also failed with the public and split up. Then Miss Elliot and Doherty teamed with John and Michelle Phillips as The Mamas and the Papas. Success came quickly in the form of million-selling gold records and sellout concerts.

The Mamas and the Papas split up amicably in 1968, and Miss Elliot struck out on her own with recordings and television and nightclub appearances. Her hit records as a single included Dream a Little Dream of Me and Make Your Own Kind of Loving.

She and Hendricks were married in 1963 and divorced in 1969. In 1971 she married a Spartan baron, Donald "Jay" Wiedemann.

Decision to Free Colonies Praised

LISBON (CP) — Politicians and newspapers Monday praised President Antonio de Spinola's announcement giving Portuguese African territories independence.

Spinola made the announcement in a televised address to the country Saturday.

Prince Minister Vasco dos Santos Goncalves said decolonization of the African territories of Portuguese Guinea, Angola and Mozambique will lead to closer economic, political and social relations between Portugal and other countries.

Spinola said Portugal is ready to begin immediately transferring power to "the people of the overseas territories considered suitable for this development, namely Guinea, Angola and Mozambique."

This will leave Portugal with the small enclave of Macao off the Chinese mainland, the island of Timor, north of Australia, and the Atlantic islands of the Azores, Cape Verde, Sao Tome and Madeira.

Meanwhile in Dakaar, Zaire, a four-country summit conference mended a split between two feuding Angolan liberation movements.

The Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) and the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) agreed to a common front to negotiate the territory's independence from Portugal.

President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire, chairman of the Organization of African Unity, said he welcomes Spinola's declaration.

Sidewalks Are Home

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — Life through ECAFE to tackle the on the sidewalk, in heat, cold and rain, is a daily reality for thousands of Calcutta's homeless people.

A survey by the Calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority (CMDA) shows that more than two million of Calcutta's eight million people live in slums, and at least 250,000 on pavements.

The West Bengal state government has tried to rehabilitate them, but has achieved no significant results. The main problem is a shortage of money.

In a new effort to overcome the slender resources minister in charge of metropolitan development, Ibrola Sen, has been seeking aid from the Economic Commission for Asia and Far East (ECAFE), whose representatives have toured Indian cities.

He said that the United Nations was interested in pavement and slum dwellers in developing countries and he hoped to get UN funds, channelled

Six Cadets Die In Quebec Blast

QUEBEC (CP) — Six Montreal-area youths were killed Tuesday in an explosion at the nearby Valcartier Canadian Forces base during a lecture on the handling of explosive devices.

Twenty-two others, including Capt. Jean-Claude Giroux, an instructor, were injured in the blast that caused only slight damage to the training hall where the explosion took place.

The dead were identified as O. Maigna, 14, Montreal; M. Vaisard, 14, Longueil; P. Lemoux, 15, St. Laurent; E. Lloyd, 14, Lachine; Y. Langlois, 15, Rosbero and M. Provencher, age unknown, Montreal.

All but one of the 22 injured were in hospital at the military base. One point seriously injured was taken to hospital in Quebec City.

At a news conference Tuesday night, spokesman Col. Bernard Sullivan said it was not known what type of device had exploded.

He said the lecture during which the incidents occurred began to warn the cadets what types of devices to avoid handling if they found them in the field on the base.

All of the dead and injured were believed to be residents of Quebec province. A partial list of injured, all from Quebec, was released early today.

The three cadets listed in serious condition were D. Malcolm, 15; Montreal; R. Brooks, 14, Chambly; and Y. Senecal, 14, Montreal.

The dead and injured were among 1,600 cadets receiving six weeks of basic military training at the camp as part of the force's summer program for students aged 16 to 17.

Shortly after the explosion, families began arriving at the camp gate.

"It's my only child. Please, I have to get in," cried one mother as military policemen blocked the entrance to the base.

Col. Sullivan said the explosion area was evacuated as soon as the incident occurred. First aid was administered immediately.

"The training the boys got really paid off," he said. "They were busy, only slightly wounded, helping others."

All courses at the camp involving the use of explosives or ammunition have been suspended pending the conclusion of investigations, he said.

Col. Sullivan said a coroner's inquest is expected to begin today. He said officials, provincial police and Canadian Forces explosive experts all were to investigate the incident.

Kenora Indians Put on Warpaint

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — While donning warpaint to meet a noon deadline today, Indians occupying a town park held out hope for at least a temporary peace.

Sixty-four armed Ojibwa Indians Tuesday night allowed reporters to enter their campsite in the park and launch demonstrations of a possible battle with police today.

The Indians were awaiting the arrival of a mediator sent from the Northern Ontario White Fish Bay reserve. He performs the main function of backdating the application of warpaint.

The Indians had said they will take "aggressive action" if conditions on a list of demands have not been satisfied by noon today.

Tuesday night, leader Louis Cameron modified the deadline to say that even if one of the demands was met the action will be postponed.

But he indicated that whatever happened the Indians planned to remain in the park until it is turned over to them.

In addition to a demand for the park, which they claim rightfully belongs to them, the Indians are asking for the appointment of Indian police and justices of the peace, removal of a Kenora district judge and dismissal of local officials in the wake of the native people.

Three-part Charge Will Face Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assistant John Ehrlichman was indicted today on a minimum 20 months in prison on his conviction for conspiracy and perjury in the break-in at the office of the California psychiatrist treating Pentagon papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell set 20-month to five-year sentences to run concurrently for each of the three criminal counts for which Ehrlichman was convicted.

G. Gordon Liddy, a member of the White House "plumbers" unit which carried out the break-in, was sentenced to one to three years in prison, but the sentence is to run parallel with four sentences Liddy drew in the Watergate break-in case. Thus it does not add any time to what Liddy already had to serve.

Gesell said two other convicted members of the plumbers group, Frederick Bertram Sturbis and Eugenio Martinez, "were misled by high government officials" and sentenced them to suspended prison terms.

The plumbers group was created by the White House to Obstructing justice in covering up the Watergate affair, the break-in of Democratic national headquarters June 17, 1972, once described by a White House spokesman as just a "third-rate burglary."

Abusing his powers through misuse of federal agents and agencies to violate constitutional rights of citizens by wiretapping, income-tax audits and other activities.

Refusing to comply with committee subpoenas for 164 tapes of presidential conversations and other material sought as evidence for the inquiry.

Rejected as impeachable offenses were proposed articles recommending impeachment for concealing he bombing of Cambodia from Congress, and perpetrating tax fraud by underpaying his income taxes. Both were defeated by 26-to-12 votes.

The committee's recommendations must first face the House of Representatives through the House rules committee before reaching their way to the House floor.

A majority vote is needed in the House to impeach the president. The Senate then would conduct a trial, in which a two-thirds majority would be needed to convict and remove Nixon from office.

Tilbury Police Face Accusations and Fire

TILBURY, Ont. (CP) — A policeman in this community about 29 miles east of Windsor said Tuesday that he believes someone is out to get the town's seven policemen one by one.

Sergeant George Fuller, whose private car and that of Constable Douglas Gordon-Kay were set afire Monday night, said the police force had received several threats Tuesday that "they're going to get each one by one."

Several residents told a police commission meeting attended by about 125 people Monday night that they had been harassed and abused by the town's policemen.

But police chief Wayne Radth said his department is investigating all charges against its personnel and that the results will be disclosed at a September meeting of the police commission.

"We aren't going to hide anything," said Mr. Radth, who has been police chief in the town of 4,000 for nearly seven years. "If we find that any officer has been in the wrong, we will do something about it, even if it means suspending him."

Sgt. Fuller, who spent 20½ years with the Ontario Provincial Police, said Tuesday he had no reason to doubt the threats to the policemen, saying it came from a "reliable source." He said he is clear that the situation could become much worse.

"Next time they hope one of us is going to be in the car," he said. "And there's a strong risk going in for a minister picked

First Tapes Delivered To Sirica

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers are placing in charge a federal judge to withhold parts of 29 more recorded Watergate tapes from special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's chief lawyer, James St. Clair, said he expects to submit an index and analysis of the tapes to U.S. District Judge John Sirica today.

St. Clair said reporters Tuesday that the extent of the claimed privilege is "not significant."

The president's counsel responded to questions after delivering to Sirica the first batch of 64 taped conversations subpoenaed by Jaworski.

The Supreme Court last week upheld Sirica's order that Nixon relinquish the material for his private inspection to determine which parts should be delivered to Jaworski as evidence for the Watergate cover-up trial.

Whitby Man Held

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — John David Orr, 25, of Whitby, Ont., has been charged with criminal negligence causing death in connection with the Monday death of Cindy Dickson, 16, of Gore's Landing, provincial police said.

Mrs. Dickson died in hospital here of a fractured skull.

Orr was arrested Tuesday in Ajax and released on $1,000 bail pending today's court appearance.

An autopsy showed Miss Hodgins died of severe skull fractures and a broken neck when the other driver, Orr, was pushed from a car near Elizabethville, in an area about 25 miles southeast of Peterbough.

Her body was found 30 minutes after she left home to walk to a friend's home Sunday.

French Official Quebec Language

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec legislature assembly resumed debate on third and final reading of a bill making French the official language of Quebec.

The legislation, adopted on the second reading vote of the Parti Quebecois, two Liberal members and most party members in the province, is expected to become law today when the Liberal majority in the legislature overcomes most moves from Leader Bourassa.

The key parts of which will be applied immediately are that large companies with more than 50 employees must receive certification of French language quality for public administration in the province and contracts with the government. The bill also requires that there be separate immigrants into Quebec's French-speaking community and that all children learn the language of the province.

The legislation also sets up a regie de la langue Francaise, the bill contains an English exception of the bills since it says that children under age six be given by their French title only. It is a nine-member board empowered to conduct research to ensure the act is being observed and to help firms implement translation programs in the French language.

The board will also have certain powers of the Turkish forces and a United Nations buffer zone around the village occupied by the Turks.

The agreement, signed by the foreign ministers of Britain, Greece and Turkey Tuesday after six days of negotiations, also puts no brake on the build-up of Turkish troops or supplies on Cyprus.

A spokesman for the United Nations peacekeeping force said the Turks brought in more reinforcements Tuesday, and a high-ranking Western diplomat in Nicosia estimated the Turkish force at 40,000 men and 200 tanks.

The three governments agreed to begin further talks in Geneva Aug. 8 to restore constitutional government to Cyprus. They said representatives of the Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities will join two-man later, and Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros said the Greek-Cypriots will be represented by their current president, Glafcos Clerides, not by ousted president Makarios.

Vice - president Rauf Denktash, the unchallenged leader of the Turkish Cypriots, will represent them, Mavros said.

Turks Refuse To Leave Fort

FAMAGUSTA, Cyprus (AP) — The firing has stopped around the 12th-century Famagusta Fort, but the 11,500 Turkish-Cypriots holed up in the walled city-within-a-city refuse to come out.

Before the walk out of three days ago, they said they will not be entertained, said Hasan Dehnek, security chief for a refugee camp of 1,500 Turks in a school in the old city.

Buffer Zone Will Divide Greek Cypriots from Turks

GENEVA (AP) — Greece and Turkey have signed a military disengagement agreement for Cyprus providing for the definite presence of the Turkish invasion force and a United Nations buffer zone around the village occupied by the Turks.

Park Vandalism A Minor Problem

Despite the fact a few plenic tables occasionally wind up in the river or the Bay of Quinte, Belleville parks are relatively free of vandalism.

"Considering the number of people who use our parks, actually we have very little to complain about," says parks superintendent Lloyd Syer. "We are lucky."

The greatest problem of vandalism in city parks over the years has been with young trees, according to Mr. Syer.

So far this year there has been no problem with tree damage but on one occasion a year ago, close to 30 trees, including 12 at West Bridge Park, and about 12 at Zwicky Island, were damaged all on the same night.

The young trees were all broken off at about stake level.

In many cases, however, the damaged trees can often be saved by pruning them close, or by lifting them, giving them nursery care, and later replanting.

Inconsiderate snowmobilers have at times also wreaked havoc with small evergreens in city parks. The snowmobilers have gone over the two-to three-foot high trees.

This problem has been solved to some extent by staking them with steel stakes during planting.

"The steel stakes don't bend very easily," commented Mr. Syer.

Planting of larger trees has in some measure reduced vandalism caused by breaking off the young branches.

Mr. Syer wonders about the small city parks, persons responsible for damage to young trees in parks and on city streets. Most likely, he says, the damage is done by only three or four people out of the city's entire population of about 30,000.

"It would be interesting if we could catch some of them. Maybe we could find some other way for them to expend their energies.

Two Break-ins On Tuesday

Thieves who made separate break-ins into two city residences should get together and hold a party with their loot they got away with.

In the first break-in some time during the daylight hours on Tuesday, thieves entered the residence of Dana Cores at 238 Herchimer Avenue and made off with a carton of cigarettes, several partly-filled bottles of wine and three bottles of beer.

In the second break-in the residence of Bernard McFadden of 26 Johnson St. was broken into some time Tuesday. Taken were two tin-can banks each containing about $5.

Entry was gained in the rear of the residence by a side door while a back door was used to enter the McFadden home.

Creative Fun

The summer is always a good time of the year for children to have fun. But at Quinte Secondary School and Queen Victoria School, children are having fun and being creative at the same time. This comes through the Open Door to the Arts, Art and Ceramics Program being run by the city's recreation department. Kathryn Davies, renowned artisan in this area, is co-ordinating the seven-week program ending Aug. 16. These youngsters from 9 to 16 meet every morning at Quinte to work with clay and try their hand in other art forms.

TRENTON — Trent Valley Paperboard Mills is taking steps to halt shredded plastic from entering the Trent River from its Glen Miller waste paper processing plant, company president Hugh Campbell said Tuesday.

Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority officials said Tuesday company processing practices are now under investigation by the Ontario environment ministry.

Mr. Campbell admitted the plant, five miles north of Trenton is a source of part of the plastics found in the river. Efforts are now being made to stop the pollution.

He said the company will be installing new sumps and screens to increase the plant's capacity for collection of solid waste — plastics among them.

In effect, both devices act as filters through which water flows before re-entering the river.

The first screens will be installed next week. All work is expected to be complete in four weeks, Mr. Campbell said.

Mr. Campbell said a recent study of company raw materials revealed one category — office or mixed waste — contains a high proportion of thin plastics in contrast to products that are solely paper.

"I have issued orders that all suppliers of this waste have been cut off," he said. Most office waste is shipped to Glen Miller from Toronto and Montreal.

The plant processes 120 tons of waste material a day, 15 per cent of which consists of waste paper. Part of that material is office waste. The majority consists of old newspapers and corrugated boxes.

Mr. Campbell claimed plastic material, shredded in the paper operation, escapes into the Trent River accidentally when surges occur in the pulping process.

Increasing the size of sumps and the number of screens will handle such surges, he said. Excess of plastics is not due to negligence by employees.

"It's the lack of mechanical capacity," he said.

Mr. Campbell said he did not know how long the problem has existed. He only became aware of the spillage after a story in The Intelligencer two weeks ago revealed plastics were being found in the river.

Now, said Mr. Thom, "We'll be keeping a close eye on it."

However, he said that the plastic flow rate has not quickly halted. Much depends upon the size of the plastic pieces and screens used to filter plastic from the effluent.

"The only problem I can see is that when the plastic gets wet, it gets very slimy and slippery," he said. "The screens may not catch it.

"It could just go through with the force of the water."

For example, if the plastic pieces are three inches square, a shrilling screen could catch the material. If pieces are smaller, a micro-strainer may have to be used.

"If they don't have one, it may take up to six months to deliver. If they can handle it with existing equipment, the problem could be solved quickly.

"A Hastings County public health spokesman in Belleville indicated Tuesday no complaints concerning the plastic have been received from the swimming public.

Observation at Ontario Hydro's Sidney Generating Plant, just south of Glen Miller, showed pieces of plastic are being caught by the plant's filtration racks.

The plastic is intermingled with weeds and clumps of grass and dirt from the river bank.

Hydro spokesman say the shredded plastic has only been found at the Sidney station, one of eight small plants stretching north of Trenton along the Trent River.

At the station, the quantity of plastic has decreased in recent weeks. One Hydro maintenance worker said he has seen "wheelbarrows full" earlier this year.

Earl Grills, maintenance crew foreman said Monday the plastic "is not as heavy now as it was in June. It depends on the time of year."

Spring thaws have spewed quantities of plastic attached to the under side of ice reaching the racks.

Driver Hurt

AMELIASBURGH — A Barry's Bay man was admitted to Belleville General Hospital last night, with injuries received in a one-car crash on County Road 19, about two miles from this hamlet.

Police said the car driven by David Barry Sullivan, 20, missed a turn, entered the ditch, hit several trees, veered into a field and overturned.

Mr. Sullivan suffered back injuries, possible concussion and had glass fragments in his eyes, said police.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,500. The mishap occurred shortly before 9:30 p.m.

Assure Access

AMELIASBURGH — Township council has assured a delegation representing residents of back lots in the Hancock subdivision near Carrying Place, that the municipality would be responsible for maintenance of access to Weller's Bay.

The decision affects 30 people who use the 20 by 200 foot right of way to reach the waterfront for bathing and other recreation.

$99,000 in Prince Edward

Conservation Funded

PICTON — The natural resources ministry has approved funding of four projects in Prince Edward County's conservation areas.

Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority will receive $71,500 for final engineering and construction of Bloomfield dam and mill pond.

Another $24,000 goes to PERCA to acquire land for the proposed Mile Bluff conservation area.

A grat of $550 has been approved for PERCA land acquisition and minor developments in the Beaver Meadow conservation area. PERCA also receives $3,000 for capital expenditures in the Macaulay Mountain Conservation Site.

The grants were announced by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward — Lennox.

Ministry Monitors Mill Process

TRENTON — The Ontario environment ministry now expects to hear soon what steps Trent River Paperboard Mills Limited is taking to halt a runoff of waste plastic material into the waterway.

Gordon Thom, the ministry's Kingston district officer, said information on company action is expected in 10 days.

A letter was sent to Glen Miller Monday, Mr. Thom said. It calls for immediate corrective action after company investigation into how the plastic is entering the river.

Ministry investigation followed a request from the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority. Repeated complaints of shredded plastic finds in the Trent river prompted the authority to call for an official inquiry earlier this month.

In response to recent public criticism that the authority does little to stop the river pollutants, Gordon Tobey, the authority's water control board chairman, said it is not the authority's job to do so.

"Our position is to locate the problem and report it to the ministry," he said.

The authority request prompted a ministry visit to the cardboard manufacturer last Friday. A tour by a waste management branch official was followed by Monday's letter.

Now, said Mr. Thom, "We'll be keeping a close eye on it."

However, he said that the plastic flow rate has not quickly halted. Much depends upon the size of the plastic pieces and screens used to filter plastic from the effluent.

"The only problem I can see is that when the plastic gets wet, it gets very slimy and slippery," he said. "The screens may not catch it.

PUC's Hilton Opposes Land Purchase Price

TRENTON — Town utility commissioners approved a $15,000 purchase of a William St. property here Tuesday despite chairman Charles Hilton's strong opposition.

Mr. Hilton said the PUC does not need the land "any more than we need a hole in the head."

"I'm damn sure that we don't need the property for $15,000," Mr. Hilton claimed during heated discussion. "The price is wrong."

He emphasized he would agree to pick up the property for $2,000. He signed the commission resolution under protest.

The property is adjacent to existing PUC storage sheds, a pump house and a substation.

Commissioner Jim MacDonald argued that purchase of the property would help bring PUC operations closer together. At present, PUC facilities are scattered in various parts of town and make for a disjointed operation, he said.

The $5,000 purchase price would have been preferred, admitted Mr. MacDonald.

The meeting was called following recent notification that one of two property owners will be in Trenton next week.

It was felt a possible deal could be closed partially at that time. The commission plans to offer $15,000 as its maximum price tag.

Mr. MacDonald agreed to the proposed purchase price in the interests of PUC consolidation. Mayor Robert Patrick raised no objections to the purchase.

Plans for the property call for "a garage and storage area."

Boy Bicyclist Hurt in Crash

TRENTON — A 12-year-old boy, Joseph Baker of Richard Street, sustained undetermined injuries in a car-bicycle collision on Marmora Street here Tuesday.

Town police say the boy was in collision with a vehicle driven by John Ubrym, of 16 Cedar Street. The boy was riding a bicycle when he crossed in front of the Ubrym vehicle, travelling south on Marmora Street.

The boy's parents took him home, police say.

Retirement Plans

Retirement: it can be a time of enrichment, a time to do all those things there never was time for before.

But this pre-supposes good health, the necessary interest and motivation, not to mention the financial means.

Without such preparation retirement can be anything but a pleasant aftermath to years of work.

Don Thrush, a retired government auditor, points out that people retiring now still have about a third of their lives ahead of them; the average retirement age is coming down.

Mr. Thrush, a member of the Hastings Education Board, is co-ordinating a pre-retirement course being made available at Loyalist College this September. He is also a member of the Rotary Club which currently is focusing attention on the needs of the retirement years. It is putting together a catalogue of senior citizens with skills to offer others in their age group.

The service club's initiative has evoked considerable interest, including a stimulating letter from a Stirling citizen which appeared on this page recently.

And Rotary president Bob Graham says he has had two phone calls a week since the plan was unfolded.

The idea took the theme another step forward at its weekly meeting Monday. Four Rotarians who are retired, yet have remained very active and interested in community affairs, spoke on retirement as it affected them. They are Ernie Burnham, Enos Davis, Harold Mott and Bill Slack.

The range of their interests typifies retirement at best. Their theme was another emphasis on such pedestrian — but necessary — factors as retirement savings and fitness. Mr. David is associated with the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Board and puts out a bulletin which is circulated province-wide, while Mr. Burnham includes jogging among his many activities.

It didn't take long, one of their main concerns, where the retirement dollar comes in, is inflation.

Another member of the club, put his finger on the latter problem with a quip. He said he had a son in his late twenties who is "already retired — he works for the federal government." He laughed as he said it, but there is a lot of truth in this caricature summing up of the good life in Ottawa of the big money and inflationary overtones.

Skilled Help?

"Hire a Student," urges the Manpower circular. And let's hope as many as possible do get work this way. Even if they are only in the realm of "odd jobs" for a day or two at a time.

Wouldn't it be great if some of the students could be motivated toward a career in the trades. Some tough but not "unrewarding trades that the public must have resort to now and then.

Like plumbing. As often as not it is virtually impossible to get a plumber when he is needed. There is too few of them. Yet we have thousands of young people looking for jobs, and many of them with no idea what they want to do.

Plumbing anyone? Do any of our community colleges offer such a course?

Lost Quarters

Automatic car washes where the motorist may clean his car for a quarter are one of the do-it-yourself advantages of our day. But it is best not to wash them the first pala in his quarter only to find the equipment is out of order and there is not so much as a sign to indicate this is so.

Vandalism could be one reason for faulty equipment, but this is of no comfort to drivers, especially when it happens not just once but several times. The result is: no wash for the car and a few lost quarters into the non-bargain.

We have had this experience in two Belleville car wash establishments and would suggest things could be put right. As for refunds for those lost quarters, this is also a matter of concern.

Revival Of Bilingualism Issue Anticipated When House Resumes

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — That unwritten pact of silence between Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative Leader Stanfield, muffling the feudy controversial bilingualism issue since the election campaign, is going to be broken with an explosive bang.

The silence on the hustings wasn't total.

For the issue of bilingualism on a federal basis and French unilingualism in Quebec was raised by a few Eastern Ontario Conservatives such as Walter Douglas Aikenhead in Frontenac-Lennox and Addington, and Paul Dick in Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton.

These were all riding within shouting distance of the Quebec border, and their verbal opposition had a federal public service context, especially the two Carleton constituencies in the bedroom suburbs of the National Capital.

There may have been other ridings where language was something of an issue — but except in New Brunswick's Moncton it was kept in low key as the constituency level and never made much of a dent nationally.

That was because the Prime Minister and the Conservative Leader in agreement that it was too hot a political potato to handle, buried it.

And during the campaign they, and not their candidates in the ridings, pretty well monopolized the public eye and ear.

But when Parliament re-opens in another eight weeks it will be an entirely different situation.

Few people, except perhaps the voters in the particular constituencies concerned, heard those candidates who dealt with the issue last.

But in their ridings, those candidates were the winners, and when they get to their feet in the House of Commons they will command a national audience.

For the floor of Parliament is a far more powerful sounding board than a constituency election campaign platform.

And bluntly Douglas Aikenhead, 12-year and six-election Conservative veteran MP, in defiance of Robert Stanfield's wishes, is out with a public statement that when the Commons again gets down to business, he'll be sounding off on the language issue.

"I invite some of my colleagues in the House to join me in defending the rights of the English-speaking majority in this country," he says.

Why does he think those rights might be in such real or imagined peril as to require defending?

"Two reasons," he says in his statement.

"The first being the Trudeau government's policy of bilingualism for English Canada.

"And the second Premier Bourassa's policy of unilingualism in Quebec."

Douglas Aikenhead, when Prime Minister Trudeau was first elected on the seeming new tradition in language policies, he contended that bilingualism was a federal thing and unilingualism provincial.

Premier Bourassa he has said he believed the Quebec legislature was constitutionally sound and while the federal government wouldn't disallow it, as he could, it would first try "persuasion" as Premier Bourassa and then give reasons why the private citizen who might take the issue to court.

But this far from satisfied Douglas Aikenhead.

He points out that at what he calls "enormous cost — and at enormous inconvenience to say but how many hundreds of millions of dollars are involved — the taxpayers at large generally are being forced to pay for bilingualism discriminating against English-speaking public servants and those aspiring to federal jobs."

And while the federal government is fostering what Mr. Aikenhead calls this "crass injustice" on English Canada, it is at least "tolerating the clear constitutional illegality of unilingualism in Quebec, where French is to be the single official language and both the legal and educational rights of the English majority restricted."

It is "outrageous," storms Mr. Aikenhead, "that the federal-provincial relationship of Trudeau and Bourassa should have it both ways."

He is convinced the issue involved the interests not just of the English in Quebec and public servants in Eastern Ontario, but "all Canadians everywhere."

It was "a calamity," he says, "that the two national political leaders should have banned it up during the election campaign, already denied a referendum, and have been arguably — perhaps towards resolution — on the public platform."

Now Mr. Aikenhead and the colleagues he invites to join him will take it to Parliament, breaking what he terms "the conspiracy of silence."

Portugal's Colonies in Africa Are On The Road To Independence

By ROD CURRIE
The Canadian Press

The surprise announcement of early independence for Portugal's African colonies underlines the lightward-leaning stance of the country's young military leaders and the extent of their power in determining policy.

The announcement by President Antonio de Spinola during the weekend amounts to the formal first step towards dismantling the last rich remnants of a 500-year-old empire—if far more extensive than initially outlined by Spinola in the months before the military brought him to power.

Spinola, in a controversial book that rocked Portugal in the last days of the old dictatorship before the April coup, envisaged simply a sort of Laotian federation under which the resources-rich colonies would have a measure of independence while remaining linked with Portugal.

But although Spinola's speech was tantalizingly elusive on details, he firmly committed the government to a policy of decolonization. Foreign commentators quickly hailed it as a counterpart to former British prime minister Harold Macmillan's "wind-of-change" speech heralding the beginning of a major phase of decolonization in British Africa.

Under pressure from the increasingly radical young officers who brought him to office, Spinola apparently has been forced to abandon hopes of federation along the lines of the late President Charles de Gaulle's dream of a French-African community.

The decision was greeted with mixed feelings in Portugal and elsewhere. It was cheered by the military and much of the Portuguese public, long since disenchanted with the colonial war which Spinola, in his book, conceded neither side could win.

Intellectuals see the decision as supporting their contention that Lisbon could not afford to continue subsidizing much longer, having finally ended 10 years of dictatorship at home, the principle of independence endorsed years ago by other colonial powers.

But the decision strikes terror into the minority groups in the colonies and means disappointment for pro-colonial circles in the Portuguese business community who eye the immense potentialities in oil, iron ore, diamonds, coffee, fishing and other valuable assets still to be developed in the colonies.

It's too is bad news for whites ruled South Africa and country Rhodesia who fear it is a big step forward for black African ambitions toward African emancipation from the Cape to Cairo.

What is a big setback/moment of the new Portuguese government, will its new liberality, is that it is not in a position of strength to insist on a democratic process in the colonies as a prerequisite for independence. In the smaller, less important colony of Guinea-Bissau, which actually has become an economic liability, there soon will be a truce and a peaceful transfer of power to the PAIGC, the African liberation movement already recognized by 90 countries.

But the problem is that the PAIGC will become the government without referendum or election, thus setting the precedent.

The nationalists in areas in Mozambique and Angola, having had substantial military successes recently, certainly will claim accession to power on the same basis.

Environment, People, And Progress

Cumbridge Daily Reporter

It may be an allegorical excess to compare the Elora Gorge with the Niagara Gorge, but only because of relative size. The point to be made is, if ture-of-the-century conservationists had had the political power of today's hard-core ecology buffs, this province might still be in the possession of sparsely populated, agriculturally-based Canadians of old living which environmentalists enjoy as much as anyone else would still be beyond the Avro Arrow's grasp.

And one of the wonders of the world (which also supplied the power for the industrial development in Ontario) would be as inaccessible to modern citizens of the world as the Hanging Gardens of Babylon.

There is a reason to be careful in the exploitation of natural resources and the Canadian community is now sensitized to that need because of the work of conservationists. But proponents of a bridge over the Elora Gorge argue that a natural beauty spot would be spoiled by a bridge, not reflecting a narrow view that has little logical or moral merit by their own standards, is self-defeating.

The purpose of the Elora Gorge bridge is to relieve traffic pressure on the town of Elora. The Wellington, Air quality Action resulting from too many cars, the inevitable shortage of petroleum resources, all these are causes close to the environmentalists' hearts. But in Elora they have become secondary to the immediate natural gift in the bridges and protect the landscape at close hand and the open from construction disturbance.

One side effect of the bridge would be providing more people to enjoy a spectacular natural phenomenon. Unlike the Niagara Falls or the Columbia Ice fields or the vast tracts of virgin land that surround the plains, the mountains, the miles of wild and scenic rivers, much of this beautiful and varied land.

As Canadians that enjoyment is their birthright and is recognized as a necessity by governments across the country who strive to make their natural heritage accessible to as many people as care to see it. And the project should be well.

Rigid conservationist thinking tends toward excluding as many people as possible to protect the environment from overuse. That was the logic espoused by Liberal a proposal to develop a Pacific Rim National Park two years ago — the island people would destroy the fragile alpine meadows if a tiny area — in a sea of mountains.

The point is that the Elora Gorge bridge the conservationists are not objecting to that the natural beauty of the area would be impaired by the bridge. The environment is currently sufficient for them and would be spoiled by a paved a blind eye and a deaf ear to the environmental problems being experienced in a city rural community which was to cope with the environmental volumes of traffic.

Canada is now in keeping with 20th century attitudes to the needs of the people and but necessary encroachment on purely natural beauty and work environmental ecological damage is as slight as possible and imaginative.

That really is what conservation is about. Canada's natural beauty spots would be fenced off and protected with no trespass signs. Natural beauty and marsh that the land be used by the people and passed on to future generations.

UK Plants Dispose Of Toxic Wastes

BBC London Letter

Up in the Welsh hills, above the giant steel works at its deepest port on the South Coast, is a "rand-ex" chemical plant which looks like a model for the atomic age. Surrounded by spotless concrete, steel and glass and surrounded by land scraped grass and trees, there is absolutely nothing, no smoke, no smell, no noise. Even the sludge or fuming tanks of acid common to this type of factory are hidden from the eye because of the fact that this plant at Pontyspool would produce 150,000 tons per year of poisonous chemical wastes and hardest to dispose of all industrial wastes.

This kind of waste material to be disposed of reads like an environmentalist's nightmare, or a quick run-through of the headlines of the newspapers. Pollution scares of recent years — liquid crystals causing brain and corrosive chromic and hydrochloric acids, dairy cattle poisoned by dioxin, chlorinated biphenyls (the notorious PCBs believed to have mutated and killed so much bird life), deadened rivers and of organophosphorous pesticides, plating solutions full of zinc and copper, dusty little bottles of arsenic, mercury-bearing sludge, and the whole laboratory shelves, thousands of them, of the chemical industry drenched with lead and hopefully destined to end up as rust and scale chipped off refinery tanks.

Here are the wastes that everyone wants to get somewhere else, but no one wants near them. Dipped into holes in the ground somewhere they are just as dangerous.

These are the wastes the makers of which will happily dump down the nearest lake or river. Until a few years ago, British Petroleum's refinery, which is now the biggest industrial area, including Shell's refinery and Esso's refinery, British Petroleum's refinery, were in the habit of dumping chemical sludge, and factories and chemical engineering plants belonging to thousands and ICI, were in the habit of dumping plant in tankers, skips, lorries, drums and bottles. Many of these wastes — oil and water mixtures from refinery leaks, dirty industrial solvents from the petrochemical industry like toluene, xylene and benzene, PCBs, phenols, PCBs, alcohol, and solids like asbestos dust and fly ash from the organic wastes go to the incinerator.

It runs at 1200 degrees C. Entirely odor free, the heat it uses it consumes. It is able to burn at even out of a 5 per cent oil 95 per cent water mix.

At that temperature — guaranteed by a computer that checks burners, which light up the moment the temperature in the incinerator has fallen below 1200 degrees, the organic compounds break up and burn off.

Any resulting chlorine and sulphur fumes have to be neutralized, but even before it goes up the 150-foot (50 m) chimney 99 per cent of pollution in the incinerator is sealed to make sure it's harmless, and then sent off to dumps.

Tweed's Problems in Wake Of Storm

The Trentonian

Tweed is finding what Brighton found, that as far as provincial aid for storm damage is concerned the community may as well forget it. The storm which caused an estimated one hundred thousand thousand damage is considered a disaster sufficient to qualify for the kind of aid that is needed.

Those who sustained loss this with no insurance return are left to their own devices. It is an act of God, which means to say something for which nobody accepts any responsibility. So their loss is total. Even insurance companies have storm clauses where no payment can be made.

So the people in Tweed who sustained loss during the storm are probably going to have to depend on public largesse, and for many of them, there will be none.

Some place along the line somebody from Queen's Park spoke about conserving the tax dollar, but no community can be expected to be money a million and a half dollar loss repossess.

"And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." Ephesians 4:32

He who fails to forgive has a poor memory. Forgives as we have been forgiven — freely and finally. . . .

recall how long it's been since we saw a motion picture that didn't carry a television-screen message, where the game-show relationships are between men.

"The Last Detail" was recommended to us, so off we pressed to the flicks, only to be hit with the same garbage that the industry appears to be mired in. Where are all the fine, decent women who live in our neighborhoods, love their families, hold down responsible jobs, attend church regularly, never see them in the movies!

All we get on screen are whores, sluts, shrews, and females who are portrayed as the heroes like Robert Redford. Hardly ever does a movie today's heroines right out of the bottom. The only parts left for females to play is vamps (we gasp at all) portray "female-ness" as a dependable element.

Movies do both affect and reflect society, and there are many people who think the sickness has spread far enough. People who don't like it can say what is showing, should be informed.

U.S. Patience Is Running Out In Talks With Canada on Beef

WASHINGTON (CP) — A senior United States agriculture official said Tuesday the United States is losing patience with delays in ending the Canadian ban on American beef and live stock imports.

"We've been getting a lot of heat," said James Hartman, outspoken director of the department's foreign-livestock division.

"So far it hasn't come to anything, but our patience is running out."

Hartman said in an interview that the U.S. is still waiting for approval from Ottawa of American proposals that would open up the Canadian market again to American beef. And he expressed a profane scepticism about the state department's ability to resolve the issue.

A higher-ranking department official, Assistant Secretary Clayton Yeutter, said the decision "can't be postponed indefinitely, and the sooner it's resolved the better for both countries."

He said he is "certain" the beef problem will be on the agenda Thursday when the Canadian cabinet holds its regular meeting in Ottawa.

There was sharp disappointment here last week when the cabinet failed to discuss the issue, apparently because of the absence of Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan on a western tour.

The climate became more subdued after a high-ranking U.S. delegation went to Ottawa for talks three weeks ago. The state department is also understood to have exerted pressure to defuse the issue.

Asked about such pressure, Hartman replied:

"State is into it now and our ambassador (William Porter in Ottawa) has been pounding on doors. Of course, I don't have much faith in those bastards."

The Canadian government announced three months ago a ban on imports of livestock that had not been certified by the producing country to be free of the growth hormone diethylstilbestrol (DES). The compound has been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Davis and Sons Rescue Pair

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis spent the early minutes of his 45th birthday engaged in a rescue operation Tuesday.

The drama for the premier and his two sons began about 10 p.m. Monday at the Davis cottage on Townsend Island in Georgian Bay.

As the island was buffeted by a gale of up to 40 knots, one of the boys heard yelling coming from the area of a rocky shoal near the islands.

After listening for a while, Mr. Davis and his sons Neil, 18, and Ian 17, realized somebody was in trouble.

They took out a 24-foot power boat to investigate and found two men standing on a rocky outcropping after having run their boat aground in the storm.

The rescue party couldn't get close enought with the 24-footer so Mr. Davis and his sons returned in a 16-foot shallow-draft boat.

The men were rescued about 12:30 a.m. and ferried to Henry Harbor, nine miles away. The premier didn't get their names.

Kingston Resident Is Slain

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Police are searching for a man who shot and killed Dean Lewis, a 36-year-old dairy worker, in the kitchen of his home Tuesday.

A 13-year-old boy told police he heard the shot and saw a man running out of the Lewis home carrying a rifle.

Two unidentified men were questioned by police in connection with the incident prior to a search of selected homes in the northern section of the city.

Turbo Test

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways announced Tuesday that Turbo service will be implemented between Montreal and Ottawa Aug. 5 for a limited time. The run is regarded as an intermediate step in testing the Turbo which has performed well on Montreal-Toronto shuttles, a spokesman for the railways said.

Take Adventurous Approach to Salad

The salad days of summer are passing.

All the leafy, crunchy, juicy fruits and vegetables you need are garden-ready now, and reasonably-priced at supermarkets.

Although the basic "tossed salad" is probably everyone's favorite, don't limit yourself to the same type of preparation, ingredients and dressing day after day.

Almost anything goes with lettuce, and by adventurous experimentation you're very apt to produce a really memorable salad. By adding meat, fish, chicken, eggs or cheese, you can increase the nutritional value of the salad so that it can be served as a main course.

Fast, easy, and cool, the kind of hot weather meal-making is good for the cook and good for the family.

Tuna Salad

one head iceberg lettuce, torn into pieces leaves from other lettuce (Boston, Romaine Escarole or Bibb) spinach leaves, torn sliced celery (about two cups) sliced green onions (about two cups)
one clove garlic, minced
one green pepper, chopped
one small cucumber, peeled and chopped, fresh green peas (about one cup)
one can white tuna, flaked or chunk, well-drained
¼ cup toasted sesame seeds
¼ cup toasted wheat germ
four hard-boiled eggs, chopped

Put all ingredients, except lettuce and spinach leaves, into a large wooden bowl. Stir well, and sprinkle with a little lemon juice, salt, pepper and parsley flakes.

Make the following dressing, and pour over the vegetable mixture.

one-eighth cup salad oil one-eighth cup wine vinegar dash celery salt
dash salt and pepper
chopped fresh thyme OR dried thyme and tarragon, to taste.

Let the vegetables and tuna sit in the dressing for about an hour before adding the lettuce and tossing the whole salad well. Served with bread, olives and lemonade, this makes a filling supper.

Raw Mushroom Salad

one head escarole
½ head Boston lettuce
½ head iceberg lettuce
one pickled, scored and sliced cucumber
½ pound raw mushrooms
one Bermuda or Spanish onion, sliced
¼ cup French dressing
chopped fresh parsley

Clean the mushrooms, removing any discolored areas and trim stems to within ¼ inch of the cap. Slice the mushrooms in thin slices and set aside.

Into a large salad bowl, break into pieces the three kinds of lettuce. Add the cucumber slices, and then top the bowl with the onion and mushroom slices. Toss with dressing at the table, and sprinkle with the chopped parsley.

Chicken Salad Orientale

three tbsp. olive oil two tbsp. soy sauce
one tbsp. cider vinegar
one tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. powdered ginger
¼ tsp. cinnamon
one clove garlic, minced
one small onion
two hard cooked eggs
three cups diced cooked chicken
three cups Chinese cabbage, cut into ¼ inch strips one cup celery, cut into ¼ inch diagonal strips one can sliced bamboo shoots, drained and chilled
one head romaine lettuce, washed and crisped

Put oil, soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, ginger, cinnamon and garlic in blender and whirl for a few seconds (or beat together until well-blended). Chill well.

Cut onion into very thing strips; separate into individual strips. Chop eggs. Toss chicken, cabbage, celery, bamboo shoots and onion in the dressing. Arrange lettuce in a wooden bowl. Mound the chicken mixture on the lettuce and sprinkle with chopped egg.

Danish Curry Salad juice of one lemon

½ cup mayonnaise
one tsp. curry powder (or to taste)
salt
freshly ground pepper to taste ½ onion, grated
one tbsp tomato ketchup two cups boiled macaroni, drained and cooled
one head Romaine lettuce, washed and crisped
one cup celery, cut in julienne strips two cups cooked sliced tongue, cut in julienne strips two fillets marinated herring, cubed two hard-boiled eggs, quartered
½ bunch watercress, washed and crisped

Mix mayonnaise with curry powder salt, pepper, lemon juice grated onion and tomato ketchup. Toss with macaroni.

Line a large platter with lettuce and mound macaroni in the middle. Arrange alternate clusters of celery and tongue strips, herring and egg quarters around the macaroni. Garnish with watercress. Serves eight.

Bean Salad

two cups cooked green beans tow cups cooked kidney beans two cups cooked black-eyed peas two cups cooked yellow wax beans one green pepper, sliced in rings one green pepper, chopped finely one sweet red pepper, chopped finely one onion, chopped finely
one onion, sliced in rings
one head of lettuce, any kind, washed and crisped

Place all ingredients except the onion and green pepper rings in a large bowl. Place the rings on top, and then pour the following dressing over the vegetables and marinate them overnight in the refrigerator. Arrange the bean salad on a bed of the lettuce in a bowl or platter, keeping the onion and pepper rings for garnishing the top. Serves ten.

Bean Salad Dressing

three-quarter cup salad oil
¼ cup wine vinegar
¼ cup sugar
one tsp. salt
½ tsp. dry mustar
½ tsp. each of dried tarragon, basil, marjoram
two tsp. dried parsley

Blend or shake all ingredients together until well blended.

Quinte Woman

Kay Summers, Recreation Adviser

Besides helping with the haying this summer, and keeping a farm and family running happily, Kay Summers is busy every day with Thurlow Recreation projects.

In her second year on the Recreation Committee, Mrs. Summers, is one of seven people, who volunteers her time to assist with various township activities.

This year she's helped set up 12 "Fun and Fitness" playgrounds. Aided by two dozen teenagers whom she chose as supervisors, she keeps a watchful eye over all.

"They've made my job easier by becoming increasingly self-sufficient, as the weeks pass. But I still spend a lot of time on the phone every day. They call here first if they have a problem."

At one point in July, Mrs. Summers was looking after four different projects simultaneously — the Fun and Fitness program, the Nature's Playthings construction scheme, the Art-Trek days at Harmony Public School, and the two weeks of swimming lessons for 250 Thurlow youngsters who were bussed into Belleville to classes given in co-operation with the Kinsmen Club, funded by the Belleville Yardsmen Benefit Fund.

"Finding funds is always a problem," says Mrs. Summers, "but we manage on the budget that Thurlow gives us, supplemented by an Ontario Youth and Actions grant.

"What we do need are donations of old tires, lumber, or other items for making natural playground equipment. At the moment, I'm trying to find boiler stumps or logs for use as scrambling spots."

The Nature's Playthings construction, for which the logs are needed, is Mrs. Summer's special interest. She instigated the project, currently being carried out at three playgrounds.

Mrs. Summers visited several playgrounds in Toronto where similar schemes are in operation, and came home enthusiastic about the possibilities for making natural play areas.

"I grew up in the country playing outside, but most children today can't roam through the fields as I did. Hopefully these playgrounds will give city and suburban kids that chance."

Mrs. Summers' own children, Gillian, John and Paul, are lucky. They live with her and her husband Earle, principal of Queen Elizabeth Public School in Trenton, on a 200-acre farm, complete, with horses and chickens, and cows with names like Freckles and Daphne.

As Assistant Recreation Director in Belleville, and as the first Girls' and Women's Program Director at the YMCA, she gained experience before her marriage that serves her well now. She is always on the lookout for new ideas for the Thurlow Recreation Committee, and has some future projects already in mind.

"I noticed that many mo-

Nursing Home Residents Need Respect, Kindness

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I read Dearly's letter with compassion. We as Aides, are not all like the person who answered "An Aide" and the conditions in nursing homes are not all like those described by Dearly.

I work as a Certified Nurse's Aide in an excellent home run by a religious organization which is liberal in every respect. Services for all of the major religions are offered regularly.

I enjoy my work. We deal with every type of extended care situation. At times the going gets difficult both physically and emotionally, but what job that is worth while is easy?

A wise R.N. gave me these guidelines to follow:

"First of all, you are entering the hardest type of nursing; it is a one-way street. Residents are, very often, ashamed, confused, frightened, resentful; and these problems on top of severe illness will cause great emotional problems for them, but if an aide will take the time and patience to listen again to the same old story she has heard a million times, it helps so much.

"Often just a sincere pat on the shoulder, holding a hand, a compliment, sympathy or a smile can make a dark day into a sunny one.

"At all times every individual must be treated with the utmost dignity and respect; never under any circumstances as a child.

"Sometimes when dealing with a resident who can become emotional you just say, Mrs. Jones (or Mr. Smith) I will come back in a few minutes when you feel better. Leave immediately and return as promised. The results of this are good. I'm not flustered and the resident has usually forgotten what they wanted to quarrel over."

Dear N.A.: Your nurse friend was a wise one, and so are you. It is just great to hear from nurses and aides who make of their difficult tasks a cheerful expression of human sympathy.

Dear Doris: Thank you and the reader for sending a copy of "No Sects in Heaven". I am passing a copy along to a Senior Citizens' Group. I am 79 and not able to attend their meetings but I am interested in their many activities and pleased that so many of them can and do have such a good time.

Grateful.

Dear Grateful: You are welcome. Activities of seniors' clubs meet a great need. We all appreciate the company of our contemporaries, whatever age we are.

(Have you asked Doris about your dilemma? Perhaps she can suggest a Canadian resource that will help. Write to her in care of this newspaper.

Women Decide

NEW YORK (AP) — More than four million recreational vehicles are on the roads in the United States, says Rand McNally's newly published Recreational Vehicle Handbook. And, the publication says, 60 per cent of the rental and purchase decisions about such vehicles are made by women.

UBGES CAUTION

OTTAWA (CP) — When decorating a new home keep the costs of furnishing between one-third and one-half the cost of the house, says the Consumers' Association of Canada. Also recommended is hiring an interior decorator who belongs to a national professional organization.

Ann Landers

Many Swingers Settle Down

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to the 20-year-old woman who recently became engaged to marry a dashing young bachelor, was horrible. He confessed he had been to bed with "at least 40 females." I couldn't even remember some of their names, and his fiancee was simply crushed. You said she needed counselling to help her get the anger and disappointment out of her system. Then you added, "If, after several months you still can't forget about his past, don't marry him."

The BOTH need counselling, dummy. The fiancee so she can unload that alley cat personnally, and the founder to find out why he is such a sex maniac and what to do about it. Marriage will not change him. Who wrote your column that day, Annie? The copy boy or the janitor? Yes Dear

Dear Yes: Sorry, lover, the answer was mine. The girl didn't want me IF she should marry the fellow. She wanted to know how to get over her anger and disappointment.

As for the "sex maniac," many a swinger settles down after marriage (some people call it "exhaustion"), and they turn out to be faithful and devoted family men.

Dear Ann Landers: Am I wrong? If so, please correct me. Last night I had a blind date with an attractive fellow. He was a Dartmouth graduate and did some graduate work at Princeton. These two schools, to my way of thinking, epitomize ivy classy combination.

I was chagrined when Mr. X did not remove his hat in the elevator and I was even more embarrassed when he preceded me down a flight of stairs in the restaurant. Later we had occasion to use an escalator and again he walked ahead of me.

I was brought up to believe that a gentleman always removes his hat in an elevator and that ladies go first. How about it, Ann?—Disappointed In

RESET BY RATS

MONTREAL (CP) — Families who moved into a new housing development in suburban Dollard-des Ormeaux were horrified to find their surroundings invaded by rats. One woman even fed the rats, because she thought if she kept them "happy" they would not bite her children.

The Ivy

Dear Di: Sorry, but the gentleman was right on all counts. It is no longer considered "mannerly" for a gentleman to remove his hat in an elevator, and a gentleman should always precede a lady down a flight of stairs or an escalator. The idea is that in case she stumbles, he will be able to catch her to break her fall.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 61 years old, male, retired, under no financial pressure and in good health—physically, that is—but I'm beginning to wonder if perhaps I'm losing a few marbles.

I'm ashamed to go to a doctor with this problem and I hope you can help me. This past year I've been talking to myself when no one is around. It's not a constant thing. It usually happens when I'm undecided. After verbalizing the pros and cons, I ask myself, "Now what do you think you ought to do?". On occasion I even call myself by name as if there were two of us present.

I have seen some squirrely characters do this in public and I'm beginning to wonder if perhaps they started alone, just as I am doing now. Is it possible that I'm becoming senile?—Sa-Dupey In Rochester

Dear Sa: I am several years younger than you and have been talking to myself (both privately and publicly) for years. Almost everyone does this on occasion and it's nothing to become alarmed about.

If, however, you should start calling yourself by another name, like Napoleon or Alexander the Great, you'd better look into it.

Yummy Rummy Game Teaches Nutrition

EDMONTON (CP) — Yummy Rummy was played in Alberta schools last year. The game is part of a food-in-school pilot project involving nutrition education.

In Yummy Rummy, children are dealt five cards each. Instead of spades and hearts, cards show hamburger, milk, apples, carrots and bread. Along with some of the "bad" foods such as soda pop. Each card has a point value—20 for milk, zero for pop. When the winner collects a full-course meal, he yells Yummy Rummy.

The pilot project began when Nutrition Canada survey, issued last fall, disclosed teenagers are among the most undernourished Canadians. The Alberta department of agriculture's Devising the food-in-school program, the department tried it out in four Edmonton elementary schools and in one school each in Calgary, Vegreville, Lakeside and Olds.

Some have been operating since fall, others were started in January and in the pilot program, for kindergarten children, was introduced a few months ago.

It is difficult to calculate the total cost for the 2,000 children involved, says Edna Clark of the agriculture department's consumer market section. In the program, education is balanced with actual food items.

At some schools, children get a carton of milk before 9 a.m. classes. In others, they get a of good nutrition.

small snack at recess—perhaps a peanut butter sandwich or raisins and a celery stick, coupled with orange juice or milk.

A team of home economists and nutrition specialists from the agriculture department show a film on nutrition, then teach some of the basics of food nutrients.

"What we hope is that teachers will be motivated to carry on the work themselves," said Lorraine Rea, co-ordinator of the four Edmonton projects.

Besides traditional educational aids such as nutrient charts and food models, the department provides puzzles and games such as Yummy Rummy to help children gain awareness

Teachers, parents and students were involving the proj-

Edna Clarke hoped to have a report soon so "decisions can be made before the new school year begins."

If the conclusions are favorable the program might be extended.

GUIDES ARE WRONG

A Matter of Imagination

A motor vehicle is outlined by old tires and planks, but can be used for any game youngsters create themselves at Thurlow, township's Hamilton Park. Such simply-built facilities - - - confronted with factory-produced recreation equipment with a specific function - - - allow freer rein to imagination of young people, say playground organizers.

It's What You Make It

Youngsters clamber up structure that has multi-purpose use at Thurlow township's Hamilton Park playground. It can be used as a shelter in wet weather, or the centrepiece of any game a youngster's imagination can conjure.

Local Students Design Playground from Trash

Once upon a time recreation meant almost solely on a youngster's imagination.

In Thurlow township they're now trying to recapture the spirit of the period before child's play came to signify something more complicated — organized playgrounds and programs.

Scrap lumber, old tires and scrub trees have replaced the standard manufactured playground facilities for young-sters at the township's Hamilton Park, east of Gilbert Sta.

It's all the outcome of Nature's Playthings, the name of a project financed by Thurlow recreation committee and at Ontario Youth in Action provincial government grant. With $1,600 the committee has hired three students to build a variety of playground facilities for playground programs.

At first glance, the end result may look meaningless and makeshift given the impression of an expensive local government's venture into recreation.

That the impression is deliberate.

Since the equipment is not a machine-produced for a specific purpose, the only limitation on its use is the extent of a youngster's imagination.

Four tires bedded in the ground and linked with planks can become a car, a bus, or a truck. Two big tractor tires with a railing down the centre may be a raft, a lookout tower. A shelter becomes a fort or a ship.

"The facilities don't have any specific purpose or function," explains Roger Huffman, 19, one of the students hired for the project. "The youngsters can use their imagination. Unlike factory-as is playground structures with one function, these can become many things."

"And the kids really enjoy playing with these natural products."

The idea isn't exactly new. Such creative playgrounds were introduced in Toronto some years ago. In fact, Roger and his workmates — Lorraine Fargey, 19, and Don Lee, 18 — made a trip to Toronto to learn what went into a creative playground.

Say Summers, recreation committee member, believes children prefer playing with such facilities rather than the factory-it, made, one-function items.

Once, youngsters had their favorite play areas where they made do with discarded objects, letting their imagination create whatever they pleased from the articles to hand.

Urbanization and changed social attitudes have altered much of that carefree, avail ability.

Many such opportunities of improvised recreation — from swimming holes to cow wrestling — have gone. Even where they still exist people nowadays object more strongly to trespassing, says Mrs. Summers.

Three Hurt In Collision

A two-vehicle collision early this morning on Highway 401 near the Wallbridge Road cutoff resulted in minor injuries to three Ajax, Ontario residents.

Robert Glass, 32, driver of one of the vehicles, William Glass, 34 and Dawn Glass, 19, were treated at Belleville General Hospital and released.

Robert Glass' wife was also in the vehicle but was not injured.

The driver of the second vehicle, a tractor trailer, Michael Mandgi, 23, of Montreal, was not hurt.

Ontario Provincial Police in Belleville said the accident occurred about 7 a.m. on the eastbound lanes of 401 now under construction.

Starlings Evicted

SOUTH MARYSBURGH — A flock of starlings at the Mariners' Park museum this summer has indicated that a pest egg is not for the birds.

When a century old lighthouse on False Duck Island was demolished and re-erected in the park in Lake, a slot was placed in the core for visitor donations. Park officials periodically counted out coins and bills dropped in by tourists stopping at the museum. Recently, it was observed that more coins than had been in the box were disappearing and notes were found scattered on the ground floor.

The apparent vandalism could not be the work of human hands as the slot in the donation box was too small. Park "detectives" Willis Meiselka and Arthur Ford inspected the box inside the shed and discovered that starlings had been able to squeeze through it in the door. The birds had nested in the money box and had incorporated all folding money and part of their nest. The coins, however, must have created a lumpy mattress for the birds because the mysterious "thieves" who had carried them outside and dropped them in the grass.

Park officials have placed a housing ban on the donation box and dollar days are over for the birds while feathered their nests with paper currency.

News Editor Moving

PICTON — Jack Evans, news editor of the Picton Gazette for approximately five years, has accepted a job with the Trentonian newspaper in Trenton.

Mr. Evans, elected to town council in 1971, hopes to complete his two-year term of office. He could be forced to resign if disqualified by sale of his home in Picton.

The news editor first came to Picton in 1963 as a bureau chief for the Kingston Whig-Standard and in 1969 joined the staff of the Gazette. He has been employed there since that time, with the exception of a one-year period spent at the Oshawa Times and the Sudbury Star. He worked as editorial assistant at the Gazette for two years before his promotion to news editor.

Mr. Evans this week stated, "I have enjoyed to the fullest my years in Picton and Prince Edward County and particularly my experience in getting involved in the community as a member of town council.

"My association with the Gazette has been consistently pleasant and rewarding and the decision to leave is one that is brought about strictly by the offer of a greater challenge and improved opportunities in the newspaper business."

Combined Government Proposal Finds Favor

By ROBERT WHITELAW

TORONTO — Half the counties in Ontario, are expected to follow the lead of Carleton and seek restructuring legislation within the next five years, says Donald Irvine, minister without portfolio.

Peterborough, Hastings, Northumberland, Prince Edward, Haliburton and Victoria are among the 14 counties in the province that are expressing interest in the possibility of restructuring.

Mr. Irvine told the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer he expects that Northumberland and Prince Edward will be among the first counties to prepare legislation based on local studies for restructuring.

In Hastings, the county municipal reform committee, headed by Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, about a year ago created a restructuring study which, if adopted, would have seen the number of counties' fifties reduced to 12 from the present 36.

At present there are 30 townships in the county, most of which elect their own councils and send representatives to county council. In addition there are eight incorporated villages.

Several of the northern townships years ago amalgamated with their neighbors and, although they retain separate identities as municipalities they elect common councils.

For instance, the townships of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor, in the county's northernmost extremity, elect a common council as do the townships of Tudor and Cashel, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, and Marmora and Lake.

The suggestion put forth by the county committee that proposed further amalgamation of northern townships and villages with townships, was dismissed at the local municipal level but no further action was taken by council.

Since then Belleville and Trenton have requested a provincial study for restructuring in the south part of Hastings.

The county has so far made no decision about joining in the request, but a recommendation is expected to be before council in September.

In Prince Edward county consideration was given this year to a single tier government with each municipality represented on the one administrative body.

But here, again, the county is apparently not ready for the change and the idea has been shelved at least temporarily.

There are 30 counties in the province that remain with municipal-county units of government. The other 13 have undergone restructuring into 10 regions and the Ontario Law structured unit.

At present, counties are ca-

Caretaker Concilation Collapses

Conciliation between Local 1023 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the Hastings County Board of Education broke down July 29 with an agreement unreached.

The local represents 166 maintenance and housekeeping workers employed by the board.

Angus MacDonald, union president said the issues are secondary to wage problems in the light of the accelerating cost of living", he said.

"Our 6.5% wage increase gained in February 1973, has disappeared in a matter of fifteen months and we are therefore bound by bargaining power than we were two years ago. Cost of living clause is more important than ever before," said Mr. MacDonald.

The collective agreement expired April 30, 1974 and the union is awaiting a fact finding report from the Minister of Labor.

Present wages range from $2.65 an hour, for part time caretakers to $3.50 an hour for journeymen plumbers, carpenters and electricians.

The union is making arrangements to conduct a strike vote at its membership while awaiting the "no board" report.

Mr. Irvine, who was last week named housing minister during the illness of Sidney Handleman, will continue his work in the municipal field. He said his work as mayor of Prescott and councilor for several years breaks a lot of ice at initial meetings because he can understand the concern that municipal officials have at the idea of a restructured unit.

He said the main concern involves representation, loss of identity, size of municipal councils, and the size of the restructured council.

Sally Ann Couple Returns to Quinte

The Salvation Army's new corps officers for Belleville, Captain and Mrs. Sloan are settling in nicely into their new postings.

But the area isn't that unfamiliar to the couple, who have come here from Regina. Capt. Robert Sloan and his wife, Ethel, were corps officers for three years in Trenton from 1968-71.

After that period, they were in Vancouver and then moved to Regina where they stayed three years before coming here in the middle of July.

They succeed Major and Mrs. Ray Nelson, who have gone to Vancouver where Major Nelson is an assistant public relations officer with the corps there.

Captain Sloan was born in Calgary, but was educated in the east, at Nova Scotia and then in Montreal. He attended the Salvation Army Training College for officers in Toronto where he was ordained.

He has been in the Salvation Army as an officer for 15 years, working in such places as Petrolia, Ont., Montreal, Rendale, Bermuda and now Belleville.

In Regina, his chief concern was the new building there. In Belleville identified his priorities this way. "We have a deal role to perform. In a pastoral ministry as related to the church which can be a tremendous advantage and in the area of public relations through which people in the community and relating to their social needs with the Red Shield campaign.

"And, of course there are always the basic needs. Helping the year round in emergency situations such as disasters in the role of the Salvation Army."

Capt. and Mrs. Sloan have three children, Brian, 12, Philip, 10 and Kevin, 11 months. His outside interest is curling, which he says helps him to unwind after a Sunday, "We're looking forward to a good stay in Belleville. It won't be too hard as we know the area from before," he said.

The Worm Watch

Allen Semark, 13, (left) and Randy Donovan, 14, are among young people in Quinte area who spend this weekending worms to supply fish bait demand. Bait business is now at its summer peak.

Quinte Worms Attract Fish in Minnesota

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Inflation is enough to even make a worm turn.

In the past two years even the price of the humble bait worm has about doubled, says one bootleg Belleville worm supplier.

But the price hasn't slackened the brisk demand.

To meet it, work crews in one of the Quinte area's busiest summer industries are being trucked out to work at most every night.

The weather is just right, the pickers can supply the bait dealers with 30,000 worms for resale as bait, says Ted Semark.

The ideal picking climate is a combination of dampness and darkness with no wind — environment resembling the subterranean habitat of the bait, says Mr. Semark. However, he admits, he isn't certain why such conditions make worms crawl above ground more readily.

Working with special flash-lights strapped to their heads, the pickers — mostly teenagers — slowly cover their allotted patch of ground in the picking area.

They're paid by how many thousands of worms they snap up and drop into the sacks strapped to their legs.

There's more skill and endurance to the job than might appear, says Mr. Semark.

Pickers must be swift — and gentle. Worms crushed to death by too firm a grasping hand are useless. And the slippery creatures easily take to their holes when swiftly unearthed.

It has to be delicately done — there's a knack to it," says Mr. Semark, "it's not a easy a job as it looks."

Bunched over their work, pickers can also receive a kick in the back that can be real good after a while," he says.

For that reason, the pickers only work about four hours after nightfall, says Mr. Semark, who organizes the bunt for Bob's Sport Shop.

About 10,000 worms at one time are kept in the store, to supply individual customers, sports stores and holiday resorts throughout the district.

One purchaser is a woman resort owner who drives from northern New York state. They've even had inquiries for bait worms from as far away as Minnesota, says Mr. Semark.

Cost of collecting worms has increased in recent years as the supply has dwindled, he goes from three dollars to four dollars.

Leasing fees on golf-courses in the Belleville and Picton areas — where the bulk of the bait is caught — have also increased.

Two years ago worms were selling for 25 cents a dozen, says Mr. Semark. Last year the price was up to 35 cents. This year it has reached 39 cents.

Howard Hughes Faces Charge of Stock Fraud

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Billionaire Howard Hughes and three others have been charged with conspiracy, stock manipulation and fraud by a federal grand jury that made an about-face in 24 hours.

The grand jury accused the four men Tuesday of trying to force down the value of Air West stock in order to make it easier for Hughes to gain financial control of the regional airline. Now called Hughes Air-west, it was taken over by Hughes Dec. 31, 1968.

The charges are a stream-lined version of an indictment returned last Dec. 27 which was thrown out by a federal judge. He termed it "the worst case of criminal pleading" he had ever seen.

When the charges were thrown out Jan. 30, the jury was given six months to return a new indictment, a time limit which expired at midnight, Tuesday night.

The grand jury, the same one that handed down the original charges had met Monday but returned no indictments.

Indicted with Hughes Tuesday were Robert Maheu, former head of Hughes' Nevada gaming empire; Chester Davis, chief counsel for Hughes' Summa Corp.; and David Charnay, chairman of Four Star International, a Los Angeles movie production firm.

Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, and George Crockett, a Las Vegas bankingman, were named as unindicted co-conspirators.

In Los Angeles, Hughes spokesman Dick Hannah said in a telephone interview that no comment on the indictments will be made until lawyers have had a chance to read the jury's findings.

The indictments apparently represented a change in justice department planning and set-tled a dispute between the department and Nevada United States Attorney V. DeVoe Shelton over whether Hughes was to be included in the new indictment, sources said. They said Shelton had been under pressure from top justice department officials not to include Hughes in any new indictments.

Heslon declined comment on what led the jury to do an about-face.

Justice department spokesman John Rinaldi told reporters in Washington: "I acknowledge there was a professional disagreement between the career people in the justice department and the U.S. attorney which was settled to our mutual satisfaction."

The four-count indictment charges the four men with conspiracy, stock manipulation, wire fraud and aiding and abetting the alleged wire fraud.

Canadian Embassy Probes Drug Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian embassy in Mexico City has asked Mexican authorities to investigate allegations that a Canadian has been tortured while imprisoned on drug charges, the external affairs department said Tuesday.

The embassy also is looking into allegations that Mexican officials had sought a bribe from the man's Calgary parents in return for his release.

Refusing to disclose the man's name, the department spokesman said he was arrested last Nov. 23 at Mexico City airport and charged with importing and possessing seven kilograms—about 15 pounds—of cocaine.

He is awaiting trial and could face up to 16 years in prison upon conviction.

As with any consular case, the embassy cannot interfere in the legal system of another country and cannot carry out its own investigation of the alleged torture.

But the department says the matter has been raised with the Mexican attorney-general.

Reports from Calgary quote the man's parents as saying they have been asked for about $30,000 by Mexican officials for his release—$4,000 for legal fees, a $4,800 fine and $20,000 for what the officials called "a motivation fee."

But the deal collapsed later when the Mexicans demanded more money, the parents say.

On a visit to the prison, the man's father found him with broken ribs, pneumonia, cuts and bruises and malnutrition, the parents say.

The department said Tuesday there are 21 Canadians in jails throughout Mexico, at various stages of the criminal process and on various charges.

Embassy Returns $20,000 Sent by Calgary Family

CALGARY (CP) — The Albertan, in a copyright story, says the federal external affairs department has returned $20,000 to Calgary parents who had hoped the money would win release from a Mexican prison of their 23-year-old son.

The newspaper, quoting unnamed external affairs department officials in Ottawa, said that the funds had been held by the Canadian embassy in trust for payment towards money the parents said Mexican authorities were demanding for release of their son.

The money, raised by the father, was returned after what the parents said was a breakdown in negotiations for release of the imprisoned man.

The Albertan also quotes the external affairs official as saying such transactions are not uncommon and that the practice of paying what Mexican officials call a "motivation fee" for the release of imprisoned North Americans is "rather common."

The newspaper reported Tuesday in a copyright story that the parents of the man claimed their son was being held without trial because the parents could not raise enough money to meet what they called "extortion demands" from Mexican officials.

The family was described as "nearly bankrupt" because they had mortgaged their home and taken several bank loans to raise about $30,000 to meet demands by Mexican officials—$4,000 in lawyers fees, $4,000 as a fine on a charge of possession of cocaine and the remainder to be paid a judge as a "motivation fee."

The family is meeting payments of $2,000 a month to pay off the loans taken out to pay the fees, says the newspaper.

The newspaper says the funds were sent from Calgary to the main branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Ottawa. Feb. 18, about three months after the man was arrested at Mexico City's international airport.

The newspaper quotes the unnamed external affairs official as saying similar operations have "happened before."

"Some parents are willing to pay anything. Sometimes the parents give the money and the fellow gets out—at least that was allowed before, but there are some new regulations to-day to curb people jumping bail," said the official.

Cobourg Police Get Death Clue

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police said Sunday they have a lead to the identity of the driver of a car in which a teen-age girl from nearby Cove's Landing was riding shortly before her body was found beside a country road.

They also said an autopsy shows that Cindy Lee Huggins, 16, died of skull fractures and a broken neck, when she apparently received when she either jumped or was pushed from the car on a Durham County road near Elizabethville, in this area 25 miles southeast of Peterborough.

Miss Huggins left her home about 8:15 p.m. Sunday to walk to the home of a friend 1½ miles away. Twenty minutes later her body was found lying about two feet of the road.

Police first thought she might have been the victim of a hit-and-run accident but later concluded that her death was the result of foul play.

RENE BRUNELLE

Aid Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Social Services Minister Rene Brunelle said Tuesday that as many as half the 11,000 Ontario citizens classed as permanently unemployable soon may become eligible for payments under the province's new guaranteed annual income scheme.

He said in an interview his staff now is assessing each file.

Grants Stay

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Mr. Justice James Higgins of Newfoundland Supreme Court granted a stay of proceedings Tuesday until Oct. 3 in the case of John D. Doyle, charged with fraud and breach of public trust.

Seek Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Great Lakes pilots lobbied on Capitol Hill Tuesday for help in obtaining what they contend is a long-overdue pay raise.

Reject Order

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Non-medical workers at Norfolk General Hospital have been voted to reject a back-to-work order from the hospital.

The workers, members of Local 220, Building and Service Workers, went on strike July 21.

No Converters

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ron Teighem, president of Chrysler Canada Ltd., said Tuesday catalytic converters will not be installed on the company's 1975 model passenger cars.

Police Fought

TORONTO (CP) — Policemen with riot helmets and clubs battled with residents of Rochdale College early today following a police raid on the building.

After raiding a tenth-floor apartment, in which one person was arrested, police were prevented from leaving the building by residents who blocked the hall.

Ratify Pact

TORONTO (CP) — Registered medical technologists at Toronto General Hospital have ratified a one-year agreement giving them a 23.4-per-cent wage increase, a Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) spokesman said Tuesday.

Eggs in Storage Go Bad

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario processors said Tuesday that thousands of federal government-owned surplus eggs have been in storage so long that they are going bad and being thrown away.

The egg-freezing and drying plant managers protested that they were being shipped eggs so old that from 10 to 30 per cent in every case were rotten.

Louis Pearl of Pearl Produce, Toronto, said he bought 1,442 cases, each of 15-dozen eggs, from the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA), of which those that 25 per cent were rotten.

"We're willing to pay the price for fresh eggs, but we can't get them," Mr. Pearl said. "CEMA refuses to sell fresher eggs in Canada. We should get preference (over U.S. processors). We pay taxes here."

CEMA is a federal agency which sets quotas for provincial egg marketing boards and buys all surplus eggs for sale to processors. The dried or frozen eggs then are used in baking and other food industries.

Kelly Mandell, vice-president of Shelmac Brank Products Ltd. of Toronto, said that in his last CEMA shipment "the rot factor was very high—I estimate 20 per cent or more."

He said he wanted two carloads of eggs, but when CEMA wouldn't let him specify age and shipping source, "I said you can keep the eggs." Because the waste is too high.

Ross Lashbrook, an egg processor at Rodney, near London, Ont., said "I'm not going to take any more of the damn things—they're too old."

He said CEMA's losses may total more than $10-million as eggs it bought for 67 cents a dozen, fresh, deteriorate to be worth only 26 cents for process egg—or nothing at all as they start to go bad.

Strained Health Services Seen

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government's proposed cut in hospital funding will result in "very strained and watered-down health services," the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) said Tuesday.

G. G. Norman, general manager of the CSAO, which represents about 2,000 professional, medical and x-ray technologists in Ontario's general hospitals, said staff already has an "extremely high" workload.

"Any reduction in staff could only diminish the standard of health care and result in jeopardizing patients' care," Mr. Norman said.

He was referring to a proposed "cut by attrition" announced this week by the Ontario Hospital Association (OHA).

The OHA notified hospitals that the health ministry will ask for a cut of 1½ per cent in budgeted staff positions—a cut in the allowed "establishment" of staff for which the ministry pays the hospitals' funds.

The OHA has said hospitals will be forced to operate with smaller staff, and meet some rising costs out of their present budgets before getting extra money from the government to meet negotiated wage and salary commitments.

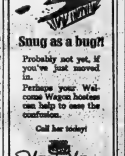
Mr. Norman cautioned hospitals that any attempts to reduce staff fit the expense of patient care would be brought to the attention of the public by the CSAO.

Rail Official May Fix Broken Knuckle

OTTAWA (CP) — A railway management official may be required to change a heavy railway coupling knuckle before an Interstate hearings on a proposed reduction in freight train crews and have, probably this week.

Mr. Justice Emmett Hall, former Supreme Court of Canada judge appointed arbitrator after Parliament ordered the government's national rail strike, is hearing submissions from the two major railways and the United Transportation Union (UTU) on the size of freight train crews.

Canadian National Railways and CP Rail want to eliminate the rear-end brakeman from freight train crews in certain areas and trains where manual flagging to the rear is no longer required because of improved traffic control.



The two-man rear-end crew—a conductor and a brakeman—has not been changed since it became standard in 1888.

The UTU is opposing the change on grounds of safety and workload.

Maurice Wright, legal counsel to the UTU, asked at Tuesday's opening hearing whether any of the management representatives would change a broken coupling knuckle alone.

"Would you be prepared to repair a broken knuckle alone, in the presence of the arbitrator?" Mr. Wright asked D. L. Fletcher, regional manager of operations for CN.

When Mr. Fletcher said he would, Mr. Wright said he may ask a management official to do the job in the presence of Mr. Justice Hall.

GARDEN CITY, N.C. (AP) — Everyone in Joyce Jones's neighborhood was glad when she returned from vacation. Her burglar alarm, tripped by accident, for days emitted a sound neighbors described as akin to the cry of a wounded owl. No one, including police, could get into her house to shut it off.

Vancouver Police Have Own Sherlock

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver police have a resident Sherlock Holmes in Geoff Hilton.

With such small bits of evidence as torn matches, Mr. Hilton works in the crime detection laboratory to help police get convictions.

He matches bullets to guns, tool marks to burglary tools and puts together pieces of glass and chrome from hit-and-run accidents.

"There was one where this fellow broke into a warehouse and lit his way around by striking paper matches, which after burning down he'd throw on the floor," Mr. Hilton said.

He was later arrested and in his pocket was found a book of matches from which it could be proved the stubs came."

Bullets are matched under the microscope by comparing markings caused by slight aberrations in the gun barrel. The markings from a firing pin can also be matched to a spent cartridge.

Mr. Hilton said the .22 firearm is a popular murder weapon in Western Canada.

"Even premeditated murder, the kind we are running into more often, can be done effectively with a .22. Another favorite is the .30 calibre carbine which seems to be allied with the drug trade," he said.

Next to the crime detection laboratory is the identification division which makes a specialty of fingerprints.

The identification section, headed by Staff Sergeant Harold Howard, provides the most solid evidence.

"When a person is charged with an indictable offence he always ends up in jail for fingerprinting and photographing," said S.Sgt. Howard.

His prints are sent to the RCMP in Ottawa and if the suspect is believed to be an American his prints are also sent to the FBI in Washington.

S.Sgt. Howard said people still try all kinds of methods to obliterate their finger prints—even burning the tips of their fingers with caustic soda.

But he said unless the scar is very deep, the prints will grow back again.

Another investigation section is document examination where Staff Sergeant William Thorpe is in charge of forgeries, counterfeit money and typewriter and chequewriter identification.

He said inflation has hit counterfeiters just like everyone else.

"They used to counterfeit fives and 10s, but now they're dealing mostly in 50s and 100s. They've got to keep up with the times."

Around the corner from the police station is the city analyst's office.

Analyst Ted Fennell said it's rare that his department provides the main evidence in a case.

But he described how his office was able to contribute to an investigation in 1955 when a city policeman was murdered while investigating an alarm at a tire company.

Two men approached the car and shot the policeman on the spot.

"I did quite a bit of work on the soil under the bridge which they ran through after shooting him," Mr. Fennell said.

Other tests showed that the soil under the bridge and that found on one of the men's shoes and trousers were of the same density.

Mr. Fennell also found tiny metal balls in both soil samples. He said he thought the balls had fallen from the electric welding done on the bridge.

And a leaf found on one of the suspect's clothes was from a mountain ash tree, of a kind that littered the ground around the stump of a tree where the murder weapon was found.

The man was hanged.

Poland Wants Elderly To Give Land to State

By TREVOR WOOD

WARSAW (Reuter) — Poland is intensifying its campaign to persuade elderly peasant farmers to give their land to the state.

The aim is to speed a fall in food production as young people leave the old and inferm to till the land.

The subsequent redistribution of land will help Poland to overcome land reform introduced by the Communists 28 years ago, concentrating its tiny farms into more economic units.

Inevitably, it will mean a reduction in peasant farms in Poland and the gathering of greater tracts under the "socialised" agriculture.

A law which comes into force next month increases the incentives to elderly or invalid farmers without heirs to give their land to the state in exchange for a comfortable retirement. They will receive larger old age pensions and social benefits such as medical aid and holidays.

In the last five years the government took over in return for pensions 39,000 farms, totalling 244,000 acres.

The law reduces the size of farms, which the state is willing to take over from 12 acres to as little as five acres, a size which it apparently found uneconomic. This will encompass another 27 per cent of farms held privately which, at 37 million acres, constitute 35 per cent of Poland's agricultural land.

This piecemeal division of Poland's farmland came about partly by the tradition of dividing it at death between all the sons of the family, which in a Roman Catholic country was often 10.

But a large contributory factor was land reform immediately after the German occupation of the Second World War when the Communists first possessed power.

Agricultural Minister Kazimierz Barchowski told Parliament some 500,000 farms

Treasure Island

Tourists now enjoy the beaches of Mauritius which once were the haunt of pirates known as the Brothers of the Coast. Esperance Becherel has spent years of his life searching for what he believes was the pirates' "bank," a fortune in gold and jewels. (CP Photo)

Man Hunts for Treasure Of Brothers of Coast

BAIE DU TOMBEAU, Mauritius (CP) — Esperance Becherel is fighting the minds of pirates who died 300 years ago.

Victory would mean 25 tons of gold and an untold fortune in jewelry.

Becherel is a treasure hunter. All of his life he has searched and researched, following in his father's footsteps, for the treasure of the Brothers of the Coast.

The site of Becherel's hunt is a few miles outside Port-Louis, capital of this Indian Ocean island.

It is a glade of palm trees, behind barbed wire with warnings in French and English of the dire consequences of coloring: "Danger, electricity" "Propriete privee" and "Danger" adorned with a skull and crossbones.

An old cannon lies on the ground, pointing, perhaps by coincidence, at the dirt lane outside the encampment.

The hut which is Becherel's headquarters come straight from Treasure Island. It is small—no more than six by eight feet—and made of cane and palm leaves.

Alongside the hut is a water-filled hole, 16 feet in diameter, with pumping equipment hoisted over it.

Somewhere at the bottom of the hole, Becherel is convinced, is the treasure. The inverted fortress layout that lies beneath the water is the same as at Oak Island, N.S., another target for seekers of pirate booty.

Becherel said the coincidences between Oak Island and Baie du Trombeau are many. At Oak Island an oak tree marks the site. Here it is a lone tamarind tree in a glade of palm trees.

In Canada one beams mark every 10 feet of the maze that is said to be the pirates' bank. Here it is the basalt that is common on the island.

But at Oak Island construction work goes slow—almost 200 feet. Becherel's research in Paris and Seville makes him believe the workings here go down only 20 or 60 feet He has reached the 40-foot level.

Becherel figured it took the pirates many years to construct their bank.

He has found eight skeletons in the caves. He believes they were either pirates who were involved in the construction or victims of the belief in black magic whose spirits were left to guard the treasure.

Once the treasure was in place Becherel said, an underground river was diverted through the maze of caves. He had found two locations where the pirates dammed and diverted the river.

This water is the barrier Becherel and his father believe him have been trying to beat.

When he starts his 10-to 12-hour day the pumps clear 600 gallons of water per four hours. After that it is a steady 430 gallons an hour.

Becherel estimated he has spent $25,000 in search for the treasure. He doesn't know when he will find it.

"It could be tomorrow, it could be 200 years," he said. "The water delays the work. I have to have bigger pumps, bigger air compressors. It is all a question of money."

Becherel raises money through writing and selling shares in his treasure.

A share cost 1,000 rupees ($400) and he expects to pay out at 1,000 to one when he finds the treasure. He has shareholders throughout the world, including some in Toronto, Vancouver and Montreal.

One man with a great interest is Dr. Reynolds Becherel of Ottawa. He is a brother of the treasure hunter and searched for it as child with his father.

"If I could get $10,000 I could finish in a year," Becherel said.

He is sure the treasure is there.

"The pirates wouldn't have gone to all this trouble and then not stored their loot," he said. "All the signs point to this location."

The Brothers of the Coast had at least 60 boats with crews totalling about 2,000. They reigned from about 1630 to 1750.

Becherel said his research shows that the treasure represents loot from all over the world.

"They were remarkable sailors," Becherel said. "They sailed past the two capes in boats less than 300 feet long."

He said finding the treasure will be something of a letdown.

"I've always had something to look for. In many ways I will regret finding the treasure."

But he said he has knowledge of at least 10 other treasure sites in Mauritius from the days pirates "banked" their money here.

The Mauritius government thinks the chances of finding treasure real enough to warn divers that treasure found at sea belongs to the government. The finder can expect to collect only 40 to 60 per cent.

Becherel is luckier. His site is far enough inland for him to take possession of everything he finds.

Peasants of Anatolia Welcome Back Poppies

AFYON, Turkey (Reuter) — In the impoverished villages of southwest Anatolia, jubilant farmers are preparing to plant another poppy crop.

After only two years, Turkey has scrapped the United States-sponsored ban on poppy cultivation and given the go-ahead for a resumption of opium farming in seven provinces.

To the peasants eking out a living on the Anatolian plateau, it means a return to their old way of life and the hope of a richer future.

For Turkish and American narcotics agents, it represents a new burden in their uphill battle against drug smugglers.

The Turkish action, though expected, put strain on traditionally close relations with Washington.

The U.S. state department expressed regret, there were demands from congressmen for retaliatory cuts in U.S. aid, and the American ambassador here, William Macomber, "the called home for "a review of the entire range of U.S.-Turkish relations."

Despite Turkish assurances of strict controls, narcotics agents say part of the opium crop is certain to find its way through international smuggling channels and will end, as heroin, in the hands of U.S. addicts.

"The ingenuity of the Turkish smuggler is endless," one agent said.

"It's no use pretending. Whatever controls are introduced, the smugglers will find a way of getting their hands on some raw opium."

For the United States, the implications of the decision go beyond Turkey—which, until 1972, produced about nine per cent of the world's opium.

It weakens U.S. endeavors to persuade other countries to limit poppy farming.

Three years ago when Turkey, under U.S. pressure, agreed to adopt the ban, it was heralded as a breakthrough in narcotics reform.

Before, U.S. experts estimated that about 80 per cent of the heroin sold on U.S. streets emanated from Turkey.

To get the ban enforced, Washington pledged $35.7 million of compensatory aid.

Even before the army-backed government of Nihat Erim applied the measure in July, 1972, there were predictions it would not survive.

In the villages around Afyon—the city's name itself means "opium"—the edict was resented.

The 180,000 poppy-farming families faced a major upheavel in their way of life. To them, the poppy was more than a cash crop.

It was a multi-purpose flower. Apart from opium, it produced seeds for cooking oil, fodder for cattle, pods for export, salad leaves and stalks used as firewood or ground into a primitive gunpowder.

Despite U.S. compensation, the Turkish Union of Agricultural Chambers said farmers lost 113 million liras ($7.4 million) during the first year of the ban.

In last year's election, not one of Turkey's eight political parties supported the edict.

Premier Bulent Ecevit has said the plight of the farmers and world need for opium for medicinal purposes were the main reasons for his government's action.

In an apparent attempt to soothe U.S. feelings, he has emphasized that Turkey will adopt strict controls, consider any suggestions from "friends," and welcome technical assistance for narcotics enforcement.

Poppy cultivation now will be restricted to five dekars (1.25 acres) a family and farmers with criminal records will be refused licences to grow. Few other details of the proposed controls have been released.

The next crop will be planted in the fall and the distinctive poppy flower will bloom again in the spring—a familiar sight in Anatolian landscape for 2,000 years.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Can you supply any information about the Dixieland Trail in the Southeastern U.S.?

ANSWER: Scenic and historic variety highlight the Dixieland Trail. The highway route, already mapped through Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, has been posted with distinctive markers to guide the traveller.

The 2,200-mile Dixieland Trail joins modern roads into a "circle" route taking in varied mountain and flatland scenery, historic attractions, and noted areas for the sportsman. Indicated is the world's longest road designed solely for motoring pleasure, The Blue Ridge Parkway.

As with other trails, the Dixieland Trail can be entered at any point. By the time the motorist gets back to his starting place, he will find he has experienced a well-rounded vacation.

The motorist will see such symbols of southern tradition as magnolia trees and white-columned portices, and such symbols of the modern world as the vast Tennessee Valley Authority complex of dams and lakes and the atomic research centre at Oak Ridge.

For the sportsman there is fishing and boating on the TVA lakes, hunting in the mountains, deep-sea fishing off the Atlantic coast, golfing at North Carolina's noted resorts, and the home of the thoroughbred race horses in Kentucky's Blue Grass country.

The devotee of history will find antebellum homes, historic gardens, the birthplace of Right at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, rich colonial restorations, many sites of significance in the Civil War, and three shrines connected with Presidents — Abraham Lincoln's log cabin birthplace in Kentucky, Andrew Jackson's noted home, the Hermitage, in Tennessee, and the Little White House, at Warm Springs, Georgia, where Franklin D. Roosevelt died.

The outdoorsman will find an abundance of opportunities for hiking, horse back riding and camping. The trail traverses the country's most visited national park in the Great Smoky Mountains. Those who prefer the atmosphere of the seashore can camp or hike among the wild dunes of North Carolina's Outer Banks.

In addition to the main trail, each state except South Carolina has developed side loops leading to additional attractions. Tennessee's spreads southeast from Paris in Memphis, taking in the state's noted Reelfoot Lake and winding along the broad Mississippi River.

North Carolina's alternate route heads east from Memphis to the Outer Banks area, then winds south through historic New Bern and Wilmington before crossing the border to rejoin the main trail at Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

Georgia has two side trails. One leads through Milledgeville and Macon from Atlanta to Americus. The other travels through the northern mountain area encompassing Gainesville.

Kentucky's side trail is the shortest, leading from Frankfort, to the state's tobacco country around Danville, Ky.

The Dixieland Trail which was designed as a three-week trip for the average family, includes points of interest to appeal to each member.

Picking up the Trail at Winston Salem, N.C., for example you head east on I-85 to Durham, N.C., then south on 501 to Myrtle Beach, S.C. From there, the trail follows 17 south through Charleston, S.C., and Savanah, Ga., to Brunswick, Ga., then west on 84 and 82 to Albany, Ga., north on 19 and 28 to Cordele, Ga., 86 W. to Atlanta, Ga.

From Atlanta I-75, north takes you into Tennessee at Chattanooga. The trail follows 41 through Nashville and 70 to Paris, Tenn., 641 and 79 to Bowling Green and I-65 to Louisville, Ky., 60 to Lexington, Ky., 25 to Knoxville, Tenn., 441 to Asheville, N.C., and from there by I-40 back to Winston Salem.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN, CONSUMER ADVISOR

PLAN NOW FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Each menu planner has her own tricks for making three-day weekends long on meatless interest — short on work. Here are some main-course hints for your readers this coming holiday.

*Pan scenes in detail from Sunday-night dinner to Monday lunch. Provide arrive of dinners for next-day lunches. For instance, a casserole for fast Friday heating could appear again at Saturday lunch.

*Tastepreads at portables on hand into weekend menus, so you won't come home to spoiled food.

*As an inevitable habit, list and check off everything you should take — foods and new foods — so you won't arrive home without or pillow slips!

*For practical weekend main courses consider ham or cottage roll; turkey to barbecue (enough to provide a second meal or sandwiches); chicken pieces; stew or pot roast combined in a casserole and baked 3 hours at 275 degrees; a baked double-crust fish pie for hot or cold service.

*If you're barbecuing for two, look at utility grade Cornish hens for economy.

Expos Edge Cubs in 10; Reggie Smith Powers Cards

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Jorgensen's two-run single in the 10th inning carried Montreal Expos to a 4-3 win over Chicago Cubs in National League baseball action Tuesday night.

Montreal loaded the bases off Cubs' starter Rick Reuschel in the 10th when Ron Hunt was hit by a pitch and Willie Davis and Larry Lintz walked. Oscar Gamble relieved Reuschel and promptly surrendered Jorgensen's line single to right field.

Montreal got on the board first when Davis tripled into the right field corner in the first inning and came home on a throwing error by Billy Grabarkewitz.

The victory was Montreal's fifth in nine games against the Cubs. The Expos made the most of just six hits. Only one hit, Ken Singleton's leadoff single in the fourth, didn't figure in the scoring.

Reggie Smith slammed two home runs and a triple Tuesday night, driving in all four runs for St. Louis Cardinals' 4-3 victory over 1st Philadelphia Phillies.

The win moved St. Louis to within one game of first-place Philadelphia in the National League East.

"I was having far too many men on base," Smith said, after the Cards posted their fourth consecutive victory. "So I came out early and took 25 minutes of extra batting practice. I discovered I was dropping my shoulder and made the correction."

Elsewhere in the National Pittsburgh Pirates split a doubleheader with New York, beating the Mets 6-5 in the opener before losing the second game 6-1; Expos Franchise Montreal scored three runs in the 12th inning and beat Atlanta Braves 6-3; Houston Astros defeated Cincinnati Reds 8-4; and Los Angeles Dodgers blanked San Diego Padres 5-0.

Smith, who came to the Cards in a winter deal with Boston Red Sox, and is batting .300, tripled home Bake McBride in the first inning to give the Cards a 1-0 lead.

The Phillies tied it in the second on a Del Unser triple and scored on a passed ball, but Smith put the Cards ahead again with a homer in the sixth, off starter Jim Lonborg.

After Dave Cash's bases-loaded single gave the Phils a 3-2 lead in the seventh, Smith came on in the eighth with a man on first to face relief pitcher Jesus Hernais. Smith homered to the right-field bullpen for a 4-3 victory.

Richie Hebner singled home one run and scored one in Pittsburgh's four-run second inning in the opener. Hebner singled and scored again in the Pirates' two-run fourth.

In the second game, Pittsburgh jumped out to a 3-0 lead, but the Mets tied it in the sixth on a three-run homer by Ed Kranepool, then won it in the eighth when Dave Jones doubled home Jerry Grote.

Chris Speier's bases-loaded double in the 12th inning provided the winning margin for the Expos, who tied the game in the ninth on a pinch-homer by Dave Kingman.

Lee May drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and Cesar Cedeno hit his 22nd home run of the season to power Houston Astros past Cincinnati.

Johnny Bench and Tony Perez homered for the Reds, No. 19 of the season for each.

Andy Messersmith, 12-9, combined with Mike Marshall to blank the Padres on five hits. Messersmith threw the first seven innings, then Marshall finished.

Blackwell Throws Entire Ball Game into Left Field

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Manager Ralph Houk would have been a great player, but it was not, and Boston Manager Darrell Johnson says he does not expect to see it ever after the Red Sox lost 7-5 to Detroit, when two runs scored on Blackwell's wild throw with two out in the ninth.

In other American League games, Cleveland defeated Baltimore Orioles 7-4; Milwaukee Brewers swept New York Yankees 2-1 in 10 innings and 4-0 on Chicago White Sox edged California Angels 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota Twins swept New York Yankees 1-2 in 10 innings and 4-0 on Dick Bosman's 11-8 decision, and Texas Rangers 11-8.

The Red Sox went into the ninth leading 5-3 when Gary Sutherland singled and Al Kaline homered. Then with two out and Jim Rice on base, Houk doubled, on third and pinch-hit Ben Oglivie on first, Oglivie broke for second.

Blackwell faked a throw to second and then threw wildly past third, allowing both runners to score.

The Tigers also suffered a bad blow when starting pitcher Mickey Stanley's right hand when he was hit by a pitch fi the fourth inning.

The Indians built a winning 7-1 margin with five runs in the seventh. In that inning, the Orioles committed three errors, two by first baseman Boog Powell. John Lowenstein drove in three of the runs in the seventh and also hit a two-run homer. Jack Heidemann added another.

"I guess you might call it in-experience, but this should happen only once," Johnson said. Baltimore made it close with four in the eighth three on a homer by Don Baylor.

Kansas City pitcher Fred Patek also had a rough time in the field, committing three errors. The shortstop on two of them, Harmon Killebrew and Steve Braun, scored for the Twins.

Nolan Ryan of the Angels gave up only six hits, but one was a two-run homer by Bill Sharp in the second and another was a bases-empty blast by Sandy Alomar in the 10th.

With two on and two out in the 10th, George Scott raced home with the winning run as Jim Spencer lost on a fielder's choice. The Yanks had tied it in the eighth when Roy Alcala scored from third on a double play ball.

Rookie Kevin Kobel, who is 1-1 against the rest of the league, now is 5-0 against the Yankees, shutting them out on a four-hit-ter. Dave May's run-scoring single in the third produced the only run Kobel needed as he sent the Yanks to their fifth straight loss.

Reggie Jackson and Gene Tenace led the Oakland rout with two home runs each and Larry Haney added another. Blue Moon Odom improved for the Rangers.

Bart Starr Offers Help in Settling NFL Players Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the players and the club owners in the National Football League resume their second day of face talks with the nation's top federal mediator today in hopes of averting a critical negotiations in the labor dispute and 31-day strike.

The two sides apparently were to discuss the so-called Pittsburgh Issues, one of the crux of the contract talks.

After meeting for five hours Tuesday with both sides—jointly and separately, but not with mediator W. J. Usery Jr. said today's negotiations would be "extremely important" because substantive issues will be discussed.

He said he and his two assistants "explored all issues with each parties separately, but not all of the issues together."

Neither the NFL Players Association nor the NFL management council would attend the closed-door meeting, and Usery refused to detail the proceedings except to say, "We were being sure that both sides understood the outstanding issues. There was a lot of dialogue and discussion."

It was understood that the two joint sessions, lasting 75 minutes, centered on revised economic proposals such as pension and minimum salaries for players.

Former Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr offered his assistance Tuesday by joining the strike. Starr said he would make himself available to either players or owners at any time, although they would have to come to him.

The intervention was requested by several Packer veterans.

Meanwhile, the defection of Atlanta from the strike ranks and as four veterans joined Chicago Bears' camp at Bessemer, Ind. Three crossed lines in Colts' Oakland Raiders' camp, and two more walked into Pittsburgh Steelers' summer camp at Latrobe, Pa., and Philadelphia Eagles' camp at Cheltenham.

Reporting to the Bears' camp Tuesday were wide receivers Brian Reynolds and Dave Jasper, tight end Bob Parsons and cornerback Willie Roberts.

In Santa Rosa, Calif., linebacker Jim Carroll, Gary Weaver, a rookie last year, and starting guard George Buehler returned to the Raiders' camp.

Defensive tackles Ernie Holmes and Steve Furness joined seven other Pittsburgh veterans in camp, and guard Royce Smith joined the Falcons' camp.

In Chester, wide receivers Don Zimmerman and Stan Dziedzic reported, giving the Eagles 11 veterans on hand.

Also joining camp was Don Martin, a defensive cornerback with New England Patriots, and second-year man Claeshea Dawkins and Eddie Moore of St. Louis Cardinals.

CAPITALS MEET KINGS

LANGLEVEE, Md. (AP) — Washington Capitals will open their first National Hockey League home schedule Oct. 11 against Los Angeles Kings, general manager Milt Schmidt of the Caps said Saturday.

Bardsley Looking For First Canadian Closed Tennis Title

WINNIPEG (CP)—Tony Bardsley of Vancouver, easily won their way into the quarter-finals of the men's singles championship.

Three of the other top seeds had plenty of trouble, however, before they managed to advance into the third round.

Vicki Berner of Whitewater, the 1971 women's singles champion, seeded No. 4, dropped the first set to Kathy Morton of Winnipeg, seeded No. 10, before rallying to score a 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 victory.

Dale Power of Toronto, the No. 3 men's seed, lost his opening set, then his racket smashed balls off the court and nearly broke the bench before he regained his composure enough to defeat Jeff Moore of Toronto 6-3, 6-7, 8-6.

Top seed Usually loses any tem-per that baby," Power said.

But I couldn't believe what was happening. I don't know if I regained my control or if I calmed him. Maybe he was afraid I'd bit him with my racket."

For Chris Burr of Toronto, the finalist last year, who is seeded fourth, it wasn't quite as bad, but he still had to talk himself back to calmness to beat Peter Pospisil of Toronto. Burr won the match 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Coaches Feel Tonight's Game Battle of the Best

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposing coaches seldom agree but Montreal Alouettes coach Marv Levy and George Brancato of Ottawa Rough Riders each thinks his club faces a stiff challenge tonight at the Autostade.

"Even what I've seen on the films you've watched, Montreal is the team to beat," in the Eastern Football Conference, Brancato told a news conference.

"The Alouettes had the tough-est defence last year and though are not changed this season, They're solid. They have real game-breakers in quarterback Jimmy Jones and halfback Johnny Rodgers."

Levy, who has already picked Ottawa as the team to beat in the East, said he expects his players are in for a "really tough" time of it tonight.

"Everything we get will come hard," he said. "Ottawa doesn't give you anything easy, nothing is easy. They have the pressure on you."

"We'll need a lot of poise, a lot of perspective in facing a team like this. What scares me most are those two wide receivers, Hugh Oldham and Bernie Nixon."

The Riders, Brancato said, will have the same lineup as faced the Toronto Argonauts last week in a 18-3 upset defeat.

One of the keys to stopping Montreal is to contain the Jones-Rodgers combination, he said. Ottawa will alternate between zone and man-to-man coverage and try to "Jam Rodgers at the line of scrimmage."

When asked if the Rough Riders' task would be made easier because of the absence of left guard Ed George who was suspended by the Als, Brancato said:

WHALERS PLAY FLYERS

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — New England Whalers will play a seven-game exhibition series, including a game with the National Hockey League Stanley Cup champions, the World Hockey Association team said Tuesday. The Whalers will take on Philadelphia Flyers, the Stanley Cup champions, Sept. 26 at the Quebec coliseum. The Whalers' first regular-season game will be Oct. 15 at Toronto.

Etter Brings 4th Quarter Daylight to Dusking Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats rallied in the fourth quarter Tuesday night to defeat Toronto Argonauts 28-21 in an Eastern Football Conference game.

The result, before 22,301 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium, left each club with a 1-1 record.

Dave Fleming plunged one yard for a touchdown that won the game after Ian Sinter had kicked two field goals to tie the score at 22-22.

Sinter kicked five field goals and converted touchdowns by Fleming and Andy Hopkins.

Eric Allen and Doyle Orange produced touchdowns for the Argos and Zenon Andruzyshyn converted both. He also kicked two field goals and one single—one that travelled 58 yards.

Bill Etter replaced starting quarterback Chuck Ealey in the third quarter with the Cats behind 22-15. Etter directed his team into position for Sinter's field goals that knotted the score.

Ealey has been hobbled by a hamstring injury that kept him out of the lineup for many of the pre-season games.

The turning point in the game came when the Argos gambled and lost a third-and-two situation early in the fourth quar-

Quarterback Mike Rae, following instructions from the bench, sent Ed Shuttleworth into the centre of the Hamilton defensive line. Shuttleworth was stopped and the Ticats took the ball unfield for the score that put them ahead.

Offensive Punch Needed in Calgary

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders head coach Jim Wood says he is looking for more offensive punch in tonight's game in Calgary against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Wood said Tuesday he cut veteran offensive guard Marion Lefebvre and will draw rookie receiver Brian Jackson in a search for that punch.

Saskatchewan went down to a 31-7 defeat against Edmonton last week.

The Western Football Conference game goes tonight at 9 p.m. EDT and will be televised on the CBC western network.

Meanwhile in Winnipeg, the Bombers will face the B.C. Lions who won the WFC season opener against Calgary 23-20 last week.

The Bombers will be pitting a rookie coach, two new quarterbacks, and seven rookie first-stringers against the seasoned veterans led by Eagle Keys.

But Riley, formerly an assistant with the Roughriders, has dropped four rookies into the Bombers defensive unit, and three into the offensive squad.

Riley said the Lions are a much improved ball club over last year's product when the Leos made the playoffs for the first time in many years.

"Defensively, they like to free (middle linebacker Ray) Nettles and let him roam," Riley said.

"He has good football sense and always seems to be around the football. He has exceptionally good range and good quickness for a linebacker."

In their game against Calgary, Bombers' running back Mercer Flory did most of the work with a 110-yard kicker's return that led to one touchdown and managed a carry for another.

Calgary quarterback Pete Liske had it his way in the air in last week's game, with 20 of 30 passes good for 276 yards.

Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster hopes to have more success against the Calgary defensive secondary than he did against Edmonton.

Although at the helm through most of the game he failed to lead the Roughriders in for an single point. The Roughriders only scoring came on a pass by rookie quarterback Kelly Reade to a tingly with less than a minute to play.

All four teams are generally in good health for their games.

ing attack with Andy Hopkins' running to set up the winning touchdown by Fleming with less than six minutes remaining.

The Ticats gained 27 first downs to Toronto's 17 each, led by big Tony Gabriel's eight receptions for 168 yards; outstripped the Argos 286-180 in yards gained passing.

The Argos held an advantage in the running department, outrushing the Ticats 176-144 as Shuttleworth gained 79 yards on 17 carries and Orange picked up 63 on 12 totes.

Andruzyshyn was the kingpin in the punting, with a 40-yard average—39 yards further than Hamilton's Sinter.

Wannamaker Earns Another OFL Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a game of pitching Friday Tuesday night as London Dukes downed Niagara Falls of the Intercounty baseball league 4-1 in one of three Ontario Football League contests.

Oshawa Toops took both ends of their doubleheader with Woodstock Warriors in other action, winning 3-2 and 6-5.

At London, Ed Gelinas threw a six-hitter and struck out 12 to win his initial game of the season after four losses. He outdueled Ed Neudorf as the Dukes handed the Niagara Falls hurler his first setback after 11 consecutive victories.

Defensive lapses played a large part in the London victory as the McRae committed seven errors. All the Dukes' runs were unearned.

The first end of the double-header at Oshawa was a makeup contest from May 30 which was halted in the bottom of the third inning when a foul ball struck a light standard, throwing the park into darkness.

The game resumed Tuesday with the Warriors leading 2-1. Oshawa struck for the tying and winning runs in the fourth when George Redshaw's bunt trickled into the outfield for a double, scoring Phil Solomon and Bob Young.

Wayne Colley was the winning pitcher, allowing five hits. Don Bowden surrendered seven hits in taking the loss.

Oshawa came back again in the nightcap, overcoming a 3-2 deficit. Paul Gibbons and Solomon belted crucial two-run triples and Jim Bowden hit a sacrifice fly to give Toops the victory.

Fred Wannamaker threw a three-hitter in earning the nightcap victory. Bill Fildes, who gave way to Bob Prucnik in the fifth, took the loss.

In games tonight, Hamilton Watmot play host to St. Catharines Jaycees' while Oshawa meets the Provisioners in Burlington.

Only Two Back of League Leaders

Printers Breathing Down Rollins' Back

Move over Rollins Construction. You may have company soon.

The Constructionmen are in first place in the Quinte Fastball League, but once again the Howard and Robert Printers are hot on their tail, and getting closer than they ever have before.

The Printers are threatening to catch up to the Big Red Machine, and now are only two points back, after last night's games. Howard and Robert won their 13th game of the year last night, and along with two ties, gives them 28 points. They dumped the Ellis Printing Juniors 5-4.

In the nightcap at the Ameliac, Rollins lost their fifth game of the year, against 15 wins, to Anger Men's Wear, 3-1. They have 26 points.

If current trends continue for both teams, the biggest game of the season may occur on the second-last night of the regular schedule, when the two teams clash in the opening game of the twin bill.

In their game, Howard and Robert got a two hit performance out of their left hander, Bob "Shoe" Ehler. His usual strikout total was down for the big southpaw, at five, but he walked none. The only baserunners in the game for the Juniors came as a result of the hits.

John Sprackett was on the mound for the Juniors, suffering for ten hits in defeat. He fanned one and issued two free passes.

The Printers got four of their five runs in the bottom of the third inning, when three singles, a double, and the two walks given up by Sprackett combined to push in the markers.

They added another in the sixth, although being able to get only the single despite having five baserunners. The Juniors shut off a run at the plate with a force out, while a fly to the outfield with two out, finished off the rally.

Dwight Rathwell limited the big stick for Howard and Robert, connecting three times for singles, in only three trips to the plate. Rusty Garvin was two for three, along with Jim Cornerman. Both collected a pair of singles.

Terry Pope finally saw his .300 batting average slip a bit, collecting only a double in three tries, while Dave Clinton and Wayne Woods rounded out the attack with one hit each.

John Romano, in the first inning, and Brian Gariepy, in the second, were the only hitters for the Juniors.

The loss was also a big one for Sprackett.

Elliot Tykes Take Win

Despite the rain that fell across eastern and southern Ontario Monday night, Belleville Elliott Motors tykes did manage to get a full seven innings in against Peterborough.

The locals made use of every crack of the bat as they scored eight runs on eight hits to defeat Peterborough 9-5.

Matt Wilcox led the way for Elliott's with a triple and a double. Brian Cronkwright was also a big hitter with a triple and a single.

Rory McLeod earned the win allowing just four Peterborough hits — all singles. He gave up eight walks and fanned four.

Peterborough combined their four hits with four Belleville errors to accumulate their runs.

Rob Flagler was the only Peterborough batter to get two base hits. Steve Morgan took the loss striking out five and walking three.

Broadloom Wins Slugfest

It was strictly a slugging contest all the way, but Belleville Broadloom finally came out on top in their Provincial Women's Softball Union game with Campbellford last night. The final score, after the dust had settled, was 17-11 in favor of the Belleville team.

The win gives the locals a two game lead in the best of three series in the Intermediate C division. The second game of the set goes Wednesday night in Campbellford, with game time set at 9 p.m.

Belleville got off to a fast start, scoring four runs in the first, combining one by the visitors, and scored four more in the fourth and fifth innings, and two in the seventh and eighth, and one in the third to total up the 17 markers. Campbellford put 20 hits in the process.

Roxanne Hovinga and Norma Fuller led the charge, each collecting a double and four singles. Mary-Anne Sills had three doubles and a single, Helen Sills got and Smith a double and three singles, Chris Smith a triple and a single, and Linda Cole and Linda Bosma a base hit each.

More Sport On Page 35

For the visitors, it was Janice Bell with five singles, with Kathy Fredericks checking in with three and Terrye Wynn with two. Diane Dewey, Karen Raycroft, Angie Quinn, and Cathy Boulough each connected for singles.

Mary-Anne Sills was on the mound for Broadloom, going all the way to pick up the win. She struck out seven and walked 17, while allowing 15 hits.

Karen Atkinson absorbed the loss for Campbellford, fanning two and walking the same number. She was nicked for all 20 hits.

CLINIC OPENED

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Volleyball Association's International coaching clinic opened today at York University with a registration of 36, headed by Horst Baache of East Germany and Hiroshi Toyota of Tokyo. RETAINS TITLE

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuter) — Percy Hayles of Jamaica retained his Commonwealth lightweight boxing crown Saturday night when he outpointed New Zealand's Manuel Santos in 15 rounds. Hayles, making the fourth defence of the title he won from Love Allotey of Ghana in July, 1968, took the verdict by a unanimous decision.

Shortage of Minerals Seems Long Way Off

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — One day, man is going to run out of minerals unless population or demand is limited, many scientific publications predict.

In the case of some minerals, there are indications that they will be exhausted within our lifetime. Well, several decades localized in the earth's crust, this may be true on a national scale. On a global scale, however, it is unproven and probably unlikely.

The simple fact is that predictions of the global mineral reserves available to man, even in the short term, are unreliable and invariably on the pessimistic side for several reasons.

First, accurate data are needed to make a reasonable prediction. Few mining companies will release information on their reserves and governments are not forthcoming when it comes to releasing data on strategic minerals. It is not possible for an imperial scientist to obtain full data for any mineral.

Secondly, estimates of reserves depend on discovered deposits of "ore" which may be defined as material that can be extracted now or in the foreseeable future. They cannot take adequately into account the possibility of new finds, recycling or substitution and technological advances in methods of mineral extraction.

How much mineral wealth is left? No one knows. Rough calculations, however, show that the amount of minerals in the outer 10-mile skin of the earth's crust is so vast that for all practical purposes, providing man can find and extract them, it may be regarded as infinite.

How can man increase his reserve of minerals? The obvious method is to locate new deposits which are workable by present-day methods.

Contrary to popular belief the chances of doing this are high: It should not be forgotten that 10 per cent of the land is concealed beneath the continental ice sheets, a large percentage is covered by shallow seas (the continental shelves), and a much larger percentage is obscured by superficial deposits.

New deposits are being discovered every year and will continue to be discovered for decades to come.

Improved technology will permit the exploitation of known but, at present, uneconomic low-grade deposits.

Methods of extraction which now appear novel, will be increasingly used. An example is the use of bacteria in mining. Certain bacteria can be used for converting copper sulphide ores into a soluble and easily extractable state. The process is slow but it is inexpensive and may be used on low-grade ores.

The department of geological sciences at the University of Aston in Birmingham is investigating the feasibility of using bacteria and other mineral-organisms to extract a wide range of sulphide ores.

The hunt for new mineral deposits and the improvement of technology for working existing low-grade ores will be the short-term solution to any mineral scarcity. In the long term, however, the major breakthrough will be the conquering of the "depth barrier."

The continental crust is a complex mosaic of rocks. Some are formed at great depths and new at the surface; others formed at the surface but now deeply buried. In this mosaic, mineral deposits are sporadically located not only on the surface of the earth but also at depth.

In terms of the thickness of the crust, underground mines have scarcely scratched the surface of our planet.

Deep mining, of course, has its problems: It is expensive, it is technologically difficult, and in conventional mining requires men to work in arduous and often unpleasant conditions. Radically new methods of mining will be needed to break through the "depth barrier."

Botanists in Sikkim First in Forty Years

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — When Jr. Keith Wade and his 25-member botanical expedition walked into the Himalayan kingdom of Sikkim they really didn't know what they were in for.

Deep in the mountainous realm, Dr. Wade discovered he and his colleagues were the first Westerners to travel in the country for more than 40 years.

"I knew botanists had been trying for years to get in but our guide told us that, except for the capital, the country has been closed to foreigners for over 40 years," he said.

Staying about 30 miles north of the Indian city of Darjeeling, the expedition walked about 60 miles of the route followed by British botanist Sir Joseph Hooker in the 1850s.

Sir Joseph brought back many plants, the hybrids of which include some of the beautiful varieties of rhododendrons now found in Western Canada.

"The most exciting aspect of the expedition was seeing these plants in their natural habitat," said Dr. Wade.

"We saw rhododendron forests 70 and 80 feet high with leaves 14 inches long," said Dr. Wade, resident botanist at North Vancouver's Capilano Community College. "Some of the plants never have been seen by white men."

During the month-long expedition, more than 8,000 photographs were taken of natural life by the 3,164-square-mile kingdom, a protectorate of India.

The group also collected more than 100 plant samples.

"We hope to set a precedent by making this expedition so other interested parties may return. We already are making arrangements for a seed-exchange program with Sikkim."

At a dinner in the palace of King Palden Thondup Namgral, Dr. Wade said the monarch told the travellers he is concerned that the country develop in the right way.

"Opening up the country to typical Western-style tourism is not the right way," Dr. Wade said.

"They don't want outside influences to impose on them. They want to control their own destiny."

Sikkim is sandwiched between China to the north and India to the south. The two larger nations have not been on the best of terms in recent years.

"We saw no enormous movement of Indian troops, as said." There are about 90,000 in Sikkim and over two million men along the border between China and India.

"The general attitude is that India's presence is necessary but that they would rather be on their own."

The 200,000 inhabitants of Sikkim are partly isolated from the outside world by their winding, treacherous roads, built entirely by hand. The first airplane landed in 1956.

"Those roads are really something else," said Dr. Wade. "For example, one stretch dropped from 8,000 feet to 800 feet in just a few miles. And most of them are barely the width of a Land Rover."

A. Rennie Butcher 70 Years

VANCOUVER (CP) — Andrew Rennie, 87, is probably the oldest active butcher in Vancouver.

He has been selling meat for more than 70 years. He was going to retire, but all the excitement found he couldn't sell his store, Andy's Sanitary Meat Market, where he has been selling groceries and cutting meat for 30 years.

He opened his first store in the late 1890s with sawdust on the floor and he cut up carcasses by hand with a hand and handsaw.

"Butchers don't know how to cut meat any more," said Mr. Rennie. "I'm one of the last of the ones who can take a whole carcass and butcher it. Today it's all done by machine."

He was about 15 when he left home in Dundee, Scotland and shipped to Halifax. He stayed in Vancouver with a friend and started work at the old Vancouver-Kamloops Meat Company.

"We hauled the meat in off trucks and we learned everything there was to know about cutting it," he recalled. "Hours were long—we started at six in the morning and finished at eight o'clock at night. A big wage in those days was $3 a day."

He thinks today's astronomical meat prices are silly.

"We made more meat out of the business in the old days when prices were low and the money went further."

Young Indian Leader Sitting on Powder Keg

EDMONTON (CP) — Harold Cardinal, the young leader of the Indian Association of Alberta (IAA), is sitting on a powder keg.

He knows the fuse is lit, but wonders why no one else seems to smell the smoke.

"There's one hell of a lot of frustration among the Indian people in Canada," says Cardinal. "The establishment, white and Indian, have to move quickly to rectify the problem.

"If they don't, the militant movements will direct their wrath toward the white and Indian establishments."

Mr. Cardinal, president of the IAA since 1968, fears Canadian society and Canadian governments will take an increasingly tough stand on Indian problems.

As a result, more militant Indian leaders may create a more radical militant Indian movement.

Mr. Cardinal said because of the refusal of the establishment "to grant some pretty basic solutions to problems, frustration grows and the more militant leaders appear."

He said its militant, violent leaders eventually begin to appeal to the public and "about that time the establishment feels the first leaves probably weren't so bad after all, and decide to negotiate and to meet the original demands."

"It isn't the best way to accomplish things, but it does get things done eventually."

A key to avoiding confrontation lies in providing incentives, not handouts, for native people, said Mr. Cardinal.

"We are usually asking for the resources that are needed to do something ourselves, or to hire people who can help us do something, and for a government to come in and do it for us."

Mr. Cardinal, who says he would like to try his hand at federal politics one day, recalled the rejection of one major self-help plan drafted by the IAA.

The association asked the federal government to divide the export tax revenue from oil produced by wells on Alberta Indian reserves equally between the producing bands and provincial native development fund.

The government rejected the proposal and is considering an alternative plan by the Indian Affairs Department which would divide the export tax revenue between the band and Ottawa.

During the 1973-74 fiscal year, the department spent more than $5 million in welfare for native people in Alberta. Wouldn't it have been better if that money could be used for development, rather than mere subsistance?

The fund envisioned by IAA would be used to finance Indian projects, such as tourist camps in remote wilderness areas, highway motels and secondary industries.

"Over five-to-10 years there would be a substantial fund that we could use to finance our developments. Then, if we had those funds, we wouldn't have to go, to the Canadian taxpayer and ask for money. It would be ours."

Eight of Alberta's 42 reserves have producing oil wells. The eight bands split an estimated $1 million per month in oil revenues, with 85 per cent of the revenue being divided among four bands.

The wealthy bands oppose the IAA proposal for revenue sharing, and Mr. Cardinal blames them for encouraging the federal government not to accept it.

"Looking 10-to-20 years ahead, there is no excuse for our people to be kept in a state of poverty. It is really a decision the federal government has to make—whether to keep expanding the welfare budget to provide a bare existence for our people, or to provide funds for skill training and economic development."

Potato Cigarette Said Safe

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — It looks like a cigarette. It tastes like a cigarette. It smells like a cigarette.

But it is made of tobacco-scented potato leaves, without the health hazard of nicotine.

A new "safe" smoke is expected to be on sale in Argentina within six months.

The man who developed the nicotine-free cigarette is Argentine chemist Gregorio Rubinstein, a 56-year-old chain smoker.

Rubinstein, married with two sons, says of his cheroot:

"Instead of supplying potential suicide cases with real bullets, we shall be giving them black cheroots."

He started his research six years ago and two tobacco manufacturers have backed the project. A factory soon will be built in southern Buenos Aires province, he said.

"My idea arises from the fact that in Argentina potato leaves are thrown away. Before each harvest, the leaves are cut out."

Each week beclare (1.4 acres) produces between 40,000 and 45,000 plants. In Buenos Aires province there are 22,000 potato-seed hectares amounting to plants two million plants.

The processing of the potato plant to make it a "safe to smoke" starts with drying under heat in the same way as tobacco.

Residues are eliminated through a "cellular vacuum" process. The leaf's texture becomes identical to the tobacco leaf and is ground in the same way. With a little added tobacco scent, it tastes like tobacco.

Severed Arm Restored

Teresa Baker, 2, of Bluffton, Ala., has had a severed arm replaced in a rare operation that doctors say could be the first of its kind in Canada. The operation took place at Edmonton's University Hospital after the child's arm was severed when she was run over by a mower in a field at the family farm, about 35 miles southwest of Edmonton. Morocco Cracks Down On Political Hijacking

RABAT (Reuter) — The monarchy in Morocco has decided to crack down on hijackers, kidnappers and drug traffickers. New laws enacted in June provide harsh penalties for these modern crimes.

Several times King Hassan has condemned political hijacking and kidnapping, especially those involving Arab guerrillas.

The Moroccan king was angered last December when Arab commandos attacked an aircraft at Rome Airport, killing many people among whom were four high-ranking Moroccan government officials.

A new law signed by Premier Ahmed Osman makes this kind of operation a major crime, although no such incident has occurred on Moroccan territory or involved Moroccan aircraft.

Kidnappers risk a minimum of five years in prison, rising to 20 years, 30 years or life depending on the circumstances. If the kidnapped prisoner is tortured the culprits risk the death penalty.

Aggravating circumstances include the use of kidnapped prisoners to threaten others, the holding of hostages for ransom or in exchange for liberation for criminals.

These clauses are designed to punish kidnappers who hold people such as diplomats in an effort to obtain the release of prisoners held in custody for other crimes, as has happened in several Arab terrorist operations.

Hijackers of aircraft risk the same penalties and also are liable to 20 years to prison for taking over control of an aircraft in flight or on the ground if it is in transit.

In another decree, the Moroccan government increased penalties for narcotics offences which have become more frequent in the last two years.

Large quantities of marijuana are grown in remote mountain areas in north Morocco and this has given rise to drug trafficking.

Last year the authorities seized about 2,000 tons of marijuana.

and arrested more than 2,000 people on drug counts.

Relatively mild penalties under the old law did not appear to discourage the trafficking but the new law makes buying, selling and exporting the drug a risky business.

The maximum penalty has been raised to 10 years from five and the minimum to five years from three months for most types of offences.

Paperworkers President Came Through Ranks

MONTREAL (CP) — "I was of the Canadian Paperworkers born with a union label," says Union. L. Henri Lorrain, first president "My father was a volunteer for the sulphite brotherhood (Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers). My earliest recollection of unions is at the age of nine when secret meetings were held in our home.

"Unions didn't have the same laws in those days to protect them and employers didn't like the idea."

Mr. Lorrain, 54, was a natural for the top spot in the new 32,000-member all-Canadian union that split from the parent United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU) follow ing a February referendum.

He was made first Canadian director of the sulphite brotherhood in 1954 after 28 years working his way up through the ranks. At the same time he was advanced to first vice-president of the union's international organization.

When the brotherhood joined with the United Paperworkers and Paperworkers in 1977 to create the 225,000 - member UPIU, Mr. Lorrain became the first Canadian director of the union and executive vice-president of the international.

He has been active at the national Labor Organization conferences and is involved in the Geneva-based International Chemical Federation, which brings together paperworkers from various countries.

Born in Kenogami, Que., his family moved to the Gatineau area as his father followed the pulp industry.

He got an office job at the Canadian International Paper mill there in 1930 but soon moved to the laboratory, which was unheated. He joined the Gatineau local before going to war.

His father was an influence in his career in more ways than just steering him into the labor movement. He also made sure his son spoke both English and French so fluently it is impossible to tell which is his native tongue.

"French was my first language," he explains. "I learned English later on. . . .

As a unionist, Mr. Lorrain likes to focus on issues and not personalities. He steers away from name-calling but also says he doesn't pull any punches when it comes to pursuing his members' interests.

"We've had violent disagreements with the industry, but we like to do it at the bargaining table, not in public."

He believes legal strikes are useful for the unlucky "and a basic right that I certainly hope workers will continue to enjoy."

Quetico Fire Fought By Hundred

TORONTO (CP) — About 100 firefighters and six aircraft are moving in battle a major forest fire in Quetico Provincial Park, 106 miles west of Thunder Bay, the ministry of natural resources reported Tuesday.

The fire covers about 5,000 acres of the park, which attracts many canoeists each summer. Vacationers are being warned to keep away from the area.

The fire began in Ontario, but part of it laps over the border into northern Minnesota and firefighting efforts are being coordinated with the United States forest service.

Park officials said Tuesday the two main entrances to the park, Cache Bay and Prairie Portage, still are open, but visitors are being warned of the fire danger and a ban on open camp fires.

As faster progress was made in controlling the two major northwestern Ontario fires near Dryden and Red Lake, weary firecrews — many of whom had been on duty for more than 36 hours — were relieved and replaced by new crews.

Weather forecast Tuesday night called for cloud cover, high humidity, some rain and moderate winds as a low-pressure zone moved over Minnesota.

Twenty-one forest fires were out out Tuesday and only 10 new fires reported bringing the total number of fires burning to 79 the ministry said. Of that total, 44 were under control, nine were being held, four were out of control and 22 others were being observed north of the intensive fire protection zone.

Nixon Offers Aid to North

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Tuesday his party has policies that will help combat high living costs in Northern Ontario.

Mr. Nixon, on a two-week tour of Northern Ontario ridings, said the party's gasoline tax reduction plan would lower the current tax to 14 cents from 19 cents.

A Liberal tax-reduction plan would work similar to the provincial minimum income plan.

"I don't believe a c... cut of living in the North can be justified. It could once but it cannot now," he said.

Ukrainians Feel Weak

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Ukrainian Canadians from Toronto said Tuesday they are feeling very weak and might soon have to end a hunger strike they began 16 days ago outside the Soviet embassy.

They are seeking the release of Ukrainian historian Valentyn Moroz from a Soviet jail.

Andriy Sanders, a 29-year-old associate editor of the Toronto weekly newspaper Homin Ukrainian, said blood tests Monday showed possible deterioration of his bodily tissue and organs.

Mr. Sanders said he thinks he and his colleague, Lada Shtyr, 32, are reaching the end.

A doctor said they should "go to hospital ... by Wednesday at the latest," Mr. Sanders said.

Prime Minister Trudeau expressed Canadians' concern about the Moroz case to Soviet ambassador Alexander Yakovlev Friday, his office said.

Canada had recognized that the issue is an internal matter of the Soviet Union but had expressed concern on humanitarian grounds.

Male Aid Called

Two Policewomen Frightened Nurse

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A student nurse who objected to taking off her clothes during a mass strip-search in a drug raid here May 11 said Tuesday two policewomen threatened her with having two male officers "finish the job."

She was testifying at a royal commission inquiry into the raid at the Landmark Motor Inn at nearby Port Erie during which 43 persons — 36 of them women — were stripped by police in an unsuccessful search for heroin.

Her name was not made public under a ruling by the commissioner, Horace County Judge John A. Pringle, that civilian witnesses may elect to keep their identities out of the media. Her home is in Port Erie and she is in training at a Toronto hospital.

The 20-year-old nurse — who eventually was not forced to disrobe fully — called the strip-search "humiliating and degrading," as have other female witnesses.

She said she had gone to a washroom but was refused the use of the toilet until two police women in the washroom had searched her. She said she refused to remove her clothing and a struggle followed in which the witness said she was crying and screaming.

Finally, she testified, the two policewomen "threatened to bring in two male officers."

"I consented when one of them went toward the door to get the police officers," she said. "I said, 'Hold it,' and consented when they said I could keep my underwear on. I thought that was good enough of a bargain."

Announcement Coming Thursday

Industrial Milk Price to Rise

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — An increase in the base price of industrial milk will be announced Thursday, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said today.

Mr. Whelan told a regional meeting of the National Farmer's Union (NFU) the increase will be less than that of a hundredweight demanded by the NFU.

Industrial milk is used in the manufacture of skim milk and other dairy products.

Farmers in Ontario now receive $8.59 a hundredweight for industrial milk and $10.65 for first-grade fluid milk.

Spokesmen for the farmer's union complain that the prices are lower than production costs and are driving farmers out of business.

The basic price for industrial milk is fairly stable across the country, with some regional variations depending on the market prices for such products as cheese, skim milk powders and ice cream.

The fluid milk base price to farmers, set by Provincial agencies, varies from $14.19 a hundredweight in Prince Edward Island to $10.98 a hundredweight in British Columbia. The British Columbia price, however, is actually higher because of special government supplements that bring the return to the farmer to about $13.

Mr. Whelan also indicated that the Thursday announcement may also deal with new beef policy.

The minister said a new policy is needed to stabilize the domestic beef industry. Several alternatives were being considered to provide subsidies for the producers.

Mr. Whelan also said it is only a matter of time until the United States institutes a program of certification for its beef.

Ottawa has cut off beef imports from the U.S. until that country sets up a government program to certify its beef as free of the growth hormone diethylstilbestrol (DES) which has been linked with cancer in laboratory experiments.

The minister said some importers, including Australia, have been able to meet the requirement.

"My guess is that pressures are building in the U.S. for their government to accept Canada's position," he said.

He denied charges that the government set up the DES certification requirement to halt low-priced imports and bolster the domestic beef industry.

He said the government feels DES is a health hazard.

GREAT PRINTS AND PRINTMAKERS — Herman J. Wechsler.

After an introductory chapter which discusses the history and traditional methods of printmaking, most of the book consists of one hundred representative prints, in chronological order, by major European artists who worked in this art form, from Rembrandt to Picasso. Beside each print is a description and notes about the artist's work.

CRAFTS CANADA: THE USEFUL ARTS — Una Abrahamson.

This book by an author well-known for her work on pioneer life in Canada, includes crafts ranging from stained-glass and book-binding to the more widely-practised ones of knitting and embroidery. A description of the origin of each craft and its history in Canada is accompanied by photographs, many in colour, showing the beautiful articles produced by contemporary Canadian craftsmen.

SHAVES AND BUFFALO: PLAINS INDIAN LIFE IN 1837 — Water-colors of Alfred J. Miller.

In 1837, Miller, a young American artist, travelled west with a caravan of fur traders to the Oregon Territory. The water-colors he painted along the way graphically portray the traditional Indian way of life, which was already beginning to decline. Forty-one portraits, landscapes, and pictures of daily life are brilliantly reproduced, together with the artist's own commentary on Plains life and culture.

STAGE ONE: A CANADIAN SCRENBOOK — Andrew Parkin

Excerpts from 29 Canadian plays present a picture of Canadian drama from Tecumseh (1886) to recent productions like "Gods Down the Road" (1970), the main emphasis being on contemporary English-language works. Intended primarily for drama students, this book will also be useful for reference, with notes on the playwright preceding each excerpt.

DRAMATISTS IN CANADA: SELECTED ESSAYS — William H. New, ed.

A good companion to Stage One is this volume of essays, most of which have been published in the periodical "Canadian Literature". Together they provide a valuable commentary on the development of Canadian drama from the nineteenth century to the present.

CAN I SUE? AN INTRODUCTION TO CANADIAN TORT LAW — Steven N. Spiro.

Another in a series of legal self-help books, this quotes actual cases to explain the law in terms the layman can easily understand, and goes on to tell how to take a case to court. Tort law includes matters such as trespassing, damage by animals, negligence, and manufacturer's liability for products.

Taxis Expensive In Dacca

DACCA (Reuter) — It is not easy to run a profitable business in Dacca nowadays but one group of people who are doing well are taxi drivers.

Not that there are many of them, only a few dozen in the [illegible]

Most park outside the Intercontinental Hotel, the only hotel where foreign visitors stay. The cars are almost all ancient, rusty-looking Japanese vehicles.

Foreigners, in fact, are almost the only people who can afford the prices. The minimum fare is 25 taka ($3).

One cabbie asked $3 for a four-mile ride from the hotel to an office in the city centre and back. After an argument and much grumbling he settled for less.

The owner of his own taxi, he said he sometimes earned about $11 a day which on a monthly basis gave him 50 per cent more than the limit paid government employees.

He blamed high prices for gasoline and the difficulty of obtaining spare parts in the rupee for the fare. He also said that to buy a new car, assuming he could get one, would cost about $10,000.

A car from a rental firm is cheaper.

In either case, the chances of a breakdown are good. If that happens in central Dacca, the only choice is to switch to a motorized three-wheel scooter or to a cycle rickshaw.

The scooters are dangerous; their drivers seem less intent on survival than on forcing their way through the smallest spaces between cars at the fastest possible speed.

Cycle rickshaws are cheap but slow. The riders vary in age from teen-agers to what look like old men. In fact, they probably are only middle-aged. The life of a rickshaw peddler is short and not profitable.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When Franklin County didn't pay a $26.04 bill, the City of Columbus shut off water to the county Auto Titles building. It was found the bill was among unclaimed bottoms of an employee who had gone on vacation.

Opening lead—♣9

By Oswald and James Jacoby

"Didn't you know that West had opened a singleton?" yelled North.

"No, I didn't," screamed South. "Why didn't you bid six notrump?"

South won the club lead in dummy; led a trump to his king; a second heck to North's queen and after West ducked and a third trump, which West won.

West led the nine of diamonds and South was in dummy. How could he get back to his hand? He could ruff the third round of diamonds, but West might overruff, or he could try a second club.

South canned one high diamond and West dropped the deuce. South thought a while and tried the club. Down went South!

The diamond play was wrong from result, common sense and percentage, but South should never have gotten into that position.

When East showed out on the second trump lead, South should have cashed the aces and kings of hearts and diamonds before leading a third trump.

West would be on lead and have no way to throw South in dummy. West would try with his third diamond, but it wouldn't do him any good.

What do you do now?

A—Bid six spades. If you want to gamble on seven you won't be making a really bad overbid.

TOMORROW'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three spades, your partner jumps to four spades. What do you do now?

Diabetes, Infection Bad Combination

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 18, has had diabetes and severe sinus trouble. We have no trouble controlling the diabetes as long as the sinus does not act up, but every winter we have trouble with sinus infection. Cutting a window in the sinus for drainage did not help. Last winter she was under the care of a pediatric allergy specialist.

I have heard that prolonged stays in West Texas, New Mexico or Arizona cause sinus infections to dry out. Is this so, and if so how far west would one have to go for relief.—O.T.P.,?

Quite true that infections make it difficult to control diabetes and I must certainly agree that keeping after some correction of your daughter's sinus infections is important.

The seasonal flare-ups suggest allergy of some sort. The house dust in the winter, mold perhaps, perhaps some other factor. It's my feeling that your present approach—treating an allergy, is the logical one.

But I have to admit that conclusions like "dry up" tho be pretty baffling. In many cases, of course, relief for the more common allergens produce a prompt answer. And then again sometimes the allergist has to seek among some of the less familiar ones before finding the right answer. It can take time.

But to reply to your direct question, about trying a West ern climate for "dry up" the infections—it's risky to put too much dependence on that. To be sure, it may be helpful. And again you may find either the same or other allergens that which keep the trouble flourishing.

So before contemplating any such long stays, first consult your allergist to see what chance, if any, he can provide. Second, instead of plunging into a prolonged stay, make a test visit to one of the areas you have in mind and see whether a short stay begins to have any effect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know what shoe-inserts, or heels, are available for women who have had their Achilles tendons cut. I have had mine cut twice and have had to have my shoes built up. Is there anything else I can do?—Mrs. M.

The Big-band Sound Is Coming Back Strong

By MICHAEL LAWSON

TORONTO (CP) — When the early years following the Second World War brought a new life-style to North America, many traditions took a back seat to the younger trend.

The big-band sound of the 1940s was one of the institutions overshadowed by the television, whose popularity brought an end to the age of the radio, ballrooms and many of the major night clubs.

For two decades the music which flourished following Bill Haley's rock-around-the-clock period remained the era of sax-and-dance industry. The great jammers were put aside by younger audiences but were not left behind.

Names which helped build the swing-big band era are experiencing a resurgence and beginning to attract audiences that were too young to know them the first time around. The age of the music world, always on the lookout for fresh sounds, may discover them the updated style of the jazz great.

Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver were given the opportunity this summer to hear jazz at its best in the first annual Belvedere Jazz Festival, which featured some of the legendary names of contemporary music.

Performers who established new trends 30 years ago—Woody Herman, John Birks (Dizzie) Gillespie, Maynard Ferguson, Louis Bellson, Buddy De Franco—and offshoots of the big band age—like Kaffman, Peter Appleyard, Carmen McRae, Jack Wilkins and Supersax—were on hand.

The Toronto engagement also featured the great Count Basie, who after 25 years at the helm of big bands continues to deliver the same rich, pulsating sounds which characterize his music.

In interviews between shows, most of the performers expressed delight in the attention younger people are giving their music—more than one argued that the jazz scene is not experiencing a rebirth, because it never died.

Clarinetist De Franco, who for the last eight years was involved in the softer swing sounds fronting the Glenn Miller Orchestra, said he got back into the jazz idiom because "jazz started to perk up again throughout the world."

"Rock fit a point of no return, musically and economically.

"The young people are starting to get a little bored and are looking for more sophisticated things in music. You can sense it."

This attitude was qualified by Gillespie, who decades ago was active in the transition from the swing era to progressive jazz. He said jazz musicians do not turn up their noses at today's rock 'n' roll sound, viewing it rather as an extension of the earlier music forms.

"The main change in jazz today is the rhythmic part of it," said flautist-pianist Moe Koffman of Toronto, whose recorded album of Swingin' Big-Band Blues was the hit instrumental of 1958.

"Jazz players have become more aware of the ex[illegible] rhythms that have entered into the music business. Jazz has become a marriage of every type of music.

That sentiment is evident in Koffman's albums, in which he blends jazz sounds with contemporary, rock and classical music.

Trumpet wingstress McRae attributed the new jazz popularity to the increased number of young persons in the audiences, drummer Bellson cited the rising number of young musicians in the jazz ensembles.

"One reason for this is the superior music education system," said Bellson, who received with Gene Krupa.

"Kids today are just as good as the old cats. They are exposed to bigger and better things."

Bellson, like Gillespie, De Franco, Herman, Ferguson and Basie, is ensuring that today's youth continue to be so exposed. Following a move to Las Vegas, Gillespie-composer Stan Kenton in the 1950s, they are visiting high school and college campuses regularly, conducting workshop sessions and seminars.

It's paying off. New groups are emerging like Supersax, winner of the Grammy Award for best jazz performance by a group this year.

Supersax, led by Med Flory, features the style of the late Charlie (Bird) Parker, a master of solo improvisation. Flory treats Parker's recorded solos as written compositions, thereby perpetuating some of the finest jazz of the century.

Another relatively new sound is provided by the Jack Wilkins Trio. Wilkins, 30, is becoming a seasoned jazz guitarist, having appreciated with Larry Ergart and the Glenn Miller Orchestra among others. He currently works at drummer Buddy Rich's New York Jazz Club.

Wilkins, hands still shaking from his Toronto performance, said: "I've been on edge for weeks about the (Belvedere) concert. Now that we've performed, I'm still nervous but after working with these guys I feel like a real pro."

HONG KONG (AFP) — Pekang has turned down an application for visas by the Rolling Stones, guitarist Mick Taylor, who joined the group three years ago, said here today.

Taylor, who is here on holiday said: "I think they (the Chinese authorities) didn't want their youth turning out like the decadent-deplorable youth of the West."

There is a chance that the Stones will play a concert in Hong Kong as the remaining members of the group may be arriving here next weekend.

NEW YORK (Reuter) — NBC has paid $10 million for a single television showing of The Godfather, Gulf and Western said Monday.

Gulf and Western is the owner of Paramount Pictures, which owns rights to the film.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Carson has returned to The Tonight Show after a two-week absence caused by a back injury, NBC reported.

Carson fell off a slant board and injured his back while exercising at his home July 15, a network spokesman said. The entertainer spent time in traction because there was severe tissue damage.

Carson returned Monday night and is scheduled to work through Wednesday night, when Joey Bishop takes over during Carson's regular vacation.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carroll O'Connor will return to his role as Archie Bunker in CBS's All in the Family today, CBS said.

O'Connor missed the first two shows for next season because of a contract dispute with the show's owner, Tandem Productions. He is to deliver a one-line gag at the end of tonight's taping and should appear full time in the fourth show for the season, a spokesman for the actor said.

O'Connor filed suit against Tandem in June, asking Los Angeles Superior Court to determine whether he had a valid contract. He also sought $654,077 he said was due in back salary. Neither CBS nor O'Connor would say how the dispute was resolved.

AGAWAM, Mass. (AP) — Country Western singer Jeannie C. Riley says she would rather sing hymns than Harper Valley PTA, her hit of six years ago.

She was a successful gospel singer said Sunday in an interview between shows a gospel amusement park.

Miss Riley, 32, said she realized his God did no was her record any more than she be PTA ballad, which satirized small-town hypocrisy.

"I know he God has a mission for me," she said, adding that her next album will be a collection of inspirational songs, many of them about her own life.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Helen Reddy announced Monday.

The winners in he categories of hes professional and amateur song will receive $30,500 each.

Vladimir Zworykin, who invented the television picture tube 50 years ago, says his favorite subject at television set is the switch.

Zworykin, celebrating his 85th birthday today, deplores the number of crime and murder stories on TV.

"When broadcasting began it to develop, I hoped TV would be used for educational purposes, especially so that different citizens could learn "to understand each other," Zworykin said Monday night. "Instead, most of the times when I turn on the TV—bang, bang bang."

Zworykin likes wildlife shows, political debates and news programs as his favorite TV fare.

Zworykin still acts as a consultant to the RCA research centre in Princeton, N.J.

IN MEMORIAM

BENTEN — In loving memory of a dear brother, Walter Denyes, who passed away August 1, 1973.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and honest to the end of his days.
Sincere and kind to heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
Sadly missed by Cecil, Cecil, Hazel, Fred and Ruby.

BERRIDGE — In loving memory of our dear son, (Buddy) Richard Earl, who passed away July 31, 1973.
Sweet memories, sacred and dear,
A heart that's broken, and a home that's lonely.
He had so much love spoken before he went away.
But the hand that took him away we would not have dared stay.
Then life is not the truly present,
Though not for me but memory lasts.
Always and for me but memory lasts.
Sadly missed by his son Richard and dear wife Linda.
Peter you walk in Heaven's sunshine.

In memory of Gordon
Now your face and memory reside in,
The hearts of those who loved you.
This dearly loved by your brother Norman Berridge.

SAUNDERS — In loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Ernest, who passed away July 31, 1973.
Dad, you left us very suddenly,
Without a word or sign,
And though we try to be brave,
Our hearts still pine.
Sadly missed by wife Lena, son Ronald and daughter Shirley.
